GOOD WORK FOR INDOORS.

THREE RECORDS WERE BROKEN IN THE LAST INDOOR CONTEST.

Raymond Carroll Broke Them—Showing in Other Events was Good—Complete List of Winners, Distances and Times in That Contest—New Interest in Athletic Work — The Table of Records.

Interest in athletics among the members of the Y. M. C. A. has shown a decided increase this year. This increase has been particularly noticeable among the members who have heretofore taken but little interest in such things. One of the principal means of bringing the novices out has been the indoor athletic contest which ended last Saturday evening.

Out of the ten events contested there were records broken in three of them, all by Raymond Carroll, who won the contest. In the others the showing made was good when compared with the Y. M. C A. records.

A complete list of the Y. M. C. A. records in indoor events is given below, together with the winner of that event in the contest, and his time or distance, whichever it happens to be.

While there is nothing phenomenal in any of them, there is evidence of good work that speaks well for the training given at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

The records are as follows:

Standing broad jump—record, F. O. Bristol, 9 feet, 1 inch; '99 contest, William Townsend and Raymond Carroll, 8 feet, 5 1-2 inches.

Potato race—record, F. O. Bristol, 1 minute, 46 1-5 seconds; '99 contest, J. H. Green, Jr., 1 minute 47 2-5 seconds.

Three standing broad jumps—record, F. O. Bristol, 29 feet, 6 inches; '99 contest, Raymond Carroll, 26 feet, 10 inches.

Putting the shot—record, George Proctor Smith, 37 feet, 6 inches; '99 contest, William Morgan, 32 feet, 9 inches.

Hop, step and jump—old record, George Proctor Smith, 25 feet, 2 inches; new record and '99 contest, Raymond Carroll, 25 feet, 9 1-2 inches.

One quarter mile run, (9½ laps)—record, George Proctor Smith, 1 minute, 22 3-5 seconds; '99 contest, J. H. Green, Jr., 1 minute, 25 3-5 seconds.

Standing high jump—record, Ivan Hardingham, 4 feet, 2 inches; '99 contest, Berry Egan, 4 feet.

Running high kick—old record, F. O. Bristol, 8 feet, 1 inch; new record and '99 contest, Raymond Carroll, 8 feet, 3 inches.

Fence vault—record, F. O. Bristol, 6 feet, 3 inches; '99 contest, Raymond Carroll, 5 feet, 10 inches.

Running high jump—old record, a tie between F. O. Bristol, Walter L. Long and Ivan Hardingham, 4 feet, 10 inches; new record and '99 contest, Raymond Carroll, 5 feet, 2 inches.

FARM BUILDINGS BURNED.

Disastrous Fire at C. L. Blair's Country Place—Live Stock Perished.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Peapack, Feb. 1—The buildings of C. L. Blair, consisting of stable, hay barns, wagon-house, poultry-house and other buildings, were burned to the ground Monday evening. The fire started in the building used for straw and grain storage. This building was filled, and the fire spread very rapidly and soon communicated with the horse stable and cow stable. Six valuable cows were burned in the stanchions, as they could not be released. Thirty sheep, which were also in this building, were burned. The fire spread to the poultry-house, in which were many choice fowls. These were also burned. The horses, by dint of hard work, were released from the stable before the flames reached them.

Owing to the wind blowing from an opposite direction the handsome dwelling of Mr. Blair was saved. Mr. Blair is spending the winter in New York City, and during his absence the place is in charge of a caretaker, Mr. Ross, who could give no reason as to the cause of the fire. The loss is about $10,000.

Wreck Victims Gradually Recovering.

Mrs. Borreco and infant child, of Mt. Carmel, Pa., who were injured in the Lehigh Valley wreck at West Dunellen, have recovered from their injuries and will leave the hospital as soon as Mrs. Borreco's young son recovers sufficietly to leave with her. There are now twelve wreck patients at the hospital.

SEVERE COLD WAVE IN THE ASCENDANT.

A Zero Temperature for This Section.

IT WILL LAST TWO DAYS.

THEN A BIG SNOW-STORM IS PREDICTED TO ARRIVE.

An Inch More of Snow Fell Last Night—Street Commissioner Gavett's Men on Duty Early This Morning—Cleaning Crosswalks—The Police to Strictly Enforce The Sidewalk Cleaning Ordinance.

A cold wave of exceptional severity is sweeping over this country and the foremost edge of it has already reached this section. Last night, Jack Frost and his hardy assistants turned out and chased the mercury well down toward the bottom of the tube of the thermometer. This morning, at 7 o'clock, the mercury registered six degrees above zero. At Oak Tree, it is reported to have reached the zero point.

In the western states where the cold wave is now at its height, the thermometer has fallen far below zero, even in the southern section. According to the statement of the weather bureau, the cold wave will reach its greatest intensity here tonight and the weather will then moderate for a big snow storm due here Friday.

The great storm that was expected in this section Monday or Tuesday passed to one side and was not noticed here. A small storm visited this section yesterday, broke during the day but gathered new force at night. During the evening, an inch of snow was added to the inches that had already fallen. The only effect of the snow was to spoil the skating without bringing sleighing or coasting.

This morning a gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men were on duty early cleaning the cross walks in the business section. During the morning they extended the field of operation to the residental parts of the city. The police will also begin an active campaign against those who don't clean off the snow from the sidewalks.

REFINED AMUSEMENT AT THE PARK CLUB.

SIX EXCELLENT RECITATIONS GIVEN.

Mrs. Frank H. Smith Seen at Her Best—Fine Tenor Voice of Mr. Stricklett Was Appreciated.

The entertainment committee of the Park Club, of which Elston M. French is the efficient chairman, provided an entertainment at the club last evening for the members and their friends. Those who furnished the entertainment were Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Smith and G. Morgan Stricklett. Mrs. Smith gave six of her best recitations. Her selections were varied with pathos and laughter and each line was given with a finished style that was delightful.

Interspersing Mrs. Smith's selections G. Morgan Stricklett, who is the tenor soloist at the Crescent Avenue church, gave several of his best selections. There was strength and purity of tone and his selections were of the kind that won the approbation of the audience. He was accompanied on the piano by Frank H. Smith.

To Make Railroad Appliances.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—The American Manufacturing Company filed articles of incorporation yesterday with the Clerk of Union County. The company is capitalized at $100,000. The incorporators are Alfred D. Keys, of Elizabeth, and George B. Hahne and William E. Seeley, of Newark. The company will manufacture and sell railroad car couplers and other railroad appliances and do business in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, and South America. The chief office of the company will be at 20 Broad street, New York. Former Senator F. C. Marsh will be its agent in New Jersey.

Reception to Mothers.

The Superintendents and members of the Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will tender a reception to the mothers of the Juniors Friday afternoon at 3:45. There will be a short literary programme, after which refreshments will be served and a social time enjoyed. A cordial invitation is extended to mothers who have children in the League. G. W. Gardiner, Superintendent; Mrs. A. A. Taft, Mrs. G. W. Gardner and Miss Mary G. Steiner.

—This is a good season of the year to have bedding made over, feathers steam dressed, carpets and rugs cleaned. The bedding manufacturers on Somerset street are prompt and reliable for such work.

BANQUET A REWARD FOR EXCELLENT WORK

Prudential Life Insurance Company Act as a Host.

DINED AT REVERE HOUSE.

WORKERS IN THE PLAINFIELD DISTRICT WERE PRESENT.

Superintendent Woodland Acted as Master of Ceremonies—A Few Invited Guests From This City—Several Officials From the Main Office Were There—Pleasant Remarks Followed the Dinner.

As a reward for a year of exceptional good work, the Prudential Insurance Company gave the superintendent and his assistants and the agents of the Plainfield district a banquet last night at the Revere House. The Plainfield district includes the territory from Roselle to as far south as Frenchtown, Clinton, Flemington and Lambertville, and the working force consists of between 50 and 60 men. It is the custom of this company not only to promote their employees as fast as they show merit, but to frequently reward them for good work by the gift of cash prizes, articles of apparel, jewelry, etc. This banquet is given when the year's work has been above the average, and is an occasion of mirth and festivity.

Covers were laid last night for seventy-five. There were seven invited guests at the banquet, former Judge W. B. Codington, J. C. Ireland, Henry Woodland, M. F. Elderton, Dr. D. C Adams, Frank L. Cobb and William A. Stimpson.

From the home office at Newark came Dr. Watson, assistant medical director; Robert Gemmell, L. V. Ash, E. Taylor, Fred Tasney and D. A. McIntyre.

Medical examiners Dr. Whitford, New Market; Dr. C. L Field, Liberty Corner; Dr. Ewing, Flemington; Dr. Bartow, Three Bridges; Dr. Snyder, Quakertown; Dr S. Servis, Junction; Dr. F. B. Fulper, Glen Gardner, and Dr. Lowrie, Plainfield, were also present.

Visiting superintendents J. P. Kelley, Orange; C. E. Ball, Dover; F. B. Reilly, Passaic; A. C. Reilly, Newark, No. 1; L. W. Frisbie, Newark, No. 2.

The working force of the Plainfield district consisted of J. Elston Woodland, superintendent, and his four detached assistants, W. J. Allen, Clinton; W. C. Smith, Lambertsville; H. D. Woodland, Flemington, and G W. Hope, Somerville. The Plainfield staff consisting of G. W. Fairchild, I. W. Bininger and C. A. Steadman, assistants to Mr. Woodland, and the following agents: L C. Weed, F. R. Kellogg, M. Schoettlin, William Kahler, C. M. Woods, Charles Seward, William Seward, A. C. Vail, J. B Lane, S. H. Springer, C. J. Miller, H. G. Auten and J. H. Ross.

Agents from Lambertsville, George Swackhamer, J. H. Staats, W. J. Carthew and D. F. Moore, Flemington, William McCrea, E R Conisling, S. B. Eyons and F. E Lyons. Clinton, S. P. Baily, P. K. Apgar, G. W. Crater, M. E. Crater and E. Brasselman. Somerville, William Harris, V. D. VanFleet, A. H. Seals, E. C. Ehni and Daniel Hale.

All of these found seats at the banquet table and partook of the menu provided by Landlord Revere.

From each napkin, as it was lifted, dropped a white carnation and a sprig of fern. During the two hours and a half spent at the banquet an orchestra, composed of Herbert J. Harold, Fred Van Eps and Fred G. Smith, played several selections.

After the cigars had been lighted, a pleasant two hours were spent in listening to speeches from some of the most prominent of the Prudential's workers. Superintendent Woodland was master of ceremonies.

In a short speech Mr. Woodland congratulated his force for the past year's work and urged them to enter into the year '99 with a determination to surpass their record of '98. He said that he wanted to do this with his present working force, and not be obliged to lay off men for inactivity.

A letter from Vice-President Dr. Leslie D. Ward, regretting that he could not be present, was read.

Robert Gammell, division manager, laid great stress upon the individual work of each agent. He is a fluent speaker and his remarks were listened to with attention.

Dr. Watson was the next speaker and he referred to Dr. Lowrie, of this city, as the oldest examining physician in the service of the Prudential in the Plainfield district.

Supt. Frisbee, of Newark; Mr. Taylor, head of the deficiency deparment;

WELCOMED BY MUSIC.

PLEASANT SOCIAL AFFAIR AT THE HOME OF L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Affair Given in Honor of the Misses Marion and Josephine Randolph, Who Have Just Returned From Paris.

A welcome-musicale was enjoyed by a hundred of the music lovers of this city last night at the home of former Mayor and Mrs L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, in honor of the return of their two daughters, Miss Marion Fitz Randolph and Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph, who have been abroad for about fifteen months studying music and the languages in Paris. The gathering was necessarily a small one, as the host and hostess invited only as many guests as could be comfortably seated in the music and drawing rooms. The audience was a select one, and consisted of the near friends of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph and their daughters.

The house was prettily arranged. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph received, assisted by their three daughters, Miss Marion Fitz Randolph, Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph and Miss Caroline Fitz Randolph. The guests were received in the library and passed on into the music and drawing rooms where they were seated. An elaborate programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered, the artists being Hugh Whitfield Martin, of New York, a composer, and a tenor of unusual ability; Miss Ada Latimer, of New York, soprano; P. Ludwig Conde and Miss Elizabeth Blossom Fitz Randolph, violinists; Charles M Mali, of New York, a brother of Pierre Mali, of this city, cellist, and Miss Marion S. Dumont, Miss E. Louise Russell and Miss Caroline Fitz Randolph, pianists.

Special mention might be made of a vocal duet by Miss Latmer and Mr. Martin, "Sons les Etoiles," and two old English songs, "Polly Willes" and "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," sung by Miss Latmer. The programme took about two hours to finish, and by request there were no encores.

Refreshments were served to the guests at small tables brought out and placed about the rooms. This was something new and the effect was very pleasing. The rooms were decorated with flowers of all descriptions. In the library, where the guests went first, were vases of beautiful pink roses. In the drawing room the color had grown deeper, and the pink was replaced by the dark red American beauty roses, Yellow daffodils in the music room mixed with green smilax made a pretty effect. White carnations formed the decorations in the dining room.

The Misses Randolph have spent two winters in Paris, and return home with the finished touches that only a course of study pursued abroad can give. The summers were spent in Switzerland. They arrived in New York Saturday after a rough passage on the Saale. Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Randolph will give a tea to be followed by a dance. This affair is given for the young people who were not invited to last night's musicale, and who have not had an opportunity yet of meeting the young ladies.

STRIVING TO FURNISH THE CHURCH PARSONAGE.

ENTERTAINMENT AT GRACE CHURCH.

Entertainers Were A. E. Pearsall and Miss Marie Budworth, Both of Whom Pleased.

Despite the unpleasant weather last evening a large and appreciative audience assembled at Grace M. E church to attend the entertainment given under the auspices of Mrs. T W. Powell's Sunday-school class for the benefit of the furnishing fund for the new parsonage. The large attendance was gratifying both to those in charge and those who entertained.

The entertainers were Alfred E. Pearsall and Miss Marie Budworth, of Westfield, both of whom are well-known to Plainfielders. They appeared in a programme of recitations and songs, and every number was given with a finish that won applause from all.

The programme presented was as follows: "Singing Joseph," "Dow's Flat in '49," and "Thy Sentinel am I," by Mr. Pearsall; "Sneezing Song," "She Stoops to Conquer," by Miss Budworth; "The First Settler's Story," "The Holy City," "The Palms," by Mr. Pearsall. The last numbers, "Where are You Going," and "Hunting Tower," were divided between Mr. Pearsall and Miss Budworth. Miss Carroll very kindly accompanied Miss Budworth on the piano for the vocal selections given by her.

THE BOY PREACHER WAS AFTER SINNERS.

He Dragged Them Laughing From Their Seats.

A PRECOCIOUS YOUNGSTER.

HE PRAYED AFTER THE SINNERS AND THEN SENT THEM BACK.

The Child Evidently Found Much Enjoyment In Posing as Central Figure of the Meeting—Marched Up and Down the Platform Swinging His Arms—Prayed and Answered Questions—He is Humorous.

"If you want to go to Heaven, stand up," shouted the Boy Preacher, as he waved his arms and strode up and down the platform.

"Do you want to go to hell?' he demanded of one young colored woman in the front row who didn't rise fast enough to suit him. "Stand up then." Such were the methods that the youthful Lawrence Dennis used in his alleged occupation of saving souls at the meeting held in the Filmore Baptist church last evening.

There isn't any doubt but that the youthful Dennis has a remarkable memory and is a very bright child for his years. His parents claim that he is only five years old and he does not appear much older. As an entertainer he is amusing, but when posing in the role of an inspired evangelist, as he attempted to do last night, there is much that is lacking.

Lawrence Dennis is the son of a white man, Perrine Dennis, of Atlanta, Ga., and a colored woman. He was born Christmas Day, 1893, at Atlanta, and, it is claimed, has talked ever since he was two years old. His parents, who accompany him, claim that the lad has never been taught anything, but that everything came to him by inspiration direct from the Lord. They said they could not keep him at home, because he said that he must go forth and save souls. So they are traveling about the country, and the collections, which form an important part of the meetings, they say will be devoted to his future education.

The boy is evidently quite a precocious child, who finds much enjoyment in this new kind of play. When he appeared in the Filmore Colored Baptist church on Sycamore street last evening, he was dressed in a little kilt skirt of blue and white striped cloth and a little grey figured jacket. While his skin was light the traces of negro ancestry were shown in the flat nose and the black curly hair. A long curl hung down either side of his face, tied close to the head with a white ribbon.

Once on the platform with Rev. W. D. Johnson, pastor of the church, and Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, Lawrence began to march up and down the platform, swinging his arms.

At last he decided to open the service.

"Let's sing," he began, but after hesitating about what to sing, he changed his mind and said, "Oh no, don't let's sing, let's pray. You pray," he said, turning to Rev. Mr. Johnson. The clergyman responded. Then there was singing, followed by more prayers, in which the Boy Preacher took a turn.

"Oh Lord forgive us and let us have everlasting life," he began. "Oh Lord forgive us and let us be washed in the blood, the blood of the Lamb and the Crucified One." He prayed several times after that but the same phrases were used only in a different order. After that the audience was invited to ask him questions.

After several simple ones were asked and answered the clergyman inquired about the minor prophets.

"The Lord hasn't told me about them yet," said Lawrence. "He doesn't think I'm old enough."

Next the youthful speaker began to wander about among the audience. Half the crowd was positively afraid of him and shrank back as he approached.

"Are you a sinner?" he demanded of a young colored girl. She giggled but said nothing, so he dragged her out of her seat and led her to the front of the platform. He found six other young people and brought them up. Then he asked all the sinners to stand up. One young colored woman did and the boy shouted, "Let her git her."

The two pastors prayed and Lawrence Dennis did as well, asking particularly that New York, Plainfield and Europe might be saved. Then the sinners were sent back to their seats.

Some of his sayings and actions were really funny and the audience

SECRETLY WEDDED AT NIGHT IN NEWARK

News of the Nuptials Became Known Yesterday.

ELMER MANTZ THE GROOM.

AT FIRST THE COUPLE DENIED THAT THEY WERE MARRIED.

They Intended to Marry in May, But Love Was Too Strong to Keep Them Apart Any Longer—Ceremony Was Performed at the Parsonage of a Newark Clergyman at 10 p. m. Sunday.

After keeping their secret successfully for two days, two young people of the borough, Elmer Mantz, of Jackson avenue, and Miss Mamie Kenney, of Sycamore avenue, have announced that they were married Sunday night, and are now receiving congratulations from their friends.

Mr. Mantz is a clerk in Boehm's dry goods store, where he has been employed for eight years. Miss Kenney and Mr. Mantz have been keeping company for about a year. Their acquaintances have been expecting to hear of their engagement, and among their most intimate friends it was understood that the wedding was to come off in May.

But Sunday afternoon Miss Kenney and Mr. Mantz took a train to Newark. It was dark when they reached that city. Where they went at first they refuse to make known, but at 10:30 o'clock, after the services were over in the churches, the young couple brought up at the home of Rev. Mr. Dyott, a Methodist minister, living at 43 Hill street, where they were quietly married. Mrs. Dyott and Miss Lillian Rock, who was visiting at the house, witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Mantz returned to Plainfield and went to their homes, where they will reside for a short time. In the spring they expect to go to housekeeping. The groom is about twenty-one years of age, and the bride a few years younger.

This is the young couple to whom reference was made in these columns yesterday. A Press reporter tried to verify the rumor yesterday, but both denied having been married until towards night when they concluded to disclose their secret.

THREATENED THE LIVES OF THE CITY'S CHARGES.

WILL STAND TRIAL FOR IT.

Jacob Frey Will be Tried This Afternoon at the Industrial Home Before Judge Runyon.

City Judge Runyon is going to hold court at the Industrial Home this afternoon. Superintendent Israel D. TenEyck, of the Industrial Home, has made a complaint against Jacob Frey, one of the inmates of the home, charging him with threatening the lives of the Superintendent and the other inmates. Frey is a man of some thirty-five years, who has met with hard luck and whose health has prevented him from working and finally driven him to his present situation.

Frey doesn't enjoy the new life and has been growing more desperate since his arrival there. All the other inmates fear him. So a warrant was sworn out. Judge Runyon decided it was better to hold court right there and so will try the case in the home this afternoon.

At the meeting of the City Council next Monday evening President Andrews will announce the councilmanic committee that will work in conjunction with the committee from the Sons of Veterans regarding the erection of a soldiers' monument in this city.

SHORT WEEK'S WORK FOR THE LEGISLATORS.

Convened Monday Night and Adjourned Yesterday.

MR. MURRAY VOTED ALONE.

SAYS THE ANTI-ALIEN LABOR BILL WILL WORK INJUSTICE.

The Plainfielder Believes That Contractors Should be Protected on the Existing Contracts—A Day for the Patriots Was Yesterday—Praise and a Sword for Sampson—Thanks for the Women.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 1.—The Legislature got to work at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and, having taken a noon recess, broke away again at 3 p. m., calling it a week. While the two houses were in session they made a better show of industry than they have exhibited since the session began. There is a disposition on the part of the leaders to push the bills through as rapidly as possible, and when the House adjourned at noon Speaker Watkins instructed the committees to meet at once and report bills to the afternoon session so that the House might get to work and dispose of them. Still, the committees are slow and very little business was ready for the afternoon session. The Republican Senators held a caucus until a late hour last night and discussed measures before that body with the purpose of outlining a policy to be pursued regarding them. If there is any unusual delay in the final adjournment of the Legislature it will be brought about by the commission appointed to investigate the Rahway Reformatory and the investigation of the Hudson county elections, if one is made.

Assemblyman Mungle's Alien Labor bill. House No. 7, passed the House by a vote of 50 to 1, Mr. Murray, of Union county, alone voting in the negative.

The Plainfield man opposed the measure on the ground that its passage would inflict hardship on contractors who might have contracts pending, and who had made their estimates with a view to employing cheap labor.

Should the bill become a law, Mr. Murray argued, these contractors would be obliged to employ men at higher wages, thereby entailing loss. It is predicted that the bill will come to grief in the Senate.

Echoes of the war sounded through both houses, and a good start has been made in the resolution of thanks line. The Senate adopted a resolution thanking the Women's National Relief Association for its good work in ameliorating the conditions of the soldiers and sailors in the war with Spain.

Senator McDermott opposed the resolution, saying that he was against specializing persons for thanks when so many others had done equally good work. The nurses of the battlefields were entitled to quite as much thanks as the women whose wealth enabled them to do good work. Mr. McDermott's vote was the only one in the negative.

The fact that Rear Admiral Sampson is a resident of New Jersey gave other patriots a chance to introduce a concurrent resolution in the Senate, warmly praising the Rear Admiral and providing for the presentation of a sword to him as a token of the esteem and regard of his fellow-Jerseymen. The resolution got through the Senate without a hitch, but the admirers of that other Santiago hero, Schley, will probably give it some rough sledding when it reaches the House.

Assemblyman Wood, of Mercer, yesterday afternoon made a bright, patriotic little speech in advocacy of a resolution urging the United States Senate to at once adopt the peace treaty. The applause of his fellow-members showed that Mr. Wood's sentiments were appreciated, and his resolution went through hummingly. Wr. Wood is likely to loom up as one of the few orators of the session. Orators have had no opportunities so far, however. Indeed, brilliant talkers have been very scarce in Trenton in recent years.

After the Thief.

It is reported that the police have additional evidence regarding the stolen gold watch belonging to Alonzo Brokaw, of the Plainfield Electric Light station, and they hope soon to secure the property.

Chief Doane on Duty Again.

Chief Doane, of the fire department, is on duty again after a week's illness. The Chief was confined to his home with the grip, from which he has now nearly recovered.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill, writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co, Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

TROOPS FOR MANILA

War Department Orders the Movement Hurried.

PROTEST FROM HONG KONG

Filipino Junta There Issues a Statement—Alleged Bad Conduct of the American Troops in the Philippines.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The war department has ordered the movement of reinforcements for the Philippines expedited. The transport Sherman will start from New York next Thursday, with the Third regiment of infantry and four companies of the Seventeenth infantry. The following Thursday, ebruary 9, the transport Sheridan will sail from the same port with the Twelfth infantry, and the headquarters and remaining companies of the Seventeenth infantry.

Both transports will follow the same route to Manila as the transport Grant—that is, across the Atlantic and through the Mediterranean sea and the Suez canal. The Grant is now supposed to be near Gibraltar. General Lawton, who is to assume active command of all the military forces in the Philippines when General Otis becomes military governor of the territory, is a passenger on the Grant.

Two regiments of infantry are also under orders to proceed to Manila, by way of the Pacific ocean. One of them has already started, and it is expected that the other will leave San Francisco in a few days.

The arrival of these four regiments will increase General Otis's fighting strength by nearly seven thousand men.

War is Predicted.

London, Feb. 1.--A dispatch from an English house at Iloilo says that business is proceeding satisfactorily. But the agents of the same firm telegraphing from Hong Kong, say the Iloilo telegram is unreliable as "nothing unfavorable to the Americans is allowed to pass the censor."

The Filipinos in Europe think the situation has nowise improved. They fear hostilities as soon as the peace treaty is ratified.

They add that the Filipinos who surround Manila number thirty thousand troops, and that they will not permit the Americans to land reinforcements on the island of Luzon.

The stories of outrages on women, etc., are strongly denied by the Filipinos.

The Censorship Modified.

New York, Feb. 1.--The central office of the Western Union Telegraph Company yesterday afternoon issued the following notice:

"The eastern Extension Telegraph Company has advised the Western Union Telegraph Company's central cable office that the United States government in the Philippines has modified its recent order prohibiting telegrams in cipher or code. Messages in secret language may now be accepted subject to government censorship."

The Proclamation Explained.

Paris, Feb. 1.--The Filipino junta here has received a message from Hong Kong explaining the second proclamation of the Philippine republic, as follows

"The first proclamation in August was the work of Aguinaldo and the generals. The second is the unanimous work of the Philippine assembly."

Gomez Asks $57,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--General Maximo Gomez, the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, demands over $57,000,000 to pay off his army. That is, he has asked the government at Washington for pay for three years for twenty major generals, two hundred brigadier generals, thousands of minor officers and thirty thousand rank and file.

The pay he asks is the same paid to the United States army. He wants eleven thousand dollars annually for himself as lieutenant general $7,500 a year for the major generals and $5,500 for the brigadiers—a total of $3,783,000 for generals alone.

The war department is figuring to pay off the Cuban army with three million dollars, which it is claimed was the original agreement with Calixto Garcia.

Sampson at the Stock Exchange.

New York, Feb. 1.--Just before 11 o'clock yesterday Admiral Sampson appeared in the visitors' gallery of the Stock Exchange. Word had been received a little before his arrival that he would be there, and Chairman Thomas of the committee of arrangements and President Keppler at once invited him to the rostrum.

He agreed to go down on the understanding that he would not be called on for a speech.

He was greeted with loud cheers, but simply bowed his acknowledgments and thanked the members for his reception. When he descended from the rostrum the members of the exchange crowded around him and there were several minutes of handshaking, during which business was practically suspended.

The Dreyfus Revision Matter.

Paris, Feb. 1.--The committee of the Chamber of Deputies which was entrusted with the revision bill met yesterday afternoon and the minister of justice, M. Lebret, communicated to the committee the report of M. Mazau, first president of the court of cassation, on the charges brought by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire.

The committee decided to maintain absolute secrecy concerning the report until a decision was reached. An official report of the proceedings will be published daily.

Gov. Stone's Staff

Harrisburg, Feb. 1.--Governor Stone has appointed Dr. John V. Shoemaker of Philadelphia as surgeon general on his staff; Thomas Potter, Jr., also of Philadelphia, as quartermaster general, and Representative Edwin E. Robbins of the Twenty-first district as commissary general.

NICARAGUA CANAL BILL.

Rapid Progress Made by the House Committee on Commerce.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--Such progress on the Nicaragua canal question was made by the House committee on commerce yesterday that it was expected that final action will be taken at the next meeting of the committee on Friday.

The discussion was on Chairman Hepburn's bill and numerous amendments were proposed with a view to perfecting this bill and making it the one to be finally reported.

An amendment agreed on strikes out the word "sovereignty" in referring to the route which the president is to acquire from Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

The purpose of this amendment is to overcome the objection that the constitution of Nicaragua will not permit a delinquishment of sovereignty over any territory.

Other propositions were submitted as to the authority to be given to the president in acquiring the canal route. One by Mr. Sherman if New York is as follows:

That authority is hereby given the president to negotiate, by commission or otherwise, with Nicaragua and Costa Rica, or with any individual company or association, for the purchase or use of any lands, waters, rights, privilges, contracts, concessions, or other property deemed necessary as expedient to facilitate the immediate construction of an inter-oceanic canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Another form proposed by Mr. Adamson of Georgia, authorizes the president to acquire by purchase from Nicaragua and Costa Rica the territory necessary "to excavate, construct control and defend," etc.

Both these propositions went over and the exact phraseology will be determined, it is expected, next Friday. Members of the committee expressed the opinion that there would be no opposition to reporting a bill, except possibly from Mr. Fletcher of Minnesota.

Seeley Dinner Echo.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 1.--Assemblyman Trainer in the House has introduced a bill to allow the claim of Police Captain George S. Chapman's lawyer for defending him in the Seeley dinner matter. It provides that the board of estimate and apportionment of the city of New York is authorized and empowered to examine audit and allow the claim of William S. Hart, as assignee of George S. Chapman, for expenses and disbursements incurred by George S. Chapman as a police captain in the city of New York during the months of December, 1896, and January, 1897, in defending charges brought against him before the board of police commissioners of the city of New York, and be included in the final estimates of the year 1900.

Rapid Travel in the Yukon.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 1.--All records of ice travel on the Yukon have been broken by the recent feat of the mounted police of the Northwest Territory in bringing a big shipment of mail from Dawson to Skaguay in nine days and ten hours.

The mail left Dawson on the morning of January 15, and was in Skaguay before noon of last Tuesday. The record was made by the Canadian officials it is said to show that they could greatly reduce the time being made by the United States mail contractors.

71st Officers Guilty.

Albany, Feb. 1.--As a result of the court martial in the cases of Captain Anthony J. Bleecker of the Seventy-first regiment, charged with a violation of the regulations in discussing publicly the action of other officers and of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and of Captain William F. Meeks of the same regiment on the same charges, the court martial finds the men guilty and sentences each of them to be reprimanded in general orders and fined $100 each.

Remarkable Strength Test.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 1.--At the annual strength tests for the championship of the freshman class at Yale, the record made last year was broken by E. H. Benner 1901, of Wellesley, Mass., by over 1800 pounds.

The record of last year was established by A. P. Wright, 1902 of Baldwinsville, Mass., whose total was 6,679 pounds. Benner's record is 9,395 pounds. This record is a remarkable one and places Benner well in the fore.

Famous English Divine Dead.

London, Feb. 1.--Rev. Charles Albert Berry, D. D., chairman in 1897 of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, and first president of the National Council of Evangelical Free Churches, fell dead yesterday while conducting the funeral services of a non-Conformist minister, Dr. Tothericks, in the Wesley Chapel in Bilston, Staffordshire,

The Filipino Proclamations.

Paris, Feb. 1.--The Filipino junta here has received a cable message from Hong Kong explaining the second proclamation of the Philippine republic. The massage says that the first proclamation in August was the work of Aguinaldo and the generals, but that the second is the unanimous work of the Filipino assembly.

Narrow Escape of a Train.

Denver, Col., Feb. 1.--A Rio Grande passenger train had a narrow escape from destruction about a mile from Red Cliff. The engineer, Russ, saw a slide coming down the mountain side and reversed his engine in time to save the train, but the engine was derailed, the tender demolished and the fireman slightly hurt.

Imperialism and the Church.

Norfolk Va., Feb. 1.--Over one hundred Methodist and Baptist preachers from this section yesterday discussed imperialism and the majority of the ministers were against the holding of the Philippine islands by the United States.

Buried by a Snow Slide.

Cokeville, Wyo., Feb. 1.--A snow slide a mile long, near here, buried several men and ten teams. All the men were taken out alive with the exception of Burt Handy.

ARMY BILL IS PASSED

House Agrees to Reorganization Measure.

MANY AMENDMENTS MADE

The Vote Was 166 to 126 in Favor of the Bill—Not Likely to Reach a Vote in the Senate.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The House went into committee of the whole soon after convening yesterday to consider further and finally the amended army reorganization bill. Under the general cut of staff officers the pay department was cut down by the reduction of one colonel, three lieutenant colonels and twelve majors.

The maximum age of appointees from civil life was fixed at forty years. The official roster of the corps of engineers as originally reported in the bill was reduced by the elimination of two colonels four lieutenant colonels, six majors, six captains, ten first lieutenants and ten second lieutenants.

Mr. Bromwell of Ohio moved an amendment prohibiting the appointment of men from civil life to places in the engineer corps, confining the places altogether to graduates of West Point.

The proposition contained in the bill, Mr. Hull explained, had been drawn and submitted by General Wilson, chief of engineers, in view of all the prospects and conditions of the corps.

The amendment was advocated by Messrs. Walker of Massachusetts, Lacy of Iowa, Dockery of Missouri, and opposed by Mr. Marsh of Illinois.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois took ten minutes to criticise the amendment of which Cummings of New York gave notice Monday prohibiting the use of the army to restore order in case of strikes or riots in the states except when the governor shall certify that he cannot restore or maintain order. It was in his opinion unconstitutional and unnecessary, because under the law of 1879 all necessary restrictions and security were provided.

He referred to the facts at the time of the Chicago riots in 1894, when President Cleveland, over the protest of Governor Altgeld, sent troops there to enforce the laws of the United States under the provision of legislation making it his duty to execute the laws. His action was approved by the Senate, by the House of Representatives and by the people. If Cummings's proposition had been law then the troops could not have been sent.

For one, Cannon said in conclusion, he would never consent to give the power to any one man or one hundred men or one thousand men, to render the president powerless to discharge the duties constitutionally devolving upon him.

Cummings replied to Cannon's argument in his usual vigorous manner. He said that organized labor protested against the increase of the army to one hundred thousand men, for the reason that it feared the army would be used unconstitutionally to oppress it. "If it is not the purpose thus to use it, say so; if it is, say so, so that the people may know where you stand."

Mr. Cannon responded in an unusually earnest, emphatic manner, declaring that before every other distinction or difference the people of the United States were American citizens, and the law, like the grace of God, covered them all. In putting organized labor into the attitude he had, Cannon declared, Cummings did not represent labor, he slandered labor. (Applause.)

After a brief rejoinder by Mr. Cummings, the amendment offered by Mr. Bromwell of Ohio prohibiting the appointment of civilians to the engineer corps was agreed to by a vote of 99 to 76.

An effort to secure another hour's general debate, so that Messrs. Bailey of Texas and Dalzell of Pennsylvania might address the House, was unavailing, and the previous question was ordered.

Mr. Hull did not insist upon a separate vote upon the amendment of Mr. Bromwell of Ohio prohibiting the appointment of civilians to the engineer corps, and all the amendments reported were adopted by the House.

Mr. Hay of Virginia moved to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee on military affairs to report the substitute prepared by the minority of the committee.

The motion to recommit was lost. This was a party vote, the Republican in the negative, Democrats, Populists and Silverites in the affirmative.

On the question of passage the roll was also called and the bill was passed.

There was the same general party alignment as on the former vote, Republicans voting aye and the opposition no.

The exceptions were that Barber of Maryland, Connolly of Illinois, Johnson of Indiana, McEwen of New Jersey, and Wadsworth of New York voted no with the Democrats, and Messrs. McClellan of New York, Taylor of Alabama, Berry of Kentucky and Skinner of North Carolina voted aye with the Republicans.

The bill's fate in the Senate is uncertain, but the chances are that it will never come to a vote. The Democratic leaders there are opposed to it, and will hold the rank and file of the party in line.

The general provisions of the measure are not satisfactory to many Republican senators, and although they have not yet had time to digest the amendments made in the House, they have practically agreed that the bill will be allowed to die on the calendar when the session comes to an end on March 4.

Crazy Man Injures Three.

Belleville, N. J., Feb. 1.--Thomas Reynolds, a man about forty years old, became violently insane here yesterday and ran up the street brandishing a club and striking at persons whom he encountered.

He struck Mrs. Mary Barclay over the head and injured her so seriously that it is believed she will die. She was taken to the hospital.

Reynolds struck another woman, breaking her arm, and also slightly injured a crippled girl. He was finally overpowered and taken to jail.

NEW YORK LETTER.

A decision nas been handed down by the Appellate court in this city which to me seems so unjust that I give the circumstances for the benefit of your readers, many of whom no doubt are either landlorus or tenants. At any rate, the story will prove interesting to any layman not versed in the intricacies of law. It appears that Sadie L. Thompson, who was tenant of a portion of the building 32 West Twenty-ninth street for one year, expiring October 1, 1896, commenced to move on that day, but was not entirely out of the premises until 5 o'clock on the afternoon of October 2. The landlord, Joseph Oussani, brought suit against Mrs. Thompson for rent, claiming that this unauthorized use of the property made her a tenant for another year. The Appellate Term has reversed judgment given in the city court for the defendant. Justice McAdam, giving the opinion, says it is well settled that where a tenant holds over after the expiration of the term the law will imply an agreement to hold for a year upon the terms of the prior lease. "The tenant's excuse," he says, "that she moved with all convenient expedition does not relieve her from liability 'arising from her own contract and positive undertaking,' and merely proves that if she moved with due expedition she did not commence to work in time to permit of its completion in compliance with her covenant; the consequence of which neglect cannot, upon any legal principle, be visited upon the landlord. Such indifference to the rights of others finds no sanction either in law or morals. The defendant must be held to have intended the legal consequences of her acts, one of which was to give the landlord the right to elect to treat her as a tenant for a renewed term, and she cannot now be heard to complain that the landlord availed himself of the privilege her conduct afforded." After referring to the rule established by the authorities, Justice McAdam adds: "To depart from it is to throw away the chart intended for our guidance, and wander upon an unknown sea of uncertainty, with contracting parties unable to ascertain their respective rights and duties, lawyers unable to advise intelligently concerning them, and courts unable to direct the true course to be taken."

The City and Suburban Homes Company, a corporation which grew out of the Improved Housing Council, is to have ready by next November a set of model tenements, from which great things are expected. These are to be situated in Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues. The plans for them were drawn by Ernest Flagg, and they embody ideas of construction entirely new to this city. The social condition and nationality of the tenants are large factors in determining how well the building will be kept. When the model tenements in Cherry street were built, they were at once filled with Russian Jews. As these people have peculiarities which make them unusually troublesome tenants, the owners' experiences with them may be taken as typical of those to be met with in dealing with the lowest class of foreigners. For one thing, they have an apparently unconquerable propensity for taking boarders or lodgers. That their entire apartment may consist of two small rooms is no bar, in their minds, to the carrying out of this plan. By the very simple arrangement at night of having the family occupy the beds, and the lodgers the floors of the rooms, or vice versa, the thing is accomplished. The overcrowding which results is horrible, and would undoubtedly be fatal to the health of Americans, but these people manage to exist in some way under the wretched conditions. Another practice which the owners have trouble in preventing is the conversion of the living apartments into sweat-shops. To guard against this a regulation is sometimes made that the family may possess not more than one sewing machine.

Some of the other rules laid down will show, perhaps better than anything else, the tendencies which the owners have to combat. One refers to the disposition of garbage, and states that this must positively not be thrown out of the windows, or emptied into the sinks or basins, thereby to choke up the pipes in the house. Another says that tenants, when about to wash their windows, must first warn the family on the floor directly below of their intentions. Needless to say, these rules are continually being violated, the latter not so often as the former, however, because it implies a leaning toward cleanliness which is not strikingly common. The fondness which the poor have for oil stoves is also a source of woe to model house-owners, who find themselves obliged to kalsomine smoke-blackened walls at all too frequent intervals. As for the fire escapes, most of them are so thoroughly blockaded with bedding, furniture and household effects of every description that exit by means of them would probably be an impossibility in case it should become necessary.

In addition to these practices of the most undesirable class of tenants, there have even been instances of the boarding up of windows in some of the new, well-lighted buildings lest too much cold might be admitted. The use of the bathtubs as receptacles for coal is not uncommon. That it is possible, however, to educate the people to a point far beyond this sort of thing is the opinion of those interested in the improved housing plans. In regard to the last point, for instance, it is justly pointed out that, in a well-constructed building, with facilities for storing household articles, a place would be provided for the coal. MR. PORTER'S MISSION.

His Departure from Havana to Santa Clara To-day.

Havana, Feb. 1.--Robert P. Porter, the representative of President McKinley, and Senor Gonzales Quesada, the Cuban commissioner, who recently left Washington on a special mission to Cuba, started yesterday for Caibarien, province of Santa Clara, in order to see General Maximo Gomez.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The dispatch from Havana saying that Robert P. Porter has taken to Cuba $3,500,000 to pay the Cuban army is a mistake. Mr. Porter did not carry any government money with him, nor has he authority to negotiate for the payment of the Cuban soldiers. The object of Mr. Porter's visit to Cuba is to investigate the number and condition of the Cuban soldiers and report to this government.

Senor Quesada, secretary of the late Cuban junta in Washington, accompanied Mr. Porter to consult with General Gomez about the Cuban soldiers. The result of these investigations may determine the policy of the administration.

Certain friends of the administration have been advising the president that the best way to quiet the Cubans was to pay the insurgent army a sum of money. The administration, however, is not going to commit itself until it has all the data.

FRANCE SEEKING A LOAN.

Report that She is Trying to Get English Money.

London, Feb. 1.--The St. James Gazette says that the French government is negotiating a loan with French and British financiers for from eight million to ten million francs, to be devoted to army and navy purposes.

According to the St. James Gazette it is the intention of France to increase her navy during the year, and her army will also receive attention, including the introduction of a quick firing gun.

The paper says that it learns from a trustworthy source that orders have already been given to English firms, and that others are to follow. The paper adds:

"France, naturally is desirous of maintaining peaceful relations with England during the next few months, in order to obtain all the possible financial help in this country. So far, the loan arrangements in London are only in the most embryonic condition, and the proposals are looked at in a lukewarm manner."

American Trade Rivalry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--Consul Halstead of Birmingham, England, reports to the state department that there is a great awakening going on among English manufacturers over the disastrous possibilities of American trade competition.

A new trade paper there has met with a most cordial reception, he says, and the news columns of both daily and trade papers are filled with facts about American trade, while the matter is given serious editorial discussion which in English daily papers means much more serious consideration than the same editorials pay devoted to a like subject in the average American newspaper.

In this week's issue of the particular trade paper referred to Mr. Halstead says that fully twelve nine hundred-word columns are devoted to American trade matters, about one-half taken from the American consular reports.

The Philippine Commission.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 1.--Professors J. G. Schurman and D. C. Worcester members of the Philippine commission, arrived here Monday night on the delayed Canadian Pacific express, and, despite a rain storm, there was a representative crowd of citizens at the station to greet them.

After a cordial welcome at the depot the travellers went aboard the steamship Empress of Japan, where addresses were made and replied to.

Secretary Stein of the Board of Trade read an address expressing the gratification of the members at meeting the commissioners at the western capital of the British empire, and said that the board prayed that the labors of the commissioners might have a successful issue.

Aged Man's Long Walk.

Bortentown, N. J., Feb. 1.--Patrick Cotter, an octogenarian of this place, who mysteriously disappeared on January 8 last, has been heard from at Hazleton, Pa., where he went to visit H. B. Conahan, former director of the Middle Coal Fields poor district. Cotter has never ridden on a railroad train or steamboat and nothing will induce him to try the experiment.

Although eighty years old, he walked the entire distance to Hazleton, nearly two hundred miles, and arrived last Friday evening apparently none the worse for his jaunt.

After concluding his visit he has started to walk back by way of Mauch Chunk, Bethlehem and Lansdale.

Nephew of McKinley to Wed.

Youngstown, Feb. 1.--The engagement is announced here of Miss Viola Deetrick, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Deetrick of this city, and Mr. William McKinley Duncan of Cleveland, a nephew of the president.

The wedding will occur in the spring and the young couple will make their home in Cleveland, where the prospective bridegroom is engaged in the practice of law.

The Fighting at Bolivia.

Lima, Peru, Feb. 1, via Galveston, Tex.--Trustworthy advices received at this place from Bolivia say that the president of that republic, Senor Severo Alonso, who has been operating with an army against the insurgent forces which have occupied La Paz, the nominal capital, has retired from the neighborhood of that city and is being pursued by the insurgent troops.

Announces that He Has Affidavits of Men Who Actually Saw the Beef Treated--Describes How Canned Roast Product is Put Up.

New York, Feb. 1.--General Nelson A. Miles, in the Waldorf-Astoria last evening, made the following statement:

"On the 20th of last September I issued an order to regimental commanders ordering them to report to me concerning the beef which had been issued to their men. At the time that I went before the war investigating committee I had only received reports from fourteen of the commanders; now I have thirty reports. They all tell the same story. The evidence proving the truth of the statements which I made is abundant and overwhelming. In addition to the reports of the regimental commanders, I have a great mass of evidence, consisting of communications and affidavits, etc., from officers, soldiers and civilians. Every part of the country has contributed to the mass of correspondence which I have received in reference to the beef served to our soldiers, and the evidence is all corroborative of what I have said.

"I have overwhelming evidence that the embalmed beef was treated with chemicals in order to preserve it. I have affidavits from men who saw the beef undergoing the treatment or embalming process.

"Now as to the canned roast beef, that was different from the embalmed beef. The canned roast beef was the beef after the extract had been boiled out of it. You have seen the advertisements, 'Beef Extract, one pound contains the substance of from four or five pounds of prime beef.' Well this is the beef after the extract has been taken from it. They put this beef pulp in cans and label it 'Canned Roast Beef.' The soldiers report that the canned beef was nauseating. If swallowed it could not be kept on the stomach."

Signs of a Shipwreck.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 1.--The steamer Queen City reached here yesterday from the west coast of Vancouver island bringing the news that the Siwash Indians claim to have seen a large vessel which had floated on to the rocks. There was no means of identifying the vessel, the name board being quite obliterated. Some cases of fish, life buoys, planking, bulwarks and portions of the ship's deck house were also found by the Indians but furnished no clew.

Anti-Mormon Riot in Bristol.

London, Feb. 1.--The inhabitants of Bristol are greatly incensed at the Mormons, who are conducting a mission there. They persist in holding meetings despite the violent popular opposition and a large number of policemen are required constantly to protect the members of the small colony.

Monday night every pane of glass in the Mormon leader's house was broken.

Blizzard in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 1.--One of the worst snow storms experienced in Montana in several years has been raging since Saturday.

About two feet of snow had fallen at noon yesterday, and the blizzard was raging over a good portion of the state and over the Northwest Territory with no indication of abating.

Stockmen are anxious over the outcome and railroad trains have difficulty in making any sort of time.

Mrs. George's Trial Delayed.

Canton, O., Feb. 1.--There is further delay in the arraignment of Mrs. George. James S. Sterling, one of her attorneys, has been taken ill and is unable to appear, so Judge Taylor has postponed passing on the motion to quash the indictment against her.

If Mr. Sterling's illness is prolonged, the judge will pass on a motion in another case which raises the same question in the same identical language.

Deaths on Spanish Troopship.

Barcelona, Feb. 1.--The steamship Chateau Lafitte has disembarked 1,250 repatriated Spanish soldiers from Cienfuegas. The work was done by torchlight.

All the men were deplorably emaciated. Fifty-six died on the voyage and three hundred and fifty others are seriously ill.

Chimay's Pictures Barred.

Brussels, Feb. 1.--Recently a Belgium merchant travelling in Switzerland purchased some nude portraits of the former Princess of Chimay for a friend in Namur, to whom he forwarded them by post.

The postal authorities intercepted them and the merchant has been fined for importing objectionable matter.

French Transport Damaged.

Marseilles, Feb. 1.--The French steamer Pierre le Grande and the French transport Tonkin have been in collision.

The latter was badly damaged. The injury sustained by the latter is not known.

No Election in Delaware.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 1.--At the joint session of the legislature yesterday three ballots were taken in the contest for a United States senator to succeed George Gray. There was no election.

U. S. S. Philadelphia Sails.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The cruiser Philadelphia sailed yesterday from San Diego bound for Samoa. She will touch at Honolulu and should arrive at Apia about March 1.

Egypt's Mixed Tribunals.

Cairo, Feb. 1.--All the powers have agreed to a prolongation of the mixed tribunals for a year from to-day.

WHAT SPAIN HEARS FROM MANILA.

Barcelona Paper Says Our Troops Are Waiting to Give Aguinaldo a Lesson.

Barcelona, Feb. 1.--The Barcelona Diario publishes advices from Manila saying that the Spaniards there prefer the independence of the Philippines to annexation by the United States, forgetting the conduct of the insurgents when compared with their hatred of the Americans.

The natives are emboldened by their success and will be content with nothing less than independence. The Americans are confident with their cannon and warships and are calmly awaiting reinforcements in order to give the rebels a sharp lesson.

General Otis, the Diario advices say, has given to Americans several important civil posts. The American police maintain an "exaggerated supervision" over the people, seeing an enemy in every one. The revolutionists are tired of American promises and demand acts.

Aguinaldo after taking the oath renounced the presidency of the Filipino republic, remaining simply general of the native troops.

The report of a conference between General Otis and Aguinaldo is not confirmed.

Anti-Ritualists Active.

London, Feb. 1.--The anti-Ritualist crusade in England is daily becoming more bitter. John Kensit, the notorious interrupter of Ritualist services, interrupted the ceremonies of the confirmation of the Bishop of Bangor in London yesterday because the bishop had appointed as examining chaplain a member of the English Church Union, which favors masses and the confessional.

Kensit's interruption of the ceremonies culminated in a scene unprecedented since 1847, when the opposition to the Bishop of Hampden led to the blocking of traffic in Cheapside. Kensit's supporters cheered his action loudly, but the ecclesiastics calmly proceeded with the ceremony at the conclusion of which the newly installed bishop devoutly blessed the congregation, including the Kensitites.

A large portion of those present at the meeting addressed by Mr. Balfour at Manchester last night hissed the speaker because of his high church sympathies.

No Successor to Quay Yet.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 1.--There were few absentees, paired or otherwise, when the joint session of the legislature was called to order by Lieutenant Governor Gobin yesterday.

The lobbies and galleries were filled and there was evidently expectation of a crisis in the balloting, but the leaders insisted that nothing in the way of a coup was contemplated.

The twelfth joint ballot was taken. It resulted as follows:

Quay 104, Jenks 81, Dalzell 14, Stewart 6, Irvin 4, Tabbs 1, Huff 6, Stone 7, Rice 2, Grow 1, Markle 2, Smith 1, Wedner 2, Ritter 3, total 233. Necessary to a choice 117. No election.

The better judgment of the Quay leaders is that there will be no election until after the trial of Senator Quay at Philadelphia on the twentieth of this month.

Two Indianians Honored.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 1.--The Columbia Club tendered a reception to United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge and A. Harris, minister to Austria, at which there were at least one thousand guests, including members of all the big clubs and of the legislature.

At the banquet toasts were responded to by Governor Mount, General J. C. New, Judge J. H. Baker, S. E. Morss, John W. Kern, Senator Beveridge and A. C. Harris.

It was the biggest reception of the kind ever held in this city and was non-partisan in character.

Kansas Bank Fails.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The controller of the currency has received a telegram announcing the failure of the First National Bank of Russell, Kan. Following is a statement of the condition of the bank as shown by the report made to the controller of the currency, December 1, 188:

Capital, $50,000; surplus and undivided profits, $11,72-; circulation, $18,000; due to depositors, $59,350.

The total resources are $169,146. The bank was placed in the hands of John B. Cunningham, national bank examiner, as temporary receiver.

Denudation of Forests.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 1.--Following closely upon the action of the Newspaper Publishers' Association in asking that the duty be taken from wood pulp and paper, comes the report of William F. Fox, forest inspector of New York state, in which he argues that the wood pulp industries of the state are denuding the forests.

The inference is that if the duty was taken off there would not be so much cutting done in the forests of New York State.

Frozen to Death in Texas.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 1.--Yesterday was the coldest day of the winter throughout Texas. The mercury last night in exposed places here went within five degrees of zero. In the surrounding country it was down to or below zero. Business is almost suspended because of the blizzard. Two deaths from freezing are reported from the Panhandle and the fatalities among live stock are numerous. Heavy cattle losses are feared.

Nixon Improving.

Westfield, N. J., Feb. 1.--Speaker Nixon continues to improve. Dr. Rood, the attending physician, said that he felt much encouraged at the progress his patient was making and thought if he should continue to do as well for the next twelve hours the critical time would be passed and his recovery an assured fact.

Deaths Among Troops at Manila.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.--The war department has received a report from Major General Otis at Manila of deaths among the troops in the Philippines from January 8 to January 27.

There were nineteen deaths in that period, an average of one death a day. Fourteen of the nineteen deaths were caused by smallpox.

MALIETOA TANUS AND CONSULATE BUILDINGS.

Samoa once more comes to the front. Malietoa Tanus was declared king by Chief Justice Chambers, but Germany's representative of the three cornered protectorate protested. Mataafa took advantage of the situation, went to war, and is now doing the kingly. The American and the British consulate are shown. They are important points just now.

Good Advice For Churchmen.

The editor of the Elizabeth Journal, who is an active church worker in his own city, has been watching the dissensions that recently arose in the First Church of Christ in this city, and he draws some excellent conclusions anent the subject of church quarrels that deserve to be heeded by certain churchmen. The Journal says:

Rev J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook a forceful preacher, with strong individuality, has entered upon a novel w rk for these days. It is an effort to unite and consolidate two separate churches of the same denomination in Plainfield. The two congregations were formerly one. They became divided over some disturbing question, separated, and have been struggling along ever since. It is to be hoped Rev. Mr. Cleaver will succeed. More than that, it is to be hoped that other languishing churches will consolidate, unite and become stronger, better and more full of life and activity. It is a common current saying there are to many churches. There cannot be too many churches if each one is living active, gr wing and flourishing.

But to divide one strong, healthy congregation, and make of it two puny, emaciated struggling organizations, is poor policy and poor religion. All the more so because such divi-ions are the results of quarrels oftener than the necessities of growth or the opening of a new field of work. If church organizations were like bees, swarming to new hives when the old ones could no longer hold them, there would be less complaint of poor parishes, underpaid ministers and struggling, shivering congregations. The few instances of consolidation under our observation have invari bly resulted in strong, excellent, flouri-hing congregation-; but there's many a division that has resulted in little else than perpetual struggle, disappointment and regret.

Though the constabulary force of the State is one of its oldest institutions, it is not slow by any means—at least not in Mercer county. There the constables are forming themselves into a union to secure mutual protection and benefits to be found in the performance of their duties as peace officers. First and foremost in their plans is to secure an amendment to the law of 1898 which cuts off their fifty cent hearing fee. That, of course, will be the great point to gain, because the constables with the rest of the world know that "it is money that makes the mare go." The second purpose of the organization is to establish a regular set of prices which shall be paid the constables for attending baseball games, dances, and other public events where the obstreperous individual seeks the privilege without proper pay. It is stated that if the Mercer county constables find that their union works well its ideas will permeate the State and organize the whole New Jersey constabulary force into one grand symphony of efforts. It's a cold day when the constables of New Jersey are not up to snuff.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, that good old lady whom Plainfielders have come to regard as almost of themselves, is an enthusiastic advocate of equal suffrage. At a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association, Mrs. Howe paid the following trite remarks to her sisters who rest content with the present condition of affairs and who say that they do not want sufferage for themselves or any other women: "If these women are in a state of active resistance to their own good, it is better than if they were doing nothing. At present they seem like a hornests' nest stirred up against us. But wait, you who are young enough—for I am too old to wait much longer—and you will yet see them all ranged as good bees, making suffrage honey. If they do not, their granddaughters will."

Ever since Congressman Howell of the Third District was elected he has been endeavoring to have an appropriation made for the erection of a postoffice building at New Brunswick. At every session of Congress he has introduced a bill and last year the bill introduced at that session was reported favorably. Speaker Reed set his official veto upon all expenditures for public buildings and the bill died a natural death and the people of New Brunswick still lack a new postoffice building. The amount incorporated in the bill was $125,000, but Monday Mr. Howell introduced a substitute bill decreasing the amount asked for $100,000. He probably thought there would be more chance of getting the bill considered by making it an even hundred thousand.

The progressive citizens of Summit are in earnest for a change of municipal government from township to city of the third class. It would seem that Summit is large and important enough to become a third-class city. With a city government it would be able to accomplish much that is now prevented under the township form. The Union County Assemblymen, Messrs. Squires, Murray and Houston, are in favor of the incorporation of Summit. It is not thought that the objections likely to be presented against incorporation will have sufficient weight to cause Gov. Voorhees to veto the bill when passed by the Legislature.

Assemblyman Roger F. Murray announces that there will be a hearing of the State House on Assembly bill No. 14, known as the Building and Loan Bill, Tuesday next at 12 o'clock noon. Mr. Murray informs the Press that he will be glad to see any Plainfielders, who are interested in the proposed law, at the hearing. The measure is one of great importance to building and loan association, which have a strong foothold in Plainfield.

A Middlesex county woman who was shot at three times by her irate husband, after having quarreled with him, was saved from death by the bullets striking a corset steel and glancing off so as to make only a flesh wound. It was lucky for that woman that she was not a follower of Jenness Miller's style of dress.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Mark Twain has contributed some very interesting literature to the public, and his books of a humorous character have been read and enjoyed by thousands of people, but none have enjoyed the popularity of his "Tom Sawyer," which has been dramatized and made ready for stage use, and which will be presented at the Stillman Music Hall Saturday afternoon and evening, February 4th. The book has been followed as closely as will admit, and all the characters well taken care of. The principal scenes, the grave yard where Tom and Huckelberry Finn go in search of a new made grave with a bottle of stump water to try the dead cat cure for warts, is very graphically presented. This particular scene affords excellent opportunity for dramatic action. The grocery store and court scenes are particularly funny. The original cast which presented the play in New York at the Metropolis and People's Theatre, is headed by Charles B. Corlius and Miss Adele St. Alva, who introduced clever and catchy specialties. The matinee Saturday is especially intended for the ladies and children.

May Irwin and her merry company in "Kate Kip, Buyer" continue to attract large houses nightly at the Bijou in New York. There are but a few weeks more of the jovial comedienne whose inimitable personality has packed the Bijou at each performance from the opening night. It is to be regretted that Miss Irwin's business representative is unable to extend her annual metropolitan engagement beyond February 18th, as out-of-town managers have been firm in their refusal to make any but the original arrangement. So within a few weeks Miss Irwin and "Kate Kip, Buyer" must give way to "Brown's In Town."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

FUR TRIMMED WRAPS.

The Thermometer Makes Long Coats Popular Now.

(By special arrangement with the N. Y. Sun.)

With all the talk about new and original fashions, and all the strange forms we see in gowns, coats, wraps and hat brims, it is simply a case of history repeating itself once again. The really new features of fashion are the smart touches which modern cleverness in dress gives to all things. Almost all the modes we have this season are old-time ideas revived, but if the ugliest fashion on record were to be reproduced for our approval, it would be with such ingenious modifications, such improvements in fit and detail of finish, that the old form would be lost in what would seem to be an original model. So far our fashions are both new and old at the same time.

The thermometer has a decided influence on fashion just at present, despite all our frivolous tendencies, and it is the long redingote, polonaise and princess cloak costumes that appeal most strongly to the leaders in dress. The long newmarket, with fur collar, revers and cuffs, is revived again; the chief difference between the new and the old model being in the rounded fronts and scant effect. Some of these garments have a bishop sleeve, gathered into a cuff at the wrist, while others are made with the usual coat sleeve and a flaring circular cuff of cloth, or turned back cuffs of fur. The circular flounce at the bottom, is also one of the new features, but quite as many are made in the shape of a long, loose sacque. Polonaises with circular flounces on the edge and narrow fur trimming, are especially good style, but all this popularity of long garments has not affected the fashion in short jackets, which are quite as much worn and more varied in style than ever before. They are close-fitting little coats, variously cut in scallops, points and squares around the basque, and finished simply with rows of stitching, but the revers collar is the point where the elaborate decoration centres.

Lace outlined with brown chenille over white satin forms the revers on one brown cloth coat, the edges being finished with a narrow band of sable. When black fur is used the chenille should be either black or white. Cream satin decorated with the old-fashioned ribbon embroidery mixed with chenille forms the revers on another brown coat. Smoked fox is the fur edging. Jet sequins are mixed with chenille embroidery or lace, and if fur is not desired as an edging tiny ruches of black tulle or chiffon are used. White panne velvet covered with a design in white satin cords makes another fashionable revers, and spotted colored velvets are also used. For these the edging of fur, or a frill of silk matching the spot in color, is the finish. White astrakhan, with some contrasting fur on the edge, makes another very elegant facing.

Among the latest cloth gowns of the dressy variety there are some novel features, which may serve as predictions of things to come in the early spring. One model is in gray cloth, with a deep yoke of tucked white silk. Small revers of pale gray satin embroidered with silver and gray turn down at either side, and the same embroidery is the finish on the overdress and skirt. The overdress, which is short in front, is one of the newest designs, and, like all the new skirts, it fits in a perfectly plain manner at the back.

Embroidery and machine stitching are decidedly the leading features of dress decoration which make the latest mode in this especial department possible to every one. While the embroidery is very expensive, the stitching is simple enough for the most limited purse. There is a perfect craze for stitching, in fact, and velvet as Bonnets Made by Queen Amelie.

Queen Amelie of Portugal is one of the many good women who now occupy thrones. The story is well known of her that, in order to deal with the ill-health of her husband through obesity, she has studied medicine, passed her examination and taken a degree of M. D., and thus became the only queen M. D. at present in existence. Queen Amelie has another accomplishment—she is a born milliner and has a room set apart at the palace where dainty hats and bonnets are made.

And thereby hangs a pretty and pathetic story. Once while out driving in the streets of Lisbon she observed a large crowd surrounding some object. The queen sent the footman to see what was the matter, and when he reported that a young woman had fainted she immediately left her carriage and had the unconscious girl brought to a neighboring shop, and personally attended her professionally.

The queen had the young woman removed to her own home, had inquiries made about her and learned the girl's history. She was a milliner, and, having failed to get employment, had ventured to undertake work on her own account for the support of herself and her invalid mother, but with so little success that she was nearly starved.

Queen Amelie sent at once some necessaries and commanded the girl's presence at the palace. Here she received her in the workroom and handed the poor milliner three bonnets of her own creation.

"Take these as models, call them 'bonnets Amelie' and tell your customers they are made after the queen's own fashioning."

Her majesty wore herself one of the identical bonnets, and commanded her ladies to do likewise. Within two months the once-starving girl could take larger premises, and to-day she is herself an employer of over 200 women.—Philadelphia Press.

A Blouse Waist With Plaits.

This pretty bodice is intended to be made of material to match the skirt, or it is suited to fine faced cloth, cashemire, serge, etc., ornamented with guipure lace, passementerie, velvet, or satin ribbon. The pattern is arranged with a tight-fitting lining, the front of which serves for cutting both lining fronts, and is used again for cutting the material front for the left side; then arranged to hook down centre.

The material for the right side is quite double-breasted, and is put into six small box-pleats, each of which should be oversewn on the wrong side down their entire length to keep them in place, then well pressed; and between the two last box-pleats on the right-hand side arrange tabs of material, the outer ends of which are mitred and secured on the edge of the outer box-pleat with a fancy bow between each pleat the waist part is gathered and caught to the lining. The yoke hooks on the shoulder.

Disinfected Pins.

It may be before long that our pins will have to be dipped in carbolic acid before being put on our bureaus. For pins have been proved to be a prolific source of danger in spreading contagious diseases. All kinds of germs, it is said, can be collected under the heads, and nurses who indulge the feminine habit of holding pins in their mouths lay themselves open to serious attack. The doctors who have warned the public say that many of the so-called new pins are not new at all, but have been picked up in the streets and laid side by side with the others. The idea is not an altogether pleasant one, and is, moreover, one likely to increase the uneasiness of the over-fastidious. There are some women now who are so afraid of germs that they wash all their gold and silver pieces before handling them, and who never allow a bank bill to go into their purses until it has been wrapped in some kind of disinfectant paper. They even require the shop girls who hand them their change to wrap it in paper first. What is to be done, if all this is so, with the popular superstitions about picking up all the pins that one sees and never passing a penny in the street?

Conceit.

He was an earnest minister, and one Sunday, in the course of a sermon on the significance of little things, he said:—"The hand which made the mighty heavens made a grain of sand; which made the lofy mountains made a drop of water; which made you made the grass of the field; which made me made a daisy!"—Chicago Journal.

CRANKS' COLUMN.

Suggestions that Emanate from Pens of Bicycle Riders.

The latest wrinkle in bicycle attachments is a concealed brake. It is affected by riders who realize that they need a brake, but are too vain to admit the fact. They have an idea, shared by most young riders, that it is "girlish" to carry a brake, and if they can have one that will be out of sight until needed, they would be delighted to use it. Unfortunately for people of this way of thinking, out of hundreds of concealed brakes now patented, not one has been a success. They are all complicated, easily get out of order, and, in an emergency, fail to work.

A member of the L. A. W. says, in the Bulletin: "Having toured in England and other parts of the world, I would say that $3.50 a day will cover expenses in England, and one may do even better by joining the Cyclers' Touring Club. I should advise buying a thin rubber cape; it will come in handy in rolling up luggage and during the frequent showers. They can be obtained anywhere in England, and are made especially for wheelmen. In general, I would say to my cycling friends that England and Japan make the best touring grounds. For cheapness, comfort and beauty of scenery, other countries must take a back seat. Steer clear of Mexico and Yellowstone Park, and don't take your wheel to Alaska, as I have seen some people do. There are but sixteen miles of road in all of Alaska.

English cycle critics are writing very bitter articles about American bicycles, and finding numerous reasons why no one should buy them. This is pretty good evidence that some one is buying them, and the sales will increase if American makers will keep up to the high standard they have established. A hundred bad machines sold in England will prevent the sale of a thousand good ones.

There had been a collision between the street car and the bicyclist. The street car had made the touch-down. "How did this thing happen?" demanded the policeman.

"I don't know," replied the cycler, earnestly; "I did everything I could. I rang my bell and yelled for the blamed old car to get out of the way but it didn't. That's all."—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

The New York correspondent of a contemporory says that a man must now be round-shouldered to be in fashion. We suppose the bicycle hump is responsible for that, though even less dignified reasons are given, such as the wearing of high collars or the peculiar cut of the coat.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The proposition made by E. C. Bald to ride a series of races against any professional for from $1,000 to $5,000 has aroused the ire of Tom Butler, the Boston expert. The latter expresses his willingness to meet Bald, and seems to be anxious to clinch the match at once.

The House of Representatives is to employ two bicycle riders at $5 a day to carry copy and proofs to and from the Government Printing Office. Here are excellent chances for a pair of statesmen who may happen to be out of jobs.—Washington Post.

Medical—They say now that a bicycle cures consumption.

"Yes. I can't expect three meals a day until I get mine paid for.—Detroit Free Press.

A match-box attached to the handle bar is the latest device. Its chief use will be for women, who have no handy pockets, like men, in which to carry matches and other necessaries.

It is not meet that bicycles should greet each other with clasping of hand. Rather let them pay a formal, distant greeting, one to the other.

Berlin. Ueber die Bauthätigkeit in Berlin im letzten Jahre geben die Ermittelungen der städtischen Steuerdeputation interessante Aufschlüsse. Die Zahl der Privatwohnungen hat sich im Etatsjahr 1897—98 um 7499 vermehrt und beträgt zur Zeit nahezu eine halbe Million (490,873). Vermiethet waren davon 468,150 zu einer durchschnittlichen Jahresmiethe von 670 Mark, leer standen 24,908 Wohnungen zum Miethspreise von durchschnittlich 451 Mark jährlich, und zwar hauptsächlich in älteren Häusern.—Graf Klaus Egloffstein, der früher Schulden halber seinen Abschied als Offizier nehmen mußte, wurde hier wegen Wechselfälschung verhaftet.—Zur Bildung eines Schifferbundes beabsichtigt die Fürstenberger Schifferinnung in Gemeinschaft mit den Innungen von Fürstenwalde, Neu-Zittau und Groß-Neuendorf demnächst einen Schiffertag nach Berlin einzuberufen.

Potsdam. Eine Pulverfabrik wird von der Firma Ludwig Löwe gegenwärtig in der Nähe von Kohlhasenbrück an der Potsdamer Bahn errichtet. Die alte Gartenwirthschaft, „Die Fule" genannt, ist mit dem umliegenden Gelände zu diesem Zwecke angekauft, und mit der Abholzung des angrenzenden Waldes ist schon in ausgedehntem Maße begonnen worden. Am Rande der Höfe, die das Terrain durchschneidet, erhebt sich bereits die Umwallung für den ersten Pulverschuppen, dem noch drei oder vier andere folgen werden.

Spandau. Die Disziplinarabtheilung des Gardekorps im Fort Hahneberg soll fortan grüne Achselklappen statt der bisherigen weißen tragen, damit Verwechselungen mit den neuen Gardetregimentern vorgebeugt werde.

Hannover. Ein großes Reiterfest wird im Monat März d. J. von Offizieren der Garnison und des Militärreitinstituts dahier zum Besten der „Rothen Kreuz-Stiftung" veranstaltet werden. Als passendstes Lokal für das Fest ist der „Städtische Packhof" ausersehen, in welchem bereits die früheren Reiterfeste in den Jahren 1880 und 1884 stattgefunden haben.

Geestemünde. In der hiesigen Fischauktionshalle wurden im vergangenen Jahre 28,628,815 Pfund Fische zum Preise von 3,459,908 Mark versteigert, gegen 26,961,765 Pfund zum Preise von 2,897,897 Mark im Jahre 1897. Die Fischzufuhr ist also um rund 1,700,000 Pfund und der Erlös um 562,000 Mark gestiegen. Trotz mancher ungünstiger Umstände ist also das abgelaufene Jahr für unsere Hochseefischerei doch ein recht befriedigendes gewesen. Auf dem Nachbarmarkte Bremerhaven wurden 6,030,647 Pfund Fische angebracht und dafür 729,946 Mark erzielt.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Kassel. Auf Wilhelmshöhe ereignete sich ein Unglücksfall beim Reinigen des Schornsteins des Pflanzenhauses. Ein 19jähriger Schornsteinfegergehilfe wurde besinnungslos, stürzte in den Kamin und erstickte. Obgleich der Vorfall alsbald bemerkt worden war, blieben alle Wiederbelebungsversuche vergeblich.

Hanau. Dieser Tage wurde die Saline des benachbarten Bades Orb durch Beschluß der dortigen Stadtverordneten an eine Frankfurter Gesellschaft verkauft.

Wiesbaden. Die Regierung ersucht den Magistrat um Entwerfung eines Fluchtlinienplanes für den weltberühmten Neroberg, dessen ungenießbar gewordenen Weinberge in Bauplätze umgewandelt werden sollen.

Stettin. Seinen 70. Geburtstag feierte der Begründer der Stettiner Herrenkonfektionsindustrie, der frühere Inhaber der gleichnamigen Firma S. Lewin. Herr Lewin erfreut sich innerhalb und außerhalb Stettins eines großen Freundes- und Bekanntenkreises, welcher mit herzlicher Freude an diesem frohen Familienfeste Antheil nahm. Mit unermüdlichem Fleiß verstand er es, seine Firma zu einer der ersten der Branche emporzuheben und derselben einen geachteten Ruf in der Geschäftswelt zu verschaffen. Nach 35jähriger Thätigkeit zog sich Herr S. Lewin im Jahre 1890 in das Privatleben zurück und widmet sich seit dieser Zeit in geistiger und körperlicher Frische den zahlreichen Ehrenämtern, zu denen ihn das Vertrauen der Mitbürger seiner Vaterstadt berufen hat.

"SINGIN' SAM'S" SALVATION.

The Church Needed Him and Couldn't Spare Him to the Penitentiary.

The Southern negro possesses extremely hazy notions of right and wrong. For example, the following incident, which came under my observation in a Southern town, writes Jeanette R. Murphy: A negro known as "Singin' Sam" had often been employed in doing odd jobs by the townspeople, and was considered one of the leading lights of the "Primity Baptis'" church. When it came to "singin'" and "moanin'" he was without rival. I was away from the town for a year, and when I returned recently I was told that "Singin' Sam" had been turned from the church in deep disgrace, and was then in the penitentiary for horsestealing. Horse stealing and miscellaneous thievery were confirmed habits, but, as Sam had never been caught or convicted the church had taken no action.

Not long after I visited the "Primity Baptis'" Church, to witness the ceremony of "feet washing." To my amazement there was my old friend, whom I supposed to be safe for some years behind prison walls, up in the amen corner, leading the shouting and patting and singing. After a prolonged service, "Singin' Sam" came up grinning.

"Why, honey," he began, "I'se pow'ful glad to see yo' back!"

"Why, Sam," I said, "they told me you were turned out of the church, and sent to prison."

"I was; dat am a fac'," he replied, with the most doleful expression. "Hit wan't my white folks fren's put me in dar; just lyin' niggar, what done tole on me, and got me sent up; but I'se done glad now. Sense I broke de jail and come home, de elders and de body held a meetin', 'pletely 'zonerated me an' 'dorse what dey call de resolution o' respec' for de widder an' de 'mudder ob de church.' I'se mighty proud o' dese mos' sagacious testimonial."

"Want to see 'em, honey? Jest read 'em," and he pulled out a roll of paper, thumbed and soiled as though it had been handled by hundreds of dirty fingers. "It done say dat dey s'arch de whole town aroun' an' dey couldn't find nary 'nother nigger what could run de 'Primity Baptis'' Church in de same style w'at I did, ma honey. Dey couldn't fin' anoder membah so filled wid de spirit in singin' 'n' leadin' as 'Singin' Sam,' 'n' so dey done ast me if I wouldn't oberlook de past 'n' come back in de bussom of de church."—New Orleans Picayune.

A CURIOUS MAINE STORY.

French-Canadian's Predictions Came True After His Death.

Every French Canadian resident of Maine believes that a miracle has been performed over the grave of Paul Beaupre, who died in 1894 and was buried in the woods above Grindstone Falls. Beaupre, or Bo Peep, as he was called by his acquaintances, was a fortune teller and peddler of snakeskin charms, who travelled from camp to camp in winter, selling his amulets and preying upon the credulity of his fellow countrymen by pretending to reveal future events.

Before his death he expressed a wish to have his body taken to Montreal for burial, pronouncing a fearful curse upon those who neglected to obey his last request. Among other catastrophes which were to follow a denial of his wish were the sudden death of the camp foreman, the loss of the year's cut of logs, and the burning of the camp. He also said that if he were buried in the woods a living cross would grow up from the grave, which should serve as a perpetual warning to all unbelievers.

When Beupre died his body was sewed up in new blankets and carried to a rocky point above Grindstone, where the bearers placed it under the roots of a great yellow birch tree which had lately been overturned in a gale. When the remains had been duly disposed of in the stony opening, one of the men chopped off the fallen tree trunk with an ax, allowing the stump to fly back, thus filling the hole and burying the body under tons of earth.

Two weeks later the camp boss was killed by a falling limb. The following spring the logs were hung up for want of water, and while they were lying on the shore, waiting for rains a forest fire swept through the woods, burning the logs and the camp where the men had worked. This fall a party of Frenchmen who had been hunting deer stopped at Bo Peep's grave, and were surprised to find that the yellow birch that covered his remains had sprouted from the stump, sending up three shoots, which had interlaced so as to form a cross about ten feet tall. When they saw that the last of the dead man's predictions had been fulfilled they came out and circulated the story all over Eastern Maine, since which time the grave has been visited by scores of French Canadians, all of whom believe that a miracle has been wrought above the dead.—Montreal Herald.

Drummond used to tell some amusing stories about the penalties of his American fame. Extraordinary letters used to be wafted to him across the Atlantic. One of them ran as follows: 'Dear Sir: I am a widow, with one boy of twelve years of age. He promises well, and, I think, could be secured for the kingdom if you would send him an autograph copy of your sweet hymn, 'Are They Safe With Him-'"—New York Evening Post.

THE HORSE'S GRIEF.

A Faithful Animal That Committed Suicide When Neglected.

"Speaking of the grief that some horses will exhibit when left in a strange place and neglected for a short time by their masters," said an old miner, "I recall seeing a horse deliberately commit suicide in three feet of water because he had been deserted for three days.

"The horse was owned by a man named Jim Kelly, a well-known prospector, who in July 1897, came into Grand Forks, B. C., after an absence in the mountains of several weeks. The animal was nothing but a common cayuse, on which Kelly sometimes rode and sometimes packed his outfit when the trails were steep and difficult. Naturally, the man and horse became attached to each other by their close companionship and the little marks of kindness shown in their lonely camps, when Kelly would pet the tired cayuse and perhaps give him a handful of sugar before he fed him for the night. It was remarked by those who met them that the cayuse showed an uncommon attachment for Kelly.

"Well on arriving in town Jim staked out his horse and betook himself to the Cosmos Hotel and proceeded to sample all kinds of liquor, prolonging his spree until Sunday afternoon. All day Friday, and during Friday night and until late Saturday afternoon the cayuse waited, whinnying when anyone approached, but viciously resented any attempts to feed him. About sunset Saturday, his master not returning, the horse strained at his picket rope until he finally succeeded in pulling the picket pin, and, trailing the rope behind him, he trotted up to the Cosmos, keeping up a prolonged whinny. He walked up the steps and peered anxiously through the windows in search of his master. For fifteen or twenty minutes he walked up and down the porch, whinnying as though in great pain. Then, after a long look into the windows, he left the porch, and with head hanging near the ground, he walked into a stream of water about three feet deep, lay down on his side and buried his head under the water.

"The act was witnessed by me and by a number of others who were attracted by the horse's strange conduct. We followed him down to the creek. There is no doubt he deliberately committed suicide. When Kelly came off his spree on Sunday and learned of the cayuse's death he secured assistance and buried the faithful animal."—Washington Star.

AN AGED ROYAL PARROT.

Ducky, Owned by the Princess of Wales, Was Over 125 Years Old.

One of the longest lived birds on record died recently in London. It was a parrot named Ducky, the property of the Prince of Wales, and its age was put at more than 125 years. Ducky was a native of the United States of Colombia, whence he was transported to England in 1783, and bought by Prime Minister Pitt, who, in 1800, presented him to his master, George III. From this date on the bird was recognized as part of the royal household, with quarters at St. James. Ducky, however, developed amazing conversational powers, unaccompanied with the proper leaven of discretion, and in 1850 he was sentenced to banishment from St. James on the charge, it is said, of divulging family secrets. In his new dwelling place, Windsor Castle, Ducky acquired even worse habits. Windsor accommodates a small garrison, and the parrot was quick to acquire the vernacular of Tommy Atkins. The result was considered unsuitable to the well-known decorum of the British court, and sentence of banishment to Australia was passed on the offender. The amiable Princess of Wales, however, came to the rescue, and Ducky was removed to Sandringham, where he remained until the day of his death. Great age though it be, 125 years is not considered by scientific men as the absolute age limit of a parrot. So reliable an observer as Humboldt, whose statement in this manner is accepted without question by Darwin, tells of a parrot that must have lived 200 yars. The naturalist came across the bird in South America, and his reasons for crediting it with such extraordinary longevity were that he heard it use some words of a language spoken only by a tribe of Indians which have been extinct more than 200 years.—New York Sun.

Widespread Whispers.

The university of Michigan possesses an architectural curiosity in the shape of a whispering gallery. It is not so well known as that in the Capital at Washington, but it is one of the largest and most perfect in the world. Its length is perhaps greater than any other.

The gallery of Gloucester Cathedral transmits sounds a distance of seventy-five feet, and in the famous gallery of St. Paul's, London, the sound of the voice can be heard across a diameter of one hundred feet, but the gallery at the University of Michigan outdoes both, for it carries the faintest whisper through a corridor one hundred and sixty-four feet in length.

The gallery runs in the form of a half oval, about the north end of the university art gallery, and was originally intended for storage purposes. Its capabilities as a whispering gallery were accidentally discovered by a student, now a member of the faculty who was examining the building while it was in process of construction.—Youth's Companion.

BLIND MAN AND HIS DOG.

He Is Safely Led Through a City's Streets by a Faithful Canine.

There is no more intelligent, patient, and faithful friend of man among dumb animals than the dog. This is not a particularly new thought, but it is one the truth of which was forcibly impressed upon the writer by an incident that happened upon the street one day. I met a blind man nearing a crossing and he was led by a handsome dog of one of the hunting breeds.

"Look out there," I said to him, 'there is a step at this crossing."

"Thank you very kindly, sir," he said, "but you need not have bothered about it. The dog would have told me of it in time."

It was true. The dog would have told him. He had the dog harnessed something after the fashion of the harness that is put on a woman's pet poodle. He held a small leading line from this harness in his left hand. When the dog came to a crossing where it was necessary to step up it pulled the string to the right. If the step was downward it pulled the string to the left. It gave warning barks at unexpected danger and ran back and tugged backward when a street car or wagon was too near a street crossing to permit getting over safely.

The blind man told me that the dog had never allowed him to wander into danger. He was never injured on the street since the dog has been leading him. He never got the wrong signal from the dog. He goes through the city without the slightest fear of any accident that is within the power of the dog to prevent.—Pittsburg News.

DOG PRINTS A NEWSPAPER.

Odd Motor Power Employed in the Office of a Western Paper.

A dog that runs the entire machinery of a printing office is a novelty. Yet there are many persons who can testify that Plymouth, Wis., possesses such an animal. Gypsy is the name of this remarkable dog-engine, and he is the property of Messrs. Carroll & Bowers, proprietors of the Plymouth Review. Gyp, as he is known to the children of the town, is a gigantic 2 year-old English mastiff, weighing 140 pounds, who has been taught to furnish the motive power for running the presses of the Review office. A large wooden wheel, eight feet in diameter, was built expressly for Gyp's accommodation. At the word of command the intelligent canine enters the wheel and begins his work. To the wheel is attached a belt connecting with the presses in the next room. In two hours Gyp has run off an edition of 1,000 papers on a Prouty power press. He also runs a Jones-Gorden half medium job press, and in fact all the presses of the office except the small card press, which goes by foot power. Gyp runs off the weekly edition of the Review regularly and the job presses daily. He seems to enjoy his work, and never has to be driven to his station, but on the contrary shows an unwillingness to stop when ordered to come out of the big wheel.—Chicago Times Herald.

The Origin of an Old Saying.

"It's no time to swap horses when you are crossing a stream," said President Lincoln, on being urged to change one general for another, on the eve of a battle, but this story suggests the origin of the famous reply.

A Hoosier was traveling down the Ohio on a steamboat, with his mare and her two-year colt. The careening of the steamer, as she grazed a sandbar, pitched him and his horse into the river. As he rose, puffing and blowing, he caught hold of the colt's tail.

The mare made for the shore, but the frightened colt swam down the current.

"Let go the colt and catch on to the mare!" shouted the passengers on the boat.

"That's easy said," exclaimed the Hoosier, "but this ain't exactly the time for swapping horses to a man that can't swim."

Stronger Than Oak.

Foot bridges in Morocco that are used for heavy traffic have been the subject of much concern to many engineers. Elm planks on oak stringpieces were the materials employed, but these wore out so rapidly that a return to the old style of building was proposed. This consisted of cables made from the fibers of the aloe. These cables are plaited and twisted from fiber and are nearly two inches thick and eight and one-half inches wide. They are saturated with tar and are firmly nailed to oak planking. The ends are fastened by iron strips. These cables make most admirable footpaths. They are sufficiently elastic to be pleasant under the feet, and experience has demonstrated that they are far more durable than any material heretofore applied for this purpose.

Improving the Air of Workrooms.

In regard to the ventilation of work rooms, the consideration of dollars and cents is in many cases doing what would never have come to pass from any solicitude as to the welfare of the workmen. It is found in many factories, for instance, that the hands do much more work in a given time if they have good air to breathe. Some firms have quite elaborate provisions for the purifying of the atmosphere of the work rooms. In the absence of these a simple plan is to put a spoonful of oil of turpentine into a liter bottle of well water, shake it well and then blow it about the room through an atomizer. An improvement is to mix a few drops of acetate ether with the turpentine.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE ORIGIN OF ICE CREAM.

Made Its Appearance Near the Close of the Last Century.

The New York Post Boy of June 8, 1786, makes this announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen may be supplied with ice cream every day at the City tavern by their humble servant, Joseph Cowe." At a ball given by Mrs. Johnson in New York, on Dec. 12, 1789, there were "served pyramids of red and white ice cream, with punch and liquors, rose cinnamon and parfait amour." Ice cream was first introduced at the national capitol by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who had had it in her home in New York. She used to tell with amusement of the delight with which President Jackson first tasted it, and how he promptly decided to have ices at the executive mansion. Accordingly guests at the next reception were treated to the frozen mystery, and afforded considerable fun to the initiated by the reluctance with which they tasted it. Those from the rural districts especially first eyed it suspiciously, then melted each spoonful with breath before consuming it. Their distrust was soon removed, however, and plates were emptied with great rapidity.

The man who made the cream was, oddly enough, a negro by the name of Jackson, who in the early part of the present century kept a small confectionary store in Washington. Cold custards, which were cooled after being made by setting them on a cake of ice, were very fashionable, and Jackson, at Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, froze them by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering it with ice. Each bucket contained a quart, and was sold for $1. It immediately became popular, and the inventor soon enlarged his store, and when he died left a considerable fortune.—Harper's Bazar.

EARS IN SCHOOLROOMS.

Children are Often Deaf and Not Stupid, As Is Sometimes Thought.

Defective hearing is a symptom frequently seen in the school room about which teachers should know something. Pupils are sometimes considered backward and stupid, whose worst fault is their deafness. This is not as common, probably, as defective sight, but it is quite as apt to be neglected and so lead to disastrous results. Head colds, diseased conditions of the pharynx and tonsils, and discharges from the external ear are all common with children in this climate, and are all prolific sources of permanent deafness.

The teacher is in a position to detect this symptom early, and should investigate every case of apparent inattention and stupidity, especially if it is noticed that this is accompanied with persistent mouth breathing. The teacher can easily inform herself about a child's hearing, and quite accurately; thus, a child should be able to hear words spoken in a clear, low voice twenty feet away, and should be able to hear a watch tick three feet from either ear. Children with defective hearing should, of course, be seated near the teacher's desk. Parents' attention should always be called to this symptom, for it is usually possible to cure it when early treatment is instituted. Neglected, it is very sure to become permanent.—Sanitarian.

Food and Drink in One.

According to tradition the discovery and use of pulque in Mexico dates from the eleventh century.

Pulque is both a food and a drink, and among the poor it forms a very important addition to the frijoles, tortillas and chile, making up their limited fare. In employing a Mexican servant, a few cents a day for the purchase of pulque is generally allowed by the mistress of the house. A Mexican can do with little clothing and scanty fare, but life is a thirst panged desert if the usual allowance of pulque is interfered with. It possesses large medicinal properties, acting in a beneficial way upon the digestion, blood, nerves and system in general; but it used to excess it finally dulls the intellect and makes one drowsy and stupid.

One hundred thousand quarts a day is the average consumption of pulque in the City of Mexico alone, and special trains are regularly employed in the carrying trade between the maguey plantations and the city markets—Godfrey's Magazine.

A Practical Dog.

Walking along a residence street of Susquehanna a citizen noticed a little child at play with an immense Newfoundland dog on a lawn. In the rough and tumble sport of the two the child hurt his dumb playmate, who snapped rather angrily at the child. A woman who stood watching on the porch, cried out: "Nero, aren't you ashamed of yourself to frighten the baby? Go away, you bad dog!" The dog slunk away, whining. Suddenly he sprang toward a flowering plant, bit off one of the fragrant blossoms and with many extraordinary capers laid it at the feet of the little child, and then bounded toward the woman to receive a caress of forgiveness.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Man of Resources.

A NOBLE CHARITY.

Sisters Who Attend to the Care of a House as Well as Nurse the Sick.

An order of sisters has been established in New York, whose work impresses one at first sight as being the truest charity. It is called the Little Sisters of the Assumption, instituted originally in England, and its object is to care for the sick poor in their homes. The sisters work not only as nurses in the limited sense of the word, devoting themselves exclusively to the sick room, but more especially looking after the care of the house and the needs of the little children in the case, for instance, when a mother is obliged to stay in bed and leave everything to the working husband and the three or four little ones who may be about. The sisters go early in the morning to such a home, and, after giving the sick one whatever care and medicine she needs, they put the house in order, wash and dress the children if necessary, cook for them and for the mother, stay as nurses through the day when they are needed, and before they go they have the father's dinner or supper cooked and ready for him, put the children to bed and arrange everything for the sick mother during the night. The novices, besides being trained as competent home nurses, are thoroughly taught every detail of housework, and as their services are free to all who need them, they must be a real blessing to the afflicted poor, for whom sickness is a dreadful thing, not only in itself, but even more, perhaps, on account of the absolute neglect of the necessary duties of decent living that it generally involves. The Sisters are supported by voluntary contributions, and these they are not permitted to receive individually, but the offerings must be presented at the convent as a free gift. Many of those whom they care for give whatever small sum they are able to in gratitude for their services, but it is wholly unlooked for, and is a matter always of their own personal feeling of indebtedness. The support of the order must depend naturally on the charitably disposed among those who are blessed with this world's goods, but undoubtedly many of these, to whom the care of the sick poor has been a very real and heartbreaking problem, are glad to entrust their means to these good Sisters, who have solved it so well.—St. Mary's Hospital News.

"BILLY RAILROAD," THE GOAT.

He Is Owned by a Railway and Is Worth Big Money.

The International and Great Northern Railroad of Texas has a trained goat in its employ. The goat receives no salary for his services, but he receives the best of treatment and seems to fully appreciate the important position which he holds with the railroad corporation. This goat is used to lead sheep on cars, and is well known to all the shippers along that line of road. He was raised in Mexico, near the town of Lampazos, on the line of the Mexican National Railroad. To all appearances he was only an ordinary goat and great was the surprise of his owner when, about a year ago, the goat, of his own free will, paid a visit to the stock pens at Lampazos, where a shipment of goats was being loaded, and led a big flock of stampeded animals back into the pens and into the cars.

The value of this particular goat was quickly recognized, and for several months he had regular employment as leader in rounding up and loading shipments of goats at Lampazos and other places along the line of the Mexican National. He had the Mexican name of "Guillermo Ferrocarril," which in English means "Billy Railroad." A few months ago a large shipment of sheep was to be made from Laredo, Texas, on the line of the international and Great Northern road. "Billy Railroad" was sent for, and he handled the big flock of sheep better than a force of twenty men could have done.

"Billy" has been employed at almost every shipping place on the line of the International and Great Northern road, and his value is appreciated to such an extent that a large price was offered for him by the Southern Pacific company. He is now owned jointly by the Mexican National and the International and Great Northern roads.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Speaking Boston Indian.

Evidently she was from Boston, for Bostonese, you know, know all about the Indian question. She was witnessing the Indian sham battle at the exposition grounds and was deeply interested in Lo and his manner of fighting. After the battle she approached one of the noble Sioux and made an effort to engage him in conversation.

"Heap much fight," said the dear creature in that choice language that all good Indians are supposed to understand.

Lo gazed at the dainty maiden from Beantown and answered never a word.

"Heap great show," said the fair maiden. "Injun heap fight. Big pow-wow, hugh!"

Lo smiled a stoical smile, drew his blanket closer about his stalwart form and replied:

"Yes; this is indeed a great exposition, and we flatter ourselves that our portion of the entertainment is by no means the least attraction here. May I ask who it is that I have the honor of addressing?"

The dear girl from Boston was thunderstruck. She blushed a rosy red—even Boston girls can blush when they thaw out—and hastily fled.

She had been addressing one of the Carlisle Indian school graduates.—Omaha World-Herald.

DANGER IN CALCIUM CARBIDE.

Rules Governing Its Sale in New York. Liquefied Acetylene Gas Prohibited.

Superintendent Murray of the Bureau of Combustibles, has made regulations governing the transportation, storage and sale of calcium carbide, which the firemen declare to be a source of danger in a burning building, because when water reaches it acetylene gas is given off. A number of stores keep it for use in bicycle lamps. Hereafter, in transit or on storage, it must be inclosed in hermetically sealed iron receptacles marked "Dangerous, if not kept dry." No package may contain more than 100 pounds. It must be stored in isolated buildings that are fireproof and waterproof. No artificial light or heat will be permitted in the building where it is stored. Not more than twenty pounds, in bulk or in cartridges, may be kept in any store or factory, and this must be in a fireproof safe or vault above the street grade and must be kept six inches above the floor.

The manufacture, transportation, storage, sale or use of liquefied acetylene is absolutely prohibited within the limits of this city.—N. Y. Sun.

Somerville, Feb. 1—Assistant Chief of Police Manning T. Crow, who was mortally wounded in a single-hand fight with three desperate burglars, who had cracked the safe of the Swift Beef Company, at 2 o'clock the morning of Jan. 19th, died at his home in Hamilton street yesterday. Crow was shot through the body by an outpost of the gang, who was concealed behind a tree.

Staggering from the effects of his wound he crossed the street to the beef house and opened fire on two members of the gang who were trying to escape through an office window The men returned the fire and retreated toward the railroad and escaped.

Crow fired four shots at the men and one of them is believed to have taken effect. One of the men was seen to stagger as he ran, and blood stains were on the ground near the beef house. Prosecutor Nelson Y. Dungan and his detectives have been untiring in their efforts to run down the thieves. A large reward has been offered, and a close watch has been kept on all the hospitals along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad for the appearance of the wounded burglars.

The Swift Beef Company has employed several detectives on the case, but as yet there is no clue to the thieves.

Crow was one of the oldest and best known policemen in the State. He recently celebrated his twenty-first anniversary on the force.

CHEESE MADE TROUBLE.

Naughty Boys Put it in the Heater and it Made a Stink.

Westfield, February 1—The first and second grammar grade classes at the Lincoln High School were dismissed from their studies yesterday morning on account of a peculiar odor which arose from the hot-air shaft in the classrooms. The peculiar smell caused the teachers and scholars to feel ill, and it was impossible to receive any classes in the recitation room.

An investigation was made, and eventually Professor Edwards learned that Herbert Williams, Herbert Clark and Percy Ketcham had dropped small pieces of cheese into the hot-air shaft.

The boys' accompanied them to school this morning and tried to straighten out matters. The boys were, however, suspended by Professor Edwards. The affair has created considerable talk among the school children.

NEW TROLLEY LINES.

Somerville Cars Running Every Half Hour Under New Schedule.

The cars on the Somerville and Bound Brook line of the Brunswick Traction Company are now running every half hour, the original schedule of last Wednesday being still in force. Cars leave the station at the even and half hour throughout the day. The fare to Bound Brook is 10 cents each way and the same figure for single fare between there and Somerville.

Since the new schedule has gone into effect, the cars of the Plainfield company make close connections at Dunellen for Bound Brook. The cars of the Brunswick Traction Company start from Dunellen for Bound Brook every half hour and have no trouble in making the run in half an hour's time. The Plainfield cars no longer go to Taylor's Hotel in the evening, as has been the custom in the past, but they now run as far as the depot park and then return.

Robbed a Fellow Prisoner.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—Henry Gorman was convicted yesterday afternoon in the Union County Court of grand larceny. Gorman was serving a three months' sentence in the county jail for petit larceny, and, while there, formed the acquaintance of Harry Blum, book-keeper for the Donner Fur Company, of Elizabeth, who was locked up, awaiting his trial for embezzling money from the firm. Gorman, when he was released, went to Blum's house, said he was sent there to secure Blum's effects, and stole everything in the place. Blum had told him to go to the house and get him a change of underclothing.

To Depend on New Council.

At the meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening nothing definite will be done regarding a permanent pavement for Somerset street, as the present Mayor and Council's term expire in March, and it will require an election to determine what the future course will be. There will be only two more meetings of the present council, next Friday evening and an adjourned meeting February 15th. The election takes place in the borough early in March.

Miss Fanny Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, who has been visiting out-of-town friends, has returned home.

tittered. "Stop," would shout the youthful preacher, with a stamp of his foot, and a wave of short arm. Then he would continue to pace up and down the platform as he did throughout his stay there. Toward the last, two white young women left the hall and the boy shouted after them, "They're going out, they don't like it.

An offering was received at the door. Later, the audience was invited to step forward and drop an offering in the basket held by the child. The response to the latter invitation was not particularly enthusiastic so the boy passed around in the audience and patiently waited before each one until they had dropped in a contribution. Pictures of the child were afterwards sold by the pastor.

The mother gave a short talk telling the history of the boy and the story of his wonderful inspiration as she called it. Then the benediction was pronounced and the audience was dismissed to partake of refreshments that were served in the back of the church.

BANQUET WAS REWARD

Supt Ball, of Dover; Assistant Superintendent Hope, of Somerville; Supt. A. I. Reilly, of Newark, and others, made short addresses during the evening upon the good work done by the Prudential agents, and the necessity for hard work in the future.

It was not until a late hour that the company dispersed, and it was with many congratulations and well-wishes for the future that they returned to their homes.

The banquet, due to the tireless work on the part of Supt. Woodland and the excellent service given by Mr. DeRevere, was a success in every way.

TEN DAYS IN JAIL FOR BEGGING.

The Vagrant Was Using Insulting Language to Women.

Yesterday afternoon Chief Wilson, of the borough, received a telephone message from a resident in the vicinity of Fairview avenue that a strange man was going from house to house begging and using insulting language to women. The officer, although still detailed at home by illness, hurriedly dressed himself and hastened to the scene of the disturbance. He found the man who claimed that his home was in Somerville. He told Chief Wilson that he had been begging. When the officer informed him that he would have to accompany him to the lockup, the stranger became somewhat excited. He finally decided that it would be the best policy to go along quietly. This morning he was arraigned before Recorder Long who gave him ten days in the county jail to reflect on his wrong doings. The stranger gave his name as J. Seller.

The Last Day.

Today is the last day to secure the special rate at the Gregg School of Shorthand, Babcock Building. All those wishing to register can do so up to 9 o'clock this evening, after which time regular will be charged. Over twenty stenographers have been placed in good positions since January 1st, and over a dozen applications for stenographers have been received this week. W. E. Van Wert.

To Engage in Business in Newark

In the removal of former Borough Clerk John Vetterlein and family to Newark, which event will take place April 1st, the community will lose one of the first and best families. Mr. Vetterlein has decided to return to his former business, that of tobacco dealer, and will engage in that business in Newark.

Buying Commutation Tickets.

Today the Plainfield commuters were obliged to purchase their commutation tickets, and in consequence there was the usual rush at the North Avenue station. Agent Edward Nelson was kept busy most of the morning, and he was obliged to have as his assistant, Mr. Shurtz, the night agent.

Reception to Julia Ward Howe.

A reception is to be given Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, by the Society of American Authors, formerly the American Authors Guild, at the Windsor Hotel, this evening. A number of distinguished authors and literary people will be present.

WOODEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs B B. Waldron Entertained Friends in Honor of the Event.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Waldron, of No. 3 Codington avenue, celebrated their wooden wedding anniversary at their home last evening, when a number of friends assembled to join with them in commemorating the happy event. The evening was passed in playing all sorts of games, while sociability entered largely into the event. The celebrants received a valuable collection of useful and ornamental presents as tokens of esteem. At a late hour a bountiful supper was served, and early this morning the guests departed wishing the host and hostess many happy returns of the day.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Townley, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. M. Leinchentritt, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Huff, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno, Mr. and Mrs P. T. Vail, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Waldron, Phillip Currin, Mrs. Thomas E. Currin, Mrs. P. C. FAITHFUL SERVANT IS DEAD.

Domestic in Dr. Long's Family Passed Away at the Hospital.

Miss Susie Saunders, colored, aged 19 years, a faithful servant at the home of Dr. Long, of Park avenue, died this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital as a result of chronic pneumonia. About five weeks ago Miss Saunders was taken ill with the grip and she was immediately taken to the hospital, where she had the best of treatment in the hopes that her life might be saved Her illness finally developed into the trouble that caused her death. She was born in Richmond, Va., and resided in this city for several years at Dr. Long's home. She was very well liked and was a good servant. The funeral will be held from the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, Park avenue, at a time to be decided upon later.

Speak Quick if You Want One.

The birdseye views of Plainfield now being delivered to subscribers by Charles F. Paulus, will soon be out of print, as the lithograph stone from which they were printed has been destroyed. A limited number are now being offered to those who failed to subscribe for one, by Mr. Paulus, who will canvass at the homes of our citizens until the remainder are disposed of to those who may wish one.

Mrs. M. S. Ackerman's Tea.

Mrs. M. S. Ackerman, of Crescent avenue, gave the first of a series of "at homes" at her residence yesterday afternoon. It was a charming informal affair, attended by many of the elite of Plainfield society. The house was charmingly decorated for the occasion.

JUDGE RUNYON HELD COURT AT CITY HOME.

Disciplined One Inmate for Misbehavior.

CITY PHYSICIAN OBJECTED.

WAS ANGRY BECAUSE SUPERINTENDENT TOOK WIFE TO TOWN.

Jacob Frey Called TenEyck Bad Names—Had Already Threatened to Poison and Shoot His Wife—Similiar Fate Planned for Other Inmates—Wife Was Given a Ride to This Town.

Life at the Industrial Home has its jealousies and troubles as well as the rest of mankind. Jacob Frey has been the discurbing element there of late. Yesterday afternoon City Judge Runyon went down to the Home at the request of Superintendent I. D. TenEyck to discipline the cause of the discord.

Frey has not been satisfied with his life at the Home. He was married a few years ago and his wife is now employed at the Industrial Home as cook. Hard luck and illness placed the husband in such a position that he was compelled to seek support from the city. Last summer he grew morose and declared that he would poison his wife. Then he darkly hinted about ending her career with a bullet. He threatened the other inmates and the superintendent as well.

The immediate cause of the trouble was the departure of Mrs. Frey to Trenton to see her sister, a few days ago. Mr. TenEyck was going down town at the time and offered her and her child a ride in his wagon, which they accepted. Frey was waiting outside to see his wife and missed her in consequence. He was very indignant and his language about the superintentendent became so bad that a complaint was made.

Yesterday afternoon City Judge W. N. Runyon, accompanied by Chief Grant, Sergeant Kiely and the reporters, went down to hold court in the superintendent's neat little parlor.

Alfred Pound, whose lower limbs are so twisted that he has to walk on his hands, and Mary Luke, a well-known character, were the two witnesses. Frey soon admitted the truth of the charge, but deemed the reason for it sufficient.

The Judge then delivered a short lecture, telling Frey how the city was giving him a home and that the least he could do was to preserve order there, and then sentenced him to ten days in the county jail. Then the little group broke up, Mary Luke carefully explaining to the Judge, whom she had chased many times when he was a small boy, that she was only there to look after her husband, who needed assistance.

Frey got his cap and coat and departed under the guard of the officers without bidding his wife and child goodbye.

Frey was brought down town by the officers and requested that he might see City Physician Carman before he went to Elizabeth. Dr. Carman told the officers that it would be a very dangerous thing to send Frey to the county jail as he was very weak from consumption and the life there might bring on fatal results. The matter was brought to the attention of City Judge Runyon. The Judge finally decided to resentence Frey and suspended sentence this time at the request of the City Physician. Frey was then taken back to the Industrial Home with a warning that he would not be let off so easily another time.

HARRY MORRISON'S ENTERPRISE.

The Miehle Company's Foreign Patents Purchased.

Henry D. Morrison, formerly of Plainfield, and A. J. Stone, of Vermont, have succeeded in selling to an English syndicate in London, recently capitalized by them for $1,250,000 the foreign rights of the Miehle Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, Ill., a large machinery manufacturing concern. Messrs. Morrison and Stone are two young American newspaper men, who, believing American modern machinery, was superior to that of any other country, embanked in the undertaking of convincing the people in other countries of that fact. They have met with extraordinary success. By this latest transaction they are said to have cleared $50,000 each.

STATE AID FOR SOLDIERS

GOV. VOORHEES RENEWS HIS PLEDGE THAT ALL ARE CARED FOR.

Several Propositions for the Recompense of the Jersey Volunteers Are Under Consideration by the Legislature.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 2d—Gov. Voorhees yesterday afternoon in an interview stated that early action would be taken by him and the Legislature that will obtain some compensation for the volunteers and sailors who served in the recent war. After the action of the Senate in voting a sword to Admiral Sampson and special thanks to members of the Women's National Relief Association, the question of the compensation of the soldiers was agitated in several parts of the State, and the question was put to Gov. Voorhees, who had promised to see that those "who went to the front" received recognition and compensation from the State.

"I understand there is some anxiety," the Governor said in reply to a query, "and that will hasten the consideration of the subject. My promise has not been forgotten, and it was only the other day that I had a talk with some officers on the subject."

"What do you propose to do for the volunteers?"

"Well, the matter is under consideration by the Military Committee of the Senate and by the military officers. There are three schemes under consideration; one is that which is embraced in Senator Braun's bill to give $600 to each, but those with whom I have talked think that is too much. Another is to give a small lump sum of probably $25, and the other is to give them a small weekly amount for the time that they actually served under the government. A conference is to be held next week, and I will be present to take part in the discussion."

"What about cases of suffering, such as now exist in several parts of the State, where assistance is promptly required?"

"I should think that the proper course for those who are interested in such cases would be to have their Senator or Assemblyman report the matter to the Senate Committee on the Militia, who are considering the Relief bill.

TO TRY RIGHT OF PROPERTY.

Wife Claims the Goods Levied on for Husband's Debt.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock a jury will be called in Justice Moffett's court to try the right of property in the case of Nathan Schweitzer, of New York, against Morris Ballantine.

Schweitzer secured a judgment against Ballantine for an unpaid bill, and the sale was advertised to be held Monday. The goods seized upon to be sold to satisfy the judgment consist of a grindstone, butchers' knives, a counter, ice box, cash register, horse, wagon, etc.

When the levy was made, Mrs. Lottie Ballantine said the goods belonged to her, and it is to find out the truth of the matter that the right of property is to be tried tomorrow. Codington & Swackhamer represent Mrs. Ballantine and Pope & Runyon, the New York man.

Rally, Knights of Honor!

A special invitation has been extended to the Grand Lodge officers of the Knights of Honor consisting of Past Dictator Burke, of Elizabeth; Past Dictator Joithe, of Elizabeth; Grand Dictator Feder, of Elizabeth, with Grand Dictator G. W. Pearsall, of Ridgewood, to make an official visit to Senate Lodge, No. 3542, K. of H., of this city, tonight. An interesting programme will be rendered and there will be addresses, music and refreshments. All good Knights are urged to come out.

Load of Hay Broke Down.

A loaded hay wagon belonging to the Catline boys, of New Market, broke down yesterday afternoon on West Front street, directly on the street car tracks, and delaying the cars for two hours. Finally another wagon was procured, the hay transferred, and the wrecked wagon removed. A weak wheel and the street car track were the causes of the trouble.

A Summer Residence.

Councilman George P. Mellick, of LaGrande avenue, has purchased a piece of property near the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds, and will erect thereon a summer residence. The ground is now being surveyed and the work of building the house will be started at an early date.

Paper Train Engine Broke Down.

The morning paper train was over an hour late this morning in reaching this city owing to a breakdown of the engine just before the train reached Elizabeth. Another engine was secured to bring the train through.

SMOULDERING A WEEK.

FORTUNATE DISCOVERY OF A FIRE LAST NIGHT.

Flames Caused by a Heater Under the Floor of the Library in the Home of Mr. Taylor, West Seventh Street.

A defective flue started a blaze at the residence of James E. Taylor, of 825 West Seventh street, last evening. The fire must have been smouldering under the floor for over a week before it was discovered. One of Mr. Taylor's sons sent in an alarm from Box 37, corner of West Seventh street and Spooner avenue, at 10:15 o'clock. The department responded at once and finally extinguished the fire with the stream from the chemical engine.

The fire was under the floor in the library where a Baltimore heater stood. One beam was burned entirely through and several others charred. The fire finally made its way out under the piazza. But for the excellent construction of the house, the flames would have spread up the partitions and the loss would have been great.

The fire was in a hard place for the firemen to reach and they were compelled to tear up the floor and side of the wall before they could get at it. Then the fire was quickly distinguished. Besides the paid men and the chief and assistants, there were only nine volunteer men out to the fire.

The loss will amount to nearly $100, all of which was covered by insurance. The property belongs to Mr. Taylor. After the fire, No. 2 Engine Company served hot coffee and sandwiches to the men at headquarters. The run was a very cold one.

SOME REMINISCENCES.

"SINE COON" DESCRIBES THE NORTH PLAINFIELD OF OLD.

There Was Always Objection to Forward Steps for Municipal Improvements, But They Were Not Blighting in Results.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I witnessed and assisted in my small way in the evolution of North Plainfield township out of Warren township and well remember the prodigious kick that was then made by the "old inhabitant" who was forever pining for the good old days when the place was a farming "deestrict." Somerset, Pearl, Chatham, Harmony, Race and Warren streets, with Greenbrook road, were then the only thoroughfares. Grass grew in every one of them each season, and cattle wandered unmolested. The tax collector of that period kept tab on the sweatband of his hat, and the road overseer was a man of importance. The three school trustees of the little "first-class in arithmetic shop" that was anchored at the foot of Harmony street (mud lane) weren't graduates of Yale; those trustees never saw a foot nor a golf ball, neither could they steer a boat, but they had a harder trial than either of those undertakings in procuring money enough to pay the janitor. I know because I used to chase them up for that pay. The formation of the borough in later years was consummated after one defeat, and the promoters of that form of government were repaid for their labors in advocating the adoption of that plan by being defeated when they ran for office.

By legislative enactment North Plainfield township was organized. Then followed the telford macadam on Somerset street, opening of new streets, a building boom, street lighting, new school, etc.

Now the progressive element are agitating consolidation. Consolidation with a new county would be a grand scheme; one that would prove a blessing to all concerned. It was a decided step forward in the way of improvement when we left Warren township. It was another advancement when the borough was formed and it, indeed, would be near the ideal if the most feasible and plausable of the schemes which are to be submitted is adopted, that of the formation of a new county with Plainfield as the county seat. Mr. Boroughite, you'll be a man of great importance if you lend your aid to that end. Such a county could be formed that would outnumber Somerset in population easily. We have the brains and the people. A new county? Yes! Form a new county and consolidate the same into one city. Abolish the backwoods township form of government in all the newly-acquired territory and you will become a city of distinction and influence.

THE MAYOR TO FILL APPOINTIVE OFFICES.

Will Announce His Selections at Meeting Monday.

NO CHANGES EXPECTED.

THE PRESENT CORPS OF OFFICIALS IS CONSIDERED SATISFACTORY.

Important Meeting of Common Council Monday Evening—Mayor and Fire Committee Still Considering Plans for Increasing the Department—New Special Officers to be Appointed.

Monday evening will see one of the most important meetings of the Common Council of the year. Its importance is specially derived from the fact that the Mayor will then announce his appointments of the various city officials for the coming year.

Now that the ordinance making the life tenure of office in the police department, there is really little left for the Mayor to do. He will make the same appointments for the regular force as a matter of form. There are several new applications for special officers about which the Mayor is not decided. There is a special officer at each school and church in the city, the rest are divided among the commuters, business men and coachmen, few of whom are really available for service should the regular force be incapacitated for any reason. The police department is therefore anxious to have some men, who are available for service in emergency, made special officers.

The fire department is bothering the city officials at present. There has got to be some kind of a change in the future, but the Mayor and fire committee are still undecided which method of increasing the force to pursue. The Mayor will submit the names of the officers of the department. They will be the same as last year and will undoubtedly be approved by the Council.

The Mayor will also announce his choice for building inspector, street commissioner and corporation counsel. These will be approved by the Council. There is not likely to be any changes in the men to take those places.

SHEA GETS HIS LICENSE.

Anthony Comstock Objected, but the Grand Jury Couldn't Indict Him.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 2.—Lawyer Twombly made another effort yesterday morning to have the court refuse to grant a license to John Shea, of Summit.

The application has been pending over a month, and was objected to by Anthony Comstock. It was charged by Officer Comstock that Shea sold liquor on Sundays and to minors, and when the application was first made Judge Vail referred it to the Grand Jury. That body refused to indict, and Judge Vail granted the license. Towmbly had the court full of witnesses and made a hard fight to have the license refused, but the court declined to go behind the action of the Grand Jury.

The Mogullians Elect.

Columbia Conclave, No. 58 1-2, Adhesive Mogullians, met Tuesday night and elected the following officers: Pastmaster mogul, Garret T. Dunham; master mogul, V. W. Nash; senior mogul, W. A. Woodruff; junior mogul, J. W. A. Bauersachs; quill driver, William Conover; cash grabber, Henry Leifke; worthy supe, E. M. Laing; inside snoozer, George Giddes; outside snoozer, Charles Dellahunt. After the election there were speeches made, and a general debate upon the good of the order.

Boss and Workmen Couldn't Agree.

Mansfield Robinson, colored, sued Charles Hand in Justice Mosher's court yesterday for $7, which Robinson claimed Hand owed him for some work done for him. Hand disputed the claim, and said that Robinson did not do the work he claimed to have done. Justice Mosher reserved his decision in the matter until tomorrow.

Transfer in Fire Department.

It is said that the team now used for the chemical engine at fire headquarters, together with the driver, will be transferred to the new engine house in the West End to be used for the new combination hose and chemical to be placed in that house. A new team will then be purchased for the chemical at headquarters.

Silk Mill Machinery all Here.

All of the machinery, etc., for the Watchung Silk Company arrived in Plainfield today and the work of erecting the same is being pushed rapidly. A slight delay was caused in the shipping of the machinery.

WILL NOT DISBAND YET.

GAZELLE ENGINE COMPANY AWAITS ACTION OF COMMON COUNCIL.

That Decision Arrived at Last Night at a Meeting Called to Discuss the Subject of Going Out of Existence.

The members of Gazelle Engine Company, of the local fire department, have decided to await the action of the Common Council before taking any step looking toward reorganization or disbandment. That was decided at a meeting of the company held in the company rooms on West Second street last night.

A committee was appointed some time ago to confer with the board of engineers and the fire committee of the Council to see what was going to be done in the matter.

The committee held a conference with them and at their request reported to the company that they would advise a delay until the Council acted. The report of the committee was accepted.

It was then decided to postpone the farewell dinner, the date for which had been set for February 22d. The members were discussing the best time when it should be held when an alarm of fire came in. There was a general scampering for the pole.

Charles Johnson jumped for the pole to slide down. He missed his aim and fell through the opening to the first floor, landing on William Addis, Jr., who broke the force of his fall. Neither were injured. Four of the members of the company went to the fire. There were eighteen present. Another meeting will be held Tuesday evening to continue the business so unexpectedly interrupted.

PARKS IN THE LEAD.

ARE NOW TIED WITH THE ROSELLE CASINO TEAM.

Westfield Won Two Out of Three From Roselle That Changed the Standing of Teams—Three Games Rolled at Westfield.

It has come at last. Good and valorous bowling on the part of the Park Club team has at length placed them at the head of the Central Journal Bowling League. They will have to divide first honors with Roselle for a while yet. Last night, the Roselle team went to the alleys of the Westfield A. C., and were defeated in two out of the three game rolled. The result was to tie the Park Club and the Roselle Casino for first place in the league.

The first game went to Roselle after a hard fight, by a score of 739 to 734. The next game, the Westfielders woke up and rolled 940 to Roselle's 804. The third game looked like a victory for the visitors. They were ahead by 73 pins at the sixth frame. Then Westfield braced up and finished in splendid form, winning by a score of 814 to 802.

Both the Parks and Roselle have still three series of three games to roll. The Parks will visit Westfield and the Newark Bay Boat Club while the Cranford Country Club will come here. Roselle is due at the Elizabeth alleys and at Cranford and will then, in closing, meet the Westfield team at Roselle. Westfield and Cranford, it will be noticed, are now the principal factors in deciding which it is to be, Plainfield or Roselle.

STABBED FOURTEEN TIMES.

Tinko, in His Complaint Against Mozo, Shows the Court the Scars.

(Special to The Daily Press)

New Brunswick, Feb. 2—Joseph Tinko, from Perth Amboy, appeared in court yesterday as the principal witness against George Mozo, a fellow countryman, whom he charged with stabbing him fourteen times with a clasy-knife. He showed the scars, some of which were five inches long.

Dr. Tyrrell, who sewed up the wounds, was of the opinion that at least five would prove mortal, but thought the assault was committed Dec. 10th. Tinko had recovered sufficiently to appear in court.

Army Coats Too Big for Jerseymen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Athens, Ga., Feb. 2.—There was trouble yesterday in the camp of the Third New Jersey Regiment over the overcoats which have been given to the men. The coats are, as a rule, many sizes too large, and the men declare that it is an outrage to attempt to issue them at this time. A communication was received stating that the State of New Jersey may redeem the overcoats. Major Shailer said that if the men refused to take them the coats should be thrown in the street.

Must Give the Number.

A new rule has been adopted at the local telephone office to the effect that in the future all persons must give the number of the party asked for instead of the name. The rule is to be strictly enforced.

FOR A BETTER ROADWAY.

PROPOSITION TO SECURE MACADAMIZING OF LELAND AVENUE.

If the Improvement is Made it Will Cost the Property-Owners 22 Cents a Foot—City Would Pay the Balance.

An attempt is being made to secure the macadamizing of Leland avenue, and to that end the head of the street committee has sent letters to the property owners on that avenue, asking them if they are willing to pay their proportionate share fer the work if the city does the macadamizing. Each owner would have to pay about 22 cents per foot and the city would pay the balance. The answers to the letters are now coming in and thus far only three of the number received indicate that the recipients do not want the street macadamized. A great deal of the property on the avenue is owned by people living in various parts of the country, and the answers, therefore, come in rather slow. There seems, however, to be fair prospects that the work will be done at an early date.

INSULTED THE PASSENGERS.

So the Conductor Put Him Off the Car and He Was Arrested.

The conductor of the trolley car says that the man was intoxicated and was insulting the passengers. At any rate the conductor put him off the car and left him lying in the gutter. He then told Patrolman Weizenreid. That was last evening on West Front street.

Weizenreid went after the man and tried to get him started for home. The man wished to thrash the policeman and the employes of the Plainfield Street Railway. Finding that his acquaintance was in that mood the officer locked him up for the night.

This morning the prisoner was arraigned before City Judge William N. Runyon. He gave his name as Patrick Meehan, an employe of the Pond Tool Works. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 or go to the county jail for a term of ten days. Preferring freedom the prisoner paid his fine and was released.

PRIZES ON EXHIBITION.

What the Victors in The Press Subscription Contest Are to Receive.

Promises are all right in their way, but something tangible, that can be seen, is always more encouraging as a goal. This afternoon the prizes that are to be given in The Daily Press subscription contest are on exhibition in the west show window of Woodhull & Martin's big establishment in the Babcock building, West Front street. Woodhull & Martin have always had the faculty of arranging their windows so as to attract attention and interest the passer-by. The prizes, the two diplomas and the dictionary, are therefore in good company where everyone can see them.

The diplomas are handsomely engraved and only need the name of the victors to complete them. It isn't the diplomas so much as what they represent that so interests the contestants.

INSPECTED SEWAGE BEDS.

Editor of the Engineering News Visited the Plainfield System Today.

M. N. Baker, one of the editors of the Engineering News, called on Street Commissioner Gavett this morning, and with that official paid a visit to the sewer disposal beds. Mr. Baker is very interested in the filtration system of sewerage, and last week paid a visit to the Brocton, Mass., beds. He made a thorough examination of Plainfield's frozen beds this morning, even to the cutting of holes into the ice to ascertain the condition of the bottom of the beds. Mr. Gavett gave him all the information he was possessed of, and he expressed no unfavorable comment on the condition he found things in.

Diphtheria at Dunellen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 2—Dunellen is experiencing another diphtheria scare. There are several new cases in the borough, and it looks as though the disease cannot be exterminated. The cases are all mild ones and are not confined to any one particular district. There are a couple of cases on Jefferson avenue and a couple more in the western end of the town. Doctors Brakeley, Whitford and Nelson are attending the cases and do not apprehend anything serious.

James Broke His Nose.

James Donohue, a well-known man about town, fell on some ice yesterday and broke his nose. He was hurriedly taken to the hospital where several stitches were taken to effect a restoration of the broken bone. Mr. Donohue remained at the hospital about one hour and then left for home. His injury is not a serious one, although it will inconvenience him for a time.

BOY PREACHER WAS LAUGHED AT AGAIN.

He Left Mt. Olive Church With Tears in His Eyes.

HIS WORDS NOT HEEDED.

MOTHER OF BOY ALSO BECOME EXASPERATED WITH AUDIENCE.

Large Audience Was Not Impressed Seriously With the "Preaching" of Lawrence Dennis, and Made Considerable Levity During His Talk—Over $11 Contributed to Assist the Boy.

Lawrence Dennis, the "boy preacher," made his second and last appearance in this city last night at the Mt. Olive Colored Baptist church. For a half hour this five-year-old lad walked the pulpit platform, alternately kneeling to pray or to stamp his little foot in rage at the mirth and levity of the congregation. Or else he would come down among his hearers and in shrill tones exhort the young and old to repent and to come forward to be prayed for.

The sensation the "boy preacher" made Tuesday night at the Filmore Baptist church, among the few gathered there, had the effect of crowding Mt. Olive church last night to its doors. They were white and black, not more than a third of them being members of Mt. Olive church, and with the exception of a few, were drawn there by idle curiosity. The lad was confused by the actions of the people, and at the close of the service was led away by his mother, in tears. The general impression among those who were there seems to be that the boy possesses unusal ability for acquiring knowledge of religious subjects, and has absorbed this from his parents' teachings and from attendance at the southern camp meetings, but that he possesses no supernatural power.

Rev. A. A. Phelps, who was present, led in prayer. He appealed so fervently to the Most High that the congregation caught the spirit of his appeal, and muttered exclamations like "Praise God," "Lord forgive us," and "Help us, Lord." After the opening prayers the "Boy Preacher" was brought in and seated in the large arm-chair. When Pastor Jackson gave the meeting over to him, he jumped down and began walking up and down the platform swinging his arms and exclaiming, "Let's sing something."

"Ask me questions," he finally commanded. There was a slight pause, then Pastor Jackson began to propound a few. "What are you in Plainfield for?" asked the pastor.

"To preach Christ," came the answer.

"Who led the children of Israel out of Egypt?" asked the pastor.

"I won't answer that, I want to talk about Jesus Christ," said the lad. "Don't laugh," he continued, turning to the congregation, "It is wicked."

Here Prof. Phelps, urged by the child's incessant demand to "Ask me questions," put in one. "Does it do any good to pray?"

"Of course it does, but what a foolish question to ask," answered the child. The Professor asked nothing more.

At last the little fellow was asked several questions which he could not answer, so he began to call for sinners to come forward. Two did so, and Rev. Mr. Jackson requested another preacher, who sat on the platform with him, to offer prayer for them. But this did not suit the child. "Let me pray," he cried," and pushing the preacher back, he fell on his knees and began, "Lord, forgive us and take away our sins. Let us have everlasting life," and then went on to tell the story, in his child-like way, of the three lepers who were told to wash in the Pool of Siloam.

A collection was taken up for the lad, amounting to $11.60.

Late Train Made Late Mail Delivery.

The cause for the delay in the early morning mail was due to an accident to the mail train the other side of Elizabeth. The employes at the post-office were in no way to blame for the delay in the delivery of mail.

Improving His Property.

Joseph Blimm, of East Third street, has begun the work of improving his newly-acquired property corner of East Third and Washington streets. Thomas McGann is doing the grading about the house.

Must Clean Sidewalks.

Borough officials were making the rounds last evening notifying residents who had not cleaned off their sidewalks to do so by 10 o'clock this morning.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

The Same O.d Story

Told on the Streets of Plainfield as Well as Elsewhere.

Something you cannot tell too often.
Repetition gives it added strength.
The same old story is pleasant to hear.
When it brings happiness to home.
Brings joy to the afflicted.
Tells how burdens can be raised.
How the back can be relieved.
All the pains and aches removed.
Proves how easily it is done.
Plainfield people tell this story.
Friends and neighbors talk of it.
They tell about their kidney ill.
How they suffered, how the cures came.
What they think of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Here is what a citizen says:

Mrs. Valetine Utzinger of 75 Grandview Ave., says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for six years. I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back and if I over exerted myself or took cold I suffered severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. There was also a kidney weakness which was very distressing and inconvenient. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son brought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved my other difficulty. I gave all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a grand medicine for kidney trouble. I have recommend them to a number of my friends and will continue to do so."

DREYFUS CASE REVISION

The Exile's Friends Losing Hope of Justice.

A MATTER OF SENTIMENT

It Is Said That the Friends of the Prisoner Are Themselves at Fault—Prediction That Greater Anti-Semitic Trouble Will Follow.

Paris, Feb. 2.--The most ardent supporters of the theory that Dreyfus was unjustly condemned, now admit that there is no longer the least hope that justice will be done.

A prominent member of the University of Paris who from the first has been a champion of a revision of the trial, says:

"For ninety-nine out of a hundred Frenchmen the guilt or innocence of Dreyfus is a matter of sentiment. All the reasoning in the world would not induce them to change their attitude. There are millions of Frenchmen who will insist upon Dreyfus's guilt in spite of any proof to the contrary. A terrible feature of the situation is that the atitude of this majority is dictated by motives which they believe to be deserving of the highest respect. I admit that some of the Dreyfusards are much to blame for this. The best cause may be ruined by disreputable adherents, and there are men on the Dreyfus side of whom every patriotic Frenchman is the natural enemy.

"While the majority of us have been merely demanding that justice should be done, a pestilent minority has made this demand an excuse for virulent onslaughts on institutions we hold in great esteem."

In conclusion the member of the university predicted that the result of the agitation will be "an onslaught of unparalleled violence on the Jews, as the masses are convinced that they are at the bottom of the whole trouble."

The Rhynalds Ashore.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 2.--The steamer which went ashore Tuesday night four miles north of Fenwicks island life saving station, is the Rhynland. Captain Hanah, from Liverpool for Philadelphia.

The wrecking tug North America, which has been pulling on the steamer Rhynland, succeeded in moving her some distance.

The Rhynland struck during a heavy snow storm, which, it is thought, prevented her captain from seeing the Fenwicks island light. This light is about twenty-five miles below the Delaware breakwater, so that when she grounded the Rhynland was several miles out of her course.

The steamer is not leaking, but her propeller and rudder are thought to have been carried away.

There are forty-two passengers and a crew of seventy-nine on board. All are well.

New Appraisers to be Named.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.--Ex-Representative W. D. Bynum of Indiana had an interview with the president yesterday morning, presumably in behalf of his own appointment as a member of the board of general appraisers. It had been for some time understood that President McKinley would appoint some new appraisers to take the places of members of the board whose resignations have been called for.

The reported reason for changes in the board is that irreconcilable differences exist among the present members.

Those mentioned for places on the board are ex-Representative Bynum, W. H. Howell, now assistant secretary of the treasury, and James S. Sherman, representative in Congress from New York.

War Board's Last Witness.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.--The war investigating commission has sent out a summons for a witness, who it is thought will be the last examined before the report to the president. The new witness is James Farnan, who was quoted in Tuesday's press dispatches as having sent a letter to Dr. Maxwell Christine of Philadelphia, saying that he had been stationed at Omaha last summer and knew all about the chemical preserving methods used by the big packing houses in preparing government beef.

It is not known whether or not Farnan will respond to the summons of the commission.

Papal Letter on Americanism.

Rome, Feb. 2.—The belief is expressed by persons near Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, that the pope's letter on Americanism will remain unpublished, his holiness preferring to discuss the matter verbally with Archbishop Ireland.

The non-publication of the letter is taken as an indication that the pope is favorable to the policy of Americanism.

Consul Goldschmidt's Burial.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 2.—The remains of the late Julius Goldschmidt, who was United States consul general at Berlin, Germany, and who died a short time ago, will be brought to this city at the expense of the state department at an early date.

This information is contained in a letter received by friends of the family.

Not to Vote on Miss Lindblom.

Chicago, Feb. 2.--The question whether a woman may become a member of the Chicago Board of Trade is not to be voted on by the directors. The application of Miss Lenor Lindblom has been withdrawn.

She concluded it would be denied, and therefore decided not to make the test.

To Fix Date for the Cortes.

Madrid, Feb. 2.--The Cabinet Council yesterday, after a long deliberation, decided to authorize the premier, Senor Sagasta, to fix the date for assembling the Cortes.

The question of the suspension of the constitutional guarantees was also considered, but no decision was reached.

THE ISLAND OF LUZON.

Two Naval Officers Report on the Conditions as They Exist in the Interior.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—A clear and accurate picture of conditions as they exist in the interior of Luzon, the largest of the Philippine group, with an area equalling that of the state of Virginia, is set out in a report made to the navy department by Paymaster W. B. Wilcox and Cadet R. L. Sargent, who explored the island last October and November.

They were forced to go on foot the greater part of the distance on account of the bad roads.

Labor is cheap, men working usually for less than ten cents a day. The only form of agriculture encouraged at present in some provinces is rice growing, but in others tobacco is grown in large quantities. The land is very rich. There are practically no cattle in one province visited, but a great number of buffalo.

The two officers found that in many places Spaniards had told the natives that the Americans would come to conquer them and that they would find themselves in worse hands than before they rebelled against Spain Spanish prisoners seemed to be well treated.

In the river Magat and the Rio Grande de Cagayan many alligators were seen. The natives hold them in great fear.

The trip was an extremely hazardous one and in many provinces the natives were distrustful of the visit of the American officers.

Evidences of gold and other minerals were seen at many places.

Won't Leave Till March.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Secretary Alger has not changed his plans for a trip to Cuba and Porto Rico in March. The announcement that he proposed to go on the Berlin today was incorrect, as the secretary has decided positively not to leave until after the adjournment of the present session of Congress.

The Berlin departed from New York to-day for Santiago on her regular trip and carried a number of persons who are anxious to be in Cuba when the men arrive for the work of exhuming the bodies of dead American soldiers. All arrangements have been perfected for the departure this afternoon of the Romania, and the vessel will proceed direct to Ponce, Porto Rico, and will then go to Santiago.

To Prevent Burial Alive.

New York, Feb. 2.—A bill has been introduced in the New Jersey legislature, the purpose of which is to prevent premature burial. It provides for a receiving vault in all cemeteries, where bodies may be kept until it is proved that they are dead beyond a doubt.

This vault will be subject to frequent inspection by a physician, and the interior of it will be in view of persons outside.

It will be arranged with devices so placed that it will be possible for any person who may return to consciousness to give an alarm.

Assemblyman Marks of Hudson county introduced the bill.

Tobacco Combine.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A certificate of consolidation of the Union Tobacco Company of America and the North American Commercial Company was filed yesterday with the secretary of state.

The name of the new corporation is the Union Tobacco Company of America. The capital stock is $19,350,000, divided in $12,000,000 of common and $7,350,000 of preferred stock. The preferred stock will pay an annual dividend of six per cent.

The principal business offices of the company will be located in New York city.

Another Sword for Sampson.

New York, Feb. 2.--In token of the grateful appreciation of the services of its citizens the state of New Jersey will present to Rear Admiral Sampson a sword, suitably inscribed.

A resolution to this effect introduced by Senator Ketcham, has been unanimously adopted and the concurrence of the house is confidently expected.

The resolution calls for a committee of five, two from the Senate and three from the House, in connection with the governor, to carry the resolution into effect.

Death of Rev. G. H. Simons.

New York, Feb. 2.—The Rev. George Henry Simons, pastor of the Wyekhoff Street Methodist Episcopal Church, in the Borough of Brooklyn, died at 12 o'clock last night at his home.

He had been ill with pneumonia since last December.

The pastor told some of his family just previous to his death that he felt he would die at midnight. The Rev. Mr. Simons was born in Germany on July 7, 1840.

Seven Convicts Break Jail.

Wichita, Kan., Feb. 2.--Seven convicts awaiting transfer to the penitentiary sawed their way through four steel barred doors and gained their liberty on Tuesday night.

Among them was Ed Stewart, sentenced to fifty years for murder. One of the seven, Charles Howard, a grand larceny convict, has returned because of the cold weather. No trace of the others has been obtained.

Woman Freezes.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 2.—Mrs. Nan Keeler, the wife of a packer in the United States service, was found naked and frozen to death on the side porch at her home.

She was insane. Her crippled mother was nearly starved. Money and provisions were found in the house packed in the bottoms of trunks.

Colorado for Woman Suffrage.

Denver, Col., Feb. 2.—Both houses of the legislature have adopted a joint resolution recommending other states to give a trial to the woman suffrage system of Colorado.

A Bit of Colorado Advice.

Denver, Feb. 2.--Both houses of the legislature adopted a joint resolution recommending other states to give a trial to the woman suffrage system of Colorado.

Germans Disregard Rulings of the American Chief Justice.

HOLD THEM IN CONTEMPT

Kaiser's Consul and Dr. Raffel Liberate Prisoners Held by Mr. Chambers Orders—Malietoan Chiefs Forced to Flee and Mataafa is Looting Houses.

Auckland, New Zealand, Feb. 2.—The following advices have just been received here from Apia, Samoan islands, under date of January 24, from the correspondent of the Associated Press:

"There has been a clash of authority between Chief Justice William L. Chambers of the supreme court and Dr. Joannes Raffel, the German president of the municipality of Apia. Herr Grosmuhl, a German resident of Apia, who was arrested for smashing the windows of the supreme court chamber, was sentenced by the chief justice to imprisonment and to pay a fine. Dr. Raffel instructed the police authorities to release Herr Grosmuhl, whose fine was subsequently fixed at one thousand dollars.

"The German consul, Herr Rose, thereupon wrote to the American consul, Lloyd W. Osbourn, and the British consul, E. B. S. Maxse, protesting that the action of the chief justice in fining Herr Grosmuhl was an infringement of German consulate rights.

"Messrs. Osbourn and Maxse jointly replied in their official capacity that the proper tribunal having dealt with the matter the consuls could not interfere. More than this, they declined to have further intercourse with the German consul or the German municipal president, except in writing or to attend meetings, except to consider the acts of the municipal council of Apia, unless an apology, with full retraction, were offered for the behavior toward Chief Justice Chambers.

"At the same time the supreme court summoned Dr. Raffel for contempt of court in releasing Herr Grosmuhl.

"There has been no further general fighting between the partisans of the rival chieftains since the last advices were forwarded, except that a party of Mataafa's followers was routed in the bush by Malietoans. It is expected, however, that fighting will be resumed, as Mataafa is rearresting persons who have already been fined and released.

"The work of pillage continues, among the houses looted being Vailima, the home of Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist.

"The exiled Malietoan chiefs were landed at Pago Pago, on the island of Tutuila, the schooner on which they were being unable to proceed to the island of Manua, owing to the adverse winds. The Tutuilians gave a hearty welcome to them, and made an attempt to seize Mataafa's son, who was on board the schooner, but the captain put to sea."

Fight Unchanged.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 2.—The Pennsylvania legislature in joint session yesterday took the thirteenth ballot in the contest for the election of a successor to United States Senator Quay. The following is the result of the ballot:

Quay 108, Jenks 82, Dalzell 15, Irvin 5, Stewart 7, Tubbs 3, Huff 6, Stone 6, Rice 2, Grow 1, Markle 2, Smyth 1, Widener 2, Riter 2; total 241. Necessary to a choice 121. No election.

Death from Freezing.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 2.—In a bank of snow beside the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Claymont, yesterday, was found a well dressed man, apparently about twenty-five years old, in the last stages of freezing.

He was hurriedly brought to the Delaware Hospital in this city, but died a few minutes after reaching there.

Combine of Canneries.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 2.—A. B. Mammond of Astoria and F. B. McGovern of New York have been meeting with several of the Columbia river cannerymen in Portland for the past few days with a view to effecting the combine of certain salmon canneries.

The options on the various plants and grounds expired at midnight but no agreement had been reached at that time.

Mrs. Provenchia Not Caught.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Mrs. Henry Provenchia, who is wanted by the authorities here for the murder of her husband's housekeeper, Annie Cox, of Calais, Me., Tuesday had succeeded in eluding the police up to noon yesterday, although officers at all points in this section were on the lookout for the woman and policemen from this city were following the trail closely.

Big House Burns.

Providence, Ky., Feb. 2.—One of the largest tobacco houses in this section of the state, located at this place, and operated by J. G. Givens, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night.

It contained seven hundred thousand pounds of fine strip tobacco, possibly two-thirds of this season's purchase. The loss will reach sixty thousand dollars.

Spanish Prisoners Released.

Madrid, Feb. 2.—An official dispatch from Manila says that the Spaniards who were held as prisoners on Negros island were recently released by the insurgents and have arrived at Zamboanga on the island of Mindanao.

Archbishop Ireland Received.

Rome, Feb. 2.--The pope received Archbishop Ireland at noon yesterday. At the end of the audience the archbishop presented to the pontiff two ecclesiastics of his diocese.

Elihu Root is Better.

New York, Feb. 2.--The condition of Mr. Elihu Root, who has been unwell for several days, is much improved. His physician says he will be able to be about in two or three days.

A Brooklyn gentleman has been for years subject to gastric trouble and dyspepsia. He invariably suffered after eating, and had dull headaches and coated tongue. He decided to give Ripans Tabules a trial. "I was surprised," he says, "to receive relief at once. I now use the 'Tabules' regularly and am able to eat with no bad after effects."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for FIVE cents.

CITY GOVERNMENT IN OMAHA.

Many Officials in Danger of Jail—An Extraordinary Situation.

Omaha, Feb. 2.--Omaha City business may soon have to be transacted from the jail unless a solution is found for the tangled web of litigation and of charges of official wrong doing now being investigated.

Some time ago Police Judge Gordon sentenced Captain Ilier of the police force to jail for contempt, and the case is now pending on appeal.

He threatens to order the arrest of City Attorney Connell unless papers in the hands of the city attorney, which the judge asserts belong to police court records, are returned.

The city council is debating the question of bringing impeachment charges against Police Judge Gordon and probably will do so unless the legislature can be induced to legislate him out of office.

The Board of Education is investigating charges of corruption made in connection with the American Book Company's contract for furnishing geographies to the public schools, and the city council is also laboring with charges made by the city engineer that a ring within that body is running the city affairs for its political and pecuniary benefit.

A clash between Judge Scott and the excise board is likely to land that body in jail for contempt of court for refusing to comply with the court's order.

Impeachment charges against Judge Scott have been filed with the legislature and finally the quo-warranto proceedings instituted by ex-Mayor Groatch to oust Mayor Moore are still pending in the supreme court.

Senate Committee Changes.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The Senate committee on committees yesterday made assignments to committees to fill the vacancies caused by the death of Senator Morrill.

The chairmanship of the committee on finance was vested in Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island. Senator Allison, the ranking member, preferring to retain the first place on the committee on appropriations.

The membership of the finance committee was completed by adding Senator Platt of New York.

Mr. Spooner takes the chairmanship of the rules committee, vice Aldrich, and Mr. Hanna, who is now without a committee, takes the head of the committee on relations with Canada, vacated by Mr. Spooner.

Mr. Platt in going to the finance committee relinquishes membership on the territories committee, his place being taken by Mr. Ross, the successor of Mr. Morrill.

Bold Daylight Robbery.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—A bold but unsuccessful attempt to rob Shain's jewelry store was made yesterday in the morning. A stranger came into the store and asked to see some watches.

Mr. Shain left the tray of watches on the counter and turned toward a safe, when he was struck on the head by a piece of lead pipe wrapped in leather. A second blow with the implement broke his nose.

He called loudly for help and several persons rushed into the store in time to capture the assailant. He gave his name as Frank Sullivan and said he was from Vermont, but the police think he is one Moldy Joyce.

Army Bill in the Senate.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The Hull army reorganization bill, which was passed Tuesday by the House, was received by the Senate yesterday, ordered printed and referred to the committee on military affairs.

A sub-committee has been appointed to consider the measure.

The committee will make every effort to expedite the return of the bill to the Senate and its early passage there.

There will be serious opposition to the bill now that the number of enlisted men is fixed at 50,000.

Rochester Residence Burns.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A fire broke out in the residence of Charles P. Barry at 412 East avenue early yesterday morning. The house, which was valued at thirty-five thousand dollars, was totally destroyed. It was insured for $20,000.

The contents, consisting of valuable furniture and costly bric-a-brac, were burned. They were worth about seventy-five thousand dollars and were not insured.

Delagoa Bay Dispute.

London, Feb. 2.--The Berne correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette telegraphs that the decision of the arbitrators in the Delagoa Bay dispute may be expected no later than June. It is added that the United States threatens in the event of further unreasonable delay to make grave representations to the Federal Council, which appointed the arbitrators, and that Great Britain will join in these representations.

Water Works for Jersey City.

New York, Feb. 2.—Mayor Hoos of Jersey City has signed the resolution awarding to Patrick H. Flynn of Brooklyn the contract for building a new works to supply water taken from the Rockaway river at Boonton, N. J., to Jersey City. The new water works are to cost $7,595,000.

Powder Mill Blown Up.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 2.—A report reached here yesterday afternoon that the press mill of the Ohio Powder Company, four miles north of this city, blew up at one o'clock, and that two men, David Evans and Daniel Davis, were killed, while other workmen were injured.

Jernegan May be in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—The Rev. P. F. Jernegan, of salt water gold fame, once the chief factor in the Electrolytic Marine Salts Company, is reported to be in this city to secure an adjournment of the affairs of the company.

No Meeting of Reichsrath.

Vienna, Feb. 2.—The reichsrath will not meet on Friday as was expected. The sittings of the chamber have been adjourned, and it is now believed that there will not be another session before next fall.

TREATY RATIFICATION

Senator Bacon Asks Action on His Resolution.

SENATOR CARTER OBJECTS

It is Thought That the Matter May be Fixed Up in Executive Session and an Agreement Reached to Vote on All Resolutions.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.--It has been practically agreed among the friends of the pending peace treaty that they will concede to the minority the passage of some declaratory resolution which shall not be explicit enough to change the situation but may allay the feelings of a small group of doubtful senators whose votes are necessary for ratification. When the agreement was made to vote on the treaty on February 6, the administration supporters privately declared that they would yield nothing, either in the way of amendment or of accompanying resolution.

To-day they say it is silly to yield anything, and that what they yield will be meaningless, but that if as much as they are willing to concede promises to make a few votes for the treaty, they do not object.

The Senate committee on foreign relations yesterday discussed the various declaratory resolutions before the Senate in connection with the treaty and decided not longer to oppose the taking of a vote upon any one of them. They count upon having all the resolutions except that offered by Mr. Sullivan, voted down. They will not oppose the Sullivan resolution, and it now looks as if it would be adopted. The resolution reads:

The ratification of the pending treaty with Spain shall in no wise determine the policy to be pursued by the United States in regard to the Philippines, nor shall it commit this government to a colonial policy, nor is it intended to embarrass the establishment of a stable independent government by the people of these islands, whenever conditions make such proceeding hopeful of successful and desirable results.

Senator Lindsay Democrat of Kentucky, however, introduced resolutions yesterday which several of the doubting ones regard with more favor than Mr. Sullivan's manifesto.

As the Senate now stands, and very careful pollings have been made, neither side is able to count the necessary number of unwavering supporters. The administration forces are lining up fifty-six or fifty-eight senators. They deny that the opposition has thirty-one senators on its list. The outcome rests with a few men, and may depend upon the character of the concession. Both sides claim an easy victory. The friends of the treaty, however, declare that they will not go far in the way of compromise, with the bright prospects before them in an extra session.

A vote on the reference of the Bacon resolutions "relative to the acquisition of foreign territory," was called for in the Senate, after a speech by Senator Rawlins against expansion.

Mr. Chandler, Republican of New Hampshire, asked and obtained unanimous consent to withdraw his motion to refer.

Mr. Bacon, Democrat of Georgia, then delivered a brief argument in favor of voting directly upon the adoption of the resolutions, and at once Mr. Davis, Republican of Minnesota, consented as leader of the Republican side on foreign questions.

This, of course, was understood to indicate a realization on the part of the friends of the treaty that it would be necessary to conciliate the other side before submitting the treaty itself to a vote in executive session.

The floor of the Senate rapidly filled up, but it was then discovered that the hour of two was so near at hand that the roll call could not be completed by that time, so Mr. Bacon asked unanimous consent that the resolutions and all amendments be voted upon to-day immediately upon the conclusion of the morning business.

Mr. Carter, Republican of Vermont, thought that it would be a discourtesy to Senator Spooner, who was to speak to-day, to sweep away the resolutions which were to furnish him with a text, so he insisted that Mr. Spooner be permitted to speak first, and the vote be taken afterwards.

Thereupon Mr. Davis moved an executive session and the spectators were excluded from the galleries floor.

German Army Scandals.

Berlin, Feb. 2.--In the Reichstag yesterday, there was a discussion of the recent gambling scandals in Berlin and Hanover, in which a number of army officers are implicated. The minister of war, General von Gossler, expressed regret at the occurrence and said that the emperor was proceeding unsparingly against those who were concerned in the scandals in order to uproot the evil.

As a matter of fact, he added, gambling in the army had decreased and the expediency was being considered of compelling officers to inform the authorities in the event of their receiving offers of money.

These were often of a shameless character, and even emanated from abroad, being made to induce officers to gamble.

The authorities also intend, he said, that the military cadets should be seriously enlightened regarding the dangers besetting them.

Death of a Lawyer from Burns.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 2.--R. D. Evans, a prominent attorney of the Luzerne county bar, died early yesterday morning from burns received in the Osterhout building fire last week. Evans occupied a room in the building and rushed through the flames to make his escape, being badly burned in his efforts. He was a graduate of the Lewisburg University, class of 1875.

The Grant at Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, Feb. 2.--The United States transport Grant, which left New York on January 19, having on board Major General Lawton, the Fourth infantry and a battalion of the Seventeenth infantry, bound for Manila, has arrived here.

A FATAL SNOW SLIDE.

Seven Lives Lost at Rogers Pass on the Canadian Pacific.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 2.--Details were received here yesterday of the fatal snow slide on the main line of the Canadian Pacific at Rogers Pass on the summit of Selkirka Tuesday evening. The round house and station were swept away, seven lives were lost and two persons injured. Those dead are the station agent, Caton, his wife and two children; the telegraph operator, Carson, an engine wiper named Redley and one unknown person. The names of the injured are unknown. A large force is engaged in the recovery of the bodies and two have been found.

Several large slides had taken place during the morning and early afternoon, causing considerable damage to the sheds east of the glacier. Trains are held at Glacier and Donald until further advices.

Superintendents Marpole, Duchesne and Wilson are on the spot. This is the most serious slide that has occurred since the first year of the construction of the road, when twelve lives were lost in the slide eight miles east of this point.

Pay for the Cuban Army.

Havana, Feb. 2.--A movement has been started by Dr. Castillo, Senor Jose Antonio Gonsalez Lanuza, head of the department of justice and public instruction in the Cuban cabinet of advisers, and Senor Jose Miguel Gomez of the Cuban commission, and others, to have all the 134 municipal districts of Cuba petition the authorities at Washington to pay the Cuban army out of the customs receipts, adding ten per cent., if necessary, to the duties in order to do so.

The Cubans are taking a general attitude of criticism and complaint against the Americans. They say all the Spanish office holders ought to be discharged, and that the methods of administration should be changed. The telegraph wires to Remedios are working badly, so that there is no news from President McKinley's special commissioner, Mr. Robert P. Porter, who has gone on a mission to General Maximo Gomez.

By Trolley to the Pyramids.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 2.--Negotiations have just been closed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company for the equipment of fourteen cars of the ordinary trolley type for use in the city of Cairo.

It is proposed to built another line to the pyramids as soon as the natives become accustomed to the operation of the cars, and later to connect Alexandria by trolley.

This is the second important order received in Pittsburg within a week for Egyptian improvement. The Schoen Pressed Steel Company is to build four hundred steel cars for the Sudan Railway.

Gold Coming from England.

London, Feb. 2.--The sum of two hundred thousand pounds (one million dollars) in gold is now being shipped to New York. This is a portion of the African parcel which was disposed of some days ago. It is not a fresh purchase.

The question of the likelihood of further withdrawals of gold is much discussed. But the prevalent opinion is that there will be no withdrawals, as the New York bankers do not desire to upset the monetary situation here.

The President's Health.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.--Secretary Porter said last night that President McKinley is tired and worn out as the result of the hard work devolved upon him by the war and its subsequent development, but that it was untrue that he was in any danger of breaking down.

His health is fairly good and all he needed was a little rest, Mr. Porter added.

Wreck of a Burned Ship.

New Orleans, Feb. 2.--The British steamer Fairmead, from Genoa via Key West, reports that at 8 a. m. on January 29, 117 miles southeast of South Pass, she fell in with a large full rigged ship, supposed to be American. She was burned to the water's edge and her name could not be made out. The Fairmead lay alongside but saw no signs of life.

Spanish Troops Released.

Madrid, Feb. 2.--A dispatch received from General Rios, the Spanish officer in command of the troops of Spain in the Philippine islands, says that the troops which were imprisoned on the island of Negros have been released by the insurgents and have arrived at Samboanga, the town on the southwest extremity of the island of Mindanao of the Philippine group.

A Sale of Iron and Tin Mills.

Martin's Ferry, O., Feb. 2.--The directors of the Aetna Standard Iron Sheet and Tin Mills have favorably considered an offer of $3,281,000 from the American Tin Plate Company for their plants here and at Mingo Junction.

The question of the sale will be submitted to the stockholders, who are understood to favor the sale.

Esterhazy Given Notice to Leave France

Paris, Feb. 2.--Major Count Esterhazy has been officially informed that his testimony before the court of cassation being concluded, the proceedings against him would be resumed in twenty-four hours.

He thereupon left by the Northern Railroad for an unknown destination.

Explosion of a Powder-Mill.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 2.--The press mill of the Ohio Powder Company's works, about four miles north of this city, exploded with terrific force shortly before noon, killing two employes, Evan Evans and Henry Davis, and totally demolishing the building and machinery.

Treatment of Consumptives.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.--At the meeting of the New York State Medical Society a resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing state sanitarium treatment for consumptives and urging the legislature to take action towards such an end.

If you would know more about it. Ask to see Circulation Manager Stout.

It would not be considered unusual if Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset county, should allow grass to grow under his feet, in view of the fact that he is an agriculturist and makes a good thing out of hay, but nevertheless the Warren township statesman is not of the class that allows the verdant growth, figuratively speaking, to sprout between his steps in the Legislature. Early in the present session Assemblyman Cooper introduced a bill making the legal rate of interest five per cent., and Tuesday he had the gratification of having the measure reported for a third reading. Mr. Cooper seems to be getting there all right.

Not one of Governor Voorhees' predecessors in office has ever shown so much patience with office-seekers as he has. He seems to take a keen pleasure in listening to their pleadings, and no mater how long they talk or what they say he never gets out of humor. In fact, he likes the ordeal just as much as he does the performance of any duty within his prerogative. It is predicted that the Governor will prove a disappointment to professional politicians.

The annual report of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics this year contains interesting and instructive data for those who care to study the relative conditions of union and non-union men. Though the investigation is limited to a few trades, it shows favorably for the union workmen, whose superior position in life was brought about through steadier work, better compensation per given quantity and greater productive capacity.

A bill has been introduced into the Legislature which aims to permit the catching of suckers in the waters of the State between December 15th and January 15th. The work of catching land suckers, however, goes on all the year round. It would take something stronger than a Legislative enactment to stop the latter sport.

"Duke" Thompson seems to know the ways of Legislature quite as well now as he did when all sought his ear a few years ago. Men may change, but all Legislatures are alike in a general way.

The hatmakers have formed a trust. We wonder if they will be able to stop people from talking through their hats. If so, we say hail to the hatmakers trust!

There are still five deadlocks in as many States over the election of United States Senators. And it is a crooked key that is being tried on them, too.

There is a report that the apple market is to be cornered. That will be a hard job in view of the fact that the forbidden fruit is round.

A Pennsylvania man has returned from the Klondike with $250,000. But just think of the others up there who have not got 250 cents.

The selection of Editor Buchanan, of the Trenton State Gazette, as State Librarian, is eminently fitting.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Mungie Anti-Alien bill is calculated to drive, with increased speed, the Italian and Hungarian emigrants into the embraces of American citizenship. Hitherto the attractions of the election funds have been sufficient, but when there is added to these the only possibility of working for a dollar a day on stone road building, it will be too much to be resisted.—Trenton True AMerican.

The Rahway commuters have begun an agitation for a modification in the price of commutation tickets to New York. A petition to the railroad company has been drawn up and is now being circulated, setting forth the fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad is now charging its Rahway patrons 28 per cent. more than the highest rates charged for the same distance by any railroad leading out of New York city, and they think it is high time some concessions should be made.—Press.

When you get the reduction in railroad rates on the Pennsylvania Railroad, just write us a letter. The Pennsylvania Railroad is a road that caters to through passenger and freight traffic, and they have it. But the Central Railroad of New Jersey caters to the suburban travel and gives such attention to it that this service is constantly growing. Now, people of Rahway, just pick up your tent and locate on the Central Railroad; you will enjoy better health, live longer and get good railroad advantages.—Real Estate News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Telephone connection has been established between the First M. E. church and the residence of Colonel George W. Smith, an invalid, of Cape May, and all the exercises of the various services are distinctly heard by the sufferer.

The Plainfield Poultry Farm Company sent a shipment of a thousand eggs to the poultry show at Madison Square Garden, New York, Monday. The eggs had been in the incubators at the local farm for nineteen days and were packed in cotton to be transferred to the incubators at the show. The transfer and the shipping did not injure the eggs in the least and they are hatching now as regularly as if they had remained in the one incubator all the time. It is considered to take twenty-one days to hatch them out but several were hatched on their way to the show in the cotton packing.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Owing to the inability of printers to furnish the printing to be used for posting and billing purposes, the management of the Tom Sawyer Comedy Comany, announced to appear the coming Saturday, have written Manager Maze Edwards asking for a postponement of their date. In consequence, there will be no performance in Music Hall Saturday. The comedy may be presented next week, but Saturday, Feb. 11th, Jos. Callahan will positively appear in his great scenic production of "Faust."

The Broadway Theatre Opera Company is an unusually large and talented array of singers. The new opera, "The Three Dragoons," is magnificently staged and costumed in the most lavish manner. There is variety in the three scenes of as many acts. The first is the courtyard of an inn, near Lisbon, and is a particularly bright and sunny piece of scenic art. The second is the ball room of the King's palace, in which a masquerade takes place, and the third, in wide contrast to the foregoing, is a smugglers' retreat in the mountains. Of the music there are three comic songs for each of the comedians. Mr. O'Mara has two solo numbers and the three dragoons sing a serenade. A novel idea set to a catchy melody is a song for Miss Ida daCosta, called the Clock Song, in which the ticking and striking of the clock is heard in the music. There is a strong military flavor, so popular nowadays, running through the opera, and there are some dashing marches to which a large chorus adds zest. It would seem that the new opera possesses the elements to assure its success.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 2—Stanley Day and William Coriell, who were hurt in the Lehigh Valley wreck at West Dunellen early last month, have both been waited upon by representatives of the company desiring a settlement with the men.

John Sutphen, the young son of Peter Sutphen, of Front street, has the diphtheria. Health Inspector John Peters put up the yellow card yesterday.

Rev. A. L. Wilson, of the Bound Brook Methodist church, will give a talk on missions at the Methodist church here Sunday afternoon.

H. L. Terry had the pleasure of shaking hands with Admiral Sampson when the latter visited the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Mrs. H. L. Terry and daughter Helen are spending several days with Mrs. Terry's sister, Mrs. Sherman Cooley, of Flemington.

Superintendent Adlemann, of the Plainfield Street Railway, took a drive through the borough yesterday and along the trolley line.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Dunham.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Fisher.

Miss Alice Jennings, of Warrenville, has been visiting her uncle, Henry Jennings, of Mountain avenue.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. are holding a mothers' meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Low.

The engagement of Miss Leonilla Pierson to Franklin M. Kelso, of Plainfield, is announced.

Miss Emma Craig, is entertaining her cousin, Miss Chichester, of Poughkeepsie.

Benjamin Carpenter has returned from visiting friends in Newark.

Randolph Runyon is confined to the house by illness.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.

New Market, February 2.—William Coriell is just able to be out after being laid up by injuries received in the wreck on the Lehigh Valley Railroad three weeks ago.

Dr. Whitford attended the banquet given by the Prudential Insurance Co. to its superintendents and agents at Plainfield Tuesday night.

Levi Bird, of North Plainfield, has been purchasing several wagon loads of shad poles where he is shipping away on the cars.

Frank Nelson held a live bird shoot yesterday. Sportsmen from Plainfield, Dunellen and New Brunswick were present.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 2—Geo. Thomae, who held the position of ensign on one of Uncle Sam's boats during our little scrap with Spain, has secured a berth as first mate on a Government survey boat, stationed along the Pacific coast.

Harry Flannery intends joining the New Jersey Naval Reserves and attended a drill of the division held in Hoboken Monday evening.

Miss Ruby Keibe entertained one of the library fair committees at her home in the borough Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Orman Noble, who has been visiting her son, William B. Noble, has returned to her home in Newark.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company held their regular monthly meeting in their rooms last evening.

Miss Katie Harold, who has been visiting Mrs. F. A. Miller has returned to her home in Tottenville, S. I.

Jacob Sell, of Westfield, visited friends in town Wednesday evening.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., meet in their rooms this evening.

In all stages of Nasal Catarrh there should be cleanliness. As experience proves Ely's Cream Balm is a cleanser, soother and healer of the diseased membrane. It is not drying nor irritating, and does not produce sneezing. To test it a trial size is mailed for 10 cents or the large for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Druggist keep it. Upon being placed into the nostrils it spreads over the membrane and relief is immediate. It is an agreeable cure.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Rogers, the seafood dealer, will open the shad season Friday, February 3d.

—Tomorrow evening there will be a meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps, and every member is urged to attend.

—A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the association building Thursday evening.

—Putnam & DeGraw are having a great run on their silver sheen, a material that takes the place of silk for dress linings.

—The prizes to for the fair to be held under the auspices of Warren Engine Company are on exhibition in a Front street store.

—Members of the Plainfield Camera Club are busily engaged in making prints for the exhibition to be given about Easter time in their rooms.

—Next week Wednesday evening an entertainment will be given in the Parochial School Hall for the benefit of the Plainfield Catholic Club.

—The Young Woman's Missionay Society of the First Baptist church will meet to-morrow afternoon in the church. A full attendance is desired.

—Owing to the illness of Judge Bartine, the case of Bicknell against Underwood, which was to have been tried, was adjourned until next Thursday.

—Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Frank Ottis Herring, of 1111 Park avenue, for teas to be given on February 10th and 11th from four to seven.

—The constable's sale of the goods of Ada Cruse, to satisfy a judgement obtained against her by Murphy & Blatz, was adjourned yesterday for ten days.

—VanArsdale's annual clearance sales are always popular because he takes all broken lots of shoes and puts a price on them to make them go, while they are not way out of style.

—At the annual Charity Ball, which took place Tuesday at the Waldorf-Astoria, Burritt H. Shephard, of "The Gables," Fanwood, was one of the aides to the chairman of the floor committee.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve Remedy, all pain soon left him. He says that this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 2.—One of the most exciting bowling games ever rolled in Westfield took place last night on the alleys of the Westfield Club when the Roselle team visited here. Three games were played, two of which Westfield succeeded in winning. Westfield's scores were 734, 910 and 814. Roselle's scores were 739, 804 and 802.

A delegation from Plainfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Plainfield, paid a fraternal visit to the Westfield lodge last night and assisted in initiating several candidates.

Mrs. Horton to Speak.

All are cordially invited to attend the meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. It is expected that Mrs. Horton, of Cranford, an entertaining speaker, will be present and address the meeting.

May be Hotel Jefferson.

The exterior work of improvement on the Hotel Grenada is about completed. Mr. Staats, the proprietor, is thinking seriously of naming the house the Hotel Jefferson, as there is only one other house in the country with that name, and that is in the south.

No change is reported in the condition of Mrs Morton, (nee Miss Case,) of Brooklyn, but her many friends are hoping that she will speedily recover.

Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, has again assumed his position as secretary of the Mt. Olive Baptist church Sunday-school after a long illness.

Mrs. Robert Radford, of West Front street, has decided to give up her place, store her goods and the future spend her time living among her children.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

UNCERTAINTY OF FASHIONS.

Summer Fabrics Displayed in Shop Windows.

(By special arrangement with the N. Y. Sun.)

Fashion has a variety of enticing charms at all times and seasons; but there is nothing else quite so fascinating after all as her uncertainity. No sooner do we feel ourselves comfortably fixed for winter gowns than summer silks, piques, batistes, organdies, and the sheerest lawns blossom out in the shops without any regard to temperature or present needs of dress.

Rather small patterns prevail among the new China silks and satin-finished foulards, some of the prettiest being polka dots of various sizes grouped together with scattering dots between groups. Among the new silks of the heavier kinds there are moires antique, glosse taffetas, shiny brocades prettily shaded in varying tints of one color for evening wraps and gowns.

The variety in cotton robe dresses of batistes and sheer lawns, trimmed with embroidery and lace, is also very tempting, as the trouble of making them up is simplified so much by the finished skirt, which requires nothing but a band. The satin finished crepe de chine is another material which is very popular and altogether lovely in the new sheath skirts, which seem to have come to stay for another season at least.

Just how all the pretty summer fabrics are to made up is a matter of conjecture at the moment, but it is pretty safe to say that our thin gowns will be cut with a train, that overdresses will flourish, and that ruffles of every kind and description will add their soft frou-frou to the varying modes of decoration. With the scant skirts and gauzy materials ruffles are almost a necessity to give the flare and hold the skirt out around the feet. Whatever the overskirts and tunics may become later, they have no preceptible effect on the figure yet, so far as broadening it is concerned, for they fit just as closely well below the hips as the skirt underneath, and if they are made very long, almost covering the skirt, they take very little from the height.

The Most Beautiful Must Fade.

The late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, like her namesake of England was sensitive about her personal appearance, and regretted the ravages of time to more than the ordinary degree. Her passion for violent riding and long, very quick walks was connected with her dread of becoming stout. She had brought on her recent ill health by the rigidity with which she dieted herself in order to avoid adding to her weight. Although she was rather tall, she made a point of weighing less than seven stone, and would practically starve herself for sometime if she turned the scale of the weighing machine, that always stood in her bed room, at anything beyond that figure. This in her case had produced the anemia that was the direct cause of the disorder of the heart for which she had lately been treated.

The unfortunate Empress, like Queen Elizabeth, forbade her portrait to be taken when she had passed her bloom. Tradition says that Elizabeth for many years before her death refused to look in a mirror, but she had the rsponsibilties of a queen regnant, and could not exclude herself from the eyes of her courtiers as the modern monarch did. It a curious example of the irony of fate that the most hideous portrait ever produced of Queen Elizabeth is one of the few that may now be seen in the National Portrait Gallery, notwitstanding that she ordered the absolute destruction of every reproduction of it. It appears in the form of a coin, showing her very aged and perfectly hideous, with a "nut-cracker" nose and thin, hollow cheeks and sunken eyes. The only example of the coin, I believe, is the specimen now on show in that most prominent position. The Empress Elizabeth was under no obligation to appear on ordinary coins, and on the few medals and orders on which she appears in the company of the emperor a youthful portrait is always to be seen. Growing old is hard to all of us, no doubt, but to the beauty it is a terrible tragedy. — Illustrated London News.

All the Truants Love Her.

Mrs. M. E. R. Alger, who is doing some remarkable missionary work among the truant schoolboys of the West Side, accomplishes many a conquest by her ability to adapt herself to the boys' comprehension. The way she talks to these little rascals is perfectly charming, says Harper's Bazar.

The other morning one of them was captured by an attendance officer and reprimanded severely for milking the cows in the stock yards on the sly. His long harangue had no effect, but when Mrs. Alger appeared, things assumed a different aspect. In her sunny way she said:

"I don't believe that you are a naughty boy, really; you're just naughty in spots. When you walked out of school to play truant, the badness was in your feet; when you stole those flowers in the park last month, and when you milked those cows this morning, it was in your hands. Just now, when you sat there thinking what to do next, it was in your head. Don't you think so?"

The boy nodded. This novel method of procedure was making an impression.

"Now, I'm willing to give you another chance," continued Mrs. Alger. "I think your teacher down at the Truant School can tell you something that will get that badness out of your head; then you will be good all over. Your heart's all right, I know, because you love your mother, and you're fond of me; so help your teacher all you can, and she will pull you through all right."

The boy seemed to grow an inch taller under the encouragement, and walked away with a brisk step and a determination in his eye that promised well for his future behavior.

White Shirt Waists.

White waists promise to find even greater favor than formerly, and some of the shirt waist girls have already declared their intention of wearing no other.

The white waist certainly has some advantages. It does not fade and as a rule takes starch well, which those made of the soft gingham refuse to do. On the other hand, white is not so becoming, generally as some of the soft shades, and it is especially trying in thick cotton goods, such as are used in the swell waist. Most women who last season tried shirt waists made of washable silk say that they will never wear cotton ones again. The silk waist looks extravagant to one who looks no further than first cost, for silk at less than seventy-five cents or one dollar a yard cannot be depended upon to wash well. But such silk wears at least three seasons and does not fade in the least. Added to this, it has the merit of being soft, cool and becoming, and is to be had in the most exquisite colorings. The plain silks make quite dressy waists, while those that are striped have no end of style.

A Debutante Idea.

Now and then a debutante has a really clever idea.

Recently one of our Boston girls distinguished herself for her graceful tact. She was bountifully remembered with bouquets of the rarest and choicest flowers. They were effectively banked near her. Instead of carrying just one bouquet the entire evening, the tactful maiden changed bouquets every little while, and thus she did honor to as many of her friends as possible.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE MARKET HABIT IN HAVANA.

Queer Things One Buys in the Metropolis of Cuba.

The Havana market is crowded at daybreak by Spanish, French, Chinese and colored cooks of both sexes. Some chefs, who affect the dignity of a coat are accompanied by their apprentices or scullions, who carry baskets. Marketing is always done by cooks in Havana because employes are aware that they can drive a better bargain, even taking into account the perquisites allowed them by tradespeople.

Fish caught in Cuban waters are especially nice, and the pargo, a species of red snapper, is very toothsome, as is the cherna, which tastes like salmon. No Havana cook will buy fish unless they are alive, and the fish market, with big tanks full of fresh fish, with white marble slabs and scales, is very picturesque. The other sea food is also excellent, although the shrimps and lobsters and mussels are somewhat small. The oysters grow on the submerged branches of shrubs and trees on the coast. These branches are broken off and sold in the market, but the Cuban oysters are small and inferior to the American. Terrapin and turtles are very fine, and tortoise have handsome shells, which bring a good price in the market. Sea crabs and land crabs are also good. The latter grow to a large size and their bodies stand high from the ground on their enormous claws. Land crabs burrow in holes, and their locomotion is clumsy, sounding like that of a drunken man. Cooks feed these crabs on corn meal for several days before they cook them, as this makes them more palatable.

A favorite way of fattening poultry in Cuba is to put them in barrels and stuff them with walnuts and corn-meal for several days before they are killed. Just before Christmas turkeys are driven through the streets in droves of from forty to one hundred from door to door, for people to make their own selection.

Beef is killed the day before it is used, for it cannot be kept fresh longer than one day on account of the excessive heat.

When the cook returns from the market his presence is made known to the household by squaking ducks, cackling hens or squealing pigs, for all such livestock are brought from the market, and they expostulate angrily on being carried around in such close quarters. And pigeons and doves, with soft eyes, utter a cooing, plaintive note, as though with a sad foreboding of the tragic fate in store for them.

What a "Butterick" Is.

Every calling has an argot of its own, and there is nothing queerer or less familiar to the outer world than the slang of artists. When analyzed, however, most of the studio "patter" is extremely expressive. Not long ago one of the art staff of a New York weekly was in the city and in chatting with a friend chanced to mention a bright young southern draughtsman. "He's doing pretty well," said the artist. "He's selling all the Buttericks he can make to the comic papers." "What on earth do you mean by Buttericks?" asked a bystander. "I'll see if I can explain," said the artist, laughing. "A Butterick is a drawing supposed to illustrate some joke or witty saying, but really nothing but a group of pretty women fashionably dressed. As a general thing it would do equally well for a hundred different texts. If you will look at almost any of the satirical journals you will see Buttericks without number. Usually two women are posing in the drawing, and one of them is presumed to be uttering the lines printed beneath. It requires no imagination whatever to produce a Butterick—nothing but a fairly accurate knowledge of current fashions and a good looking model. The same model will do for both women. The current price for this species of woodenware is about $15 apiece."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Queen of American Gems.

To the state of Maine belongs the honor of producing the gem that, because of its great range of color and remarkable dichorism, as well as the great beauty of its uncut crystals, deserves to be called the queen of American gems. This stone is interesting to the mineralogist on account of its complicated structure, being made up of many different elements. Not only are the Maine tourmalines the most remarkable produced in the United States, but some of the colors from them are by far the finest found anywhere in the world. The stones were discovered in this locality in 1820, and some of the crystals taken from the surface pockets at this time may now be seen in the imperial collection of minerals at Vienna. The mines of Paris, Maine, have been worked since 1871. The largest fine gem taken out weighed sixty-nine and one-fourth carats, and is of a superb light green color, and absolutely free from flaws. It has been suggested that the tourmaline be adopted as our national gem.

Betrothals in Spain.

A curious custom obtains in some portions of Spain in regard to betrothals. A young man who looks with favor upon a handsome senorita and wishes to gain her hand calls on the parents for three successive days at the same hour of the day. At the last call he leaves his walking stick, and if he is to win the desired bride, the cane is handed to him when he calls again. But if he is not regarded with favor the cane is thrown into the street and in this way the young man is made to understand that further calls will be useless.

Human nature is so constituted that all see and judge better in the affairs of others than in their own.

Eine Ehefrau dahier hatte ihre Stieftinder mittelst einer Schaufel, einer Mistgabel und durch Messerstiche in den Kopf fortgesetzt mißhandelt, so daß eines dieser Kinder heute an epileptischen Anfällen leidet. Der Gerichtshof verurtheilte sie zu fünf Monaten Gefängniß. Der Staatsanwalt hatte drei Monate beantragt.

Essen. F. A. Krupp hat für die im Jahre 1897 mit einem Kapital von 1,000,000 Mark begründete Invalidenstiftung, welche die Unterstützung bei Erwerbsunfähigkeit in Folge Alters und Invalidität in denjenigen Fällen bezweckt, wo eine Ergänzung der staatlichen Fürsorge für den einzelnen Arbeiter und dessen Familie nothwendig ist und wo für diese Ergänzung nicht schon durch die bestehende Pensionskasse und sonstige Wohlfahrts-Einrichtungen der Krupp'schen Kassen gesorgt ist, ein weiteres Kapital von 500,000 Mark ausgesetzt, so daß das gesammte Kapital der Invalidenstiftung nunmehr 1,500,000 Mark beträgt.

Naumburg. In der Freiburger und der benachbarten Gegend schreitet die Verpuchung der Weinbergsgelände durch die Nesslaus fort. In den nächsten Tagen werden sich die Weinbau-Interessenten des Saale- und Unstrutthales in Freiburg versammeln, um zu berathen, ob und wie man den Mißständen begegnen könne.

Salzwedel. Die hiesigen Aerzte haben, um eine bessere Honorirung ihres ärztlichen Beistandes zu erzielen, einen Ring geschlossen und den Vorständen der hiesigen Krankenkassen den Kontrakt gekündigt. Während bisher pro Kopf der Kassenmitglieder 3 Mark Arzthonorar bewilligt waren, verlangt der Aerztering jetzt 4 Mark pro Kopf. Die Krankenkassen wollen diesen Honorarsatz nicht bewilligen und gehen mit der Absicht um, einen eigenen Kassenarzt anzustellen. Dies würde aber die unlängst eingeführte freie Aerztewahl illusorisch machen, und so werden die Krankenkassen bei einigem Entgegenkommen des Aerzteringes eine gütige Einigung mit diesem suchen müssen.

A CATHOLIC CENTENARIAN.

An Interesting Account of the Oldest Union Veteran.

Mr. James Walsh, who is 103 years old, visited relatives in Cumberland, Md., recently. He resides with his son-in-law, Patrick Mullooly, a prosperous farmer, on a spur of the Great Savage mountain, on the road between Frostburg and Mount Savage, in Alleghany county. That Mr. Walsh is 103 years old cannot be disputed. Rev. Father E. A. Williams, pastor of the Catholic church at Mount Savage, wrote to Mr. Walsh's birthplace in Ireland and obtained the correct figures from the church baptismal records. He was born July 25, 1795, in the County Roscommon, Ireland, "on the beautiful river Shannon," as he delights to tell. He says he was born on the anniversary of the martyrdom of St. James, whence he derived his Christian name.

Mr. Walsh was a mature man when the battle of Waterloo was fought, an event he vividly remembers. When he came to America, the Chesapeake and Ohio canal was not yet finished to Williamsport. He worked on the canal when he landed here and afterward became a section boss. He remembers well when the "Good Intent" stage line ran between Frederick, Md., and Wheeling, W. Va., when six horse teams, droves of horses, hogs and cattle by the thousands were taken through this section on the old national pike eastward, and when all stage conveyances were imported from Russia. He has known the people and the town of Frostburg over 65 years, is by trade a wagon maker and only two or three years ago laid aside his tools. He is still very active, and every now and then walks several miles to Frostburg when the weather is good. His step is yet agile.

Mr. Walsh is probably the oldest Union veteran. A touching experience in his life is indicated in his reason for enlistment in the army. Although then an old man, he took the place of a son, fearing he might lose the boy. "He was such a promising young man, and I didn't want him to come to harm," he explained. He served three years and three months. His most vivid war recollection is of the Hunter raid, in which he took part. He still reads the daily papers and takes an active interest in current events. Only a short time ago he began the use of glasses. He discusses affairs most intelligently, and his reminiscences of three-quarters of a century ago are most interesting. In physique Mr. Walsh is below middle stature and is but slightly stooped by his great age. He suffers occasionally from slight attacks of dyspepsia. He is always in a cheerful mood, however, and his tongue has lost none of its Celtic humor. He is sometimes annoyed by the spreading of exaggerated and highly colored reports concerning his career.—Baltimore Sun.

HEROISM OF A PRIEST.

Braved the Horrors of Fire to Give Consolation to Dying Firemen.

When the big fire was raging in Terre Haute, Ind., and the walls fell, imprisoning Firemen Welsh and Osterloo in the cellar, Father Zazo, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's church, started for the ruins and brushing aside the guard at the fire lines said, "My place is down there."

He crawled down into the cellar, found Welsh amid the burning debris, heard his confession, gave him absolution and then administered holy communion. Father Zazo then went to Fireman Osterloo, a non-Catholic, and spoke words of encouragement. The priest escaped unhurt.—New World, Chicago.

An Interesting Relic.

Christchurch, Oxford, recently recovered an interesting relic in the shape of the cardinal's hat of its founder, Thomas Wolsey. It is said that the relic can be traced back without a break through Horace Walpole's collection to Bishop Burnet, who seems to have appropriated it from the royal wardrobe, of which he was clerk. It has been suggested that the relic should be hung in hall under the portrait of the famous cardinal.—Chicago Record.

THE MARONITE MASS.

BOSTON'S FIRST CELEBRATION OF THE CEREMONY.

New Church of Arch Syro-Maronite Catholics Dedicated — Archbishop Williams Officiated at the Ceremony—Impressive Rights.

The new church of the Arch Syro-Maronite Catholics, situated on Tyler street, between Harvard and Oak streets, the latest acquisition to the Catholic churches of Boston, was dedicated the other morning by Archbishop Williams, assisted by a number of other clergymen.

The time set for the ceremony to commence was 10 o'clock, and as that hour approached little groups of Syrians and Armenians, all in their best holiday attire, appeared at the little church. The number of these people was multiplied many times by that of other Catholic people of the city, attracted either by a desire to be present at the special service of dedication or by a curiosity to witness the celebration of the sacrifice of the mass according to the Maronite rite, which was to take place for the first time in Boston.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the ecclesiastical procession left the little sanctuary and proceeded down the aisle of the church to the entrance, a distance of not more than 60 feet. It was headed by a cross bearer, supported on each side by an acolyte. These were followed by the officiating clergymen, and at the end walked the archbishop. They proceeded to the outside of the church, which the archbishop sprinkled with holy water and blessed. Then they returned to the inside, which was also blessed in the same manner. The archbishop was assisted by the Rev. Hugh Smyth, rector of St. Joseph's church, Roxbury, and by the Rev. William P. McQuaid, rector of St. James' church. The acolytes and cross bearer were under the direction of the Rev. Dennis Lee of St. James' church.

The ceremony of dedication finished, the celebration of mass according to the Maronite rite commenced, the Rev. Joseph Yasbek, the pastor of the new church, being the celebrant. The ceremonial, while agreeing with that used in the Catholic churches of the west in essentials, differs from it very much in accidentals, as was to be observed at the service the other day. The Maronites may be said never to have a low mass, as the greater part of it is chanted alternately by the priest and his server. The liturgical language is Syriac, formerly the language of the people. The gospel is read in Arabic, which is their spoken language.

The Maronite layman before receiving communion turns to the congregation and says, loud enough to be heard by those near him, "Forgive me, brethren, for God's sake." The words used by the priest when placing the consecrated wafer in the mouths of the communicants also differ from those used in the western church, although in substance they are the same.

Incense is profusely used during the mass, and a solemn procession is made about the altar before the communion of the celebrant, and before consuming the sacred species the celebrant turns to the people and blesses them with the chalice. At that moment may be seen a remarkable evidence of the faith of the people, founded on the invitation of Christ, "Let little children come unto me." Mothers bring their children forward to get the blessing, and the celebrant places the chalice upon their heads. During the distribution of holy communion the server precedes the priest with a lighted candle, and he or some others sing a hymn corresponding to the "Tantum Ergo."

At the mass the Rev. Father Yasbek was assisted by the Rev. Stephen Corkmaz, one of the three Maronite missionaries in the United States. During the mass the archbishop occupied a throne which had been prepared for him at the gospel side of the altar. He was attended by the Rev. Father McQuaid and the Rev. Father H. P. Smyth. No organ is used in the Maronite service, but cymbals are used in its stead. Women are forbidden to sing, according to one of the commands of St. Paul. A sermon in the Arabic language was preached by Father Yasbek, who also made a few remarks in English. He congratulated the congregation on the completion of their church and thanked the Catholic people for the generous aid they had given him.

The little church presents a very cosy appearance. The altar is of white wood and of pretty design. The pews are of oak, with stuffed cushions, and are the gift of the Rev. Father Smyth of Roxbury. On the walls hang a set of 12 stations of the cross, the gift of Mrs. Oberle of Boston. The curtains and altar draperies were given by F. A. Fersan. How well the space is utilized may be seen from the fact that a small office at the entrance is made to serve the purpose of a confessional also, by means of a screen, the priest sitting at one side and the penitent at the other. The interior is as yet unpainted, but Father Yasbek hopes to be able to paint it soon, with the help of friends.—Boston Herald.

Our Priests Needed In the Philippines.

Father Dougherty of the Paulist fathers, who went to Manila with General Merritt, says that American priests ought to be sent to the Philippines to minister to the American soldiers and the population other than Spanish and Filipinos which is pouring into the newly conquered territory. Their labors, he thinks, are needed in the barracks and hospitals. Under present conditions and those which will prevail for some time Spanish priests cannot perform this work. The archbishop will not put any obstacles in the way of the Americans, but will, in fact, give them his aid and probably a church conveniently situated for their work.—Boston Transcript.

THE SPRINKLE DOLLAR.

A Counterfeit which was Worth More Than the Sound Dollar.

The sending of Dan Wyatt McLease to the penitentiary by the United States district court for counterfeiting has started the tongue of reminiscence to relating particulars of the most noted counterfeiting case known to the penal annals of northwestern Kentucky, namely, that of Jacob and Nancy Sprinkle, who were indicted jointly at the October term of the Lewis district court in 1840. This case attracted sensational interest at the time, as there were thousands of the "Sprinkle dollars" in circulation, which, though known to be counterfeit, nevertheless were received without question or protest in facilitating exchanges through a broad territory.

The "Sprinkle dollar" occupies a unique position in the history of counterfeiting, as it was, perhaps, the only illegal dollar ever minted that was "too good." The "Sprinkle dollar" had a larger proportion of silver in it in relation to its alloy than the dollar that came through Uncle Sam's fingers. The well known fact that the "Sprinkle dollar" had a higher bullion value than the genuine dollar possessed helped to retain it unquestioned in the circulation of this and adjoining counties. This fact was also potent in screening Jacob Sprinkle from the legal consequences of his act. Hundreds openly sympathized with him, and the most exacting for a long while winked at his transgressions.

Many people believed that as long as the Sprinkle dollar contained the same or a greater proportion of silver than did the coin from the government mint they were doing no wrongful act, either in law or morals. They believed that counterfeiting consisted in deceiving and cheating with a base metal resembling silver. Jacob Sprinkle believed this himself for a long while, and was disillusioned only after a grand jury had indicted him. So numerous did these dollars become finally that men, when receiving money from another, would always examine it to see how much of it consisted of "Sprinkle dollars." If it all should consist of Sprinkle money it would call forth some jocular remark as the receiver pocketed the jingling coin.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

THE JAPANESE DO NOT USE OPIUM.

Since Owning Formosa They have been Troubled Regarding the Question.

The Japanese, unlike their Chinese neighbors, have a horror of opium smoking. In Japan it is a crime, punishable by a heavy fine and a long imprisonment. It is a crime to sell opium or smoking apparatus, and the only places where the drug can be purchased, or where a person may smoke, are on the foreign reservations under the protection of a foreign flag. The opium dens in Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki and other cities are all found in the German, French and English concessions, where the Japanese have no jurisdiction. When the Japanese took possession of Formosa, which was ceded by China to Japan as a part of the price of peace, they found a serious problem in the prevalence of opium-smoking among the natives and Chinese residents, who are numerous.

After the trial of various methods, the Government has adopted a rather novel policy to repress and regulate the vice. It requires every opium smoker to purchase a license from the Government by the payment of a fee, and permits indulgence in the vice within certain limits of the city, which will result in the colonization of opium-smokers. Physicians and druggists alone are permitted to buy and sell the drug, and they are required to take out licenses and pay heavy fees for the privilege. Any violation of this law is punished by imprisonment with hard labor for a term not exceeding fifteen years or a fine not exceeding 5,000 yen. In the districts set apart for indulgence in the vice, opium-smoking houses may be opened for the accommodation of strangers or persons who do not care to smoke on their own premises. These houses are subject to strict regulations, and every time they harbor a customer who does not have a permit to smoke opium, the proprietor is liable to a fine of 3,000 yen and imprisonment for eleven years.—Chicago Record.

CRANKS' COLUMN.

Suggestions that Emanate from Pens of Bicycle Riders.

From an Irish bicycle paper this "Irish bull": "Whether the lady's face was displeasing to the horse, or that, quite the contrary, it was an awkward attempt to chuck her under the chin, is not known. The facts of the case are that a horse kicked an English lady in the face last week, while cycling." Who was cycling, the horse or the lady?

MILLIONAIRES A-WHEEL.

Havemeyer, Searles, Both Rockefellers, and Lots of Bank Presidents Go In.

Many prominent Wall street men have recently taken to the bicycle. How are a few of them:

President H. O. Havemeyer and Treasurer John E. Searles of the American Sugar Refining Company.

President John D. Rockefeller and William Rockefeller of the Standard Oil Company.

President T. Edward Simmons of the Fourth National Bank, who is also President of the Clearing House Association.

President James Stillman of the National City Bank.

President A. B. Hepburn of the Third National Bank, now in liquidation, who has become Vice-President of the National City Bank.

President F. H. Schenck of the Mercantile National Bank.

President A. S. Frissell of the Fifth Avenue Bank.

Mr. Havemeyer is very proficient, and has ridden from his summer home at Stamford to this city, a distance of about 35 miles, accompanied by his wife, who also has mastered the bicycle.

So far as known none of the well-known men named in the list has as yet appeared in bicycle rig in the business district. John D. Rockefeller, when his family are in town, is frequently seen riding with his daughters in West Fifty-fourth street, where his home is. President Simmons said yesterday that he had acquired the habit last year. President Waterbury, who is a large man, is having a fine new wheel built and warranted.

Up to the coming of warm weather, when members began to leave for the country, the bowling alley of the Metropolitan Club, on Fifth avenue, popularly known as the millionaires' club, was filled with bicyclists daily. One day not long ago 136 wheels were counted there. Two men are employed by the club to look after them.—New York Sun.

THE DIVIDED SKIRT.

He Loved His Wheel.

Reginald Hunscomb stopped in the hall and nervously fumbled at the rim of his hat, meanwhile gazing into Pocahontas Poindexter's eyes with a fondness that the beautiful girl could not mistake.

He opened his lips as if about to speak, but the words that he sought to utter would not come, and the fair maiden gave a low, sweet sigh that was calculated to fill his heart with blow-holes.

Yet he stood there, and she stood in front of him, looking, and longing, and wondering why he hesitated.

Once she was almost tempted to take him back into the parlor and tell him that it was all right; that she knew how he felt about it, and that she would just take it for granted without the usual formality. But her maiden modesty rose in rebellion, and she said to herself:

"No; if he is too timid, too cowardly, to say the words, it will perhaps be better for us both if we take diverging ways."

Then, speaking aloud, she said:

"Well, good night, Mr. Hanscomb, if you must be going."

"Well, good night," he said; "I guess I must be going."

"Well, good night," she said again, holding the door open for him.

"Well, good night," he said, passing out through the vestibule.

She shut the door with a bang and sat down upon the stairway, and buried her face in her hands and sobbed.

But half a minute later she heard him returning. Her heart gave a glad leap and she rushed to the door to admit him.

He stood looking down into her sweet, expectant face for a moment after the door had swung back, and then, clearing his throat, he said:

"Some pesty kid punctured my tire while I was inside. I wonder if I could borrow your mending outfit for about two minutes?"

"No," she replied; "my repairing outfit is up in the attic, and I can't find it tonight. Walk home. It'll do you good."

Then she slammed the door in his face.

REMARKABLE BATHS.

The Marvelous Pools Built by an American Millionaire.

Among the remarkable baths of the world are those built by Adolph Sutro, in San Francisco. The great cliffs have been tunneled, that the water of the Pacific may flow through a succession of canals into the reservoir, where it is warmed, and thence into the enormous tanks.

The baths are more than twice as large as the famous old Roman baths, and Mr. Sutro has tried to make them as beautiful. Twenty thousand people can sit, stand or promenade about the tanks, which are arranged for every possible set of bathers. There are cold baths and hot baths, swimming and diving baths, baths for children and beginners. The largest tank is 275 feet long and 150 feet wide. There is even a fresh-water tank, supplied from the water above. The place is full of beauty and color, with tropical plants and rows of growing palms, while through the glass side walls the ocean view stretches.

The building is of steel and glass, and its glazed roof spans more than two acres. Tier after tier of rooms for the bathers rise, until they are numbered by many hundreds. A great stage, fifty feet broad, is placed at the ocean end of the tank room for the orchestra. The building is furnished with electric lights and elevators throughout. Three restaurants provide refreshment, and an aquarium and conservatory add to the beauty and interest.

The Cliff Rocks outside are covered with seals, sunning themselves, and the finest baths have, perhaps, the most beautiful setting.—Golden Days.

CHICAGO'S FREE BATHS.

How the Reluctance of Some of Her Citizens to Partake is Overcome.

We extract from the Chicago Times-Herald the following:

An amusing scene characterized the opening of the great Roman baths on the Lake Front this morning. A tramp who has long been a familiar figure in the business district, was invited by Bath Inspector McMann to take a Roman bath free of cost, service of manicure and barber included. The tramp resisting, McMann, fortified by the late ordinance on compulsory bathing, procured a reserve team from the fire department and set about enforcing his invitation. He dragged the tramp several blocks, but finally in mercy to his horses abandoned the Herculean task. The city's bill for damages will be considerable.

An Old Point Comfort Trick.

Every time the mechanical conventions have met at Old Point Comfort an amusing little fraud has been enacted upon the lady visitors. The way the thing is done is that some one whispers in the ears of the visitors that moonstones can be found on the beach of the bay. Then the visitors swarm along the edge of the water looking very wistfully at every little pebble to be seen. Then they pick up the best looking pieces of quartz and imagine them to be moonstones or even more valuable gems.

A lapidary has a shop near the hotel, and the information is given out that the stones can be cut while the visitors wait. The lapidary takes the stones and substitutes for them other cheap jewels found in the Black Forest and cut in Germany. Then the ladies go away happy, with the consciousness that they have found jewels that are good enough to make presents for their friends at home.—Locomotive Engineer.

Didn't Blame Him for Hiding.

The Cleveland Leader tells a story of a simple minded countryman who strayed into a Cleveland art store the other day, and appeared to be much struck by a picture entitled, "Lion, After Gérome." "Well," said the proprietor, after a while, "you seem to be pleased with that picture."

"Yes," the old gentleman replied, "I do sort of like it. That's a powerful ugly looking beast thar, and I swon I don't know's I blame Gérome very much for gittin' out of the way."

"Getting out of the way?" repeated the proprietor. "What do you mean by that?"

"Why," the visitor explained, "it says 'Lion after Gérome,' don't it? Well, Gérome ain't nowhar to be seen, so I s'pose he must be hidin' behind one o' them stuns."

SPORTING.

THE GREATI NDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

The game between the girls of the Plainfield High School and the Montclair academy, if it is to be played at all, will probably take place in a week or two.

The next basket ball game scheduled to be played in the local Y.M.C.A. gymnasium is on Monday evening, Feb. 20th, against the Hasbrouck Heights Field Club.

There is a possibility that another year will see considerable changes in local basket ball circles. There is already some talk of the organization of an independent team from among the local players. If the Y. M. C. A. decides not to support a team next year, the players from that organiza- will probably join the independent team.

The young women of the Vineland, N. J., High School have followed the example set by the young women of the Plainfield High School and have organized a basket ball team. They have been practicing since last fall and attempted to keep the fact a secret until they were ready for an exhibition game but the news leaked out. Some of the parents prepared to forbid their daughters participating in the sport but Superintendent of Schools Unger, of Vineland, decided in favor of it as excellent exercise for the young women. The Vineland team is now doing very well and is anxious to play other teams.

The question of the appearance of the Yale basket ball team in Plainfield is still unanswered. The matter was brought up before the physical work committee of the Y. M. C. A. to see whether they favored holding the game in the Crescent Rink. There was some opposition to the proposed game, for the reason that it would be necessary to leave the gymnasium and go elsewhere to play. The opponents of the measure thought that such action would be against the policy of the association. The committee was evenly divided on the question, so it was left to the board of directors to settle. There will be a meeting of the board Thursday night, when the matter will be brought up and probably settled. It is to be hoped that they will take the broadminded view and permit the game to be played in the Crescent Rink, as such a game would undoubtedly be a financial success and raise the prestige of the game in Plainfield.

Manager George Fuller, of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball team, is very indignant, and properly so, over the treatment of the Plainfield team by the Olympic team of Brooklyn. The Olympics telegraphed at the last moment Monday afternoon saying that they could not come. When Mr. Fuller arrived at the gymnasium in the evening, expecting to find the game just about to begin, he found no audience and no visiting team, the audience having been sent home as soon as it arrived. In conversation with a Press reporter, Mr. Fuller said that this would end all future intercourse between the two teams. Early in the season, he said, the Olympics had been notified four days in advance not to come to Plainfield. When the game in Brooklyn was to played, they found themselves unable to play and gave Plainfield several days warning. This sudden notice, Mr. Fuller thought, was very unsportsmanlike.

VARICUS SPORTS.

The next event scheduled to take place in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is the gymnastic contest for novices Saturday evening, February 11th. All members of the association who have won a medal in any previous athletic or gymnastic contest at the association are barred from entering this contest.

The medals won in the indoor athletic contest in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, which was completed Saturday evening, will be presented at the close of the season. It is proposed to make a special affair of it and present all the medals won in the various contests of the season. The affair will probably be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall and be followed by an informal supper for the members.

The entries for the two men bowling tournament to be held on Ulrich's alleys will close February 8th.

The bowling tournament was continued last night at the Plainfield Catholic Club at which time Carty and Flynn beat Moynihan and McInnerney three straight games, and Higgins and Hillman beat Butscher and Mack two games. Carty and Flynn now stand an excellent chance of securing first prize if they continue their present pace. Tonight several games will be rolled in the tournament.

There seems to be a general shake-up in progress among the teams entered in the Central Journal Bowling League. The teams that heretofore have been in the back rank have suddenly waked up and the leaders are fast falling before them. The Parks are the exception to the rule. They have climbed up, however, from fourth place to second and seem in a fair way to secure first before the season ends.

The team from the Elizabeth Club continued its downward path last week by losing two out of three in the series with the Cranford Country Club, now "fall-enders" in the League. The two defeats dropped Elizabeth back even with Newark Bay Boat Club for fourth place and there is every prospect that Elizabeth will get even nearer the end before the tournament ends. Her cracks, once great, are now rolling in poor form.

GOLF.

During the recent pleasant weather a large number of golf enthusiasts from this city have been visiting the grounds of the Baltusrol Club. There has been considerable playing on these grounds during the winter.

Next Monday evening at the Casino the annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be held at which time trustees will be elected to fill the places of Albert H. Atterbury, Josiah Browne and James P. Murray, whose terms expire. There will be other important business considered and a full attendance of members is desired.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The agitation for good roads which is being carried on in many parts of the country is a healthful sign and the many plans that are being brought forward for road improvement constitute another. The former is as yet largely confined to scattered localities and is not yet backed by a preponderance of public sentiment. In few states will there be any considerable number of good roads, if any at all, constructed under this year's legislation; but the movement has been fairly started, public sentiment in its favor is growing rapidly and it is almost a foregone conclusion that the legislation of many states, at the next sessions of their legislatures, will provide for the betterment of the highways. This being promised, it will probably occur to some of the more progressive legislators, men who are reasonably sure of their seats at the next session or men who hope to be elected, to make a special study of good road making, in order to take the lead in the coming debates on the subject and thereby acquire distinction and influence. It is possible, as the state of New Jersey has recently discovered, to spend a great deal of money on roads with very unsatisfactory results, and it is also possible to make good roads with a comparatively small expenditure of money. The wise legislator will study how to help himself by helping the state to adopt the latter policy.

As Carter H. Harrison was elected Mayor of Chicago because he promised the voters a "wide-open town," there has been general curiosity to know what Mr. Harrison understood by the term. That curiosity he gratified after returning from a brief vacation. Young Mr. Harirson has the courage of his convictions. He didn't say any one thing during the campaign and mean another. Chicago is to be "wide open" during his administration, but at the same time license will not be tolerated. The Mayor-elect, for instance, is disposed to allow orderly saloons to remain open after midnight. "If a saloon is so bad," he says, "that it ought to be closed from midnight until 5 o'clock in the morning, I think it ought to be closed from 5 'clock in the morning until midnight." Mr. Harrison, recalling his newspaper experience, says: "I found it a great convenience to be able to get a glass of refreshing beer after midnight." He comes out squarely in favor of the side door on Sundays. "I see," he explains, "no objection to letting saloons open on Sunday if the doors are closed, the blinds pulled down and order maintained." Mr. Harrison's view is grounded on a long residence in Germany, where, he says, he became "liberal about such matters."

Murderer's Appeal Denied.

APRON AND NECKTIE PARTY.

Much Amusement Occasioned by Attempts to Match the Articles.

Miss Stella Boss, of Somerset street, gave an apron and necktie party at her home last evening to a number of her young friends. Considerable fun was occasioned in the attempt to match aprons and necktties and a great deal of rivalry existed as there were a few more young men present than young women.

During the evening there were organ duets by Miss Mabel Smith and Harry DeMeza, James Pope, Jr., and Miss Jennie Thorn, while several of the latest songs were rendered by Horace Martin, Jr., David Wyckoff, Charles Dunlap, Harry DeMeza and Albert Utzinger.

Among those present were the Misses Grace Webster, Anna, Stella and Helen Boss, Mabel Smith, Ida Furman, Josie Murphy, Nellie Apgar, Lillian and Jennie Thorn, of this city; Fanny and Gertrude Mills, of New York; William Nash, Fred Dunavan, Edward Baker, James Pope, Jr., Edward Ross, Harry DeMeza, Albert Utzinger, Louis MacLaughlin, William Swalm, Horace Martin, Jr., David Wyckoff, Charles Dunlap, Hilliare Blatz, Bert Simpson, Edward Bellis and Ray Poole.

Not Becoming County Capital, Perth Amboy Wants Its Land Back.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick Feb. 2—Yesterday City Attorney Wight, of Perth Amboy, presented a petition to the Board of Freeholders asking that the county cede back to Perth Amboy two tracts of land originally ceded to the county in 1776.

At that time New Brunswick and Perth Amboy were rivals for the county seat of Middlesex, and so sure was Perth Amboy of being chosen that two tracts of land, one on Market street and the other on State street, were ceded to the county on condition that the jail and courthouse be built there. New Brunswick was successful.

Since then the county has held title to the land, but could use it for no other purpose. In presenting the petition Mr. Wight said that at last Perth Amboy despaired of being chosen as a capital. A resolution providing for the cession of the land was adopted.

The two tracts are in the centre of the city and valuable. Perth Amboy has already erected a City Hall on the one and will erect a new high school on the other.

Clerk in Chancery L. A. Thompson, of Somerville, will start for Florida Monday to join his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts, and his sister Kate, who are now there.

G. O. P. LEADERS ARE FEARFUL OF A STORM.

McDermott and Abbett Are Alert for the Democrats.

AWAITING AN OPPORTUNITY.

EASY TO MAKE A PROGRAMME, BUT HARD TO CARRY IT OUT.

The Democratic Leaders Will Try to Compel the Republican Majority to Go on Record on All Subjects of Vital Interest—Talk of the Hudson Investigation—The Railroad Tax Bill.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 3d—The Republican leaders feel happy over the situation in the Legislature. So far everything has gone well. Sweet harmony prevails in every circle. There has not been many wrangling over the distribution of the legislative plums, and John Kean was elected Senator without any trouble or friction. Such unanimity of sentiment has rarely been witnessed in either party in New Jersey. The leaders, of course, desire that such a happy state of affairs shall continue so that the Republican lease of power shall be extended and future victories at the polls assured.

Nothing can upset this gratifying situation but mistakes which may be made by the Legislature. Should the lawmakers evince an undue friendship toward corporations and trusts and experiment in partisan legislation, then Republican supremacy would be endangered. The leaders are fearful that such a contingency may arise, and consequently they will band their energies toward having the session of as brief duration as possible.

It is all very well to make a programme, but it is another thing to carry it out. In this Legislature there is an aggressive minority under the guidance of skilful and experienced leaders. Senator McDermot is keeping a close eye on the affairs in the Senate, and Leon Abbett is ever watchful in the House. They will take advantage of every available opportunity to place the Republican majority on record on all subjects of vital interest. These leaders being zealous Democrats, will see to it that all possible capital shall be made for their party.

Mr. McDermott's proposition to have an investigation made into the recent election in Hudson county will propably receive attention next week. Some of the Republicans call it bluffing on Mr. McDermott's part. It is reported, however, that his request may be granted, and that he will get all the investigation he desires. Although no formal charges of fraud have been made with reference to the phenomenal majority given for the Democratic candidate for Governor in Hudson, yet in Republican circles there is a strong suspicion that it was not honest. The Democratic contention is that the majority, which was 10,899, was a free and legal expression of the people's will, that it was brought about by harmony and good organization on the Democratic side, and further, that it was helped along by dissensions and factional quarrels among the Republicans. Mr. McDermott says he is anxious for an investigation, so that every breath of suspicion as to wrong doing may be dissipated and a malicious slander on the Democratic organization in Hudson refuted. The Republicans hint that it has not been in the actual recording of the vote where any possible fraud has been perpetrated, but in the padding of the registry lists. Should the Senate refuse to insert a probe into the election, then Mr. McDermott will view such non-action as a vindication for his party. On the other hand, should an investigation be ordered, the State would be put to a heap of expense and in the end nothing might be accomplished to justify it.

The bill which Mr. Abbett introduced, providing that all the money now received from taxes levied on railroad corporations be paid over to the various municipalties instead of into the State treasury, would, if it became a law, deprive the State of a revenue of about $900,000 a year. By a recent law Hudson county and other municipalties now receive about $200,000 from that source. Mr. Abbett's proposition is not deemed wise or practicable, it being claimed that it would necessitate the imposition of a State tax to help pay the expenses of the Government. It is safe to predict that it will not receive much favor in the present Legislature.

Something must be done with the State Reformatory, at Rahway, which

RARITAN MEN SUSPECTED

COUNTY AUTHORITIES AFTER THE SOMERVILLE BURGLARS.

There is Not a Clue to the Identity—Officials Believe That They Came From Among Raritan's Tough Characters

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 3—The attempted robbery of the safe of the Somerville Beef Company, two weeks ago, when Policeman Crow was fatally shot, still remains as deeply shrouded in mystery as ever. Prosecutor Dungan is working on the case, but he is without a clue as to the burglars.

There is a general belief among the authorities that the work was done by some bad characters in Raritan. Raritan has many times produced various troubles, and there is known to be several gangs of toughs there who are on the lookout for any villainy that comes to hand. But while they are suspected of being implicated in this burglary and shooting affray, there is no definite clue by which they can be located.

It was first thought that it was the work of outside cracks, as two strange men were seen about the Y. M. C. A. building the afternoon of the robbery. It will be remembered, however, that there was a big ball in Somerville that night that drew many men and women from miles around, and the strangers may have been in Somerville to attend it.

WOUND WAS A FATAL ONE.

Autopsy Over the Remains of Policeman Crow, Who Was Shot by Burglar.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, Feb. 3—The autopsy over the remains of Policeman Manning Crow, of Somerville, who was shot by burglars two weeks ago, was held Wednesday. The bullet was found in the pleural cavity, having penetrated the lung. The eighth rib was also found fractured. The doctors said, after the autopsy, that the nature of the wound was such as to make recovery impossible. Coroner Reed impanelled a jury, which adjourned until Friday. The inquest will be held at the Courthouse tomorrow. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Second Reformed church, Dr. Edward Griffin Read officiating.

TO DEFEAT SEWER BILL.

Elizabeth's Mayor Declares Measure Injurious to Land Holders' Rights.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 3—At a meeting of the City Council Wednesday night, a communication was received from Mayor Mack calling the attention of the board to a bill now before the Legislature giving permission to run a trunk sewer from South Orange to to tide water at Elizabethport. Mayor Mack declared the bill was injurious to the rights of land holders in Elizabeth and elsewhere, and he asked the City Council to set the seal of its disapproval on the bill.

The Mayor's message was referred to the Law Committee and City Attorney, who were instructed to use every effort to defeat the measure.

Looking for a Factory Site.

A company that is represented by A. H. Capron, of New York, is looking for a site upon which to locate several factories, somewhere between Roselle and Bound Brook, on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The company proposes to erect factories and supply power and gas for small manufactories. Major Ackley, of the railroad company, and the purchasers will inspect the locations offered next week.

Petitions for Clemency for Palmer.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, Feb. 3—Contractor Niblo Palmer, who was convicted of atrocious assault on Councilman James W. Hope, of Roselle, will be sentenced tomorrow. A petition is being circulated at Roselle, asking that clemency be shown by the Court of Pardons. The petition will be presented to Judge Vail tomorrow.

W. T. C. U. to Remain Alone.

Death of a Little Fellow.

Charles R. Emmons, aged three years, son of Charles E. and Martha Emmons, of 85 Somerset street, died Wednesday evening as a result of an abcess on the brain. The funeral services will be held next Sunday afternoon at the home of the parents.

WARREN'S SCANDAL WAS BUT A DREAM.

Investigation Committee Failed to Find Anything.

COOPER ENTIRELY CLEARED

WAS CHARGED WITH BEING IN SCHEME TO ROB COUNTY.

A Rumor Started to the Effect That He Tried to Destroy the Old Bridge Near Warrenville—Investigation Started By County Freeholders—Cooper Was Really Working for the Freeholders.

The Somerset county authorities have had all the exciting experiences attendant on an investigation of an alleged public scandal up in the wilds of Warren, and, incidentally, have cleared the skirts of the "uncrowned king" of that section, as John C. Cooper is called, of any implication in a scheme to rob the taxpayers of the county.

On the hilly road that leads from Warrenville to Mt. Bethel there used to be a stone arch bridge over a little creek. For nearly a hundred years the bridge stood there. Last summer, however, the keystones to the bridge tumbled down into the brook and the structure became so weak that it had to be torn down. Then the county replaced it with another one for which Eugene Moore had the contract. Cooper did the carting.

There was a rumor gaining circulation in the township that John C. Cooper maliciously knocked the keystones out of the bridge that he might get the contract for repairing it. A short time ago John Wendell, of South Stirling, brought the matter to the attention of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders at Somerville and to Judge Bartine, of the county court.

Director William Logan, of the Board, promptly appointed a committee, composed of two of the Freeholders and himself, to investigate the matter and report to the Board. Last week they came to Plainfield and in company with Freeholders Lutkins and Mobus drove over to Warrenville and then to Mt. Bethel, where the hearing of the investigating commission was held in the hotel there.

Gus Shoemaker, of Mt. Bethel, was brought before the committee. He had heard the rumors but knew nothing of the matter himself. John Wendell had only heresay evidence to offer. The greatest stress was laid on the testimony of David Coddington, of Mt Bethel, who, it was alleged, had seen Cooper at the bridge with his own eyes. Coddington came and told the committee that he had passed the bridge early one morning and seen Cooper appear from beneath it and had noticed a crowbar lying on top of the bridge.

Then Cooper was called before the committee and gave his testimony which was immediately corroborated by Freeholder Coddington, of Mt. Horeb. Freeholder Coddington had instructed Cooper to enlarge a hole in the roadway on the bridge so that a barrel might be placed in it, and thus prevent some horse from stepping in the small hole and breaking a leg.

The testimony cleared Cooper of any improper action. He and his friends are very indignant at the rumor, however, and talk of bringing suit against the men who started it and spread it. Tuesday, at the meeting of the Board, the investigating committee will make its report and will undoubtedly tell the Board that there was no scheme as far as they can discover to destroy the bridge or rob the county in any way.

THE HOTEL KENSINGTON.

NAME SELECTED FOR THE HOUSE KNOWN AS THE GRENADA.

Its Alterations and Up-to-Date Improvements Will be Completed March 1st, When It Will Open for Guests.

After standing idle for two years the old Hotel Grenada on North avenue is rapidly being overhauled and remodeled. By March 1st, when the house will again be thrown open as "The Kensington," a great change will have been wrought in its appearance, and it will be recognized as one of the modern, up-to-date hotels of the State.

Some time ago the hotel passed into the hands of Harry J. Campbell. John H. Staats, who has conducted the Sheridan House in Elizabeth, and the Fairview House in Chatham, has leased it and will open it in a few weeks as a first-class hotel.

But before it was thrown open for business, the old house needed to be thoroughly overhauled. This is being done, and from cellar to garret carpenters, plumbers, painters and decorators have been at work making the repairs so much needed. The sum of $9,000 will be spent on the repairs and improvements, and with $6,000 worth of new furniture and furnishings, it will cost Messrs. Campbell and Staats, who are paying for the repairs and furnishings together, $16,000 before a guest is admitted to the house.

The lower floor has been changed greatly. Instead of the two stores and hotel office formerly there, the dining room has been brought forward and occupies what was one of the front stores. The one on the opposite side is the cafe while the office is in the centre. The main entrance in the front leads back to the stairway.

The bedrooms are newly papered and painted, fitted out with steam heat, push buttons, electric lights, etc. There are toilet rooms on every floor, as well as suites of apartments with private bath.

Edward White has the contract for carpeting the hotel throughout. Garret Q. Packer furnishes the furniture. The metal work is being done by the Merritt Metal and Ceiling Company, of Newark, superintended by Mr. Merritt himself. Mr. Armstrong is overhauling the plumbing, from top to bottom, and Mattis Brothers have the contract for the carpenter work. Already the old hotel looks like new, and when the work is completed will take its place as one of the leading hotels of the city.

THE Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS FAILED TO TAKE ACTION

NO GAME WITH THE YALES NOW.

The Next Board Meeting Isn't Until March, Too Late For the Game—No Quorum at the Meeting.

By simply not meeting the directors of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. have practically declared against the proposed game of basket ball between the local association team and the crack five from the Yale University. A monthly meeting of the board was called for last night. At the meeting the members were to be asked to consider the advisibility of allowing the local team to leave the gymnasium and play the match in the Crescent Rink. It would be impossible to meet the expenses of having the Yale team here if the game were not played in the rink where a large crowd could be accommodated. The management of the Yale team gave Plainfield February 23d as an open date.

At the meeting of the Board last night, there was not a quorum present so no action could be taken. As the next meeting does not take place until March, the Board cannot act on the question in time unless a special meeting is called for the subject at once. It will take some little time to advertise the game and make necessary arrangements so that unless a special meeting is called at once, basket ball enthusiasts of this city might as well give up all hopes of seeing Yale team here.

Miss Gould Extends Thanks.

Miss Helen Gould, of New York, has extended to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., through A. M. Runyon & Son, of this city, a vote of thanks for their assistance in the burial of the late John O'Keefe.

HARMONIZING VOICES HEARD AT THE CASINO.

Second and Last Subscription Concert Last Night.

A FASHIONABLE AUDIENCE.

AUDITORS LIBERAL WITH APPLAUSE FOR THE VOCOLISTS' EFFORTS.

Arrangement of Programme Gave the Artists Plenty of Opportunity to Display Their Talents to the Best Advantage—Mr. Pollock and Mr. Dufft Opened the Concert With a Duet.

The second and last subscription concert was given at the Casino last evening. There was a large and fashionable audience present to enjoy it. The artists were Mrs. Josephine Jennings Percy, soprano; Mrs. Morris Black, contralto; Frank V. Pollock, tenor; Dr. Carl E Dufft, basso; Mrs. Nelly Udelle-Smith, violinist; Frank J. Smith, conductor and pianist.

The arrangement of the programme was as pleasing as that of the first concert, and the artists were given plenty of opportunity to display their talents to the best advantage. The first number, "Widow Malone," by Mr. Pollock and Dr. Dufft won general approbation. Following, Mrs. Percy gave "A May Morning," by Denza, and "Polly Willis," by Dr. Arne, both of which were gems. Mrs. Percy has appeared before Plainfield audiences before, but her work last evening was no doubt appreciated better than ever. Her strong voice, over which she had perfect control, was fine and her higher notes were reached with ease and grace.

The next number was given by Mr. Pollock, who sang Schubert's "Serenade," accompanied by Mrs. Udelle-Smith with violin obligato. This well-known tenor captivated the audience. There was strength, sweetness and purity of tone in his voice. Mrs. Smith's work on the violin was a decided feature in this number.

"Phyllis," by Dr. Arne, and "Cherry Ripe," by Horn, was given by Mrs. Morris Black. Both of these numbers gave excellent opportunity to this singer, and her full, strong voice with a wide range made her singing a pleasure.

Mr. Dufft appeared next and rendered "The Minstrel Boy," and "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," by Gounod. In both selections Dr Dufft won the heartiest of applause. He proved to be just as popoular as on previous occasions, and, if possible, his work last evening was even better than before.

The next selection was given by Mrs. Black and Mr. Pollock. It was "Si; La Stanchezza," by Verdi, and was delightfully rendered. The two voices blended in the sweetest harmony.

The programme in part second was as follows: "Nymphs and Shepherds," "Within a Mile of Edenburgh," by Mrs. Percy; "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," and "Tell Me, Mary, How to Woo Thee," by Mr. Pollock; "Oft in The Stilly Night," and "The Low-Backed Car," by Mrs. Black; "My Love's An Arbutus," and "Margretham Thore," by Dr. Dufft. The last two numbers were given by Mrs Percy, Mrs. Black, Mr. Pollock and Dr. Dufft. They were "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Too Whit, Too Who!"

All of the numbers in part second were thoroughly enjoyed and throughout the entire programme the audience was generous in applause and the artists were generous with encores. In a large measure the success of the concert is due to Mr. Smith, accompanist, whose superb work gave a delightful finish to the affair.

Dispute as to Ownership.

Justice Smalley and a jury will decide next Wednesday whether or not Mrs. Florence and Mrs. Sarah Moon, of the borough, own the household goods which were levied upon by Constable Pangborn as belonging to J. D. Moon. The levy is for $50 and was made to satisfy a judgment of $50 secured against Moon by F. J. Blatz. Justice Smalley will hold court at Moon's house, 4 Grandview avenue.

Big Increase in Membership.

At the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., held last evening twelve candidates were initiated and thirteen propositions were received. This makes thirty-three in all that have been received in three weeks.

Father Brennan in Charge.

Rev. Father Brennan is now in charge of St. Joseph's church during the absence of Rev. Father Miller, rector, who has just been operated upon for appendicitis. The latter is now recovering and will soon be out again.

IN REALM OF SOCIETY.

MRS. HEDGES AND MRS. MYERS GAVE PLEASANT "AT HOMES."

Many Society People Called at Both Homes—Dance for Younger Set at Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph's Home

Society people were out in large numbers to the afternoon reception given by Mrs. Lawrence Myers and her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, of East Front street, yesterday. The large house was thrown open to the guests from 4 until 7, and about 600 came and went during those hours.

The decorations were of cut flowers, greens, palms and southern smilax, and were very elaborate. Southern smilax was used in profusion, and was hung from the archways and festooned about the spacious rooms in a pretty way. The stairway was a mass of green. Roses in abundance were scattered through the house, and gave bright color to he scene.

The tables were in pink, and were decorated with pink roses and candelabra. Mrs. Myers and Mrs Mead were assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. John Doull Miller and Mrs. C. W. McCutchen. At the first table pouring were Mrs. W. B Richards and Miss Scribner. At the second table were Mrs. F. G. Foster and Mrs. Murray, while Mrs. D. H. Rowland and Miss Langworthy were at the third table.

The young ladies assisting at the tables were Miss Daisy Mead, Miss Wood, Miss Schroeder, the Misses Tracy, Miss McCutchen, Miss Machado, Miss Lowe, Miss Edith Mead, Miss Ginna, Miss Hayes, Miss Wells and Miss Randolph.

In the evening a dinner was given at which the following were included as guests: J. K. Meyers, C. W. McCutchen, Mr. Rowland, Miss Mable Rowland, J. Doull Miller, Dr. W. B. Richards, Dr. Murray, Mr. Murray, Mr. Wright, A. D. Shepard, B. Shepard, R Shepard, Mr. and Mrs. Machado, James Hayes and Miss Lowe. Marcel was the caterer and Janke, of New York, furnished the music.

Mrs. Hedges "At Home."

Mrs. E. W. Hedges gave the first of a series of delightful "at homes" at her residence on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon. It was a charming affair and largely attended. The table decorations were in pink and consisted largely of Bridemaid's roses.

The guests were received by Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Dr. E. W. Hedges, Mrs. Ann Hedges, of Chester, N. J., Mrs C. C. Butler, of San Francisco, Mrs. Frank Otis Herring and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr. Those who assisted in the dining room were Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, Mrs. Alfred Streuli, Mrs. Stuart Patterson, Mrs. Augustus Kleineke, Mrs. Fred Yates, Miss Belle Butler, Miss Marion Dumont, Miss Margaret Yates and Miss Grace Cooley.

A Cotillion Dance.

Former Mayor and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph and Miss Marion, Miss Josephine, Miss Caroline and Miss Elizabeth Blossom Fitz Randolph, gave a cotillion dance last evening at their East Front street home to about 80 of Plainfield's society people. This was given so that the young set could have an opportunity of meeting the Misses Marion and Josephip Randolph, who have just returned from abroad, where they have been studying music and the languages. The cotillion was led by William Quimby, of Orange, and Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph, who introduced some pretty figures. There were guests from New York and Orange. The decorations consisted of cut flowers, potted plants and greens.

Mr. Hand Won His Own Case.

Mansfield Robinson, the colored man who sued Charles H. Hand for $7 wages in Justice Mosher's court Wednesday, lost his suit. This morning the Justice decided in favor of the defendant, and gave a verdict of no cause for action. Hand fought his own case and won it without the aid of a lawyer. Mr. Hand declared that he hadn't employed Robinson on the days alleged in the state of demand, and the court decided the same way.

EVENTFUL LIFE OF EVAN JONES ENDED.

Well-Known Plainfielder Died at His Home Last Night.

HELPED TO MAKE THIS CITY.

HE WAS FORMERLY PROMINENT IN ALL PUBLIC ENTERPRISES.

Opened Many of the Principal Residential Streets—He Built the Revere House and Was of Great Assistance to Church and Charitable Circles—Influential Figure in Abolishing Slavery.

At an age just bordering on the four-score point, Evan Jones, for over thirty years one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Plainfield, died last night at his home on Kensington avenue, after an extended illness, the last thirty-six hours of which were spent in unconsciousness. Death came at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Jones' funeral will probably be held Monday morning. The interment will be in Jersey City.

Evan Jones was born in Aberayron, Wales, in 1820. His father was a well-to-do farmer and the son was instructed in the art of tilling the soil. In 1839 he came to this country but returned two years later and married. He and the young woman of his choice were the first persons to be married in the Congregational church at the home of his birth and the event was one of great note. After the wedding Mr. Jones and his wife, together with his father and brother, returned to America and settled in Jersey City, where the newly-married man began to learn the mason trade, also that of building. At one time Mr. Jones employed as many as one hundred men. It was he who built Jersey City's first city hall and the building was for many years a monument to good workmanship. There were many other prominent buildings that he erected. He was a hard-working man and in a few years he accumulated quite a fortune. He became closely identified with religious work and became a Baptist. However, he did not favor the close-communion Baptist, and it was through his efforts that the Bethseda Baptist church, of Jersey City, was built and supported, although there was considerable opposition to the church.

This was previous to the Civil War. When the war broke out Mr. Jones became an anti-slavery man, and he helped to construct means for the escape of Union men from the Rebel forces. His sympathies and support were always with the oppressed, and he never lost an opportunity to do good where he could.

He was a prince of entertainers and his palatial home at Jersey City was always opened to friends. During those days he entertained many notable men including Henry Ward Beecher, Wendell Phillips, S J. Tilden, Frederick Douglass and many others of note in the religious and scientific world.

Mr. Jones was a hard student, and in this way he accumulated a vast amount of knowledge. He was thoroughly conversant on all important topics and was well read.

In 1863, the year of the riot, Mr. Jones and his family were threatened with destruction by angry mobs that surrounded their home. As a result the family was obliged to move out of the city inside of a day. Mr. Jones remained in Jersey City, however, for a short time, and then came to Plainfield to join his family, who had previously moved here. At that time the late Mayor Job Male was also a resident of Jersey City, and through the efforts of Mr. Jones he was induced to move to Plainfield. When Mr. Jones moved to this city he was undisputably worth a half million dollars, and he began at once to invest his money in property and make improvements. During his early days he owned land where the Plainfield Seminary stands, and where the Revere House and Public Library is situated. He also owned land where the Mrs. Baldwin and Marion S. Ackerman residences now stand. The property on which stands the Crescent Avenue church was secured through the efforts of Mr. Jones and he also gave $2,000 to help the church. He had Park avenue cut through, widened and straightened, and that section of the city where Carleton, Putnam and Kensington avenues now are was all opened by him, graded and trees were set out.

Although not a member of the First Baptist church he attended that house of worship and assisted the members in many ways. He was a teacher in the Sunday-school and had a large

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be easily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

MILES WILL BE DEPOSED

Merritt To Succeed Him in Command of the Army.

HE HAS TALKED TOO MUCH

The President Collecting the General's Extra-Official Press Utterances—Probable Charges—Reasons Why the President Hesitates.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Major General Merritt is to succeed Major General Miles as Major General commanding the army. The order relieving Miles of command have not been signed by the President. They may not be signed for several days. But this action is practically bettled upon.

In accordance with his custom, the President will lay the matter before the members of the Cabinet at the meeting to-morrow. With few exceptions, under this Administration, the rule has been to submit important steps to the Cabinet before they are taken. The President will follow it in this relief of Miles from command.

This idea of relief from command originated with the President. At his direction all precedents and the military law bearing upon such action have been prepared for his examination. He now has before him the papers and Executive orders in three cases. President Lincoln relieved from command of the army three generals. He first deposed General Scott, and sent him to West Point. General McClellan was the Major General in command until he was relieved and put upon waiting orders. Halleck became the chief in command, and was relieved to give place to General Grant.

It is characteristic of President McKinley to act in grave matters of this kind with much deliberation. He is moving now slowly and conservatively, but with a full determination not to let this latest offense of General Miles's go unrebuked.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The talk about a possible court martial for General Miles, has a pretty good presumptive foundation. At the time it was decided to court martial General Eagan it was stated in these dispatches that this was but the prelude to a move by the administration against the major general commanding the army.

This might take tieher of three forms: Transfer to another place, a court of inquiry or a court martial.

Transfer, as most obvious, would not put an end to his habit of publishing facts, through interviews or contributions to the press. A court of inquiry is usually ordered in response to a request from an accused officer who wishes to exonerate himself, conditions which do not obtain here. The third alternative, therefore, seems the only means for bringing an end to a condition which, to quote a favorite phrase of the president's, has "become intolerable."

The president certainly is gathering memoranda of General Miles's many extra-official public utterances, and no other reason seems assignable for making such a collection. The charge in that case will be, in the opinion of leading army officers, "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline," and the specifications will embrace the various newspaper publications made by the accused concerning matters which could have been reached by the ordinary military process. A board of survey could have passed upon the quality of the meats furnished, or a demand for a court martial for Eagan on the charge of furnishing bad meats to the soldiers would have had the effect of spreading all the evidence on the official record.

The one consideration which has made the president hesitate is that General Miles would be able to show in his own defence that much of the meat furnished to the troops was bad, and this would discredit the work of the war investigating commission.

General Miles has unquestionably struck a popular chord in his attempt to show how the soldiers have been imposed upon; and if the result of the court martial should be to uphold his position and make the administration of the war department contemptible, it would emphasize the popular impression that the whole treatment of Miles in preventing him from making a herold place for himself in the late war was designed to keep him out of the next presidential race, where many administration supporters have feared that he would make a formidable run. In spite of these fears, however, the president seems to realize that something must be done to silence the general or dispose of the beef scandal; and for this reason the prevailing view in well informed circles here has been for some time that Miles would be the next high officer arraigned before a court.

Rest for Railroad Men.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Mr. Sanders has introduced in the House a bill compelling railroad companies to allow sixteen hours' rest after thirty-eight hours of labor of all employes.

TROOPS FOR MANILA.

The Transport Sherman Sails for the Philippines.

New York, Feb. 3.—The loading of the army transport Sherman was finished yesterday at the government dock, Pacific street, Brooklyn, under the supervision of Quartermaster J. C. Reed. At 10.30 o'clock the vessel was inspected by Gen. Ludington of the Quartermaster General's Department, Brig.-Gen. Theodore Schwam, and Major Heistam of the Adjutant General's Department, who arrived from Washington early in the morning. They reported finding everything in excellent shape; the troop-ship completely equipped, and that there was no danger of a lack of substantial food or pure water during the trip. H. G. Morse of the Commissary and Subsistence Department also reported that he was well satisfied with the provision made for the troops.

The members of the Third Infantry, comprising 1,296 men, began to arrive on floats from Weehawken at 10.50 o'clock, about 300 men reached the Sherman at the hour. The cars in which they made the trip to Weehawken were transferred to the floats. The other detachment to sail on the vessel, 426 officers and men of the Seventeenth Infantry had previously arrived.

Four trained nurses will go with the transport, the Misses Lyda Starr, Anna Betts and Sarah Shaw, from Bellevue, and Agnes Shaw of the Outside Charities Department. They are under orders from Gen. Otis, and are sent by auxiliary No. 3, of the Red Cross Society.

Col. Page of the Third Infantry, the ranking officer, is in command of the troops. Capt. J. C. Reed of the provisions and quarters of the men. Capt. Poindexter is the surgeon-in-chief.

ALLEGED BEEF CHEMICALS.

Results of Experiments With Salicylic Acid and Borax.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 3.—Prof. John Uri Lloyd, a chemist, who has just returned from Washington, and who has read all the testimony of the War Investigating Commission, has made a statement saying that "about twelve years ago, in searching for an antiseptic for drug preservation, I was led to experiment with salicylic acid and sodium borate. It was known that salycylic acid had a sweetish taste, that borax is saline, subalkaline in taste, neither being bitter. To my surprise, a compound of the two produced a chemical that is intensely bitter. The reaction is not a new discovery, for, in following it up, I found it a matter of record, but it was not enlarged upon.

"If equal amounts of borax and salicylic acid (or equal weights of each) are mixed the mixture is bitter. If the mixture be disolved in water the solution is bitter and yields a bitter product on evaporation that imparts an intensely bitter after-taste, approaching colocynth in persistence."

Solace En Route for Manila.

New York, Feb. 3.—The United States supply ship Solace left the navy-yard yesterday bound for Manila, having on board seven army officers, fifteen cadets from Annapolis, and a large cargo of supplies for Admiral Dewey and army. Among the supplies are a large amount of ammunition of all kinds, two ten-inch rifles, twenty-five five-inch rapid fire guns, two cases of torpedo heads, dynamite, powder, machinery, four pianos, two organs, household furniture, refrigerating and condensing machines, 500 live sheep, six milch cows, 200 barrels of flour, uniforms, and material for clothing.

The Solace will call at Norfolk to complete her cargo of supplies, and receive any additional orders.

Buying Cuban Railroad.

Havana, Feb. 3.—Chief Engineer Gould of the American Indies Company has left here for Matanzas. He is expected to negotiate for the purchase of the railroad. It is considered a very valuable piece of property.

Former Inspectors Williams and McAvoy arrived yesterday on the steamer City of Washington. They have eighty thousand dollars to invest in real estate. They expect to return by the next steamer. They held a consultation with Superintendent McCullagh.

A survey has been made for a railroad to be built from Triscornia, opposite Havana, to Morro Castle, three hilly miles.

The Kaiser Gives Thanks.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The Reichsanzeiger publishes an imperial decree in which the Emperor thanks God for His mercy in permitting him to complete the fortieth year of his life and the tenth year of his reign.

His majesty also says he esteems himself happy to have been able, enhance German prestige abroad, through his journey to Palestine, to thanks the people for their manifestations of love and devotion, and assures them he will continue to strive to maintain the peace of the Fatherland.

Victoria Jubilee Bridge.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—Mr. Hays, general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway system, states that it is the intention of the company to have the Victoria Jubilee bridge opened for vehicles and foot passengers by May 31.

The new subway near the St. Lambert Grand Trunk Railway station is also approaching completion.

Hawaiian Currency Questions.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The question of retiring Hawaiian coins and silver certificates was considered yesterday by the House committee on coinage. The Hawaiian silver amounts to about $1,000,000, and the silver certificates to $272,000.

GOMEZ CONCILIATED

He Cables President McKinley Pledging His Co-operation.

WILL DISBAND CUBAN ARMY

Mr. Porter for the Government Offers Three Millions to Pay the Insurgent Soldiers and the Offer is Promptly Accepted.

Remedios, Santa Clara, via Havana, Feb. 3.—General Maximo Gomez, the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, has placed himself squarely in position as an active ally of the United States government in the work of the reconstruction of Cuba.

As a result of the conference which Mr. Robert P. Porter, the special commissioner of President McKinley, has had with General Gomez, the latter cabled to President McKinley yesterday afternoon, assuring him of co-operation in disbanding the Cuban army and in distributing among the Cuban soldiers the three million dollars appropriated to enable them to return to their homes.

General Gomez also telegraphed to Major General Brooke saying that he would accept the latter's invitation to go to Havana.

The success of Mr. Porter's mission greatly simplifies the returning of the military Cubans to the pursuits of peace.

In view of General Gomez's supposed prior attitude of hostility towards the United States, Mr. Porter came here clothed with absolute authority, and the tender of the three million dollars was practically a verbal ultimatum.

Had it not been accepted no more overtures would have been made.

Mr. Porter made plain the purpose of the government and was gratified at the ready response of General Gomez. The conference took place at the house here occupied by the Cuban general as his headquarters since coming to town.

When Mr. Porter arrived here he was accompanied by Senor Gonzales Quesada, the special commissioner of the Cuban junta at Washington; Captain Campbell of General Brooke's staff and Lieutenant Hanna of General Woods's staff.

General Gomez had gone to his camp but he returned accompanied by his staff and fifty horsemen on various kinds of mounts. They rode past the hotel where Mr. Porter was stopping, around the Plaza and into a side street to the Cuban headquarters.

General Gomez was seen by Senor Quesada yesterday afternoon and after an hour's conference Mr. Porter, accompanied by Senor Quesada, Captain Campbell and Lieutenant Hanna, was received by General Gomez in his parlor, up one flight of stairs, and in the presence of his staff.

The old general wore no insignia of his rank. He greeted Mr. Porter cordially and opened the interview by referring to the change for the better which had taken place in Cuba since he was last here in September. He also laid stress on the fact that some people were asking where was Cuba's promised liberty.

"The answer to this," said Mr. Porter, "is that Cuba now has commercial and industrial liberty, and that President McKinley has directed me in framing the Cuban tariff to make no discriminations in favor of the United States in the manner that Spain favored herself. Cuba is free to-day to buy in the cheapest market. People are returning to the pursuits of peace and our military government will give way to the civil government as soon as possible."

Mr. Potter also said that the purpose of the American government is to lay a firm foundation of noble government for Cuba, to give the Cubans all the liberties they had fought for and that Gen. Gomez must remember that and more still. For instance, there were 25,000 or 30,000 Spanish soldiers at Cienfugos who have not left Cuba, that we had only been a month on the island, and that President McKinley needed and was entitled to the co-operation of all interested in the welfare and future of Cuba, and that he needed the co-operation of Gen. Gomez above all others.

The Cuban Commander-in-Chief replied that he was ready and willing to give the aid required, but asked how he could do so.

To this Mr. Porter replied that President McKinley would be glad to have him go to Havana and co-operate with Gen. Brooke in disbanding Cubans and paying over the $3,000,000 appropriated for that purpose.

Gen. Gomez said the amount was too small, but that was not his fault, and he would make it go as far as possible, while likeing it to the miracle of the loaves and fishes.

"No man in history," said Mr. Porter, "has done so much with so small resources. Hence your co-operation with Gen. Brooke will bring good results."

Quay Still Lacks Thirteen.

Harrisburg, Feb. 3.—The fourteenth ballot for United States Senator yesterday resulted as follows:

Quay, 104; Jenks, 79; Dalzell, 45; Stewart, 8; Stone, 6; Huff, 7; Irvin, 3; Rice, 1; Widener, 2; Tubbs, 2; Smith, 1; Ritter, 2; Markle, 1; Grow, 1. Total, 233. Necessary to a choice, 117. Paired, 13: Absent without pair, Senator Higgins (Dem.). No election.

Turtle Indians' Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The Senate committee on Indian affairs has decided to report favorably the bill for the ratification of the agreement with the Turtle Mountain Indians, to cede their reservation in North Dakota. The agreement provides for the payment of a million dollars to the Indians in installments of $50,000 per year.

Alleged Counterfeiters Arrested.

New York, Feb. 3.—United Secret Service agents yesterday boarded the steamer Spartan Prince, from Genoa, when she reached quarantine, and, on information they had previously received, arrested three men, alleged to be members of a band of Italian counterfeiters. A fourth arrest was afterwards made at the Barge Office.

SOUTH AFRICAN PROBLEM.

A Significant Statement by Sir Alfred Milner.

London, Feb. 3.—If there is one question more than another to which financiers and business men generally are most anxious for an answer, it is, "What is the truth about Delagoa Bay?" which is the key to the whole international position in Africa.

Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner in South Africa, before he sailed for the cape last Saturday said:

"I can tell you no more than this: Delagoa Bay is all right. Portugal fell into our arms like a fainting woman."

But what, asked his questioner, about the King of Portugal's speech the other day, when he declared that Portugal never would consent to alienate any of her colonies? Sir Alfred Milner said:

"Ah, that was said ad hoc. The king has an opposition to consider. You must draw no other conclusion from what he said than that he had this strong opposition in mind, but though Delagoa Bay is securely British, that will not itself settle the Transvaal question, which is South Africa's problem. The central fact in the Transvaal is this: You have fifteen thousand armed Boers sitting upon one hundred million pounds worth of bullion. What would you do if you were one of these fifteen thousand? Take that as a lamp when you look into the future."

Verdict Against the Press.

New York, Feb. 3.--In the libel suit of Charles A. Hess against the Press, before Justice Fursman in the supreme court, the jury returned a verdict for $750 damages in favor of the plaintiff. The suit was for fifty thousand dollars.

Motions by DeLancey Nicoll for a new trial on the statutory grounds were denied.

On motion of J. J. Adams, counsel for Mr. Hess, the usual five per cent. taxable costs were allowed by the court.

The case has been on trial before Justice Fursman in the supreme court during the last ten days, and was given to the jury early yesterday. The verdict was not agreed upon until late in the evening.

The Press had charged that while Hess was a candidate for Congress in 1896 that he was not a resident of the state; that he bought his nomination and that he was the boon companion of a murderer.

To Transport Spaniards.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.--The bids opened at New York and San Francisco Wednesday for the transportation of sixteen thousand Spanish soldiers from the Philippines to Spain, were telegraphed to the war department and the question of making a contract for this service was under consideration by the secretary of war and the quartermaster general yesterday.

In addition to the three bids received at New York two bids were submitted at San Francisco, both of them higher than the lowest bid received at New York.

Inasmuch as the war department desires to expedite the repatriation of the Spanish troops, it is expected that the contract for the service will be awarded in a short time.

France's Naval Ambition.

Rome, Feb. 3.--The Corriere della Sera publishes a report of an interview with M. Lockroy, the French minister of marine, in which he is represented as saying that the French naval programme includes the construction of the most powerful battleships, cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and submarine vessels. "We shall be ready," M. Lockroy says, "to maintain a sea war with England, and likewise to maintain a great blockade."

M. Lockroy further expressed his belief that England's war organization was overrated and also that France would be willing that Italy should occupy Tripoli.

Louisville Theater Burns.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3.--The Buckingham theatre, formerly the Grand Opera House, was destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The fire was caused by a live wire in the scene room, and although a general alarm was turned in, burned so fiercely that the entire place was soon gutted.

The loss is placed at sixty thousand dollars, which is partially covered by insurance.

Frederick Rider's "Night Owl" Company suffered a loss of thirty-five hundred dollars.

President Has Eagan Papers.

Washington, Feb. 3.--The papers in the case of Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, who was tried by court martial and convicted on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, are now before President McKinley. Secretary Alger took them to the White House yesterday, where he remained in consultation with the president for some time.

Disabilities of Ex-Confederates.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.--Representative Gaines of Tennessee has introduced a bill to repeal the law which prevents an ex-Confederate soldier from sitting on a federal grand jury or petit jury.

It is the last relic of the laws discriminating against ex-Confederates, and slipped into the revision of the law of 1862, although it had been repealed, and works now considerable hardship in the South.

The Omaha Stamps All Gone.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The last postage stamp issued in commemoration of the Omaha exposition has been sent out from the postoffice department, and all that remain of the series are scattered among the postoffices of the country.

Quick Trip to Manila.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The Buffalo has arrived at Manila, having made a record breaking trip from New York in fifty-four days.

REPRESSING FILIPINOS

Their Launches Withheld, and Arms and Ammunition Seized.

RADICALS RULE AT MALOLOS

Two of the Utah Battery's Guns Mounted at Manila—American Officers Dare Not Venture Outside of the City.

Hong Kong, Feb. 3.—The Filipino members of the joint commission at Manila have formally demanded the release of the launches seized by the Americans, and also that they be permitted to fly the Filipino flag in the waters of the Philippines.

General Otis is reported as being willing to grant these concessions, but Admiral Dewey has refused, not wishing to put himself in a position obliging him to employ searchlights in order to discover the movements of the Filipinos, to prevent the smuggling of arms or avert a possible torpedo attack.

The use of the Filipino flag is permitted on shore, several flying from native houses in Manila.

A dozen natives have been arrested, having been discovered secretly manufacturing bolas in Manila. The military police almost daily find small quantities of bolas, rifles or ammunition, all of which are seized.

The city is thoroughly patrolled, especially at night, and native gatherings are always under the surveillance of the police.

The Filipino telegraph office in Manila, connecting with all parts of the island of Luzon, has been closed by the Americans and the operators arrested upon the discovery that the wires werebe ing used for the transmission of General Otis's secret orders and dispatches to the Filipino government at Malolos. How these were obtained is a mystery.

Two guns of the Utah artillery have been placed in position on Santamesa hill east of the city, overlooking the water works.

There is no evidence that the Filipinos intend to begin hostilities, but it is practically certain that they will resist if the Americans force matters.

The radical independence element now dominates the government at Malolos.

Since the killing of the Filipino officer Belmonte by an American guard, the American officers have not ventured outside of Manila.

Foreigners are not permitted to travel in the interior without passes signed by Aguinaldo.

Gen. Wheeler to be Unseated.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The House judiciary committee has practically settled the question as to whether Generals Wheeler, Colston and Campbell, who did not resign their army commission before this session, have forfeited their seats in Congress. As stated in these dispatches some time ago the committee is almost unanimous in the opinion that the seats are vacant and the committee will so report.

The question to declare seats vacant held by members of Congress who have been and are still holding places commissions has created much discussion.

The Democrats hold that Representative Hitt, as a member of the Hawaiian commission, and Representative Payne, as a member of the British-American joint high commission, are not entitled to their seats. This contention has prevented a report on the generals.

New Submarine Torpedo Boat.

Paris, Feb. 3.--M. Lockroy, minister of marine, has communicated to the Matin an account of the successful torpedoing of the French battleship Magenta by the submarine boat Gustave Zede in recent practice.

"All on board the Magenta," he says, "were in a state of feverish excitement, watching the surface of the sea. Suddenly the cupola of the Gustave Zede appeared abreast of the Magenta, about four thousand yards distant, but before the guns of the warship could be trained upon her the submarine boat disappeared beneath the water.

"The Magenta was then ordered to steam ahead, which she did, yet within a minute the Gustave Zede's blank torpedo struck the warship below the water line."

The Rhyniand Still Aground.

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—The steamer Rhyniand is still hard aground on Cotton Patch Shoal, above Fenwick's island life saving station.

The passengers have been transferred to tugs, and taken to Lewes, Del., whence they will be brought to Philadelphia on a special train.

Railway Engine Blows Up.

Hornellsville, N. Y., Feb. 3.--An Erie railway engine blew up at Cameron on Wednesday evening. Engineer Solomon and Brakeman McCormick, who was assisting the fireman, were badly scalded and Fireman Chamberlain is reported fatally injured. All the men were from this city.

Indiana's Smallest Baby.

Mishawaka, Ind., Feb. 3.—Mrs. Noble Austin of this city has given birth to the smallest infant ever reported in northern Indiana. The child is about the size of an incandescent electric globe and weighs one pound.

The physician an old practitioner, says it will live.

Boys Try to Wreck a Train.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 3.--Five boys, the youngest twelve years old, and the oldest sixteen, have been arrested by Special Officer Thomas Madden of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company on the charge of attempting to wreck a train.

No Danger of Filipino Attack.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.--There is no foundation for the sensational report that General Otis has cabled the war department that the insurgent Filipinos are threatening an immediate attack upon him.

RUDYARD KIPLING RETURNS.

Intends Going to Washington and City of Mexico.

New York, Feb. 3.—Among the first passengers to debark from the Majestic yesterday were Rudyard Kipling and Mrs. Kipling, looking in robust health. Mr. Kipling was kept busy some time with his baggage. Under the new customs rule this part of the debarkation occasioned much inconvenience to him; all of his eighteen articles of baggage had to be thoroughly examined, but his declaration was partially accepted.

To a question about his visit, Kipling said: "I can't think of anything to say. The labels on my luggage will tell where I am going."

Each article was marked in what Mr. Kipling said was his own chirography, to the Hotel Grenoble. He will stay at that hotel for a while, but will go presently to his favorite American city, Washington, and afterwards to the City of Mexico, which he has never seen and where he intends to remain some little time to study the people and the existing conditions of the country.

He will endeavor to collect data and material for a number of stories and sketches, using the Mexican and Aztec as the principal characters.

TO BE GENERAL APPRAISERS.

Selections of the President for the Vacancies in the Board.

Washington, Feb. 3.—There is no doubt that the men picked out to fill the three approaching vacancies on the Board of General Appraisers are Mr. Bynum of Indiana, Mr. Sherman of New York, and Mr. Howell, the present assistant secretary of the treasury, though the fight upon Bynum by some of the silver senators may induce the President to cancel his name at the last moment.

The President has under consideration several names for the vacancy which will be created by Mr. Howell's retirement from the treasury. The latest name suggested to him is that of Representative Stone of Pennsylvania, whose career in Congress ends with the 4th of March, and whose last and crowning act was the preparation of a particularly strong report in favor of the Hill coinage bill and the single gold standard.

Trains Blocked in Colorado.

Denver, Col., Feb. 3.—All transcontinental road lines leading through Colorado are tied up by the snow. East bound trains from Salt Lake on the Colorado Midland and Denver and Rio Grande roads are stalled at Glenwood Springs.

Train No. 3 on the Denver and Rio Grande ran into a snow slide near Shoshone, nine miles from here. The mail car telescoped the tender and the baggage car was jammed into the mail car. The mail clerk and the baggage master were injured.

To Tax Incomes.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Senator Coggeshall has decided to amend his income tax bill before introducing it. In its original draft it provided that the minimum income to be taxed should be one thousand dollars. He has changed this to be $1,500.

The original figure he thinks low, as there are a number of persons with an income of $1,000 who might be considered to be poor within the intent of the proposed act.

Speaker Nixon Not So Well.

Westfield, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Speaker Nixon's condition is not so satisfactory as it was yesterday. He had a business interview yesterday with his secretary, as a result of which he became somewhat nervous, with increased temperature, pulse and respiration.

No serious change is anticipated, however.

Treat All Alike.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Governor Roosevelt has announced that he will not sign any bill passed by the legislature which shall show discrimination between regular and volunteer soldiers. This declaration was brought forth by the introduction of a bill giving to volunteer soldiers of the United States army in the war with Spain the same privileges enjoyed by the veterans of the civil war.

The River and Harbor Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The House resumed consideration of the river and harbor bill yesterday. An amendment was adopted directing an examination by the war department of the Tennessee river between Chattanooga and Shell Mound, with a view to a construction of locks and dams.

Boy Sets Factory Afire.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 3.—It has been learned that the big fire that occurred a week ago in Warner's corset factory here and by which many lives were endangered, was incendiary in origin.

A boy of this city has confessed to setting fire to the factory.

The Czar's Ambassador Stricken.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The Russian Ambassador here, Count Von Osten-Sacken, at the conclusion of a conversation with Emperor William at the Court ball Wednesday evening was carried to his home in a critical state, suffering from a paralytic stroke.

Medal for Roosevelt.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—An officer of the Thirteenth regiment of the United States regular army called on Governor Roosevelt yesterday and gave him the medal which had been presented to him by the Regular Army and Navy Union.

Barred Out Librarians.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—It is stated that the president will settle the matter of a librarian of Congress soon by appointing Congressman Barrows, of Massachusetts, as successor to the late John Russell Young.

A Word For Plainfield.

A few days ago the Elizabeth Journal gave voice to the pathetic query, "What's the matter with Union county having something?" referring, of course, to the honors of State office-holding. The New Jersey editor of the New York Press looked over the ground and concluded that about the most considerate thing to do for Union county would be to remove the State Capital to this bailiwick. The Press man failed to specify which one of the Union county cities was most suitable for the location of the State House, and so The Journal, with typical Elizabeth political avarice, immediately proclaimed: "There is no use denying that Elizabeth is exactly the place for it." We enter emphatic objection to Elizabeth capturing the State Capital. She has got a Governor and a United States Senator, and about all the rest of the political perquisites of Union county, and Plainfield has—expectations. By all means move the State House to Plainfield, and let us be satisfied for once in our lives.

A Wisconsin legislator believes that barbers should be licensed, and in order to secure that license they should not only pass an examination as to their skill in hair cutting and shaving, but in the knowledge of diseases of the skin as well. When it comes to putting Netherwood water and cayenne pepper on the face and calling it bay rum we think that the Plainfield barber is well-qualified to meet the proposed Wisconsin law on a successful basis in the matter of "skin."

Senator McDermott has introduced a bill in the Legislature allowing second class cities to fix the Mayor's salary at not more than $2,000 annually, the electors having previously accepted the act. We would not advise Mayor Rockfellow to quit selling sugar on a margin of a fifth of a cent a pound in anticipation of benefitting himself under this proposed law as Plainfield's chief executive.

The New York Sun comes out this morning with a double leaded leading editorial calling for the discipline of General Miles as a result of his recent newspaper interviews on the "embalmed beef" question. The Sun may shine for all, but in this particular case it looks as though it was getting

ODDEST SCHOOLHOUSE IN NEW YORK.

At a time when New York is adding several fine buildings to her school facilities this illustration is interesting. It is made from a photograph of the schoolhouse on Barren Island, which became a part of the Greater New York at the time of the consolidation. It is not quite up to the standard of the greater metropolis. Barren Island is situated in Canarsie bay, about seven miles southeast of the city hall.

too hot for the General.

New Jersey manufacturing concerns interested in the approaching Paris Exposition believe that the appropriation made by Congress for the exhibit of this country is entirely too small. They are, therefore, importuning the New Jersey Congressman to use their efforts to have a more generous contribution made.

The Chicago banks have recently adopted the policy of charging $1 a month to costumers who keep a running deposit account of not more than $300. These small accounts are said to be unprofitable to banks as a rule, but the new Chicago policy of imposing a tax on them is exceptional.

Miners in Alaska are advertising for wives. They do not, however, offer to pay the fares of willing eastern women. It isn't necessary. There are plenty of eastern men who are willing to offer the transportation. But the women hate to go for fear that they might get a cold reception.

The Newark News well says that the members of the Third New Jersey are justified in their objections to paying for new overcoats just as they are about to be mustered out. The men, most of them, need the money more than they do the overcoats.

An umbrella trust, with a capital of $2,000,000, has been formed in New Jersey. The only kind of a trust that we permit our umbrella to be in is a closet with a great big lock on, and the key to it safely anchored in our inside coat pocket.

Plainfield merchants who are wise will advertise liberally in The Daily Press now so that they may get the benefits of enlarged publicity which the constantly increasing list of subscribers is securing for our patrons.

Robert Davis, the Democratic leader of Hudson county, intimates that Mayor Hoos will succeed himself as the chief executive of Jersey City. If the nomination does not belong to Hoos, then whose is it?

Summer cars were running in San Francisco last week, where the temperature was 90. That's nothing. We have been riding on summer cars in these parts of late where the temperature was zero.

Pattis's husband will receive, it is said, $15,000 for his services. His salary before marriage was $750 Certainly, marriage is not a failure in such a case.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The season for general bicycle riding will soon be with us again, but it is generally believed that bicycling as a popular pleasure has passed the high water mark. There will be bicyclers and bicycles galore, the list of riders will undoubtedly be large, and the pleasures afforded by the silent steed will be just as much admired by its devotees as ever. But the novelty of it is gone; the fashionableness of it is past; the necessity of owning a bicycle in order to ride with "the set" no longer exists. In other words, the fad of bicycle riding is ended; the utility and pleasure of it remains.—Elizabeth Journal.

Closed With a Sociable.

The monthly meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist Christian Endeavor Society was held last night at the home of Miss Jennie Giles, of East Sixth street. Nothing but routine business was transacted. The chairmen of the several committees reported, and arrangements for the special meeting tonight were completed. The evening closed with a sociable.

—The revival meetings are being continued at the Mt. Olive Baptist church with good results.

FEARFUL OF A STORM

needs prompt and careful attention. It must be either finished or abandoned altogether. Already the buildings have cost the State over $300 000, and it is stated fully a half million more will be required for their completion. The State prison is now overcrowded, and such an institution as the one begun at Rahway is needed for the relief of the former. In this way the surplus in the treasury can be expended. The joint committee on appropriations has the matter in charge, and under the guidance of Republican statesmanship the problem may be solved before the close of the legislative session.

BANQUETERS IN ELIZABETH.

Governor, Mayor and Others Talk at the Board of Trade Dinner.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 3—The fourth annual dinner of the Elizabeth Board of Trade took place last night at the Star Theatre. Covers were laid for 157 guests. The dinner was one of the most successful the board ever held. At the chief table were Gov. Voorhees, Rev. James Chamberlain, of New York; Mayor W. A. M. Mack, Frank Bergen, Lewis Nixon, G. Waldo Smith, New York; Dr. Victor Mravaleg, Rev. H. H. Sleeper, Col. C. W. Fuller, of Bayonne, and Peter Egenoff the president of the board, who was master of ceremonies.

The toasts and responses were as follows: "The City of Elizabeth," Mayor W. A. M. Mack; "A Golden Rule, a Golden Harvest," G. Waldo Smith, president Wholesale Grocers' Association, New York: "The Merchant Marine," Mr. Lewis Nixon; "Health Improvement," Dr. Victor Mravaleg; "Deep Waterways of Elizabeth," Col. Charles W. Fuller, of Bayonne; "America's Glorious Year," Rev. James A. Chamberlain.

Gov. Voorhees, while not on the list of speakers, was called upon and made a pleasant address. At its conclusion he was greeted with hearty cheers.

"THEY TAKE THE LEAD."

—"Sorosis," the new popular shoe for women, is the best selling shoe we have ever had. Ladies come in and ask for their size, and take them along without even trying them on. They have worn them before and know just what they are buying. Send us your name and address and we will mail you a catalogue of "Sorosis" free.

—Men, don't forget that we keep in stock the famous "J & M." men's fine shoes, black and tan, as well as lower grades, from $1 25, $1.50, up.

—And all prices, styles and qualities in Women's, boy's and girls, that wear good, and stylish, too.

—Good trunks and bags cheap. You are safe in buying at such an old and reliable up-to-date house as

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 3—The poles for pound net fishing, which Levi Bird, of North Plainfield, is purchasing from Lewis Dayton, of New Market, will have to be loaded on the cars with specially prepared tackle. They will be loaded on the siding near the roundhouse and shipped directly to the sea shore.

Mrs. S. S. Vermeule, who was called to Somerville over a week ago to attend her sister, who had fallen on the icy sidewalk and broken her arm, was taken seriously ill before she arrived there. Mrs. Vermeule is now in a very critical condition and no hopes of her recovery are held. Her husband and her sister, Miss M. E. J. Smith, are with her.

George Schenck has leased Eugene Runyon's vacant store, next to his present location, and will move there March 1st.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held Tuesday evening in the Whittier school building.

The roof to the railroad station has been treated to a coat of paint which makes it water tight again.

Mrs. William E. Terry is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hamilton, of Westfield.

Mrs. Annie E. Post and daughter, of Paterson, are visiting Mrs. Post's sister, Mrs. C. D. Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hunter, who have been visiting in Orange, have returned home.

All work on the streets and water pipe trenches has been suspended since the snow.

Mrs. Charles Carpenter and Mrs. Dickinson spent yesterday in New York.

Mrs. Phillip Harman has returned from a visit with relatives in Somerville.

Mrs. John Sutphen is confined to her home with a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. Daniel Randolph, of New Durham, visited friends in town yesterday.

Henry Stevens is confined to the house with a severe cold.

Miss Jennie Post, of Paterson, is visiting friends in town.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, February 3.—A lively meeting of Lakeside Council, D. of L., was held last night, at which three new members were initiated into the mysteries of the order. More are soon to follow, it is said.

Arthur W. Leonard, of Princeton University, is spending a few days with his father in town.

A young son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richards.

Friendship Hall is being papered and painted inside.

Mrs. Elias Dunn is visiting at Manchester, N. H.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 3—Trouble which has been brewing for some time between the families of George Alberts and Charles Mesler, culminated last evening in Justice Clark's court, when Nicholas Alberts was arraigned before the Judge charged with calling Katie Mesler a vile name. The charge was sworn to and Miss Alida, a sister of the complainant, was the only witness. Alberts denied the charge most emphatically but acknowledged he had invited her to go to a warmer place than Scotch Plains, as he said they had addressed him, and he wanted nothing to do with them. Judge Clark heard both sides of the case and reserved his decision in the matter until this evening, paroling Alberts upon his own recognizance. Alberts has always borne a good reputation and says he would not be fool enough to use the words charged with in the complaint.

The prayer meeting in the Baptist church tonight will be led by Edward Johnston. Since the church has been without a regular pastor the interest in the Friday evening prayer meetings has lagged and a strong effort is being made to bring the members out once more.

It is reported that a party from Union is negotiating for the purchase of the hotel property now occupied by Lyness Walpole.

Several of the young men about town are arranging for a coon hunt at the Great Swamp in the near future.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold an interesting meeting in their rooms this evening.

Frederick Alyer, of Newark, has been visiting his uncle, Stiles M. Parse.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

SERVANT PROBLEM SOLVED?

It May Be if the "School of Housekeeping" Proves Successful.

The Hub speaks on the servant question:—"For a reform in domestic service a moral revolution is everywhere needed, bringing with it to every person an appreciation of his responsibility to all connected with the employment, whether employer or employee. Reforms begin at the top, revolutions at the bottom. It rests with the men and women of the so-called upper classes, whether raised to their position by birth, wealth, intellect, education or opportunity, to work out in the best way a satisfactory solution of the vexed question of domestic service."

These words convey the best explanation, perhaps, of an experiment which has been tried and found successful by our neighbors in Boston in their endeavors to solve the vexing problem of the servant question, and the metropolis may learn from the Hub.

The Women's Educational and Industrial Union, of Boston, conceived the idea last year of starting a School of Housekeeping by taking two connecting houses, using one as a boarding house for ladies visiting Boston alone, or living alone; the other to be occupied by a certain number of girls, who were to be given board, lodging and instruction in all kinds of housework free, in return for which they gave their services and received their finishing touches by doing the work of the boarding house adjoining.

The school teaches the need of a scientific treatment of the domestic problem, and that housekeeping is a science and housework a trade.

Ten employes are received for training. They carry on the work of the house under the direction of a skilled housekeeper and cooking teacher, who is a graduate of the Boston Cooking School. A diploma from the school insures to the graduate a position through the office of the Domestic Reform League.

In addition to a series of lectures for employés, given by well known experts, and the opportunity for laboratory work which the house affords, a special course of training has been arranged, and a limited number of employes may, during a six weeks' residence in the school, learn to "keep house" by practice and observation.

That the graduates of the School of Housekeeping will be prepared to make good servants is attested by the following list of requirements, in which they must be perfect before receiving a diploma:—

Every graduate must understand the care of the range or stove, of sinks and drains, of kitchen, cellar and ice chest; must know how to make bread, biscuit, muffins and griddle cakes, soup stock; be expert in roasting, boiling and broiling meats, dressing and cooking poultry, eggs, fish and oysters, cooking vegetables, fresh and canned, and making tea and coffee and plain desserts.

She must also understand washing and ironing, general care of bed and table linen and clothes, care of bed, toilet and bath rooms and hardwood floors, also the care of dining room, silver, glass and china, care of parlor and halls, answering doorbell, and all such services.

The girls are not received under sixteen or over thirty years old, and are required to remain as students at the school during a full term of instruction of not less than four months, and their apprenticeship is served doing the work of the connecting boarding house. They thus not only receive theoretical instruction, but, what is far more valuable, practical experience in all classes of housework.

Not the least interesting of this experiment is the boarding house where these girls receive their finishing touches. As they are trained to be domestics who will receive the highest wages paid for such trained service, the house they care for and the "family" they serve are perfect in all their appointments.

A New York woman who had occasion to visit Boston was recommended to the house. Acting upon the advice, she engaged rooms, and after a sojourn of several weeks, returned to New York a most enthusiastic admirer of and believer in the methods employed by the Boston women for solving the perplexing servant question.

If the average American girl could be made to realize that domestic service was no more menial than tending shop, hundreds who are to-day standing behind counters would only too gladly embrace the opportunity to learn the trade of a trained domestic. And if, on the other hand, the employers would only meet the employes half way, and learn in their turn to be trained housekeepers, the question so agitating at present would gradually solve itself. This is the belief of the women who manage the School of Housekeeping.—New York Herald.

A Useful Novelty.

A pin box is a novelty that appeals to every woman. It is a comfort failing of the sex never to be able to keep a supply of ordinary pins, safety pins, or hairpins on hand, and the pin box is designed to obviate this difficulty. It is nearly a foot long and about five inches wide, and is made of white metal or solid silver. Inside it is lined with velvet and divided into compartments for shell hairpins, ordinary hairpins, hatpins, safety pins and, in short, pins of all sorts. The box is a beautiful ornament for the handsomest of dressing tables, and is a great time as well as temper saver.

Just the Same "Old" Woman.

"One hears a good deal about the new woman," said a Washington woman who has had long and varied social experience in England and America, "but it seems to me that the women I meet today are very much like the women I knew fifty years ago. There may be more who are highly educated, or self-supporting; but the well-bred woman doesn't talk entomology or Greek roots or shop in society, and I can't tell a pretty girl who knows about bugs from the one who doesn't.

"But I do notice in society one sign that women are changed and I'm delighted with the change. When I was a girl the half hour or whole hour after dinner was the abomination of desolation. The men stayed with their wines and cigars. The women adjourned to the drawing rooms and manifestly did penance for their sins. Some of them tried to be amiable and kept up an invertebrate conversation. Some were openly, frankly bored, and the advent of the men was hailed with undisguised joy and relief. Now things are altogether different in this day and generation. To be sure, the men often leave the table with the women, but even when they don't there is no dull hour for the women. Women are more interested in each other than they used to be, or else they are more interested in themselves. Whichever it is, the result is the same—increased animation and fluent conversation. When a number of women are together nowadays they seem to have a most hilarious time, and conversation never flags for a moment. I suppose it is because there are more interests in the lives of women than there were in the old days. One doesn't need to talk jam or servants or children or clothes—though those staple topics are still hard worked, I notice. I've often seen a look of actual regret on the women's faces when the doors opened and the men came in. It is a wholesome sign.—Philadelphia Press.

A Handsome Velvet Waist.

This corsage is made of black velvet and white satin, embroidered with black silk cord. It is also very handsome when made of duck blue, green or red velvet and the black embroidered satin.

The front can be made of wash cloud lace trimmed with rows of gathered white satin baby ribbon, instead of the embroidered satin, if one prefers the change.

An Indian Child's Prayer.

Miss Mary P. Lord, a teacher on the Sioux reservation, North Dakota, relates this touching little scene of wigwam life:

The infant daughter of One Bull lay in her father's arms, sick unto death. The face of the stoical Indian gave no sign, but the tender grief of a parent was as keen in his breast as in the heart of a white man.

A little daughter of a few years older stood by, looking pitifully at the sick baby. Presently she said:

"Papa, little sister is going to heaven to-night. Let me pray."

She knelt at her father's knee, and prayed in her Indian tongue: "Father God, little sister is coming to see you to-night. Please open the door softly and let her in. Amen."

Miss Lord's little pupil is one example of the education that begins with the children to Christianize a pagan race. This tiny girl is a granddaughter of the famous Sitting Bull. He was a capable warrior and chief, but a ruthless man and a savage. Her father, One Bull, is one of the so-called "good Indians," who have felt the influence of civilization, and the child herself, only three removes from barbarism, has declared herself a young disciple of the great teacher who seeks the highest welfare of men, whether civilized or uncivilized, "bond or free."—Youth's Companion.

A Vagary in Mourning.

Woman has taken to wearing her heart on her sleeve in earnest. According to one fashion she no longer swathes herself in gowns and veils of sombre and unwholesome black when someone dies, but wears instead a band of black on the coat sleeve, which is preferably made of tan cloth Two New York women who are now in mourning for their mothers, adopted this plan, and their friends are exclaiming—"How sensible!"

CRANKS' COLUMN.

Suggestions that Emanate from Pens of Bicycle Riders.

The latest wrinkle in bicycle attachments is a concealed brake. It is affected by riders who realize that they need a brake, but are too vain to admit the fact. They have an idea, shared by most young riders, that it is "girlish" to carry a brake, and if they can have one that will be out of sight until needed, they would be delighted to use it. Unfortunately for people of this way of thinking, out of hundreds of concealed brakes now patented, not one has been a success. They are all complicated, easily get out of order, and, in an emergency, fail to work.

A member of the L. A. W. says, in the Bulletin: "Having toured in England and other parts of the world, I would say that $3.50 a day will cover expenses in England, and one may do even better by joining the Cyclers' Touring Club. I should advise buying a thin rubber cape; it will come in handy in rolling up luggage and during the frequent showers. They can be obtained anywhere in England, and are made especially for wheelmen. In general, I would say to my cycling friends that England and Japan make the best touring grounds. For cheapness, comfort and beauty of scenery, other countries must take a back seat. Steer clear of Mexico and Yellowstone Park, and don't take your wheel to Alaska, as I have seen some people do. There are but sixteen miles of road in all of Alaska.

English cycle critics are writing very bitter articles about American bicycles, and finding numerous reasons why no one should buy them. This is pretty good evidence that some one is buying them, and the sales will increase if American makers will keep up to the high standard they have established. A hundred bad machines sold in England will prevent the sale of a thousand good ones.

There had been a collision between the street car and the bicyclist. The street car had made the touch-down. "How did this thing happen?" demanded the policeman.

"I don't know," replied the cycler, earnestly; "I did everything I could. I rang my bell and yelled for the blamed old car to get out of the way, but it didn't. That's all."—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

The New York correspondent of a contemporory says that a man must now be round-shouldered to be in fashion. We suppose the bicycle hump is responsible for that, though even less dignified reasons are given, such as the wearing of high collars or the peculiar cut of the coat.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The proposition made by E. C. Bald to ride a series of races against any professional for from $1,000 to $5,000 has aroused the ire of Tom Butler, the Boston expert. The latter expresses his willingness to meet Bald, and seems to be anxious to clinch the match at once.

The House of Representatives is to employ two bicycle riders at $5 a day to carry copy and proofs to and from the Government Printing Office. Here are excellent chances for a pair of statesmen who may happen to be out of jobs.—Washington Post.

Medical—They say now that a bicycle cures consumption.

"Yes. I can't expect three meals a day until I get mine paid for.—Detroit Free Press.

A match-box attached to the handle bar is the latest device. Its chief use will be for women, who have no handy pockets, like men, in which to carry matches and other necessaries.

It is not meet that bicycles should greet each other with clasping of hand. Rather let them pay a formal, distant greeting, one to the other.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 5—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Idle in the vineyard.—Math. xx, 1-16.

The parable contained in this passage is called "The Laborers In the Vineyard." It refers to laborers rather than to idlers, because the idlers became laborers the moment they had the opportunity. The parable is difficult of explanation, both because it is unnatural and because it seems to contain an injustice. Rightly understood, it, however, has no injustice.

1. This parable contains a lesson for workers. The story is unique. A householder employs laborers at different hours of the day, and when the day's work is done he pays all the same wages. The first comers complain, but he silences them by telling them that he has paid them all that he promised to pay them and that he had a right to do what he pleased with his own. Without going into details the point of the parable lies in this fact, the first laborers had been hired for pay, they had made a contract to work so long a time for so much wages, and they received these wages. The later laborers were told to go to work, and what was right they would be paid. They did so, trusting to the generosity of the householder, and they were not disappointed. The occasion of the parable proves this interpretation of it to be correct. It was spoken in answer to Peter's question, "What shall we have?" for having left all to follow Christ. He tells them that they shall be amply repaid, but at the same time warns them against working only for hire. There are two classes of Christian workers, those who labor for reward and those who labor for love to the Master, willing to leave the question of reward entirely in His hands. It is evident to all that the latter will receive the better reward. To men they may not seem to do as much as those who work for wages, but God judges not so much by the apparent amount of work done as by the motive back of it. With God at least the motive determines the reward. Every laborer will be rewarded for work done, but he is most and best rewarded who without thought of reward unselfishly gives his life to Christ out of gratitude and love to Christ for His love and sacrifice.

2. This parable contains a lesson for idlers. No premium is placed upon idleness in this parable. The idle went to work as soon as they had the opportunity to do so. There is no intimation here that we may put off till late in life service for Christ and then be rewarded as fully as those who consecrate themselves to Christ at an early age. The periods at which the different laborers were hired can have nothing at all to do with the different periods in a man's life. Opportunity is the only time factor to be considered. The actions of these laborers in seizing the first opportunity for service and their subsequent reward should be an example and inspiration to us to redeem the time, to perform faithfully each duty to Christ, that opportunity places before us.

Bible Readings.—Math. xix, 16-30; xxv, 14-46; xxvi, 6-13; John ix, 4; Rom. xii, 1, 2, 11; I Cor. x, 31; xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. v, 15-18; vi, 5-9; Phil. ii, 14-17; iii, 7-15; Col. iii, 12-17; iv, 1-6; Rev. ii, 10.

The Almost Saved.

Some years ago a man was drowned in crossing a river, having fallen from his horse. It appeared from the evidence that when he found himself at the river's bottom he began to walk toward the shore, struggling for his life. Step after step he advanced, nearing the point of safety, till at length, just where one step more would have brought his head above water, his feet stuck fast in the mire and he was drowned, and there, bolt upright, within a single step of deliverance, he was found by the neighbors, almost saved, but altogether lost. Such is the position of the almost Christian—almost saved, but altogether lost.—American Friend.

Godliest of Things.

We do not admire this mutual criticism of each other's temperature and strongly suspect the reality of that earnestness which prides itself on its own intensity. We must not propose to assume any artificial heats in order to spite and disprove this frequent accusation, but be resolved, in an age diseased with pretense, to remain realities—to profess nothing which we do not believe, to withhold nothing whereon we doubt, to affect nothing which we do not feel, to promise nothing which we will not do, bolding, with Paul, that simplicity and sincerity are truly the godliest of things.—James Martineau.

An Educational Force.

In a word, religion is the best educational force, because it deals with the deepest and most potent elements of human nature. It furnishes the noblest impulses toward progress; it approves the wisest methods of study; it directs culture toward practical service, and it does all this in the spirit of unselfish, loving devotion to both God and man. A culture which is hostile or only indifferent to religion is both imperfect and misleading.—Congregationalist.

A Worthy Task.

"To make converts to our faith" is no part of the business of a wise religious teacher. To make our faith helpful to men, women and children in their preparation for life and in the bearing of burdens is a task worthy the ambition of the noblest men and women.—Christian Register.

Only One.

If I in harvest fields,
Where strong ones reap,
May find one golden sheaf
For love to keep,
May speak one quiet word
When all is still,
May help some fainting heart
To bear Thy will
Or sing one high, clear song,
On which may soar
Some glad soul heavenward,
I ask no more.

—Christian Standard.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 5. "Idle in the Market Place." Text, Math. xx, 1-16.

"Why stand ye here all the day idle?" There is vineyard labor to be done. The owner is in earnest to find workmen willing to labor. He shows this by bargaining with the early comers. This is not enough, for he goes again at the third, sixth and ninth hours and engages all the unemployed men he finds. Even when but one hour of the working day remains he engages those whom he finds in the market place idle. Surely the Lord of the vineyard intends to have His work done.

He is fair in His bargains. He agrees to pay an equitable wage for the work.

He is also benevolent in His intentions. He is under no obligations to pay the laborer of an hour the full wage of the day. But His benevolence is shown in the freeness with which He rewards the shortest service.

Our God has farreaching intentions, not even faintly conceived by the highest of His creatures. His plans cover the coming eternities. He is cultivating a vineyard as extensive as the universe. His purposes are as deep and broad as infinity. He seeks helpers to work with Him in this labor. He invites men to His service. He comes in person and calls to labor. Every interest of men urges them to accept the work of God and do His bidding. Yet there are in every community idlers who have no aim in life, no hope in death, no prospect beyond the horizon of today. Aimless lives! Such are never happy, never successful. Zest in life, true enjoyment, comes from a fixed purpose, a worthy aim. No other incentive in life can compare with conscious work begun and carried on under a divine call and impulse.

This call of God to us is not usually a call to the Christian ministry. It is not merely a call to repent of sins and lead a pure life. It is more than forgiveness of transgressions and a witness of the holy spirit to acceptance and peace. It is more than an occasional impulse to speak in meeting, to give money to charitable purposes, to seek the ungodly and lead them to Christ. It is a definite call to every soul to fully devote all powers and opportunities to God's service. It embraces all the thoughts and acts. It includes the whole daily business, home life, private inner life and public appearance. It means the full engagement of every energy definitely to bring in Christ's kingdom. All toil for daily bread is a part of the service. Home keeping and household cares are in the scheme. Whoever enters God's service does the routine round of duties no longer for self alone, nor for wife or children, but because God has hired him and rewards the exertion. All toil acquires new meaning when one hires out to God.

"Go ye also into the vineyard."

Peace and Prosperity.

Christian people and nations are now and always will be the salt of the earth, and the nation that will not serve Him in working out the history of the race shall perish. Our prayers He will hear and our service He will surely reward. This sort of obedience in carrying out His designs for the welfare of the nations is better than sacrifice. Let the United States beware of pride and fully while reaping the glorious fruits of this season of divine favor. Our prayer is for peace, prosperity, liberty, good government and true religious education. Reformed Church Messenger.

Fighting Ministers.

Even the ministers of the gospel of peace are stirred in these times by the military spirit. Not only have they gone as chaplains, but some, desiring to know what is the real life of the soldier, have gone as privates. There is one instance of a minister, a most vigorous opponent of war, who has enlisted as a private, that he may know for himself what war is. His arguments for peace will be drawn from experience. Christian Register.

Duty's Path.

Duty's path always opens for us as we go on, not before we start; but we obey and move forward. Yet we must not expect there will never be any difficulties to meet or obstacles to surmount. God never has promised that. Too easy a path is often a bane in life, not a blessing. The difficulties and obstacles that remain may be made stepping stones by which we shall rise to higher things.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Give as Well as Receive.

Give out as well as take in or expend as well as receive. God never intended us to selfishly enjoy the good things of His Providence and of His grace, but to be distributers of His material and gracious bounties. There is a peculiar pleasure in giving which more than compensates for the relinquishment of what we lay out for others' benefit.—Presbyterian.

Teach Me to Live.

Teach me to live! 'Tis easier far to die—
Gently and silently pass away,
On earth's long night to close the heavy eye
And waken in the glorious realms of day.

Teach me that harder lesson—how to live,
To serve Thee in the darkest paths of life!
Arm me for conflict now, fresh vigor give
And make me more than conqueror in the strife!

Teach me to live for self and sin no more,
But use the time remaining to me yet,
Not mine own pleasure seeking as before,
Wasting no precious hours in vain regret!

Teach me to live, my daily cross to bear,
Nor murmur, though I bend beneath its load!
Only be with me; let me feel Thee near;
Thy smile sheds gladness on the darkest road.

Teach me to live and find my life in Thee,
Looking from earth and earthly things away!
Let me not falter, but untiringly
Press on and gain new strength and power each day!

THE REPRESENTATIVE FROM TEXAS.

His Aversion to Conventional Evening Dress has made Him Famous.

Congressman Bailey of Texas, wears a white neck tie and broad expanse of shirt front, but draws the line at a spike tail coat.

A month ago Congressman Bailey was not universally known. To-day he has won a reputation which he may or may not outlive because of his simple refusal to accept President McKinley's invitation to dine, as such an acceptance would make the wearing of a dress suit necessary. Yet the refusal to appear in evening dress, eccentric as it may seem, is distinctly within the bounds of law and reason if not of etiquette, and Congressman Bailey's position is perfectly defensible when he says: "The man who wears anything but a dress suit on an occasion when everybody is in evening dress can be criticized, but I don't see how there can be any legitimate criticism of the man who wears ordinary clothes and stays away."

SIAM'S KING WILL VISIT AMERICA.

The Personality of One of the Richest and Most Powerful Princes of the East.

If, as is reported, the King of Siam proves to be America's next royal visitor, there is little doubt that he will receive a cordial welcome. There is no more excellent example of the traditional Oriental potentate of fabulous wealth and unimaginable luxury than Chulalongkarn I. of Siam. The announcement of his intended visit means that Americans will have the opportunity of studying one of the richest and most powerful princes of the East, and to Americans flat-nosed and thick-lipped princes with the additional attraction of enormous incomes are still an interesting novelty.

From his photograph Chulalongkorn would appear to be still a very young man, so effectually has kingly luxury preserved his youth. He is, however, forty years old and has already enjoyed a reign of twenty-five years. Although he has so many other more agreeable pastimes, the King occasionally turns his thoughts to cares of state, and as a result has won the name of being a wise, even progressive ruler, with no inclination to play the role of tyrant. In fact, he is no less amiable as a sovereign than he is mild-mannered as a man, which, according to those who know them, is really saying a good deal.

An income of ten millions a year, with perquisites, enables the King to carry out all his theories of enjoyment, which are many and elaborate. There is hardly a luxury which this pleasure-loving potentate has not improved upon and appropriated for his own use. Moreover, any possession of any of his subjects, whether it be palace, jewel, wife or daughter, is quite at the disposal of the sovereign, who is not at all averse to conferring such a distinction. The royal palace is said to be a little city in itself and to shelter 5,000 persons. The grounds contain certain twenty-five acres and are surrounded by a brick wall twelve feet high. No European has ever been privileged to inspect all the intricacies of the kingly residence, and even the Siamese themselves regard it with a sort of holy awe.

To shoot Annie Rooney.—Professor Half Rest (at a park concert)—"Why these unrestrained tears, my friend? Have you received sudden bad tidings, that you sob aloud in a public place?" Happy Whiskers—"They are tears of joy, old man! see that programme! 'Little Annie Rooney' executed by the military band at 2:30. To think the little cuss is to die at last! It's too good to be true. Tell 'em to dig her grave deep, stranger!" (Exit, weeping ecstatically.)—Judge.

D. F. "Well, not all over."

DRAFT RIOT OF 1863.

NEW YORK CITY STILL OWES SOME OF THE DEBT IT INCURRED.

Horace Greeley and Henry J. Raymond Barely Escaped the Mob—Colored People were Stoned, the Militia Defied, and General Disorder Maintained.

In mid-July, 1863, when the whole North was rejoicing over Gettysburg and a call had been made for a new army to be raised by a draft, a large number of New Yorkers undertook to resist conscription. Their opposition assumed the form early on the morning of July 13 of a riotous onslaught upon the headquarters of a district provost marshal at the corner of Third avenue and Forty-sixth street. The rioters put to flight Deputy Provost Marshal Jenkins and his subordinates, destroyed wheel and ballots, and then set fire to the house. Marauding bands sprang up in various parts of the city. Bull's Head Hotel was visited, and a request for free drinks being refused, the place was fired, and two private houses on nearby Lexington avenue were burned down.

The feeling was that the war had been waged in order to free the Southern negroes, and animosity toward the colored race inspired the rioters in the afternoon to make a raid on the Colored Orphan Asylum in Fifth avenue. It was set on fire and destroyed. The original mob had now increased enormously. It started to go downtown to set on fire another provost marshal headquarters on the east side of Broadway, opposite where is now Daly's theater. The mob thwarted the firemen, with the result that the fire destroyed all the fronts between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, while many of the shops were pillaged.

A fatal sense of security and reliance on popular patriotism, together with some political dislike of harsh measures, had seemingly possessed the police department, (the old Metropolitan state organization,) and due preliminary precautions for the prevention of disturbance had been neglected; but at this stage the Superintendent of police became energetic. It was now seen at the close of Monday that the riotous spirit had exceeded ordinary police resources, and that the military arm was needed. Particularly so, because riotous feints had been made upon the Seventh avenue and the Center street arsenals and upon the armory at the corner of Second avenue and Twenty-first street. The house of Mayor Opdyke on Fifth avenue, near Sixteenth street, had been invaded and some of his furniture destroyed; and a riotous feint had been also made against the residence on Ninth street, near Fifth avenue, of Henry J. Raymond, editor of the Times, which had strongly supported the draft. Monday closed with a proclamation from the Mayor, commanding order and with the calling out of police reserves, so that Superintendent Kennedy now had 3,000 bluecoats at his command.

Tuesday, July 14, came and before the day closed a poor negro had been chased by a mob through Clarkson street, in old Greenwich village, captured, beaten, and then hanged. Gov. Seymour issued a proclamation declaring the city under insurrection, and inviting citizens to enroll themselves as special aids. Meantime a large section of the mob was threatening the Tribune office and also the house of a citizen, 19 Lamartine place, where Horace Greeley was a guest. Governor Seymour and Mayor Opdyke proceeded to the city hall, opposite the Tribune office, (where the compositors and staff were in a state of siege and armed with rifles and hand grenades), and addressed the rioters, urging them to refrain from violence. His habitual word in first addressing a meeting had always been "Friends," and he used that word in beginning his speech, which fact was immediately seized upon by some of the newspapers to his disadvantage. What rhetoric failed to do was accomplished by police clubs and good discipline before nightfall of Tuesday, and the Tribune was relieved of a mob.

All day Tuesday disturbances continued. Colored people were stoned and maltreated. At Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street, a collision occurred between the military and a section of the mob, where the bayonet dispersed the latter. Another collision came on the east side, at Broome and Pitt streets, where the military were compelled to fire and wound several rioters. In another collision, at Second avenue and Thirty-fourth street, Col. O'Brien was unhorsed, stoned, and beaten to death, and his corpse dragged along the pavement and hanged to a lamppost. The house of Postmaster Wakeman, who had been active in promoting the draft, as well as the police station on Eighty-sixth street, were burned, and some clothing stores were sacked by the rioters. Up to Wednesday morning the third and last day of the rioting, 130 policemen had been more or less injured, including Superintendent Kennedy.

Archbishop Hughes issued a temperate address, one of the judges decided the draft methods not in accordance with the Constitution, and Provost Marshal-General Nugent issued orders suspending the draft, which proceedings, conjoined to the return of the city regiments from the front and details of Federal and state soldiers and the popular experience with the police force, virtually quelled the riot. One result of the riot was a municipal debt for damages of several millions, and a few of the riot bonds then issued are still outstanding.

EXAMINE BEFORE YOU BUY.

When in a grocer's store you stand
And cakes of Ivory Soap demand,
Be careful not to be mislead
And imitations take instead.
For dealers oft will praises sing
Of that which may more profit bring.
Examine well with carefui eye
The cake until the name you spy,
And always thus be well assured
That Ivory Soap you have procured;
And should a lingering doubt remain,
'Twill vanish like the darkest stain,
When in the tub on washing day
That cake of soap is brought in play.

Now that the Park Club is in the lead in the Central Journal Bowling League, it wants to stay there. The Park bowlers have been showing up in fine form this season after the tournament was fairly started and have at length reached the goal for which they have tried for so long. The only crcuble now is that the Roselle Casino team is there too. Roselle has next to encounter the cracks of Elizabeth on the latter's alleys. Elizabeth was once champion of New Jersey at bowling, but of late years her team has fallen sadly below the old standard. Once in a while they wake up when rolling on their own alleys and send some visiting team home disconsolate. That is what the Parks are hoping will be the fate of Roselle in the coming match.

class. In those days the salary of the pastor was small, and in addition to giving $1,000 to the church, he was the means whereby the pastor's salary was increased to double the amount then given. At various times he gave freely to those in need. He gave $500 to erect the Mt. Olive Baptist church. He also gave $500 toward erecting the old railroad station at Netherwood. He built the Revere House, then known as the Park House, and for the first few years it was a great success.

Mr. Jones was always interested in educational matters. Beside being a trustee of the Plainfield Seminary, he educated a number of colored girls and for years afterward they devoted their time to teaching among their people. He also educeted a Japanese and he returned to his country to teach. Several poor children were also taken care of and educated by him, and some of them are now residing in this State living in comfort and have social standing.

Mr. Jones served the city for two terms in the City Council and his record is a clean one. His many acts of kindness and charity of people in Plainfield will never be fogotton by those who know of them. It has been said that Mr. Jones gave more money to building up Plainfield than any other single man, but he gave too freely and he suffered in consequence, for he lost a greater portion of his money and many friends whom he befriended beside.

When Mr. Jones came to this city he purchased the property where S. A. Ginna now resides, and for many years lived there. He improved that property greatly, and it is today one of Plainfield's handsomest pieces of property.

Mr. Jones married his second wife in 1876. Five children, beside his wife, survive him. The children are L. H. Jones, of Red Bank, N. J., Evan Jones, Jr., Mrs. Sadie W. Jones, Miss Grace M. Jones and David Jones. People in Plainfield today are reaping largely the benefits from the hard and earnest work of Mr. Jones, and his name will go down in history as a good name. He was a faithful and conscientious Christian who lived every day alike, and was always striving to help others.

Not a Quorum Present.

There was no meeting of the Alert Hose Company last night as a quorum of members failed to show up at the appointed hour. After waiting an hour the meeting was called off. There was little of importance to be considered, however, as the future action of the company will depend on what the Common Council does at its next meeting.

WIFE OWNED THE PROPERTY.

Jury Decides That Meat Market Utensils Could Not be Seized

A jury of six men this morning decided that various articles in use in Morris Ballantine's butcher shop, on East Front street, did not belong to him but to his wife, and were not liable to be seized by Nathan Schweitzer, of New York, to satisfy a judgment he obtained against Ballantine a few weeks ago.

When the constable went to make the levy on the goods he was told that they belonged to Mrs. Ballantine. A jury was therefore drawn to try the right of property. With a few exceptions they decided that all the goods included in the list levied upon belong to Mrs. Ballantine and are therefore safe from seizure. Pope & Runyon represented Schweizer and Codington & Swackhamer Mrs. Ballantine. The jurymen were Charles Wilson, Ralph Saums, Theodore Gray, P. M. Kline, P. A. VanFleet and J. B. Clarkson.

HALF AND HALF.

Members of Engine Co. No. 2 Divided as to What to Do.

A meeting of Engine Co. No. 2, of the fire department, was held last evening for the purpose of discussing the important question of disbanding the company. There was a good attendance of the members, and the question under consideration was discussed at great length, but with no definite results. Half of the members desired to withdraw, while the other half want to maintain the company. After a great deal of argument it was decided to lay the matter on the table until the next meeting. There is a strong probability that the company will remain intact as half of the members want to remain and there are enough persons who want to come in so that a strong company can be maintained.

Mr. Cramer Entertained Friends.

J. H. Cramer, of Grant avenue, entertained a few friends at his home last evening. The features were moving pictures and illustrated songs which were operated by W. H. Scorb. During the evening supper was served and a sociable time enjoyed. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, of Basking Ridge; Mr. and Mrs. Burke, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. Emery, of Fanwood; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Blatz, Mr. and Mrs. John Adleman, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Drayton, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, H. Scott, Miss Adleman, Miss Lou Windham, Miss Helen Cramer.

Made Her Fortune Telling Fortunes.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 3.—The affairs of the estate of the late Charlotte Roulez Charlier, who was a fortune teller at Roselle until her death five years ago, will be closed up March 1st by Dr. Joseph B. Wood, of Lyons Farms, and John H. Ovidge, of Elizabeth, the executors of the will. Mme. Charlier's estate is worth about $20,000. She at one time owned the greater part of what is now the flourishing town of Roselle. She had a map made of her property and laid it out into streets to which she gave the names of saints. She made her fortune as a fortune teller.

Settled Without Aid of Court.

The trial of the right of property which was to have come off in Justice Mosher's court yesterday afternoon before the justice and a jury was called off at the last minute, the parties agreeing to settle the matter without the aid of the court. The case was one in which Wallace Coriell secured an attachment against C. W. Lines for about $40. When the levy was made Mrs. Caroline Chapot declared the goods did not belong to Lines at all, but to her. Rather than go to the cost of a trial the parties have settled it out of court.

The Prizes on Exhibition.

There were many yesterday who viewed the prizes in the Daily Press subscription contest, now on exhibition in the show windows of Woodhull & Martin's big store in the Babcock building. Besides those who are working in the contest, there were many passersby who stopped to see just what the winners in the Press contest were to receive. The prizes will continue on exhibition for a few days.

Hurt by a Pitchfork.

While Dan S. Roberts, the veteran liveryman, was trying to adjust a spring in his stable yesterday afternoon, the pitchfork he held, slipped and struck him in the face. He was somewhat bruised while the shock was a severe one.

A Noted Missionary to Talk.

Joseph Booth, late of Nyassaland, British Central Africa, founder and promoter of industrial missions in Africa, will speak upon this subject in the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Surrogate Spencer Ill.

Surrogate H. N. Spencer, of the borough, is quite ill at his home. Dr. Ocoley is in attendance.

EUCHRE CLUB MET.

Entertained at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Central Avenue.

The members of the Thursday Evening Euchre Club were entertained last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams at their home on Central avenue. Euchre, as usual, occupied the first part of the evening. The first prizes were awarded to David Krymer and Mrs. Will Tier. The winners of the second prizes were Mrs. Will Williams and Benjamin LaVere. After refreshments, the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and music.

Next Thursday the members will be entertained by Mrs. LaForge, of Rahway, for Mr. LaVere, her brother. The members of the club will go to Rahway by stage.

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO DISBAND.

Inability of President to Attend to Her Duties Brought Result About.

Last evening the members of the King's Daughters composed of Miss Linda Butler's Sunday school class at the First Baptist church, met last evening at the home of Miss May Clawson, Brook avenue, and by a unanimous vote decided to disband on account of the inability of Miss Butler, the president, to attend to the duties of her office, owing to ill health. The evening was spent in a social way and a delightful repast was served The members expressed regret that the organization was to disband, as there are many pleasant memories of work performed since the society was formed.

FREEHOLDERS DO NOT ACT ON THE PETITION.

Westfield Avenue Property Owners Ask Right of Jury Appeal.

WANT SQUIRE LAW CHANGED

FREEHOLDERS REQUESTED TO USE THEIR INFLUENCE.

After Listening to Considerable Argument by Judge Gilhooly, Who Represents the Property Owners, the County Legislators Suddenly Adjourned Without Acting on the Petition Presented to Them.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—The Board of Freeholders has refused to take action on the petition of some Westfield avenue property owners for an amendment of the county boulevard act to give them the right of appeal from the award or awards of the commissioners appointed for the condemnation of lands to be taken for the widening of said avenue.

The petition, which was numerously signed, was presented by request by Freeholder Burnett. Appended to their petition requesting the freeholders to sanction the amendment was a draft of a bill, drawn in accordance with the Hudson county boulevard act. The provision gave right of appeal to both land owners and to the board of freeholders if not satisfied with the commissioners' awards.

Judge Gilhooly who represents the petitioners, says that the property owners and their counsel held a conference over the matter of trials in reference to values of property, and it was concluded to appeal to the Legislature to have the law amended to give right of appeal to a jury if necessary. This is the usual practice in all condemnation proceedings, excepting in county road procedures. If a railroad seeks to go through a county the property owners have this right before their lands can be taken. Such power is given all city charters, and it is so given in the Hudson county boulevard act.

Judge Gilhooly said the law which provides for the Union county boulevard is unique in several ways. It gives the benefits all to the south side of the avenue; it gives no right to a jury appeal. It provides that the whole subject shall go to a commission, and gives them no authority to swear witnesses. The commission cannot do full justice to the property owners whose lands are to be taken. It is true complaint to the circuit court can be made, but the judge is given no power. If it is not satisfactory to the judge he can refer the report back again to the same tribunal which has no power. The object seems to have been to give as little power as possible to anyone. The results, of course, have been unsatisfactory. Therefore the property owners asked the freeholders simply to say that they consented to a right to an appeal to a jury. If the freeholders said "No," the property owners simply surrender.

In conclusion, Judge Gilhooly said he had been informed that some of the Freeholders thought he had changed his position in regard to the improvement. He wished to say that he had not. He was in favor of the improvement, as he had stated in the public meetings when the boulevard plan was up for discussion.

Freeholder Farrell then arose and said he was one who had said that Judge Gilhooly had had a change of heart. He was at the public meetings and the Judge was one of those who said the act was a good thing. He listened to Judge Gilhooly and was influenced by what he said. Now, he did not know what to say. Today Judge Gilhooly says the law is not good.

Judge Gilhooly answered that he had not changed at all. He did not know at that time that the law did not give a right to jury appeal. He said at that meeting that every property-owner should be justly compensated for his lands. The only way to insure that justice is by the right to appeal to a jury. He said that the cost would be half a million, and it will be if property-owners are paid just amounts for their lands.

"I move we adjourn," said Mr. Farrell, and the Board was adjourned without any action on the petition.

Jersey Soldiers Turning in Guns.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Athens, Ga., Feb. 4.—All the equipments are being turned in by the men of the Third New Jersey Regiment preparatory to the mustering out. The sentries are now without guns, and the provost guards are on with policemen's batons. The muster rolls will be completed to-day, and in a few more days the men will leave for home.

AN ENTERTAINING TALK.

MRS. E. B. HORTON ADDRESEED THE YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND.

The Occasion was the Second Anniversary and Annual Meeting—Mrs. F. E Woodruff was Chosen President.

Last evening in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church the second anniversary and annual election of officers of the Young Women's Mission Band of the church was held. After the election a talk by Mrs. E. B. Horton was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mrs. Horton is the corresponding secretary of the Women's Executive Board of Domestic Missions in the Reformed church.

Recently she visited Cromwell Centre, Iowa, where a church and Sunday-school of the Reformed denomination are thriving. Her description of the long drive from the nearest railroad station to the town and then her narrative of what she saw, ate and drank, during her two days' stay among the residents of the place was very interesting, so much so that she held the closest attention of her hearers from beginning to end, and all were really sorry to have her stop speaking. Mrs. Horton also told the band and their friends present, of a recent visit among the Russians, at one of the settlements in Northern Dakota. This narrative also proved highly interesting and instructive, as did her visit to Lenox, a fine town in Dakota, where the Reformed people have a church and are actively engaged in home mission work. We are sorry, but space forbids further details of Mrs. Horton's thoroughly enjoyable talk.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, president; Miss Lillian A. Force, vice-president; Miss Emma Gillem, recording secretary; Mrs. W. C. Startup, treasurer; Miss Minnie Williams, corresponding secretary.

The annual report of the treasurer, Mrs. Startup, showed receipts of about $60 during the year, and after all bills were paid a balance of $17.39 in the treasury. Miss Emma Gillem, the secretary, also read her annual report, reciting the work done by the band during the past year, also showing a large increase in the membership of the band.

GAVEL FOR THE MAYOR.

Mr. Wilson Honored in the Same Way That Senator Reed Was.

The old gentleman from South Jersey who presented a gavel to President Charles A. Reed, of the Senate, extended the courtesy still further, and has presented a similiar one to Mayor Wilson, of the borough. Last evening His Honor produced the gift at which time he explained how it happened to get into his possession. He informed the Council that the gavel was made of apple and hickory, and he hoped that it would only be necessary for him to use it occasionally in calling the members to order. The gavel is a handsome one and corresponds nicely with the desk used by His Honor.

Preparatory Service.

There was a large attendance last evening at the preparatory services held at the First Baptist church, and there was much interest shown. The pastor, Rev. D J. Yerkes, was in charge of the meeting and many persons took part. Tomorrow morning the Lord's Supper will be observed at this church and several new members will receive the right hand of fellowship.

Contract to Build Seven New Houses.

Justice Stover Decides That He Can't Have $36,000 of Estate of His Grandfather, Who Died in Plainfield.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 4—Justice Stover, of the Supreme Court, decided yesterday that James Moffat is not entitled to share in the estate of his grandfather, James G. Moffat, a mill owner and manufacturer of Plainfield. Moffat, the grandfather, died in 1887, leaving more than a million dollars, divided among his two daughters and son, James Moffat, under a trust clause which gave the remainder in each third to the lawful issue of each of his three children. James Moffat, the son of the mill owner, began living with Ellen A. Arbuthnot in 1873 and she gave birth to the claimant, James Moffat, in 1874. She contended that she had entered into a common-law marriage with Moffat in 1873.

It was shown that the claimant was a grandson of the mill owner and that Ellen A. Arbuthnot had entered upon a ceremonial marriage with James Moffat in 1885, but the two daughters of the mill owner urged that there was no common-law marriage in 1873 and that the grandfather did not mean to include young James Moffat when he said "lawful issue" in his will. The interest claimed by young Moffat amounted to $360,000.

Justice Stover says that at the time of the ceremonial marriage Miss Arbuthnot had declared that she was single, and she was married under her maiden name. He says that James G. Moffat knew of the birth of the boy, and knew of the marriage in 1885, and had these facts in mind when he inserted the words "lawful issue" in his will.

It was said that young Moffat refused an offer of about $50,000 to settle the case during the progress of the trial.

FOUND AN EASY PREY.

PLAINFIELD DEFEATED HASBROUCK HEIGHTS AT BASKET BALL.

Game Was Played in Casino of Hasbrouck Heights Field Club Last Night—Plainfield Won by a Score of 40 to 6.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Hasbrouck Heights, February 4.—The basket ball team of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. visited at the Casino of the Hasbrouck Heights Field Club, last evening, and bested the team from the Field Club by a score of 40 to 6. It was a walkover for the visitors who were at no time compelled to play hard. The home team made a strong effort but they lacked the training and team play of the Plainfield boys.

The game was played in the ballroom of the club where a dance had been held the night before. The floor was very slippery in consequence and there were frequent falls. But for the slippery floor Plainfield would have probably shut out the home team entirely. At the end of the first half the score stood 18 to 0 in favor of Plainfield. In the second half Bonny and Carroll were substituted as forwards for Long and Eric Moraller.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		HASBROUCK HEIGHTS.
Long, Bonny	right forward	Fox
Moraller, E., Carroll	left forward	Benedict
Egan	centre	Leighton
Moraller, M.	right guard	Doyle

Plainfield in Somerset .....

North Plainfield in Union .....

New County .....

Voters of North Plainfield are asked to fill out the above blank and forward their vote to Consolidation Headquarters, 107 East Front street. An X on either of the three last propositions is requested from voters who desire to be recorded in favor of consolidation. It is probable that the scheme receiving a majority will be adopted by the committee having the matter in charge and the same submitted to the voters for approval at the borough election to be held March 14.

CORLE RETREATED AT POINT OF REVOLVER.

The Laborer Thought He Was a Trespasser.

CORLE WANTED A WAGON.

BUT THE DETERMINED MAN WITH THE GUN CHANGED HIS MIND.

Corle Went After Borrowed Rig—Mr. Hayes Was Not at Home—His Man Was a Foreigner and Didn't Understand—Called for His Revolver—Then the Visitors Decided They Would Leave.

C. V. D. Corle, the well-known liveryman, is still minus a runabout. The story of his attempt to recover possession of it is a thrilling one. Corle is perfectly satisfied to have escaped from the adventure alive. For a short time, it is said, he hadn't the slightest wish to recover possession of the vehicle.

Some time ago Corle left a runabout, with red running gear, at Williams' livery stable in Dunellen. He has been intending to call for it. Yesterday, accompanied by a Plainfield lawyer, a friend of his, Mr. Corle drove to Dunellen and asked for the wagon. Mr. Williams told him that he had hired it out to a man named Hayes, living on the road to New Market. Mr. Williams gave Corle an order on Hayes, requesting the latter to turn the wagon over to its owner. Corle and his companion then drove up to the Hayes place.

They noticed signs about the property forbidding trespassing, but as they were on a business errand, they drove right in. They were greeted by a great Hungarian laborer, standing 6 feet, 2 inches in height, who without waiting to hear what they had to say, ordered them from the place.

Corle says that he and his companion attempted to explain but it didn't do any good. The native of Hungary raved and tore about and finally called on the servant at the house to bring forth his revolver. The revolver was brought and was speedily brought to bear on the callers who attempted to temporize. The gun was a large one and the man looked determined so Mr. Corle and his friend retreated without delay. Their departure was made in fast time. Mr. Hayes, it was afterwards found, was in Washington at the time and had instructed his man to look out for trespassers.

INTEREST IS STILL KEEN.

New Subscribers Still Continue to Pour Into The Press Office.

The prizes in The Daily Press subscription contest still continue to attract considerable attention in the show windows of Woodhull & Martin's big store in the Babcock building. The windows are prettily decorated with some of the many beautiful things on sale within and make a pretty showing.

The contest still continues and the young people who are trying for the prizes are keener than ever after new subscribers for the Press. The city is being thoroughly canvassed and every day brings in new ones in such a lively stream that the face of Circulation Manager C. F. Stout has been broadened by several inches owing to his continual smile of satisfaction.

The total number of new subscribers this week, while it does not break the record, is close upon that of last week and has made it necessary to increase the number of Presses printed daily.

GRAND OFFICERS PRESENT.

Senate Lodge Knights of Honor, Hears About the Growth of the Order.

Senate Lodge, No. 3542, Knights of Honor, entertained some of the grand officers Thursday night. Among those present were Grand Dictator G. W. Pearsall, of Ridgewood; Past Grand Dictator Burke, of Elizabeth; Past Grand Dictator Sherf, Past Grand Dictator Soithe, of Elizabeth; District Deputy D'Espies, and members of Matanique Lodge, of Somerville.

Music was furnished by the lodge and there were speeches by the various members on the good of the order. Statistics were given showing the increase to the membership during the past months. The evening closed with a collation.

His Coat Caught Fire.

Archibald Butler, of Putnam avenue, met with a rather strange experience this morning while on the way to take the train for New York. In his hurry in starting he placed a lighted pipe in his coat pocket. His coat caught fire and a warm little conflagration started before he discovered it. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

CYLINDER TIPPED FORWARD.

Fell Over and Struck Horses and They Ran Away.

The team and truck from the Potter Press Works carried a large cylinder down to the works of the Aluminum Plate and Press Company, North avenue, yesterday afternoon. The cylinder was placed too far forward so that when the team was turned around and the truck backed up for unloading, it tipped forward and fell over on the horses. The team became frightened and promptly ran away only to be caught by one of the workmen as they were rushing through the gateway. The pole and the harness were broken but no other damage resulted.

HEIR TO BIG FORTUNE.

NEW MARKET MAN SAID TO HAVE BEEN LEFT $75,000.

Mr. Staats, Aged Seventy Years, Made Rich by the Death of a Relative in Germany—Doing Business With Lawyer.

Mr. Staats, aged seventy years, one of the oldest residents in Piscataway township, recently received good news from his native home in Germany to the effect that he is an heir to $75,000 left to him by relatives. Mr. Staats came to Plainfield nearly 40 years ago, and during most of that time he has been engaged in the truck-farming business near New Market. He has been a hard-working man and is now rejoiced that he will be able to spend his remaining days in comfort and luxury. He has secured the services of a Plainfield lawyer who will attend to all legal matters and see that Mr. Staats comes into the possession of his fortune.

Mr. Staats had planned to go to Germany himself, but his wife and family persuaded him to transact the business through a lawyer.

STREET COMMITTEE MET.

WILL REPORT PROGRESS REGARDING SEWER REPAIRS.

Majority of Property Owners on Leland Avenue Wrote Favorably Regarding the Macadamizing—No Definite Action Taken

The members of the street committee of the Common Council held an informal meeting last evening and discussed the various matter of importance that are now before them. The committee talked over the repairs necessary to be made to the Richmond street sewer. No definite action was taken and the committee will probably report progress on the subject at the Council meeting Monday night.

Regarding the hearing of the Park avenue sewer ordinance and the passage of the macadamizing ordinance, the committee was somewhat in doubt regarding certain formal action and framed a communication to the Corporation Counsel on the subject.

The proposed macadamizing of Leland avenue was discussed and the various communications regarding the same were brought before the committee. A majority of them were in favor of such action. No definite action on the subject was taken.

DID NOT FIND HEALTH.

Death of Elmer Manning From Consumption in Pasedena, California.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Elmer Manning, aged 20 years, a former resident of South Plainfield. Mr. Manning died at Pasedena, California, where he went in September last to try to overcome the ravaging disease of consumption. He was accompanied by his brother, Charles Manning, who remained with him and will bring the body home, arriving here probably Monday. Mr. Manning was the son of Samuel Manning, a prosperous farmer in Piscataway township, and the parents and relatives have the sympathy of a large host of friends in their bereavement. The young man was very popular and his friends were in hopes that he would recover. The funeral will be held next week from the South Plainfield Baptist church at a time to be announced later.

FEEBLE-MINDED BOY CARED FOR.

Sent to a State Institution at Vineland Through Governor Voorhees.

Albert Coon, aged sixteen years, a resident of this city, was taken yesterday to the Home for Feeble-Minded Children at Vineland, this State, by Mrs. William A. Woodruff, agent for the Charity Organized Aid Association. The admission of this lad to the Home is among the first acts of Governor Voorhees in this department and his treatment of the case through Mrs. Woodruff was very gratifying to the latter. Mrs. Woodruff was highly pleased with what she saw at the Home and was glad to know that such an institution is doing such a grand good work. Last evening was "birthday" night at the Home and the exercises were of an interesting and instructive nature.

SECOND "AT HOME."

Charming Social Affair Held at the Home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington.

The second of the series of "at homes," given by Mrs. Samuel Huntington and her daughter, Miss Florence Huntington, was held yesterday afternoon at their residence on Franklin place. Mrs. Edward Conklin, Mrs. J. Whiton, Mrs. F. O. Herring and Mrs. Lucius Ryce poured tea in the dining room. They were assisted by Miss Sahler, of New York, Miss Gilbert and Miss Grace Cooley. The decorations were of yellow amaryllis. There were a large number present during the afternoon who found the affair a charming one.

LITTLE WORK FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Regular Meeting Taken Up With Routine Matters.

THE FINANCIAL REPORTS.

A MATTER OF CROSSWALKS AN INFORMAL TOPIC OF DISCUSSION.

Mayor and Councilmen Receive an Invitation to Attend the Fair to Be Given by Warren Engine Company—A New Dumping Ground Wanted—Some Resolutions Offered and Accepted.

There was precious little business of importance that occupied the attention of the members of the Borough Council last evening. All the members were present except Mr. Ball. Mayor Wilson called the session promptly at 8 o'clock.

Clerk Arnold presented his financial statement showing that the amount due from county and State is $5,837.69, with a cash deficit of $906.68, leaving a borough balance of $4,931.01. He also reported the collection of $84.10 from fines, licenses, etc.

The report of Collector George F. Brown showed that the balance on hand January 1st was $24,331.14. There was received since that time $5,646 28, and disbursed $25,165.96, leaving a balance on hand February 1st of $5,450 32. The borough fund shows $5,009.11, and the Watchung avenue fund $471.21.

The members of Warren Engine Company extended to the Mayor and Council an invitation to attend their fair to be held next week in Saengerbund Hall, and Mr. Rogers supplemented the invitation with a few remarks in which he urged the members to attend and assist the firemen to purchase their new uniforms.

A complaint was received from James H. Carson in which he stated that the pipes for drainage to be located at the intersection of Brook and Belmont avenues, which were promised by the Mayor, had not yet arrived. He asked that the matter be attended to. This matter was referred. Another complaint was received from W. J. Buttfield regarding the use of the Stein farm for a dumping ground. He stated that one previous occasion the Board of Health had stopped the practice and he urged that steps be taken to effectually stop it. Regarding this matter Mr. Rogers said that he thought there were merits in the complaint and he thought it would be well for the Council to watch the matter. It was finally decided that it is a case for the Board of Health and will be so referred. Mayor Wilson thought it advisable for the Board of Health to select some suitable place for a dumping ground and then secure the approval of the Council of its action.

Mr. Wooleton made his monthly report as chairman of the street committee and reported that the cost of work during the month was $186. He also stated that the committee thought it cheaper to hire a street roller at 50 a day in preference to purchasing a roller.

Mr. Burtis, chairman of the police committee, reported that during the month there were thirteen arrests, three of whom had been committed to the county jail. He also reported that $65 had been collected as fines.

Mr. MacLoughlin offered two resolutions. One was to the effect that certain names be stricken from the tax list as settlements had been effected. The other one was that a warrant be drawn for $14.63 in favor of W. W. Rowley as ten per cent. of the money collected as delinquent taxes during the past month.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution that Tuesday, March 7th, 1899, be designated as the day when the Board of Registry shall meet to revise the registry.

Another resolution was offered by Mr. Rogers that when Council adjourn it be to meet Friday evening, February 17th, at 8 o'clock. This will be the last meeting of the present Council.

At this time the members indulged in a little discussion on crosswalks. Mayor Wilson stated that an appeal had been made for one at the corner of Somerset street and Hudson lane, and that he thought it should be granted. Mr. McLoughlin spoke for one at the corner of Somerset street and Codington avenue. Mr. Woolston wanted to know what was the matter with the sidewalk on Somerset street above Codington avenue, and Mr. Valiant asked what had become of the crosswalk promised by the Mayor on Rockview avenue. After some discussion the matters were

PROSPECTS OF TREATY

Its Supporters Confident of Sixty Votes on Monday.

SPEECHES ON EXPANSION

Mr. Wellington Leaves the Opposition and Other Senators Are Expected to Follow Him—Vote on Resolutions Likely To-day.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.--The supporters of the peace treaty show increased confidence in their ability to secure next Monday the sixty votes necessary to ratify that convention. Senator Wellington's announcement that he will vote for ratification has withdrawn one more vote from the hostile column. It is also believed that neither Mr. Mason, Mr. Hale nor Mr. Jones of Nevada will be found with the opposition when the roll is called on Monday.

Mr. Money of Mississippi and Mr. Daniel of Virginia occupied so much of the senate's time yesterday afternoon with speeches in opposition to the assumption of sovereignty by this country over the Philippines that no vote could be taken ont he various resolutions now pending which seek to declare or define this government's future policy in the far east.

Mr. Daniel did not finish his address, which was an elaborate one, oratorically as well as argumentatively, until after 5 o'clock. Three more speeches on the expansion issue will be made to-day in open session—one by Mr. Wolcott of Colorado, promising to attract wide attention.

It is generally expected, however, that a vote on the Bacon and Sullivan resolutions, at least, can be reached before adojurnment. If such a vote is taken Mr. Sullivan's declaration, being of too negative character to excite opposition, seems sure of adoption.

Experimenting on the Shamrock.

London, Feb. 4.--It is believed that no further progress in the construction of the new cup challenger Shamrock than the joining of the skeleton together has yet been made.

Will Fife, the designer of the boat, comes to Thorneycroft's yards at Chiswick from Glasgow every week and the experiments with metals are still proceeding.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the owner of the new cutter, has noted the accounts of knuckle jointing the defender, and has conferred with the designer and builders of the Shamrock on the subject No decision has been reached, except that there will be as little metal as possible on the hull of the Shamrock.

The Peace Conference.

Berlin, Feb. 4.--The Cologne Gazette in an inspired communication, foreshadows the collapse of the peace conference, and publishes the following expression of opinion under a St. Petersburg date:

"It is difficult to judge whether the new idea, which unexpectedly appeared, and according to which a conference is only possible when based upon conditions created by the existing treaties, will survive a change of persons. People of sober judgment doubt this eventually. It is well, therefore, that we, too, should join the doubters, keeping our powder dry."

A Countess Arrested.

Berlin, Feb. 4.--Countess Von Webeneau and her nephew, Herman Bolderhausen, were arrested Thursday night charged with conspiracy to defraud the Merchants' Fire Insurance Company.

The prisoners put in a claim for two thousand dollars for their goods, which they alleged were destroyed by the fire on Tuesday morning. It now turns out that they had sixteen large cases of goods at the Waterloo station addressed to Buffalo, the day before the fire. The prisoners were remanded.

The Blizzard in Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 4.--The blizzard seems to have spent its fury in Wyoming and it is thought that the worst is over. In the opinion of the best informed stockmen the losses of stock on the ranges will be found to be great. No wind of sufficient power to blow the deep snows off the feeding ground has prevailed, and as a consequence, it is argued, the cattle and sheep which have not been driven to cover and fed are bound to have perished in great numbers.

Kentucky Negro Hanged.

Lagrange, Ky., Feb. 4.--William Miller, colored, was hanged here yesterday in the jail yard and only about fifty persons witnessed it.

Miller professed religion and said he was ready to die. He was not quite seventeen years old. The crime for which Miller was hanged was a criminal assault committed September 1 on Mrs. Gertrude Lett, wife of a farmer.

Fire at Macaulay's Old Home.

London, Feb. 4.--There were exciting scenes at a fire which occurred at the birthplace of Macaulay, the historian, at Rothley Temple, Leicestershire. The villagers for miles around flocked to the scene and aided in removing the contents of the building.

Fortunately the flames were confined to the new wing and the historical portion escaped.

Ice Broke; Two Drown.

Montrose, Cal., Feb. 4.—Two little children of Will Carson, a boy and a girl, have been drowned in the Uncompahgre river near here. They were playing on the ice and broke through. One of the bodies has been recovered.

Didn't Sign the Mortgage.

Wichita, Kan., Feb. 4.--Lewis M. Hoxier, a farmer living near Wichita, dropped dead at the office of a farm loan company just as he was about to place his signature to a mortgage covering his homestead.

INDIANS FIGHTING IN ALASKA.

Four of Them Killed and Four Deputy Marshals Wounded.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 4.—Indians are reported to be on the war path in Alaska, and fighting has taken place, in which four Indians were killed and several wounded. Four American deputy marshals were wounded. The Indians are drunk.

The steamer Cutch brought the news of the fight which took place at Juneau. An Indian was killed by United States Marshal McGuire in self defence. Fearing the man's death would be avenged, by his friends, a vigilance committee was formed, which promptly captured the malcontents and took them to prison. On promising good behavior they wert liberated next day. The pretended acquiescence was a ruse. Filling themselves with liquor, the Indians planned the murder of every member of the vigilance committee. The attack was made at night. A friendly Indian warned the whites of the treachery, and as the Siwashes advanced on the town with yells the officers warned them back. They still came forward, opening fire, which the whites promptly returned. The United States marshal and his followers having the advantage of position were able to pour in a deadly fire. After the first fusillade the savages stampeded hurriedly into the darkness leaving their dead and wounded comrades on the ground.

Little Hope for Mrs. Place.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4.--Governor Roosevelt, in answer to an inquiry yesterday as to whether or not he had received a petition from the women of Brooklyn asking executive clemency for Mrs. Martha Place of Brooklyn, who has been sentenced to death, replied that he had not.

In connection with the discussion of the case the governor said that it was absolutely idle work to send him petitions in the woman's case."

"My sympathies in criminal cases," said the governor, "are for the wronged and not for the wrongdoer. The fact that the criminal is a woman makes no difference to me. I am always ready to try to see that justice is done. In ordinary cases, if a woman is found precisely as blameworthy as a man, I would punish the woman exactly as much as the man."

Surrogate Arnold Resigns.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4.--Surrogate John H. V. Arnold of New York city at noon yesterday had his resignation of that office filed with the secretary of state.

Charles H. Beckett of the firm of Booraem, Hamilton & Beckett of New York city will probably be appointed by Governor Roosevelt as surrogate to succeed Arnold. Mr. Beckett was the assistant surrogate who went into office after the Roosevelt investigation of the surrogate's office of New York city in 1884. He is considered the best posted man in New York city on practice in the surrogate's courts, and is understood to have the hearty backing of the Republican organization as well as the Independents in the New York City Bar Association.

Exposition for St. Louis.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.--A delegation of St. Louis citizens, among whom were ex-Governor Francis and Richard C. Kerens, visited the president yesterday morning in behalf of the proposed exposition to be held in St. Louis in 1903.

The object of the exposition, as the delegation explained to the president, will be to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the Louisiana purchase. It is proposed to make the fair of international interest, but it is to be held under the special auspices of the states once included in the territory purchased from France in the year 1803.

The president expressed interest in the project and said he hoped it would be successful.

Whiskey Concern's Big Capital

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 4.--The certificate of incorporation of the Kentucky Distillers' & Warehouse Company formed to control the Kentucky whiskey output, was filed yesterday afternoon with the secretary of state.

The total capital stock is placed at thirty-two million dollars, and the incorporators given on the certificate are E. F. C. Young and A. Q. Garretson of Jersey City and Edson Bradley of New York.

The stock is to be divided into three hundred and twenty thousand shares, one hundred and twenty thousand of which are to be preferred, and pay a seven per cent. dividend. The fee for filing the certificate was sixty-four hundred dollars.

Panama Canal Negotiations.

London, Feb. 4.--The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs that he has consulted with a high French authority regarding the Panama Company's negotiations to induce the United States government to acquire the canal. The authority in question said:

"I regard the negotiations as a mere game of bluff between the Panama company and the Washington authorities. The company is really anxious to effect a virtual sale, while Congress is not serious in the Nicaraguan affair because all the evidence proves the advantages of the Panama route."

Pierced Her Heart.

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 4.--Mrs. Edward Dudley, wife of a well known Hartford tobacconist, committed suicide in her apartments on Thursday evening by piercing her heart with a bread knife.

The knife was dull and required much strength to make the incision. Mrs. Dudley, who was seated in a reclining chair, allowed herself to bleed to death and made no effort to remove the knife. She was about forty years of age.

Berlin, Feb. 4.—The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes: Cash in hand decreased 9,420,000 marks; treasury notes decreased 100,000 marks; other securities increased 12,100,000 marks; notes in circulation increased 15,180,000 marks.

ACTION AS TO MILES

A Court of Inquiry After War Board Reports Probable.

DISCUSSED BY THE CABINET

President Thinks the Charges Too Serious to Be Ignored and That a Military Investigation Will be Fair to Everybody.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.--The outcome of the Miles controversy will probably be a court of inquiry to be ordered immediately after the war investigating commission makes its report.

General Miles will not be suspended or deposed pending the inquiry. Such was the sentiment developed at the cabinet meeting yesterday.

When a suggestion was made by one of the cabinet officers that a court of inquiry should be ordered, the president and the other cabinet members heartily concurred. The president said it was due to General Miles, to the country and to the meat packing interests that furnished the supplies that steps be taken at once to ascertain what information General Miles had on the subject.

The president said that the charges were too serious to be ignored. The suggestion was made that Gen. Miles be suspended pending the inquiry, but the president took the ground that it would be better not to do this, as it might have the appearance of prejudging the case.

The cabinet discussed the entire matter, but decided not to act definitely on the subject until the war commission had reported and it was learned what information it had obtained on the subject of the beef furnished to the army.

One of the cabinet members said that the report of the commission might contain all the testimony required in the beef matter, and other procedure in regard to General Miles might be necessary.

There was some talk in regard to a court martial, but it was not seriously considered, nor was there any discussion or even suggestion of removing or deposing General Miles from his position of general commanding the army.

The president is anxious to wait for the report of the war commission before anything is decided in the Miles case. This report will be in the president's hands next week. Any action now in the Miles case might also influence the vote on the peace treaty, and the postponement therefore throws the whole matter over until not only after the war commission reports, but after the vote in the Senate.

General Alger was most anxious that General Miles be called to account at once, but the president thought the best way was to go slow and the cabinet sustained him. If a board of inquiry is ordered, General Miles will have the opportunity he has been calling for to produce his proofs in regard to the alleged bad beef. If, however, General Miles cannot substantiate his charges he will be court martialed.

The board of inquiry, if one is ordered, will be composed of three officers.

The Milk Trust.

New York, Feb. 4.--The milk trust, which will have its principal office in the New Jersey Corporations' Agency, Hudson County National Bank building, Jersey City, was incorporated yesterday. The incorporators are Charles N. King, Richard F. Ryan, and A. McMahon.

The trust is capitalized at thirty million dollars. It will be known as the New England Dairy Company, and will swallow up all the milk concerns in Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York. The Borden people are said to be back of the scheme.

Secretary Bliss's Retirement.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—The change of the head of the interior department is expected to occur about the middle of this month, though no definite word has been received from Ambassador Hitchcock, the newly appointed secretary. The latter was expected to sail from St. Petersburg about New Year's day, but was unable to arrange his affairs there by that time, and planned to make his departure on January 28. If he got away at that time he will reach here in season to relieve Secretary Bliss by the 15th or earlier.

Work on the Reina Mercedes.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 4.--Advices received yesterday from the Merritt Company's wreckers at Santiago are to the effect that the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes will be floated in two weeks, should the present good weather continue.

Investigation shows that the Mercedes was scuttled, but as the machinery is not much damaged it is thought that she can come here under her own steam.

The wreckers say that there is a bare possibility of floating the Cristobal Colon.

A New Treaty Port.

Pekin, Feb. 4.--The Tsung-li-Yamen has agreed to open as a treaty port the city of Nan Ning, in the province of Kuang See, on the river Fu, near the Tonquin frontier, which the British consider necessary for the exportation of the West river.

The Tsung-li-Yamen has also agreed to pay $30,000 to the relatives of the murdered British missionary, Mr. Fleming, and two of the murderers have been beheaded, the military mandarin of the locality has been banished and two officials have been degraded.

The Treaty Nearly Ready.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—The work of the Canadian high joint commission is nearly finished and some of the American members believe it may be possible for the Senate to vote on the treaty negotiated this session.

It is understood that the president will be informed in a few days when the treaty will be ready for the upper branch of Congress.

A compromise is expected on the reciprocity clause of the agreement.

Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

A New York journeyman printer writes: "On Saturday last I went to see one of the best if not the best physician and surgeon in Brooklyn. After paying some money I owed, we spoke of my boy of ten years whom I had along with me. The boy was not feeling well, his stomach appeared to be out of order and he was getting thin. I told the doctor that I had given the boy a Ripans Tabule the night before. Then I told him what the ingredients were—rhubarb, ipecac, peppermint, nux vomica and soda—and he exclaimed 'What's that? What's that?' Upon repeating the formula he said, 'Good, very good. You could not give him anything better. The rhubarb is what he needs for the stomach, and the nux will tone up the system. Continue giving him one each night and he will be all right.' He gave me no further prescription for the boy and charged me nothing for the advice."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (12 tablets) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Failures During the Month of January Very Small.

New York, Feb. 4.--Failures in January were smaller than in any previous month except August, 1898, and July, 1897, and the proportion of solvent payments to clearing house exchanges is smaller than in any month of which records exist. In January they were but 86 cents per $1,000 clearing house payments, and the smallest in any previous month had been about $1.08 per $1,000.

The manufacturing failures were the smallest excepting August, 1898.

Considering that January is usually one of the largest months of the year in failures, the return is surprising as well as encouraging.

There is an epidemic of consolidations. Never before have so many organizations of that sort been in operation or in progress. While ignorant pdejudice condemns all though many are beneficial, it seems probable that the business is at present being much overdone. Some of the most important corporations are wisely and conservatively managed. But others are hoisting prices without much reason or sense after paying for properties more than they were worth to previous owners. In some cases the purchases will prove unprofitable.

The most remarkable feature of the week has been the decline of 5 cents in wheat, with only half a cent in corn and only a sixteenth in cotton. The government estimate of the wheat crop, six hundred and seventy-five million bushels, has more influence than any other from that source for a number of years because it is recognized as the result of great efforts to get at the truth, and is therefore considered about the lowest estimate admissible.

A very strong market for cotton goods has prevailed, and prevents raw cotton from declining. The advance in goods has been unusual, and is sustained by heavy buying especially of print cloths and kindred products. A better tone appears in the woolen goods market also, with some important grades which were opened at a great reduction in prices recently advanced, which has stimulated the demand for all grades.

The iron industry is advancing prices of products rather than of materials. Pig has remained without change this week, anticipating that six or seven furnaces will be put into blast as soon as possible. The demand is strong, but not apparently urgent at the chief markets.

As yet the prices of products do not seem to disturb the foreign demand, which is yet strong, but in all the minor metals the London market is singularly uncertain.

Money does not change in demand, although foreign exchange has advanced with heavy sales of stocks, for everybody knows that the balance due this country on merchandise account has been so large that no stock transactions can even approximately balance the account.

Imports at New York have been 5.1 per cent. larger than last year for January, although exports have been 23 per cent. larger, indicating an excess of exports over imports for the month of more than fifty million dollars.

Failures for the week have been 221 in the United States, against 335 last year, and 25 in Canada against 39 last year.

A FILIPINO MANIFESTO.

The American Administration Said to be Worse Than that of Spain.

Hong Kong, Feb. 4.—The Filipino junta here has issued the following statement:

"Simultaneously with the proclamation of the republic, Aguinaldo released the Spanish war prisoners as an act of grace.

"The Spanish imposition of the poll tax is enforced by the Americans with greater severity. Formrly the poorest paid $2 and the rich $37. Now the lowest pay $5 and the rich $100, which is greatly exasperating the people.

"Gambling, cock fighting, bribing, squeezing and the American abuses of the customs are causing demoralization. The Spanish corrupt, despotic system seems to be the moral of the American executive.

"The Manila Filipinos are indignant at the notion of the American journals that they will tamely submit to be experimented with by amateur colonial administrators, and hope the decision of the United States Senate on Monday will be of a nature to satisfy their aspirations as frequently expressed."

Four Killed by a Train.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 4.--A two-horse wagon loaded with furniture, on which were six persons, five men and a young woman, was struck yesterday by a fast Baltimore and Ohio freight train at the crossing at Riverton station, just above McKeesport.

Four of the men were killed and the other man and the young woman were so badly injured that they will probably die.

Mrs. George Must be Tried.

Canton, Ohio, Feb. 4.--Judge Taylor yesterday overruled the motion to quash the indictment against Anna E. George. Attorney Sterling was not in court.

Attorney Welty noted exceptions to the ruling, and gave notice of the filing of a plea in abatement. The plea will probably be filed next week. Mrs. George was in court.

Kaiser and the Dreyfus Case.

London, Feb. 4.--A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company alleges that the German emperor has indirectly urged the court of cassation to examine General Schneegans and Colonel Stoffel of the German army respecting the forged letters purporting to have been written by the kaiser.

Notorious Convict Recaptured.

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Feb. 4.--Mike Rafter, one of the most notorious criminals of northern New York, who escaped from the Essex county jail last fall, was captured at Clintonville on Thursday evening by Deputy Sheriff Charles Partlett of Jay and taken back to jail.

CANAL BILL REPORT

House Substitutes Hepburn for Morgan Measure.

THE IMPORTANT CHANGES

Appropriation Reduced from One Hundred and Forty Millions to One Hundred and Fifteen Million—Other Amendments.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.--The House committee on interstate and foreign commerce yesterday directed a favorable report on the Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill with amendments as a substitute for the Morgan bill passed by the Senate.

The feature of the bill is that it authorizes the president to acquire from Nicaragua and Costa Rica the territory necessary to build the canal and then to proceed with the construction of the canal. One hundred and fifteen million dollars is appropriated for the completion of the work.

The changes made in the original Hepburn bill are in reducing the appropriation from $140,000,000 to $115,000,000, striking out the provision for the acquisition of "full ownership, jurisdiction and sovereignty" over the route, and in adding civil engineers from the navy and civil life to those of the army for the purpose of making surveys, etc.

When the subject was taken up by the committee yesterday Mr. Livering of Massachusetts moved that the Morgan Senate bill be taken up, all after the enacting clause struck out and the Hepburn bill substituted. This was approved and the substituted bill was then changed in some particulars. On motion of Mr. Barham of California, the requirements for full ownership and sovereignty over the route was struck out.

An amendment by Mr. Sherman of New York authorizing the president to negotiate with private companies or associations for concessions, rights, etc., was defeated.

Mr. Hinrichsen of Illinois secured the adoption of an amendment reducing the total appropriation from $140,000,000 to $115,000,000.

The Amended Bill.

As thus amended the substitute bill was agreed to by a practically unanimous vote, and Mr. Hepburn was directed to report to the House.

The bill in its amended form is as follows:

"That the president of the United States be, and is hereby authorized to acquire, by purchase from the States of Costa Rica and Nicaragua, for and in behalf of the United States of such portion of territory now belonging to Costa Rica and Nicaragua or either of them as may be desirable and necessary on which to excavate, construct and defend a canal of such depth and capacity as will be sufficient for the movement of ships of the greatest tonnage and draught now in use, from a point near Greytown, on the Carribean sea, via Lake Nicaragua, to Breto, on the Pacific ocean; and such sum as may be necessary to make such purchase is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated."

Section 2. That when the president has secured the territory in section one referred to, he shall direct the secretary of war to excavate and construct a canal and waterway from a point on the shore of the Caribbean sea, near Greytown, by way of Lake Nicaragua, to a point near Brito, on the Pacific ocean. Such canal shall be of sufficient capacity and depth that it may be used by vessels of the largest tonnage and greatest depth now in use and shall be supplied with all the necessary locks and other appliances to meet the necessities of vessels passing from Greytown to Brito, and the secretary of war shall also construct such safe and commodious harbors at the terminal of said canal and such fortifications for defence as will be required for the convenience and safety of all vessels desiring the use of said canal.

Section 3. That in making surveys for said canal and harbors the secretary of war shall detail such number of engineer officers of the army, navy and civil as may be necessary and may require of them the performance of professional duties as he may desire.

Section 4. That in the excavation and construction of said canal the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua or such parts of each as may be made available, shall be used.

Section 5. That in any negotiations with the states of Costa Rica or Nicaragua the president may have, the president is authorized to guarantee to said states the use of said canal and harbors upon such terms as may be agreed upon, for all vessels owned by said states or by citizens thereof.

Section 6. That the sum of $115,000,000, or so much as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the completion of the work herein authorized, said money to be drawn from the treasury from time to time, as the same shall be needed on warrants of the president, based on estimates made and verified by the chief engineer in charge of the work and approved by the secretary of war.

When reported the bill will have the parliamentary status of a Senate bill, so that if the substitute is agreed to the subject will go to a conference committee and final results expedited.

Big Fire in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4.—A fire which started soon after four o'clock yesterday morning destroyed two large blocks of buildings devoted to manufacturing purposes, fronting on Thirteenth street and extending from Willow to Hamilton streets, and from the latter to Buttonwood sreet. The losses are divided among eight or ten firms, and in the aggregate are about $750,000.

Rhyniand Moved Again.

Lewes, Del., Feb. 4.—The steamer Rhyniand, which went ashore on Cotton Patch Shoal on Tuesday night, was pulled seventy feet nearer deep water yesterday morning. Another attempt was made at high tide yesterday to release her.

GEN. GOMEZ'S ACCEPTANCE.

Some of the Cuban Officers Are Disappointed.

Havana, Feb. 4.--The news of General Maximo Gomez's acceptance of the proposals of President McKinley has not yet been thoroughly weighed in this city. The Cuban leaders seem uncertain, for the moment, whether to support General Gomez or criticise him. Public opinion had been wrought up to demand and expect a larger payment, and some of the Cuban major generals who have not been consulted may strongly disapprove of an agreement which gives them a minute portion of the $20,000 each of them expected.

The following message from President McKinley was received by Mr. Porter yesterday morning and was transmitted to General Maximo Gomez:

Hon. Robert P. Porter, Havana:

The president sends his hearty congratulations and thanks for your dispatch. Convey his grateful appreciation of the general's frank and friendly message. The co-operation of General Gomez in the pacification of Cuba will be of the greatest value for both peoples.

JOHN HAY,
Secretary of State.

The payment of the department employes has been proceeding for the last few days. The custom house has been furnishing funds to the other departments for this purpose, and yesterday for the first time in months the employes have known a punctual and full payment of their salaries, at which they are much pleased.

TERRITORY FOR CANADA.

It Is Proposed to Give British Skaguay Dyea.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4—The subcommittee of the Alaska boundary of the Canadian high commission has prepared a report fixing the boundary west of the cities of Skaguay and Dyea, so as to place those cities and a considerable portion of the Lynn canal, the means of reaching them, in Canada.

The property proposed to be acknowledged as Canadian territory is, according to late estimates, worth a hundred million of dollars.

Ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster is on the sub-committee, but it is doubtful if the American commissioners will endorse his action.

$10,000 Monument for Maine Sailors.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Mr. Hale chairman of the naval affairs committee, in the Senate yesterday favorably reported the following joint resolution and it was adopted:

"That the secretary of the navy is hereby authorized to have erected in the Colon cemetery at Havana, Cuba, a suitable granite monument to the memory of the sailors and marines who lost their lives by the explosion of the United States battleship Maine, in the harbor of Havana on the fifteenth day of January, 1898, and whose remains are buried in that cemetery, and to suitably inscribe and inclose such monument, and the sum of ten thousand dollars is appropriated for this purpose.

From President to Pauper.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—A local paper printed yesterday the details of the fall of ex-President Gutierrez of Salvador from president to pauper as obtained from letters received here from Honduras, which state that the once popular president of Salvador is now living on alms from strangers. His fall is timed from the disruption of the union of the Central American republics, which he instituted.

He made Regaldo commander of the army and the latter is accused of betraying Gutierrez as president. The latter was forced to fly to Honduras for safety.

Saving Lives at Havana.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.--Secretary Alger has received a telegram from General Ludlow, governor of the city of Havana, showing a greatly improved sanitary condition in that city. His telegram is as follows:

"Death rate for January reduced 40 per cent. below last year. Causes, sanitation of streets and house cleaning; local points of inspection; vigilance in watching and isolating infectious cases; medicines and supplies to sick and food to starving."

Indorse President's Stand.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 4.--A lively debate was caused in the House yesterday by the calling up of a resolution indorsing the president's policy with respect to the Philippines and the treaty of peace, and pledging him the hearty support of the legislature of Pennsylvania.

The Democrats opposed the resolution, while the Republicans lined up for it.

The resolution was adopted.

Dinner to Archbishop.

Rome, Feb. 4.--The United States ambassador, General William F. Draper, gave a dinner Thursday night in honor of Archbishop Ireland. The guests included Archbishop Keane, formerly rector of the Catholic University at Washington; Mgr. Stener, Rev. Dr. William O'Connell, rector of the American College in Rome, M. Julian Story and Messrs. Abbott and Tracy Peck, directors of the American Art and Classical schools.

To Improve the Canals.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4.--Mr. Allds, the Republican leader of the assembly, has introduced three appropriation bills. One appropriates $255,000 from the canal debt sinking fund for the payment of the interest on the canal debt after October 1, 1899. Also $661,672.32 for the improvement of the Erie, Champlain and Oswego canals. The amount is the unexpended balance of the five million dollars appropriated in 1897.

Another Court-Martial.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4.--Adjutant General Roe has issued an order for the court martial of Captain Horatio P. Witherstine of the Thirty-first separate company of Mohawk, who is charged by the supervisors of Herkimer county with certain irregularities in the administration of his armory.

WHEN WE WERE BOYS.

An Incident of the Last Day of School Recalled.

When we lived in the country; when vacation began the Friday before the Fourth; when every boy and girl in the school dressed up in good clothes and "spoke a piece"—wasn't it a great day, that Friday before the Fourth? All the school trustees were there; your mother came, and you wished she wouldn't look at you and smile so much. You were afraid the boys would tease you when school was out, and call you "Mamma's pet."

You got up early in the morning and went into the garden and picked sweet elysiums and old-fashioned clove pinks and sweetbriar roses and Bouncing Betties and bachelor buttons and white and pink sweet peas. Your grandmother made them into a nosegay, and ran to school without stopping to look for a bird's nest. All the boys and girls were there early. Each one brought a basketful of flowers. The teacher had her clean pink muslin pinned up over her stiff white skirts. She was standing on the platform, bossing the big girls. The big girls were making wreaths of oak and maple leaves. They pinned the leaves together with their green stems.

"When Freedom from her mountain heights Unfurls her standard to the air."

The teacher sent the big boys out for big maple branches, and the big boys went whooping off to the grove.

When you went in the door with your nosegay all the big girls exclaimed "Oh, ain't it lovely!" and the little girls said "Teacher, teacher, here's more flowers!" Then you went into the entry and put the flowers in a great tub full of ferns. Then the teacher called you in and said "Now, you little fellows, come hand me the flags." The teacher climbed up on her desk and you little fellows handed her the flags. Then the teacher nailed the flags up above the blackboard, crossed just like the flags in a picture. All the big girls stood off and said "A little more to the left," and "Now that's right," until the flags were just right.

Some one who was very clever and who was going to the city to be an artist some day had drawn two beautiful blue-chalk eagles on the board. And some one who could write better than the teacher had written "Hurrah for the Glorious Fourth!" in red chalk. Altogether the blackboard looked beautiful to you.

Then the big boys came tramping in with the maple boughs. When the boughs were all nailed up, and when the wreaths drooped in festoons around the room, the teacher took the bouquets and set one on each desk. Then she unpinned her pink skirts and rustled them all out, nice and stiff, marched up on the platform and rang the bell. You all scuffled to your seats and folded your arms from ear to ear with pure delight and excitement.

The teacher touched the bell again and you all stood up like soldiers. She touched it again and you all burst out singing "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." The little girl in the seat across the aisle looked just like a little wild rose, in her fresh dress, with a bunch of flowers pinned to her belt. The boy in front of you had a deep bass voice, he couldn't get a tune and he just mumbled along.

He couldn't keep his eyes off the girl across the aisle, either, and you made up your mind you'd have something to say to him when school was out. When the song was done the teacher called "John," and a big boy lumbered up to the platform and recited "At Midnight in His Guarded Tent." He was giggling at the time. The teacher scolded and he said he could not help it.

Four little girls got up and sang the song of the four seasons. Then you recited "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere." You forgot your lines and stammered, and went on again. A funny little girl recited "Barbara Frietchie." Before you knew it the morning was gone and the rehearsal was over.

Some one knocked and there stood the trustees; some one else knocked, and there stood the minister; and then a whole stream of people came, a perfect crowd, fifteen or twenty. They filled the little schoolroom up, and you kept thinking of that awful ride of Paul Revere. All you could remember was "Now listen, my children, an' you shall hear."——

At that moment the teacher rang the bell and you found yourself standing, you didn't know how. And before you knew it "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue" rang through the little school house with a vigor and a fire in it that would have moved a multitude to enthusiasm.

When the "last day" was over and the Fourth came, do you remember the getting up at sunrise? Do you remember the torpedoes you put in the cracks of the door hinges? Do you remember the picnic, and the oration, and the fireworks in the evening? Do you remember—but these are never forgotten.

The glue on envelopes is often made from decaying scraps collected in slaughter-houses. And yet people will go on licking their envelopes!

The Borough Election.

The News editor bucked up against the State laws Thursday in his discussion of borough politics. The News editor says:

There is probably nothing this season to cause any anxiety over the introduction of a new half of the Council and a new Mayor, but in a case of some municipal question, for which a contest would be worth waging at the election, it might mean a good deal as to who the three new Councilmen and Mayor might be, for the remaining members would have only half the voting power, and with the Mayor against them a completely new order of things could be established in the face of all that had been done previously for the welfare of the borough, supposing the north part of Plainfield had any such candidates for office who would not consult the best interests of the municipality.

The editorial also states "that Mr. Ball was chosen to fill out the year in place of Tunis J. Carey. * * * Had Mr. Ball been chosen to fill out Mr. Carey's unexpired term the balance of power would still remain with the present Council, and only two new men would have to be elected this year."

The laws of 1897, chapter 3, section 4, says:

"Provided, that their (Councilmen) terms shall be arranged, by lot, if necessary, so that the term of one shall expire at the end of each year; all vacancies occurring in any of such offices from any cause shall be filled by appointment till the next annual election, and until the election and qualification of a successor; at said annual election the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired term only; the term of office of all elective offices shall begin on the Monday after the election."

It would appear from the above stated law that the Mayor and Council had acted in accordance therewith.

The Curfew Law.

Since the agitation for a curfew ordinance grows apace in New Jersey, and especially in Plainfield, the following observations from the Presbyterian Journal on that curious feature of municipal law will be interesting and instructive:

About four hundred American cities have adopted the curfew law. All boys and girls under fifteen years of age are required to be at home at 8 o'clock at night from October to March, and 9 o'clock from March to October. Policemen are required when making an arrest to take their young prisoners home and ascertain their parents' wishes. A writer says: "The officials of Indianapolis, St. Joseph, DesMoines, etc., report a decrease of eighty per cent. in arrests and commitments of youths since the curfew law was adopted. It was supposed at first that there would be a vast amount of indiscriminate arresting of boys and girls. The contrary proves to be true; some of the cities and towns report but two or three arrests annually. The Mayor of North Platte, Neb., reports that for two years before passing the curfew law they sent fourteen boys and girls to the Reform School. For two years after passing the curfew law they did not send any. The Chief of Police of Pueblo, Col., says: 'Many young girls between the ages of thirteen and sixteen, who were formerly on the streets as late as 12 o'clock at night, now stay at home and have been saved by the curfew ordinance.' The Mayor of Leavenworth, Kansas, says the curfew ordinance works like a charm and all the mothers are in love with it. Numerous cities and councils have already passed resolutions endorsing the curfew. The City Council of Lincoln, Neb., says: 'The practical results to the youth of the city, growing out of the enactment of the curfew law, have been such as to satisfy the members of the Council that it should be adopted at the earliest moment by the Council of every city, town and village in the country.' The Chief of Police of St. Joseph, Mo., says: 'Not half a dozen arrests of youths have occurred under the curfew law, and there has been a decrease of seventy-five per cent. in crimes among the youth.'"

Nearly $200,000,000 in gold is stored in the vault of the New York clearing house, but the managers have decided to enlarge the vault to hold $50,000,000 more. They are fearful that even this will afford room enough to accommodate the constantly increasing flow of the yellow metal into the clearing house. The natural result of such a condition will be to lower the rates of interest, as it is preferable for capitalists to invest their money at the smallest interest rather than let so many millions lie idle.

General Gomez has accepted Uncle Sam's offer of $3,000,000 to distribute among the Cuban Army and send the soldiers home. We wonder what Aguinaldo's price would be for the same service in the Phillipines?

New York is talking of having a three-cent cab service. Report fails to say whether or not an insurance policy goes with the ride.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The farmer is like most other people; he will not pay for anything if he can get someone else to do it for him. This is particularly true in the case mentioned, for which the farmer has to hustle in great shape to raise money to pay his taxes, the revenue of the State is so large and the money comes so easy that some people think legislation should be invoked to stem the tide that is coming this way. The average farmer is in favor of letting money come in and putting it where it will do the most good.—Morris Jerseyman.

The pastors of New Brunswick churches are contemplating the formation of a pastors' league. The prime mover is Rev. P. T. Pockman, of the First Reformed church, of New Brunswick. The principal object against which the league is directed is the practice of holding funerals Sunday. The claim is made that Sunday ministers are so busy with pastoral duties that they have little time for other matters.

* * * * * *

Every afternoon as the 3:45 express train from New York crosses the Park avenue bridge at 4:36 o'clock, Druggist Armstrong, whose establishment is at the corner of Park and North avenues, excuses himself from any customer that he may be waiting upon at the time. Going to the door of his establishment he watches until the engine crosses the bridge. Then William Aiten, the engineer, throws a kiss to Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Armstrong throws a kiss to Engineer Aiten. Thus it has been for many years and will probably continue as long as they both live. Engineer Aiten is a Christian man, as well as one of the best engineers on the Jersey Central Railroad and Mr. Armstrong has a warm spot in his heart for him.

Several years ago, Engineer Aiten was selected from all the engineers in the employ of that company to see how quick he could make the trip from Jersey City to Bound Brook with his pet engine No. 169, attached to one of the Royal Blue Line trains, for Washington. The time he made has since stood as a standard which the other engineers are expected to make. While Engineer Aiten made the trip daily from Jersey City to Bound Brook and return, he was granted the unsual privilege of taking his engine home to Somerville from Bound Brook every every night, and bringing it back in the morning. He lives in Somerville. It is usually the custom for an engineer to leave his locomotive at the end of his run and then go to his home on the first local train.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Augustin Daly announces that Burton Holmes will again give the annual series of matinee lectures at his theatre in New York during Lent, this being the second season of this talented young successor to Mr. John L. Stoddard at this home of the matinee Lenten lecture. The subjects announced are of unusual interest, which fact, combined with the excellent reputation acquired by Mr. Holmes last season here, gives promise of a most successful engagement. All of Mr. Holmes pictures are taken by himself and are magnificently colored, in addition to which, he adds a series of motion pictures to each lecture adding greatly to their interest and educational value. The subjects will be "The Hawaiian Islands," "Into Morocco," "Fez, the Metropolis of the Moors," "Grecian Journeys" and "The Grand Canyon of Arizona." There will be six courses, exactly alike, four courses given on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays in the mornings and two on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, beginning February 20th.

—A masquerade ball will be given at Higgins' hall, South Plainfield, on Monday evening, February 13th.

—The local builders and contractors predict that there will be a big boom in building in this city next spring.

—At the regular meeting of Gazelle Engine Company, No. 1, March 1st, there will be an amendment to the by-laws.

—Under the direction of Street Commissioner Gavett the crosswalks about town were cleaned off yesterday afternoon.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 4—Nicholas Alberts, who was paroled Thursday evening by Judge Clark, came up before the Judge last evening for sentence. The Judge, after reviewing the evidence thoroughly and together with Nick's previous good character, concluded to impose a fine of $2 and cost of court. The Judge found the evidence had been very conflicting, but by the plaintiff's own testimony he acknowledged to the court he had invited them to spend a short time in a warmer climate.

Rev. Mr. Schott and wife, of New York have been visiting friends in town. Mr. Schott is the minister who has occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church several times and may have the pastorate of the church tendered him.

The Baptist and Methodist churches unite in the monthly union service in the Baptist church Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Woodruff, of the M. E. church, will preach.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 4.—At the meeting of the Township Committee held last evening Committeeman Dennis, who at the last meeting of the committee introduced a resolution recommending an appropriation for the purpose of ascertaining how much money was spent in Westfield for water and electric lights stated that the movement had been taken by some of the people as a political move and that he would, therefore, like to reconsider the resolution and have it laid on the table. This was done and then Mr. Dennis made a motion that Martin Welles, a Republican, and W. S. Welch, a Democrat, be appointed a committee to meet with five others appointed by them to talk over the matter and report at the next meeting of the committee. The motion was carried.

Mrs. John Wherry, of Red Bank, a former resident of Westfield, who spent thirty days as a missionary in China and whose husband is now a missionary at Pekin, China, is the guest of Mrs. M. J. Gildersleeve on Kimball avenue.

Rev. E. E. Davidson, of Newtonville, Mass., who some time ago conducted special services in the Presbyterian church here, is spending the day with Rev. N. W. Cadwell, at the Presbyterian manse.

In all stages of Nasal Catarrh there should be cleanliness. As experience proves Ely's Cream Balm is a cleanser, soother and healer of the diseased membrane. It is not drying nor irritating, and does not produce sneezing. To test it a trial size is mailed for 10 cents or the large for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Druggist keep it. Upon being placed into the nostrils it spreads over the membrane and relief is immediate. It is an agreeable cure.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—On Monday evening next the regular meeting of the City Council will be held.

—Some first-class bargains are to be had at VanArsdale's annual clearance sale of shoes.

—One week from next Monday the annual masquerade ball will be given in Saengerbund Hall.

—Wednesday evening, February 22d, the anniversary of the Reform Club will be celebrated.

—J. M. McNaughton, of West Front street, is having his house painted an attractive color.

—Next Tuesday evening an important meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will be held.

—Another lecture in the series will be given next Monday morning in the Borough Public High School.

—Many improvements are being made to the home of Mrs. Robert Radford, on West Front street.

—Next Monday evening the fair under the auspices of Warren Engine Company, of the borough, will open in Saengerbund Hall.

—Next week a vitascope entertainment will be given in the Parochial School hall for the benefit of the Plainfield Catholic Club.

—In a very short time L. A. Hummer will open a meat market in his new building, corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue.

—Leggett, the druggist, has made a decided improvement in the prescription department of his store which will give him increased facilities for prescription work.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will hold its service tomorrow in the afternoon at the close of the session of the Sunday school instead of in the evening.

—Chief Marshal Wilson, of the borough, chased two "Weary Willies," out of his domain yesterday afternoon. They were looking for opportunities to secure help on their journey.

—A special Christian Endeavor Day service will be held at Trinity Reformed church tomorrow evening. Clifford P. Case, a young student from Rutgers College, will be present and deliver the address. Special music will be a feature of the evening.

—There is some honest hammering of prices on dry goods and house furnishing at White's busy store, not a few specials but in every department in the store goods have been marked at quick selling prices. It means to you much money to be saved. They tell of many of the good values in their announcement.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve Remedy, all pain soon left him. He says that this grand medicine is what his country needs. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

CRANKS' COLUMN.

Suggestions that Emanate from Pens of Bicycle Riders.

A woman lecturing in Brooklyn avers that "bicycling develops only the legs, and the upper part of the body must have other exercise to equalize the effects." The idea! Bicycling develops a lot of things. It affects the muscles of nearly the entire physical system. It develops the arms because of their exercise in steering; it develops the lungs, because it causes deep breathing; it develops the vocal cords, because of their use in remonstrating with dogs, drivers and pedestrians who obstruct the cyclist's path; at the same time it develops the power of language through the situations it provides which require the faculty of high speech for adequate dealing with them. Cycling develops the stomach, by giving its devotees a hearty appetite; it develops the heart, by setting it beating; it develops the hands, as they hold the handle bar; and, in the case of scorchers, cycling also produces the "bicycle face" and the "ostrich neck." Cycling is great in its all-round effects, morally and physically.

The bicycle meets with little sympathy from those who make by-laws in the city of Montreal. The City Council has already decreed that each wheel ridden within its limits must pay an annual tax of $2, and must be provided with a lighted lamp at night and a bell at all times. The wheelmen, however, must pass all street corners at no faster speed that that at which a horse can walk. Now the Park and Ferries Committee has declared that wheels are debarred from St. Helen's Island, one of the most frequented parks and summer resorts of the city. St. Helen's Island is in the St. Lawrence river, just opposite the city, and the reason given for its being denied to bicyclists is that the latter would be a nuisance to the large number of women and children who frequent it on the hot days of summer.

The Turnpike Trust also have given notice of application to the Provincial Legislature for power to levy a tax on all bicyclists using any of the country roads leading out from the city.

"Up against it again!" gloomily remarked the man who pronounces "athletic" in four syllables.

"How's that?" asked the woman who wears white gloves with black stitching.

"Thought I had a sure thing the other day, and was thrown as usual. Was in a bicycle store when a fellow came in to buy a cyclometer. Said his had give out after he had ridden 560 miles. Was trying for a season's record, and hated to begin over again. Salesman said he could fix it. Took new cyclometer, fixed it on wheel, upended the thing in the store, and began to turn. Reeled off 560 miles in no time. Thought I saw my graft. Went to a guy I know, and bet him I could ride more miles in a week than he could. It was to be decided by our cyclometers. Bought new cyclometer, went up in attic and began to turn. Struck a hot box at the 287th mile and stuck fast. Never happened to a cyclometer before. Just my luck."—Buffalo Express.

Ain't you 'fraid to ride that bicycle-cul?

Land no! When one can keep her perpendiculum over the center of aggravation the laws of contraction is comeover, and it's easy—daid easy.

Had I wished to know the time at 8 o'clock this morning in Hyde Park I could have had it for the asking. Several gentlmen passed me, and with an ease which was wonderful took their watches out of their pockets to study the hour. It was pleasant to see the elegant manner in which they could perform the clever feat of steering with one hand. I really did not know it could be achieved so well. Last year cyclists a la mode used to wipe their sweating brows with perfumed handkerchiefs, and they would light their cigarettes while swinging their bodies gracefully; this season nous avons change tout cela. The correct thing is to look at your chronometer while indolently you hold the handle-bar in the center by means of the right hand. All ye new cyclists, take the hint.—London Wheeling.

Joe Grimes, the 500-pound representative of an American wheel, created a sensation in Ireland last week, especially when he cycled through the streets. When he wanted to ride on an Irish car, for variety, there was always a commotion. Many car men absolutely refused to allow the heavy American to board their machines. Those who took him appeared quite alive to the risk, and regarded the trip with such a load as a high trial. Needless to say, with Grimes up, the cars went lopsided to a dangerous extent.

Cycle stands similar to cab stands are to be started in Berlin. It is proposed to put 250 wheels on hire in various parts of the city, and the fee for hiring will be the modest sum of 1 penny for twenty minutes during the day, and twice that sum at night.

Fascinating Lingerie.

The latest petticoats of silk or batiste are cut to fit the hips like the gowns which cover them, and short petticoats as well have this same shape. Miles of ruffling and lace are used in the frou-frou around the feet, but the top must be as scant and plain as possible. The upper skirt is vandyked or scalloped as the case may be, and finished with a ruffle of lace, or the wide flounce is scalloped and trimmed below. Chiffon flounces with tiny ruches on the edge trim some of the silk skirts of light colors. Bows of colored ribbon adorn the heading of the white flounces on the white silk skirts, and anything which makes them attractive and expensive seems to cast a spell over all womankind.

The season's corset cover is a most fascinating little trifle made of thin sheer batiste or nainsook, with narrow lace insertion encircling the waist line in a narrow belt of beading embroidery, through which ribbon is run and adjusted to the figure around the shoulders in the same way, except that the beading is lace and very narrow. It is made, too, after the French model, with no seams except under the arm. The bolero-shaped corset cover is very much liked, since it, too, does away with any superfluous material at the waist.

The bolero is used very prettily on the nightgowns like the one in the illustration and also in the Empire chemise. Dainty tucks and insertions of lace form these little jackets. A pretty model for a nightgown has an Empire waist, made by gathering the material in a sort of scant puff between two rows of embroidered insertion. A lace-edged frill forms a collar.

One article in the lingerie department which is every woman's delight is the matinee tea jacket, or dressing jacket, whichever you choose to call it. These garments range in style from the plain Geisha, with the large sleeves, up to the possible limit of extravagance in material and trimming. The Geisha is usually made of flannel and possibly cashmere, but there is a tempting display among the other jackets of Liberty silk trimmed with lace and frills of ribbon and the prettiest confections of silk and chiffon, besides no end of pretty designs carried out in fine white batiste made with fancy yokes. Jackets and petticoats to match in both silk and fine English nainsook are one of the fashionable fads, and if your corsets match your petticoat you are indeed up to date in the matter of underwear.—N. Y. Sun.

A FASHIONABLE NECK FINISH.

Bright Colors in Bad Taste.

Woman should not be tempted by the display of fancy kid gloves to be seen in many shops. They are hopelessly bad form. What woman of exquisite taste would dream of donning bright red, blue or green kids, or would be caught wearing a pair of white suedes embroidered elaborately in pink or blue, or black, in yellow and white? The Parisians are the best gloved women in the world, and the style of wearing suede gloves in white and delicate shades of tans, grays and browns prevails among them from year to year.

A Tweed Bodice.

This stylish bodice is inteded to be made of tweed goods to correspond with the skirt, the trimming being satin or velvet. It is arranged with a fitted lining, the under-arm side piece of which is to be again used for cutting the material, and this is exactly like the lining, and to be tacked to same. The material front is gathered at the waist, and hooked down centre; then arranged from the neck is a revere of satin or velvet, lined with tweed material, or else with silk, and interlined with canvas, the outer edge being finished with a silk cord, while down the front a piece of lace is gathered, full enough to allow it to fall in cascade effect. The material back, which has a seam down the centre, is stretched over the lining back and round side piece. The band collar cut in the trimming material, line with silk, and interline with canvas and bordered with fur. The coat-shape sleeve is to be cut in lining, then the under used again for cutting the material, which tack to the lining under. The material upper is first put into downward pleats on either side, then tacked over the lining upper, and the two parts stitched together by the inner and outer seams, the wrist faced up with a piece of silk, and finished with a silk cord. The shoulder fulness is gathered to lining size, and the sleeve stitched in. Quantity of 42-inch tweed, 2 yards; 22-inch satin, 1-2 yard, fur, 1-2 yard.

Colored Handkerchiefs.

Colored handkerchiefs are really coming into vogue again, it seems. It is so reported every now and then, and they are to be seen in the shops, but women are actually beginning to carry them now. The handkerchief itself generally is of fine white linen, but it is embroidered in colors. A pretty design has a wreath somewhat larger than a silver dollar embroidered in two colors in one corner. Violets, forget-me-nots, daisies and arbutus, in their natural colors, have first place in these designs. Other pretty handkerchiefs have single flowers scattered all over them, or arranged so as to form a broad border inside of the narrow hem. Handkerchiefs of pale blue, pink, green or lilac linen, checked with a contrasting shade, are considered quite smart with sporting costumes. Conservative people prefer pure white linen, plain or set off with a bit of dainty embroidery or fine lace.

A Costly Needlework Kit.

In China the ladies of high class use very dainty thimbles. Some are carved from enormous pearls, with bands of fine gold, on which are engraved all sorts of fantastic things, the etchings of which serve for catching the needle, as the holes of the outside barbarian thimbles do. The thimble always has a mother of pearl case. With the thimble the Chinese lady has a delicate pair of scissors of the finest steel, in a sheath of pearl, and a pearl needle case. The articles are all enclosed in an exquisitely inlaid case of the purest mother of pearl. A New York lady, whose husband was in the China trade, has one of these Chinese needlework kits, which she values at $2,000.—Exchange.

Good for Colds.

An excellent drink for any one suffering from a hard cold, or even the cough that comes with grip, is flax seed lemon. It is simply made. Take four tablespoonfuls of flaxseed and over them pour a quart of boiling water. Let this steep for three hours when the top should be poured off, leaving the flaxseed in the bottom of the pitcher. If the liquid is too thick it can be thinned a little with cold water. Add the juice of two lemons and sugar to taste. It is a very pleasant drink, and it loosens the cough.

Water as a Disinfectant.

Few of us realize how important a part water plays as a disinfectant. It is really such because it is a powerful absorbent. To flush closets and drains, then, is not only to wash away mechanical impurities, but to a large extent to destroy chemical poisons. A word to the wise is sufficient. It must be added, however, that a large uncovered vessel of water should stand in every sick room and be frequently renewed. The water not only absorbs many impurities from the atmosphere, but softens and tempers it. On the same principle one should never drink water that has stood uncovered in a sick room.

Bremen. Der Norddeutsche Lloyd" wird für die kommende Reisesaison einen Schnelldampferdienst zwischen New York und La Rochelle an der französischen Westküste organisiren. Die Dampfer mit dieser Linie soll nur fünf Tage in Anspruch nehmen. Die Etablirung dieser Linie hat ihren Grund in der Erwartung starken Passagierverkehrs nach und von der Pariser Weltausstellung im Jahre 1900.

Lübeck. Der Lübecker Bauverein, welcher in den zehn Jahren seines Bestehens bisher noch herzlich wenig erreicht hat, konnte unter seinem neuen Vorsitzenden, Herrn Charles Coleman, der ungemein rührig ist, im letzten halben Jahre eine recht segensreiche Thätigkeit entfalten. Es gelangten mehrere Häuser zur Erbauung, in denen den Mitgliedern des Bauvereins für billige Miethe schöne, gesunde Räume als Wohnungen geboten werden. Herr Coleman, der der ganzen Sache ein reges Interesse entgegenbringt und auch eigene pekuniäre Opfer nicht scheut, hat jetzt ein großes Areal käuflich erworben, auf welchem Einfamilienhäuser erbaut werden sollen, die die Mitglieder käuflich erwerben können.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Emperor William's book about his Oriental experiences, should contain a chapter entitled "My Association With an Assassin."

Out in Missouri the other day a man who was fined $20 for beating his mule was fined $3 the next day for beating his wife. Justice evidently works on a sliding scale out there.

From the fact that the capital prize in the last drawing of the Spanish lottery was won by the Government, it may be inferred that Spain's luck is turning. It is certainly about time.

Twelve rough riders have gone back to Santiago to grow up with the town. They remember some hardships, but personal discomforts weigh little against certain glorious memories that will be lasting.

At the end of Spain's twelve years' war against England, Germany and Holland, Philip was compelled to cede Naples, Sardinia, Parma, Milan and all the Netherlands. And not a cent in cash went to Spain by way of consolation.

American timber is exported from Oregon for the construction of the great Russian railroad through Manchura. The item would be more welcome if Oregon was doing anything to replace its splendid forests that are slashed down.

Thanks to persistent scientific experiments, the odorless onion is now a reality. The subjugation of this pervasive vegetable and the elimination of its distinguishing quality must be reckoned among the proudest achievements of modern genius. The odorless onion is fully entitled to recognition as a civilized institution.

Every old soldier who deserves a pension should have one, and every soldier's widow who is entitled to a pension under the law should have it, but when all these are accounted for, does it seem possible that, without gross dishonesty, more pensions could have been granted in the last fiscal year than at any time between 1869 and 1880, or that the list of pensions now being paid, more than a generation after the close of the war, could aggregate 1,040,356?

England has determined that her naval armament must be kept at least twice as strong as that of any other Power, and wisely so, since England has more than twice the need of any other Power for means of offence and defence in connection with her distant colonies and her vast maritime interests; but she is not going to make the mistake attributed to our naval authorities and build her new ships inferior in important respects to the old ones. And if we are going to keep control of distant islands for an indefinite time, with an excellent prospect of having to do more or less fighting for and about them, we shall want the best ships that can be built. In fact, we always want that kind, if we want any, and we cannot be satisfied with anything less.

Gov. Grady, of Alaska, contends that that territory ought to have representation in Congress, and he will doubtless find a large body of citizens in agreement with him. It would certainly be inconsistent and unjust to deny the privilege of representation to Alaska and at the same time grant it to Hawaii or Porto Rico. All American territories should be treated alike in this matter, but it is an open question whether any of them would be really benefitted by having voteless representatives in Congress. Alaska has been an American possession for thirty-one years, and has got along all right without Congressional representation. Now, however, the development of its vast resources is attracting a great inflow of immigration and capital which are rapidly increasing its territorial importance. It is a self evident proposition, therefore, that we cannot justify or consistently extend the right of representation to any of our new territories and yet withhold it from Alaska.

The most impressive portion of a report recently made to our State Department by Consul Fleming, at Edinburgh, is contained in the statement that American manufacturers cannot hope to increase their export trade merely by mailing circulars. The personal presence of an agent is desired and expected by the canny Scotch buyer. If this be true in Scotland, it must be true in every other foreign country, particularly in the Latin-American states of this continent, where the Spanish and Portuguese tongues are the vernacular. Besides this hint, this Scottish report invites attention to a promising market for the American manufacturers of harnesses and of house furnishings and fittings. There is a widening field for the individual enterprise of the protected makers of products in the United States to extend their markets in Europe and in South America, as well as in our new "open door" possessions. But this can best be done by personal representation.

The Rose, Thistle and Shamrock.

The adoption of the rose as a national flower dates so far back that old Pliny wondered if Albion took its name from its white cliffs or from its pretty white roses.

In Edward the Third's reign a gold coin was struck called a "rose noble," bearing a rose on one of its sides, and from that time the flower has been intimately associated with the nation.

The Rosicrucians of the 17th century, popularly styled the brothers of the "rosy cross," brought the rose into great prominence.

The wars of the roses has reference to the long and bloody feuds between the houses of York and Lancaster for the possession of the English crown—the white rose being the badge of the former, and the red rose that of the latter.

Regarding the thistle, tradition says that it along with its motto. "Wha daur meddle wi' me." was first adopted as a symbol under the following circumstances.

A party of invading Danes attempted to surprise and capture the Scotch army under the cloud of night. As they drew near the slumbering camp, one of the party trod upon a prickly thistle, and leaped into the air with a cry of pain. His cry aroused the Scotchmen, who flew to arms and fell upon the invaders with such courage and success that they were driven from the field.

From that day the thistle was worn as a badge, and ultimately became the emblem of Scotland.

The trefoil or three-leafed clover, the badge of Ould Ireland, has a story connected with it also.

St. Patrick, when instructing the people in religious doctrines, found great difficulty in conveying to their minds the idea of the triple Godhead. Stooping down, as the people stood around, he plucked a shamrock, and used it as an illustration, so satisfying to the Irish people that they have ever since worn it as their national emblem.

With the union of the nations came the union of the emblems, the lilies of France in Queen Victoria's Royal diadem giving place to the shamrock of the Green Isle.

The Head of the House.

"I tell you he is a perfect tyrant," said woman number one.

"I haven't a doubt of it," said woman number two.

"I will hear this poor woman's tale," thought a well-intentioned man, who was a listener, "and perhaps I may be able to assist the poor soul.

"Yes, he is a regular tyrant. He has no mercy on me whatever. He rules the whole house like a regular Czar."

"Of course he does," said woman number two.

"I shall have to offer my services to this poor, down-trodden woman," thought the well-intentioned man.

"Yes, he rides over the whole of us rough-shod, and sometimes, when he gets on the rampage, he breaks everything he can lay his hands on."

"Madam," said the well-intentioned man, who could stand it no longer, "my services are at your disposal. Let me go to your home and intercede with your tyrannical husband."

"He isn't my husband, you simpleton," snapped woman number one. "He's my nine-months'-old baby—bless his precious little soul!"

Men Have Larger Hearts Than Women.

"It is customary to assert that women are more apt to love than men, and that they love with greater passion," said the physician. "But, nevertheless, if the heart has anything to do with it, the greater love should be that of the man.

"For a woman's heart is not so big as that in the male breast. Men have larger hearts. The average heart of a man weighs from ten to twelve ounces, while the average heart of a woman weighs two ounces less. Nevertheless, in proportion to the whole weight of the body, the woman's heart is greater, for in the normal woman the heart weighs 1-149 as much as all the rest of her, while the man's heart is but 1-169 of his total weight."

HOW OURSHIPS TALK

THE USE BY THE HELIOGRAPH OF A SIGNALING CODE.

The Language of the Seas is Easily Learned by Marines, and the Vocabulary, Though Small, is Sufficient for All Practical Purposes.

The importance of the part which the signal staff play on board a man-of-war can not be overrated. It is the ears and tongue of each ship; and through it are conveyed the commands and reports of the gravest as well as the most trivial import, from an invitation to dinner to an order to fight the enemy.

The means and codes through which messages are conveyed vary as the circumstances surrounding the vessels differ. At the principal Naval depots and at the Navy schools in Annapolis and Newport the students are carefully instructed in all the branches of this important subject. The instruction is usually given to the pupils in pairs. One man reads the signals made by the instructor, while the other writes them on the slate.

The semaphore system of signalling is the easiest to learn. Every letter or sign is indicated by one or more arms of the semaphore held in positions which follow a regular sequence and are readily remembered. The difficulty begins when the signals are made rapidly; and it requires a great deal of practice to "take in" a signal when the arms are moved quickly from one position to another. This is especially true when signs are employed which represent more than one letter. Sentences, which contain combinations of these letters, often completely nonpluss the learner, when to the practiced eye they present no difficulties. Semaphore signals can be successfully made with the arms, when the wooden apparatus is not at hand; and it is a common sight to see an officer or a seaman standing up in the stern sheets of a boat oscillating and waving his arms in a way to make the uninitiated fancy he has gone stark mad, yet conveying a perfectly intelligible meaning to the signalman on board the ship. The principal use of the semaphore is in what may be called "conversational" signalling; and for this purpose it is in almost constant employment in a squadron of war-vessels.

TAKING IN A SEMAPHORE

But the oldest and still the principal medium of communication between war-ships are flags. They are always used for evolutionary, routine, and similar classes of signals. The mastery of the flag system of signalling is very difficult; for, with the letters of the alphabet and a complete set of numerals, a very great many combinations can be made, and these can be further varied by distinguishing pennants. The hoisting of the flags is, by no means, as simple a matter as it looks. The required skill can only be secured by much practice. An expert signalman will run up a string of flags in a few seconds, and have them all floating out clear; while a tyro would get them hopelessly entangled and wonder at the contrariness of the little strips of bunting.

When the hours of instruction are over the men roll up the flags into neat little bundles, in such a way that they can be hoisted in that form and suddenly set free by a sharp pull on the halliards; and woe to the student who rolled them up if the flags do not "break" properly when they are again unfurled.

The heliograph affords a very pretty medium of signalling, but can only be used when the sun is shining. It is a small circular mirror, mounted so that by a motion of the finger it can be made to flash the sun's rays on a given point in the distance. The flash of this instrument can be seen for fifty miles; and, with the aid of a telescope, at a much greater distance. An opaque substance is held before the mirror at longer or shorter intervals, thus changing the flashes into a semblance of dots and dashes, and enabling the operator to use the Morse telegraph alphabet in sending the messages. During the Apache campaign in Arizona a message was transmitted with the heliograph one hundred and eighty-three miles.

In time of war the lighthouses situated along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts could be made to do invaluable service as signalling stations. Their watchful eyes could sweep the ocean and signal the approach of an enemy long before the ships were visible from the land. Take the lighthouse at Sand Key, Florida, for an illustration. This light is seven miles from Key West. Should there be trouble in the Gulf of Mexico or Cubaward, men stationed in the top of its tall tower could watch the waters for twenty miles around; and, with the aid of a search light, look far down toward Cuba, and send to the war department reports of the movements at the seat of trouble. Another example of what can be done in the way of lighthouse signalling is furnished by the beacon at Cape Cod, where there is a signal display station and telegraphic connections with Boston. Vessels passing Cape Cod signal their messages to the lighthouse, and within a minute the messages are in Boston. From these lighthouses, scattered at intervals all along our coasts, the movements of an hostile squadron approaching our shores, might be watched almost continuously; and its doings signalled at once to the proper authorities. All that would be needed would be to equip them with proper signalling apparatus, telescopes, etc.

In this connection it will be interesting to note some of the ancient methods of signalling. Beacon fires, built on the tops of high hills, mountains or towers have been used for long-distance signalling from time immemorial. The Bible refers to their use; and the most ancient historians write of them as being common long before their day. Relays of torch-holders were also frequently employed for signalling purposes. The use of mirrors to flash signals by means of sun rays dates back to the time of the Pharaohs. An alphabetical method of camp signal was perfected by Polybius. The letters of the alphabet were arranged in five or six columns. The number of a letter in a column and the column were indicated by the number of torches held up. Another ingenious contrivance for night communications from afar was the clepsydra. This was a tall vessel containing water, which was let out slowly by a tap at the bottom. Divisions were marked down the side, and on each division a sentence was inscribed. Each signalling point had one of these instruments; and on a light being shown by one station it was acknowledged by the other, and the tap at the bottom of each clepsydra pulled out. When the surface of the water had settled to the required sentence, a second light was shown, the flow of water stopped, and the sentence at the surface of the water read on the other and corresponding clepsydra.

One More the Airship.

One more inventor has entered the field with an airship, and he is as sanguine of success as were all the others who have from time to time fluttered into the air with various contrivances and came ingloriously to earth. He is M. C. McCarthy of Nicholson, Wis., and he is now at work on plans for an airship on a principle which he claims to have invented, and which he says no other airship man has ever tried to use. True, he has not yet built an airship, and, therefore, the success or failure of the principle is still something for the future to determine, but on paper the plan looks just as feasible as do all the other airship plans that have been exploited in the past.

For three years McCarthy, who is only 21 years old, has been interested in aerial navigation, and has made a he hit upon the idea of using an innumber of experiments along lines of his own, with varying success. At last verted propeller similar to the propeller of a steamer and having it driven by electricity. He describes the invention as follows:

"Towering high above the car of the ship is a huge propeller, standing perpendicularly and constructed the same as that of an ordinary steamer. When power is applied to this and it begins to revolve rapidly it acts on the air as a steamboat propeller does on the water, and the ship rises rapidly into the air to any desired height. When the height is reached speed is slackened, and the propeller revolves only fast enough to keep the ship suspended in the air.

"Reaching out from the car of the ship are two smaller steering propellers, and, besides being used for steering, they are capable of driving the ship through the air at a high rate of speed. The edge of the car being circular, they may be shifted to any position, thus making steering possible. Power is transmitted to them by McCarthy's new acute angle coupling, which is so constructed that it works at an angle and can be turned or twisted over on itself any number of times. It can scarcely be recognized as anything less than a new mechanical principle. The power to be used in the new ship will be furnished by a storage battery."

Like all airship enthusiasts, McCarthy is sanguine that before the century closes, regular lines of airships traveling at a high rate of speed will be crossing between this country and Europe, carrying passengers, and will be as common in the United States as railway trains now are.

A Trick With Matches.

Take a shallow dish or vessel of any kind and fill it with water; secure a dozen or so match-sticks and cut them in halves. If you like, you may leave them whole, but in this event I should advise you to cut off the heads. Hold a piece of soap in the water at the centre of the dish, and you will very soon see the match-sticks hurrying away from the soap to the edge of the pan. I believe match-sticks object as strongly to soap as do some little children. But you can very easily collect the sticks into the centre again. Remove the soap and in its stead hold a lump of sugar in the water. Have you ever seen flies gather about a pot of honey or syrup? Well, in just the same way—just as if they had the same instincts as these little insects—the sticks will float towards the sugar from all directions and fasten themselves to it. It is wonderful and amusing to behold the attraction that the sugar has for these inanimate match-sticks. Looks like magic, doesn't it? But it isn't. The oil in the soap tends to spread over the surface of the water and in doing so carries the sticks away with it. The sugar, being full of pores, sucks up the water and the little current thus produced brings them back.

Chips of China.

In the private schools of China a teacher is paid about one half-penny a day for each pupil.

The National Army is called the Army of the Green Standard. It is twice as strong as the Imperial section, and is made up of a thousand camps.

The Imperial Army consists of Manchus, Mongols, and blue-ribanded Chinese, and is 350,000 strong, divided into eight corps, with Peking for headquarters.

Chinese brides, when putting on their bridal garments on the eventful morning, stand in round, shallow baskets during their lengthy toilets. This is supposed to ensure them placid and well-rounded lives in their new homes.

Hainan, recently annexed by the French, is separated from the mainland, like the Isle of Wight, and is about 150 miles in length by 100 broad. The separating channel is called the Luichau Strait, and is sixteen miles wide.

Country roads in China are never bounded by fences, but are entirely undefined. While the farmer has the right to plough up any road passing through his land, drivers of vehicles have an equal right, and they exercise it, to traverse any portion of the country at large.

If a Chinaman dies while being tried for murder, the very fact of his dying is taken as evidence of his guilt. He has departed, but somebody must suffer, and his eldest son, if he has one, is sent to prison for a year. If he has no son, then his father or brother gets a flogging. It's all in the family, and justice must be administered.

A curious industry in some of the provinces of China is the manufacture of mock-money for offering to the dead. The pieces are only half the size of the real coins, but the dead are supposed not to know the difference. The dummy coins are made out of tin, hammered to the thinness of paper, and stamped out to the size required.

There Were Others.

"Look!" she almost shrieked in her rage, as she shook the paper under his face. "Oh, villain, villain, I have found you out in all your base perfidy!"

"I—I beg your pardon," said the young man, "but I'm afraid I don't quite follow you."

"This is your letter to me."

"Yes."

"It breathes the tenderest affection, doesn't it?"

"I flatter myself," he answered, with a complacent bow, "that it does."

"It is ardent in its protestations of undying devotion, isn't it?"

"If it was as I intended it, there's no doubt about its being so."

"Look—look here," she hissed, "and then turn your face in shame. Here are the unmistakable traces of carbon paper. This letter was manifolded!"

Almond Cream.

For almond cream blanch and pound 2 ozs. of sweet almonds, add to them 3 bitter almonds, pound quite smooth. Take ½ pint of cream, a little sugar, a piece of thin rind of lemon-peel, and the beaten yolk of an egg; put them in a saucepan over the fire, let it simmer till it thickens, stirring it all the time; take out the lemon-peel, and put in the almonds. When nearly cold, add 3 dessertspoonfuls of white wine. Serve cold in cups.

Sentimental Miss: "Do you believe, Mrs. Jawsnap, that it is always darkest before dawn?"

Mrs. J. (impatiently): "Ask my husband. He knows."

A Secret Laid Bare.

A secret I have just found out,
I'll tell you if you will not tell;
All trees which bear in summer time
Will bare in winter just as well.

On account of last Thursday evening being "ladies' night" at the Plainfield Catholic Club, the bowling tournament was postponed for that night.

Last evening on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club a number of high scores were made by contestants in the tournament. In every game the score was over 300. Shannon and Mack beat Carty and Flynn, also Moran and Birmingham. This makes it look doubtful if Carty and Flynn will finish first. Three teams will roll this evening.

NEW REAL ESTATE FIRM.

Ira L. LaRue and Thomas A. Cuming Form a Partnership.

An important change has taken place in real estate circles. Ira L. LaRue and Thomas A. Cuming have entered into partnership and will continue the business heretofore conducted by Mr. LaRue alone. During the past three years Mr. LaRue, who came here a comparative stranger, has built up a business in real estate and insurance lines that has now grown too large for him to handle alone. The new partner in the concern, Mr. Cuming, although a young man, has had a wide and varied business experience. Last year he managed very successfully the local branch of the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Hereafter the firm will be permanently located in the handsome suite of offices at 207 North avenue, next to the corner of Watchung avenue. Mr. Cuming will act as editor of the "Real Estate and Insurance Review," and will continue that enterprising little sheet with many new features.

—One of J. Fred. MacDonald's horses slipped and fell on North avenue this morning. The driver was given plenty of assistance and no damage resulted.

A Perfect Laundry.

We want to have a perfect laundry and give perfect service. Most of our customers think we do now. If every man in Plainfield knew how well we launder shirts, collars and cuffs, we would do nearly all the linen worn. Our aim is to match the laundering of new goods. A trial will show you how near we have come to doing it. Send for our wagon.

finally dropped for the present.

Mr. Valiant offered two resolutions, one of which provided for the drawing of a warrant for $800 to pay a Watchung avenue note due, and the other resolution provided for the payment of a $1,200 note due March 18th, provided the bank would allow a rebate of the interest.

According to the annual custom Mr. Valiant offered a resolution to the effect that the finance committee examine the books of the collector and auditor, etc., and report at the meeting to be held February 17th.

On the suggestion of Mr. MacLoughlin the Council then went into executive session to talk over some private matters.

ONE ARM WAS MISSING, BUT SHE WAS A DANDY

A Unique Woman Thief Visited Somerset County Farmer.

PRETTY AND WELL-GOWNED

FARMER BROKAW WAS IMPRESSED WITH HER MISFORTUNE.

She Appeared At His Door One Stormy Night and Said She Had Lost Her Way—Told of a Big Sum of Money That was Waiting for Her at Flemington—Brokaw Regrets Good Nature.

Never since old Farmer Pendergast was gold-bricked out of $5,000 has the Watchung Ridge section been visited by as clever an imposter as recently let herself loose among the hills. She was young and vivacious, with a pretty oval face and dark eyes topped with a wealth of bleached hair. Her form was slender and graceful and she walked with a jaunty air. She wore a tailor-made gown, a stylish hat and a fur cape, all of the best material. The most striking thing about her appearance was the absence of her left arm which was off at the shoulder.

One stormy night she knocked at the door of Garret C. Brokaw, a well-to do farmer living on the Ridge near Whitehouse. She gave her name as Miss Leona Demmar, of New York, and said she had got off the cars at the wrong station and had lost her way. Her destination was Flemington, sixteen miles away, and she wanted shelter for the night. The sight of this pretty miss in the storm appealed strongly to Farmer Brokaw and he gladly gave her shelter. Her manner was that of a woman of culture and refinement. She said she had lost her arm in a wreck on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad near Trenton Junction, and had got a verdict for $25,000 damages against the company, and that the settlement was about to be made at Flemington by her lawyer, O. P. Chamberlain, of that place, and the agents of the railroad company.

The Brokaw family were charmed with the stranger and invited her to remain at least a week. She protestingly accepted the invitation. The day alleged to have been set for the settlement of her claim Brokaw with his best span of horses drove the fair stranger sixteen miles to Flemington. She alighted from his carriage in front of the County Clerk's office, where she said she was to meet by appointment her lawyer and the agents. Brokaw saw her enter the building and drove to Humphrey's Hotel, where he was to take dinner with her an hour later. He waited in vain. Hours later he searched the town for her and inquired at every railroad station, but could get no trace of her. At the office of O. P. Chamberlain he learned that he had been duped, as the lawyer was without knowledge of the fair damsel. Brokaw then whipped his horses into a run and started for home. After taking an inventory of the family cash and valuables he told his wife never to harbor another strange woman, even if she had both arms off. Mrs. Brokaw retorted that the stranger would never have been harbored at all if Mr. Brokaw had not been so taken with her.

Brokaw's loss is believed to be heavy, but he refuses to tell about it, as he has recently been laughing at a neighbor who was gold-bricked. Information has been received of the arrest of a woman giving her name as Miss Giberson and answering the description of the swindler at Westchester, Pa. She is held by Chief of Police Jeffries, of that place, charged with stealing jewelry from people at Bristol and Wilmington whose confidence she gained through a story about her lost arm, a railroad wreck and a verdict of $40,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad yet to be collected.

New Schoolhouse at Cranford.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Cranford, Feb. 6.—The new Grant Schoolhouse at Cranford was opened Saturday afternoon for inspection by the public. Some one, supposed to be a mischievous boy, placed a small bottle of gunpowder in the coal bin at the school, and it was thrown into the furnace, causing a small explosion. The board is anxious to catch the culprit, as the explosion might have caused considerable damage.

SALOON FOR A DEPOT.

SOMERVILLE PEOPLE ANGRY AT BRUNSWICK TRACTION COMPANY.

Passengers Desiring Return Tickets to Bound Brook are Compelled to go to a Saloon for Them—Other Complaints, Too.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 6—The Brunswick Traction Company, which recently absorbed the line of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company between Somerville and Bound Brook, is just now weathering a storm of indignation, aroused among the cititizens as a result of its attempt to run the road to suit itself.

The franchise of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company, under which the road is still running, requires the cars to move at a speed not exceeding eight miles an hour. The speed attained by the new cars of the Brunswick Traction Company through the streets of Somerville, in an effort to make a trip to make a trip to New Brunswick in an hour, at times exceeds fifteen miles an hour.

The company has also made an effort to enforce a rule to charge five cent fares for children over five years old, which is a violation of the franchise. The greatest indignation arose Saturday, however, when a system was inaugurated compelling all passengers to go to the saloon and restaurant of W. H. Cawley, in Somerville, to purchase return tickets for Bound Brook. These tickets were formerly sold on the cars at a charge of fifteen cents. Persons neglecting to purchase their return tickets at Cawley's are charged twenty cents.

Residents of East Somerville, who are one mile nearer Bound Brook than residents of Somerville, are obliged to ride to Somerville to procure return tickets or pay the excess fare.

The action of the Brunswick Traction Company will come under the consideration of the Somerville Commissioners at a meeting to be held.

THE LINCOLN DINNER.

Larger Number of Subscribers Than Ever Before at This Date.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 6.—The executive committee of the Lincoln Association of Union county has announced that in response to the circular letters sent out January 25th, a larger number of responses have been received than at the corresponding date in any former year. As the limit of tickets for the dinner is 200, those who wish to attend will be wise to take a hint from these facts and send in their checks at once. All the arrangements that could be made up to date have been made.

The committee on speakers has secured Rev. John T. Kerr to make the opening invocation, and the speakers of the evening will be Congressman McCall, of Massachusetts, ex Congressman John S. Wise, now of New York city, and former Assistant Secretary of the Navy William McAdoo, all able and entertaining speakers.

The prospects are that the dinner this year will be the most successful in the association's history.

PIGS AND HENS MAKE NEIGHBORS QUARREL.

Dispute Started Over a Trifle a Few Weeks Ago.

ONE MAN LANDED IN JAIL.

HE FAILED TO PAY A JUDGMENT FOR $1 OBTAINED AGAINST HIM.

Frederick Krouse' Chickens Trespassed on Clarence Hallet's Property—Latter Caused Krouse's Incarceration in Jail for Not Paying Judgment—Krouse Also Brought Suit for Damages Sustained.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Feb. 6.—It seems that the trouble between Clarence Hallet and Frederick Krouse, neighbors, is not over yet. Another chapter has been added to the story of their dispute which ends with Krouse being released from the Middlesex county jail, at New Brunswick, where he was sent at the instigation of Hallet because he had not satisfied a judgment of $1 and costs which has been decided against him.

Krouse only remained in jail about 30 hours, when his lawyer, H. B. Cook, of New Brunswick, secured his release, but Krouse already has begun proceedings, he says, against Hallet, for false imprisonment.

The trouble between these two men, who live neighbors, began last summer. Krouse keeps chickens, and the chickens often strayed through the fence into Hallett's garden where they scratched around and tore up things in general. After repeatedly warning Krouse, Hallett could not stand the trespassing no longer, he sued Krouse in Justice Storm's court for damages. The case was tried twice, and the last time the jury awarded Hallett $1 and costs.

In the meantime Krouse had brought suit against Hallett in a New Brunswick justice's court. Hallett keeps pigs, and Krouse's claim for damages rested on alleged damage the pigs had done to his garden. In this case Krouse was awarded $10 damages and costs.

It was supposed that the matter was settled until last week when Hallett obtained Krouse's arrest. The suits were brought it tort, and if the one upon whom judgment is given does not settle the judgment and the costs of court, an execution is levied upon his goods, and if these are not sufficient to satisfy the judgment, the man's body is taken and he is locked up.

Krouse didn't pay his $1 judgment or the costs of the court, which amounted to about $18, so Wednesday Hallett had Justice Storms issue an execution against Krouse which was served by Constable Mundy. As the Constable claims he couldn't find sufficient property to satisfy the judgment, he took Krouse's body and conveyed him to the New Brunswick jail where he stayed until Thursday night when his lawyer obtained his release. Lawyer Newcorn, of Plainfield, represented Hallett through all the tranctions, and says that they are not done with Krouse yet.

Wagon Broke Down.

Morris Ballantine's delivery horse caused some trouble to its driver Saturday afternoon. While driving along East Front street one of the shaft bolts dropped out, letting the end of the shaft and the whiffletree drop. By guiding the horse close to the gutter he was finally brought to a stop.

FOR SIXTY YEARS BIG FORTUNE WAS GROWING

Stutz Tells How He Has Suddenly Become Wealthy.

$4,000 IS NOW $75,000.

ORIGINAL SUM LEFT TO HIS CREDIT WHEN HE WAS TEN YEARS OLD.

When He Became of Age He Had Left His Old Home in Baden and Not Until Recently Did the Bank Officials Find Out Where He Lived—Plainfield Lawyer is Now Working to Collect the Money.

John George Stutz, the aged German truck gardener living in Piscataway township, three miles from this city, who has been left a fortune in Germany, as was told briefly in Saturday's Press, was seen by a Press reporter this morning. He told more in detail of his good fortune. Though the German farmer does not look a day over sixty years old, he asserts that he was born March 4th, 1823, in Baden, Germany, and is therefore seventy-six years of age. He has lived in this country since 1845, and always in this vicinity. He makes his living off from ten acres of land just across the line from Union county in Middlesex, near where the old Codington ice houses stand. Stutz is quite deaf, but that is his only physicial affliction. On account of that defect his wife does most of the business in this city. She is well-known among the local stores where she is a daily visitor in the summer months selling the products of the ten acre farm. Stutz is the father of six children, two of whom live with him.

Sometime ago his son in law, who is employed on the local trains running between New York and Dunellen on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, noticed an advertisement in a New York paper asking for information of one John George Stutz, who was born in Germany. Stutz's attention was called to the advertisement and he answered it satisfactorily. He received a reply detailing the circumstances of how his mother had died when he was ten years old, leaving $4,000 in a German bank to his credit. The money was to have been paid to him when he became of age, but before that time had arrived Stutz had left home. By a curious train of circumstances the money had lain in the bank for these sixty odd years without a claimant. Then the matter was taken up and the bank officials traced Stutz to this country. The advertisement brought him to earth. In the sixty years the bequest of his mother had been in the bank it had increased to $75,580, by compound interest, so Stutz asserted to the Press reporter this morning.

When he first received the good news Stutz said that he made up his mind that he would go to Baden, Germany, to claim the fortune personally. This proposition met with emphatic opposition from his family, who said that the matter could be settled up by a lawyer. They realized that the expense would be considerable more, but they argued that even then there would be plenty for Stutz to enjoy for the remainder of his days. So Stutz came to Plainfield and had an interview with a New York lawyer, who resides in this city, and whom he knew through selling him garden stuff in the summer months. Who this lawyer is Stutz regards with great secrecy, as all attempts of the correspondent this morning to elicit the information from him failed. The lawyer is now engaged, through the American Consul in Germany, trying to settle the matter so that Stutz can secure his fortune.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for January are Arthur Caleen, Malcolm Davis, Lynn Adams and Harris Egan. Raymond Cohen was presented by Dr. Rodman with a prayer-book and hymnal. The choir expected to have given its first musicale this month, but there has been so much illness among its members that it has been postponed to Easter week when the cantata, "Belshazzar," by Butterfield, will be given.

The Main Question.

To the public at large the main question appears to be whether or not we shall hold the Philippines, but to individual consideration the question of holding one's eyesight is the most important. How to insure this result can only be reliably ascertained by a test of your eyes, a scientific attainment of which is free to you at Collier's.

WANTS $200 FOR LOSS OF HIS JOB AS A COP

H. W. Fraleigh Sues the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

FOLLOWED THEIR ADVICE.

DECLINED TO ACCEPT APPOINTMENT AS SPECIAL POLICEMAN.

When Mayor Fisk Failed to Re-appoint Him as a Regular Patrolman the Association Advised Him to Not to Accept Special Appointment—It Availed Him Nothing—Suit Brought in Newark.

Harry W. Fraleigh, a former member of the police force, has brought suit against the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of New Jersey for $200, which he claims it owes him for breach of contract. Pope & Runyon have the case in charge, and have associated with them Mr. McLear, of Newark. The association is represented by John Porter.

The object of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association is to help policemen who lose their positions on the force through no fault of their own. Fraleigh belonged to the association while he was a regular officer here, and says he kept up his dues, etc., regularly.

During the latter part of 1896 Fraleigh had the rheumatism badly and was unable to go on duty. When the officers were appointed in 1897, Fraleigh's name was left off the list of regulars and he was appointed a special.

Fraleigh says that through the advice of the officers of Branch No. 13, in this city, he was induced to reject the appointment as a special, and to insist upon being appointed a regular officer. This the Mayor refused to do. Then the association's attorney here in this city discovered that Plainfield was at that time a third-class city, and the police appointments were made at the option of the Mayor and Council.

Fraleigh claims that he lost his position through the advice of the association, which advice he was bound to follow. When he applied to the association for the $200 which it is claimed they offer they refused to settle, so the suit was brought. The suit is before Judge Gulle, of the District Court, Newark, and is down for trial Wednesday. It is probable, however, that it will be adjourned on that day as a material witness who is wanted, will not be able to get there.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DAY.

A Rutger's College Student Talked in Trinity Reformed Church.

Christian Endeavor Day was observed in Trinity Reformed church last evening, by the Endeavor Society of that church. Clifford B. Case, a student from Rutger's College, was present and made a very excellent address, to a good-sized audience. The young man is graceful and easy in the pulpit and gives promise of making his mark in the ministry of the Reformed church.

Prof. Chas. Wold was also present and rendered several solos on his musical glasses to the delight of all. The new hymn books, recently purchased by the Sunday-school, were used for the first time by the choir and congregation, and the singing was one of the pleasant features of the anniversary exercises.

MADE HIGH SCORES.

Park Club Whist Players Stand Well in Inter-City Tournament.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Roseville, Feb. 6—The fourth round of the Inter-city Whist Tournament was played at the clubhouse of the Roseville Athletic Club Saturday evening, twenty-seven teams taking part. The Park Club was represented by P. B. Matthews, F. H. Freeman, A. A. Freeman and A. O. Woltman. The Parks moved up from thirteen place to twelfth. Peter B. Matthews and Fred H. Freeman, of the Parks, made high score in the north and south section. Fred H. Freeman has risen to eleventh place in individual work among the 108 contestants.

THE FIGHTING AT MANILA

A DISPATCH TODAY FROM REAR-ADMIRAL DEWEY.

The Boston Going to Iloilo—Two Men Wounded on the Monadnock—An Alleged Threat of the Admiral to Destroy Manila.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Washington, Feb. 6—Rear Admiral Dewey cabled to the Navy Department today as follows:

"Manila, Feb. 6.

"Secretary Navy, Washington:

"Insurgents have attacked Manila. The Boston leaves today for Iloilo to relieve the Baltimore, which will return to Manila. Two men wounded yesterday on board Monadnock, one seriously. Dewey."

It was said at the War Department today that no fresh dispatches had been received from Gen. Otis today. He has promised the department a casualty list from Manila as soon as it can be made up, and this is awaited with interest.

The Dewey despatch received this morning stating that two men had been seriously injured on the Monadnonk raises the total list of wounded for the navy on the Monadnack to eleven for the entire war in the far east.

TO RUN PRESSES BY ELECTRICITY.

First Electric Current Through New Conduits Comes Into Press Office.

When the city water works system was installed in Plainfield The Daily Press office had the honor of being the first place in which the water was turned on, and today an event of similar import took place in The Daily Press office. It was the running of the first current of electricity through the recently laid underground conduits from the electric light station to the press room of The Daily Press. The electricity is furnished to run a five horse power motor, which it has been necessary to install to keep pace with the demands in the press room, caused by the constant increase in the number of papers printed. The motor was ready for permanent work today. Superintendent McClurg and his assistants have earned the thanks of The Press for their excellent work in installing the motor.

FUTURE OF AFRICA.

A Returned Missionary Discussed the Subject.

Joseph Booth, of Brooklyn, a returned worker among the heathen tribes in Africa, spoke at the men's meeting at the Seventh Day Baptist church last night and gave his views on the future of Africa and her people. Mr. Booth is an Englishman, and has been engaged in industrial work there, teaching the ignorant blacks the lessons of civilization.

Mr. Booth's remarks were interesting, and among other things brought out Mr. Booth said that the future of the African races lay in America. He mentioned the Zulus as the most advanced race, and the tribe most easy to teach. One Zulu brave, who now lives in Brooklyn, Mr. Booth said, already speaks as good English as he does himself.

Wife is Not Responsible.

In the case of Charles Peterson, of Dunellen, against Oscar and Coroline Pierson, of this city, for the recovery of a note for about $111, Justice Mosher this morning handed down his decision in favor of the plaintiff. Peterson sued Pierson and his wife, because her name as well as his was affixed to the note, but the court ruled that as Mrs. Pierson had only put her name on the paper as an accomodation to her husband, she could not be held liable, so gave the judgment against Pierson only.

A Change of Reporters.

Former Borough Recorder Huntington S. Thomas, who has been employed on the staff of the News for the past eight years, left Plainfield Saturday night for Elizabeth. This morning he entered upon the duties of sporting editor of the Elizabeth Daily Journal. His place on the News is now filled by Herbert Martin, of West Front street, who has until recently been a travelling salesman for a shoe concern.

Native African Spoke.

Rev. Charles Mohamed, of Africa, who is in this country completing his education, made an excellent address at the Mt. Olive Baptist church yesterday afternoon. He related many interesting incidents about the manners and customs of his people. He will return shortly to his native county to teach.

COUNTY CLERKSHIP FIGHT ALREADY ON.

City Clerk MacMurray Early in the Field.

HOWARD WANTS IT AGAIN.

J. W MURRAY, JR., AND SHERIFF KIRK ALSO MENTIONED.

If Plainfield is to Get the Republican Nomination Her Delegates Must Present an Unbroken Front—Robert Houston the Probable Man for the Shrievalty Nomination—Political Gossip.

While it is rather early yet to begin to talk county politics and attempt to give even the possibilities of the coming fall campaign in Union county, several booms have already been inaugurated for the nominations to be made by the Republicans at that time. As early as last fall it was generally noised about that City Clerk Jas. T. MacMurray was to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county clerk. The term of office of the present incumbent, Clerk Howard, of Rahway, expires with 1899, and a new one will consequently be elected.

Among the county officials whose terms of office expire this year is Sheriff William T. Kirk, of this city. Now it has long been the ambition of Robert Houston, of Elizabeth, one of the representatives of Union in the Assemby, to be sheriff of Union county. His friends have long ago announced that they were out for the nomination of their favorite and it has been generally acknowledged that honest "Bob" Houston would be the Republican nominee for the place.

Now if the shrievalry is going to Elizabeth, Plainfield feels that she ought at least to have the county clerkship. Of course such a distribution of the plums would leave Rahway out in the cold, but then Plainfield is not getting a bit more than she is entitled to. As already noted, City Clerk MacMurray has been a prominent candidate for the place. Then it is also rumored that Sheriff Kirk would accept the honor if tendered to him, while First Assistant Engineer J. W. Murray, Jr., of the Plainfield Fire Department, is credited as being in the race at this early stage. Then from Rahway comes the announement that Clerk Howard will try for renomination.

Plainfield's chances of securing the nomination will largely depend on whether her delegates present an unbroken front at the convention in the fall. If there is a split in the city delegation then there is a good prospect that there won't be a Plainfield man put up.

According to the statement of the wise ones, the fight, from the present aspect of affairs, will be in Plainfield between MacMurray and Murray. They credit MacMurray with good chances of securing a straight delegation from the First and Fourth wards The Third ward is likely to support Murray. The Second ward is an uncertain quantity. That will mean a lively time in Plainfield at the very start of the campaign, for both men named have powerful friends in the ranks who are going to turn out and hustle from the start. There may be a "dark horse" in the field, who will make himself known at the last and give both a hard rub, for politics are a mighty uncertain thing after all.

MAD BECAUSE HE MARRIED.

Plainfield Colored Man Compelled to Wed Westfield Girl.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 6—Upon complaint of Overseer of the Poor Fred Decker, Robert Kenny, colored, of Plainfield, was arrested Thursday night and placed in jail. He was brought before Judge Hart to answer to the complaint which was made by Miss Carrie Brown, a young colored woman, who was employed as a domestic at a Carleton place residence.

Robert Kenny was a coachman in the employ of a Plainfield physician. He said he would marry the woman. The marriage ceremony was at once performed by Judge Hart. Kenny left court in an angry frame of mind, and said something about not supporting the woman. Township Attorney Oliver represented the State, while Charles Angleman appeared for the defendant.

Fairly Starving to Death.

W. F. Dreyer, manager of the Somerset Hotel, Somerset street, is very ill with the fever. He has been unable to eat or drink any thing for days and the physicians have only kept him alive by injecting sustinence into his system. He was formerly a robust man but has now become so emaciated that his friends would not recognize him.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be easily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

AN ATTACK ON MANILA

The Filipino Insurgents Fire upon The Outskirts.

OUR FORCES DEFEAT THEM

Meager Details of the Fight Sunday Morning—Dewey Cables to Department of the Engagement—American Loss Slight—Both Army and Navy Take a Hand.

Manila, Jan. 6.--The natives attacked Manila Saturday night. The firing upon the American outposts commenced at nine o'clock and was continuous all through the night. It lasted fourteen hours.

The natives have been driven back at all points and with great loss in the suburbs. Sanatana has been captured by the American troops.

It is impossible at this writing to accurately estimate the losses. It is calculated that upward of fifty of the Americans were wounded. The killed were few.

The enthusiasm of our troops when called out to repulse the attack was very great. Their cheers rang throughout the city.

Many of the native troops were killed. The Filipinos have been taught a severe lesson and a beneficial one.

Magnificent Charges of the Americans.

The Filipinos attacked the American line from Calvocan to Santa Mera at a quarter to nine Saturday evening. There was a heavy fusilade on both sides and the artillery was used.

The United States cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Concord bombarded the enemy.

The Americans, after magnificent charges, captured several of the enemy's positions.

The Americans lost twenty killed and had one hundred and twenty-five wounded. The Filipinos lost heavily.

Admiral Dewey's Report to Washington.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--The following message was received yesterday:

Manila, Feb. 5.

To the Secretary of the navy:

Insurgents here inaugurated general engagement yesterday night, which was continued to-day. The American army and navy is generally successful. Insurgents have been driven back and our line advanced. No casualties to navy.

DEWEY.

Otis Puts the Loss at 175 in All.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--The following supplemental dispatch from General Otis was made public this morning:

To Adjutant General:

Insurgents in large force opened an attack on our outer lines at 8.45 last evening; renewed attack several times during the night. At four o'clock this morning entire line engaged. All attacks repulsed. At daybreak advanced against insurgents and have driven them beyond the lines they formerly occupied, capturing several villages and their defence works. Insurgent loss in dead and wounded large; our own casualties thus far estimated at 175, with very few fatal. The troops are enthusiastic and acting fearlessly. The navy did splendid execution on the flanks of the enemy; city held in check and absolute quiet prevails. Insurgents have secured a good many Mauser rifles, a few field pieces and quick firing guns, with ammunition, during last month.

OTIS.

Version of the Fight from London.

London, Feb. 6.--The Morning Post publishes the following account of the fighting at Manila.

The immediate cause of the attack was an advance by two Filipinos to the Nebraska outpost, on the northeast of the city. When ordered to halt they refused and the sentry fired. An insurgent signal gun was then fired from block house 7, and an attack was immediately begun on the Nebraska regiment, which was encamped.

The fighting soon spread on both sides, until firing was in progress on all the outposts around the city.

The American troops responded vigorously, the insurgent fire being heavy and the attack evidently hurriedly planned.

Firing continued throughout the night, with an occasional cessation of from half an hour to an hour at a time. At daybreak the warships Charleston and Callao began shelling the north side of the city. Their fire was followed later by that of the Monadnock on the southern side, the insurgent positions having been previously accurately located.

The Filipino loss is reported to have been heavy. The wounded on the American side are now estimated at two hundred. Few Americans were killed. The Americans began a vigorous attack all along the line this morning (Sunday) and were soon pressing back the insurgents in every direction, maintaining steadily their advanced positions.

Insurgents Number 30,000.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--No one here knows the real strength of the insurgents opposed to General Otis. The reports of their number are conflicting and none is reliable. The best belief of the war department is that they number about thirty thousand men, but they are not comparable to the Americans in personnel, discipline or quality of arms.

It is known that they have some Mausers, some Remingtons and a variety of other firearms, and it is suspected that they have been quite plentifully supplied with ammunition from outside sources. Taken as a whole, this armament is decidedly inferior to that of the American troops.

Our Forces at Manila

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--The regiments now at Manila are: Volunteers First Colorado infantry, First Idaho, Fifty-first Iowa, Twentieth Kansas, Thirteenth Minnesota, First Montana, First Nebraska, First North Dakota, Second Oregon, Tenth Pennsylvania, First South Dakota, First Washington, First Wyoming, Batteries A and B, First California Artillery, Batteries A and B, Utah Light Artillery, First Troop Nevada Cavalry, First and Eighteenth companies of the Signal Corps.

Regulars--Twenty-third infantry and Companies A, C, D, E, F, G, I, K, L and M Fourteenth infantry, Company A Engineer Battalion.

The Third, Fourth, Eighteenth and Twentieth infantry and Companies B, D, F, H, I, K, L and M of the Seventeenth infantry are now on their way to the Philippines.

The ships under Admiral Dewey's command include the cruisers Olympia (the admiral's agflship) Boston, Baltimore, Charleston, and Raleigh; the monitors Monadnock and Monterey; the auxiliary cruiser Buffalo and the gunboats Concord and Petrel, besides such of the captured Spanish ships as he has been able to repair and put in commission. The naval force foots up more than one hundred officers and about two thousand men.

The land forces under General Otis number about fifteen thousand men.

More Ammunition for Dewey.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 6.--Orders have been received to rush the sailing of the Solace, formerly a hospital ship, and now a government liner, to the Philippines, and she will probably sail for Manila to-day. Her orders to come up to the Norfolk navy yard after coaling at Lamberts were revoked, and while coaling was going on tugs and barges were conveying down the harbor great quantities of ammunition which was put aboard.

The News in Madrid.

Madrid, Feb. 6.--Intense excitement was caused here by the receipt last evening of the following official dispatch from General Rios, the Spanish commander in the Philippines:

"The insurgents have vioently attacked and captured almost the whole of the exterior American line. The Americans offered a vigorous defence at the exterior barriers, using their artillery as well as the squadron.

"The warships destroyed and burned Caluocan, Paco and several towns in the neighborhood. Both sides suffered materially. Very sharp firing continues. The Spanish troops have been confined to quarters, but a surgoen has been wounded by a stray bullet.

RIOS."

The popular sympathies here are on the side of Aguinaldo but thinking people are anxious regarding the consequences of the fighting, especially on account of the Spanish prisoners still in the hands of the insurgents.

Agoncillo Has Disappeared.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--One of the first steps of the administration upon hearing of the outbreak at Manila was to give attention to the presence in Washington of Agoncillo, the accredited representative here of the Philippine insurgents. No one could be found who would say whether or not any steps had been taken looking to his expulsion from the United States or to his arrest, but his status, it can be announced, has already been the subject of careful study.

It is possible, however, that their patience is now exhausted, believing as they do that he has in some fashion been connected with this outbreak, and that they may be aroused to the point of action. It was said at the state department plainly that Agoncillo was either a traitor or a spy. If the Philippines are regarded as American territory, then he is the representative and active agent of an insurrection against the United States, and as such is a traitor. If the Philippines are still in nominal Spanish possession, then, as a state of war still technically exists, he could be regarded only as a spy.

Agoncillo it was said at his hotel, had left the city last night. Some said he had gone to Baltimore. No one seemed to know where he had gone.

Secret Service Men on Agoncillo's Track.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--It was reported that an order had been issued by the president for the immediate arrest of Agoncillo, the head of the Filipino junta. At the White House and war department the report was denied.

The secret service officials are keeping the Filipino agent in sight and his every movement is being watched.

Future of the Philippines.

Hong Kong, Feb. 6.--John Barrett, the former United States Minister to Siam, who is returning to the United States, delivered an address yesterday to an audience composed of British officials, business men, Americans and Filipinos.

Regarding the Philippines, Mr. Barrett urged the necessity of the United States forming a semi-independent protectorate until the ability of the Filipinos to stand alone is demonstrated, the United States reserving a strategic naval base, like Subic Bay, giving her control of the situation and strengthening her throughout the far East.

Mr. Barrett also declared that the difficulties ahead of the United States had been grossly exaggerated for the purpose of defeating the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain.

Cutting of the Cable at Manila.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--Attorney General Griggs, in an opinion holds that the British Extension, Australasia and China Telegraph Company has no ground for a claim to indemnity because of the cutting of the cable at Manila in May last by Admiral Dewey.

The cable company has filed with the state department a claim for $36,000 damages, and it was on this claim that the attorney general's opinion was asked.

The Pay of Letter Carriers.

Washington, Feb. 6.--Representative Taylor has introduced a bill fixing the pay of all letter carriers at $600 for the first year, $800 for the second and $1,000 for the third year and thereafter.

NEWS AT THE CAPITAL

A Vote Will Be Taken on The Peace Treaty Today.

IT IS EXPECTED TO PASS.

The Manila Disturbance Was Anticipated—President McKinley Believes the Trouble Will Insure Prompt Ratification of Our Peace Treaty With Spain.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--An atmosphere of war again surrounds the White House. The news from Admiral Dewey confirming the reported attack upon the American forces at Manila was delivered to the president by Secretary Long.

The cable from Dewey was received at the navy department early, and as soon as it was translated it was sent to Secretary Long, who hurriedly drove to the White House and delivered the unwelcome news to the president.

A few minutes later Secretary Alger followed by Adjutant General Corbin, and Representative Grosvenor, joined the president and secretary in the cabinet room. All of the old scenes of the war conferences held during the Spanish war were revived by the Sunday activity at the executive mansion. The consultation lasted nearly two hours, during which Dewey's brief cablegram was discussed from various standpoints.

In the absence of any message from General Otis it was said that Admiral Dewey is closer to the cable station than General Otis, and when Dewey decided to notify the navy department of the attack it is probable that Otis considered it unnecessary to duplicate the report of Dewey.

The effect of the outbreak at Manila upon the vote on the treaty in the Senate was also considered at the war conference. The president and his friends are confident that the result will be to the advantage of the treaty and will undoubtedly win over enough wavering votes to secure a prompt ratification of the treaty without regard to the previous debate on the resolutions pending. In the absence of a detailed account of the outbreak at Manila, the president and the members of the cabinet view the situation with the gravest apprehension.

Secretary Long did not attempt to conceal his anxiety on the subject as he was leaving the White House. He said he was not advised as to the number of casualties on the American side, if any, as Admiral Dewey had simply stated in his report that he had no casualties in the navy to report.

Secretary Alger and Adjutant General Corbin remained with the president after Secretary Long took his departure. The secretary prepared a dispatch to General Otis, calling for a detailed report of the attack, what occasioned it and the list of casualties. General Corbin said he supposed that General Otis concurred with Admiral Dewey before the latter sent his report to the secretary of the navy and in that way he accounts for the silence of the army branch of the government at Manila.

The war and navy department officials were on duty at the department all day and all of the old time war excitement of last summer was again in evidence at the war office. On the street corners, in the hotels and the clubs the war news was the leading topic of discussion.

The excitement displayed here over Dewey's dispatch from Manila is having a good effect upon the treaty. It is freely predicted that the hostile action of the Filipinos will cause a break in the ranks of the Democratic senators who are half hearted in their opposition to the ratification of the treaty.

Some of the opposition, however, stoutly maintain that the outbreak in Manila does not change the situation in the Senate, for the friends of the Bacon resolution have predicted an outbreak for more than two weeks past. They contend that a prompt and emphatic declaration of the policy of the administration with regard to the Philippines would have prevented a war with the Filipinos.

Notwithstanding the boasting of the opponents of the treaty, it is believed that at least four or five Democrats will break away from the Gorman-Jones anti-treaty reservation and vote to ratify the treaty to-day.

McKinley and Eagan.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--The record in the Eagan court martial has not yet been returned to Secretary Alger by the president. It is said the president will not take any action in the case until he has received the report of the war investigating commission. The president is inclined to mitigate the sentence, but has so far been furnished with very little except sentimental reasons for such a course.

It is believed that the war investigating commission will give the president some ground for reducing General Eagan's sentence, as it is reasonably certain that the commission will criticise General Miles very severely. Anything that will officially condemn General Miles for his accusations against the commissary department will be regarded by the president as sustaining the plea of provocation, which was the main line of the defence in the case.

The report of the investigating commission will probably not reach the president before Wednesday and possibly not until Saturday next.

Joe Leiter Heads a Milk Trust.

Chicago, Feb. 6.--Chicago people will be furnished with milk by the "milk trust" in a few weeks. The articles of incorporation of the company have been filed under the laws of New Jersey.

An organization meeting will be held in this city during the coming week. To-day Joseph Leiter acknowledged that he was going into the milk business.

Jealousy Causes Triple Tragedy.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 6.--In Westminster, south of here, young Frank Blair of Lima shot and instantly killed Edward Brovard and Mary Anderson, and then shot himself in the head. Jealousy was the cause.

A farmer in Matagorda County, Texas, who had suffered from indigestion for nearly five years, had the good fortune to have a wife who had tried Ripans Tabules and who recommended them to her husband. In speaking of his former digestive troubles he says: "After eating, my stomach would become distended and food become sour. I was also troubled with palpitation of the heart. After I had taken two or three Tabules that fullness disappeared, and I have never since felt the least symptoms of palpitation of the heart. My wife, who was troubled with headache, tired feeling and colic, says she felt better after taking the very first Tabule."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

TRUST WAR CLOSES REFINERY.

Mollenhauer Works Closed Because Sugar Trust Has Caused a Loss.

Brooklyn, Feb. 6--More than three hundred men are out of work by the closing down of the Mollenhauer Sugar Company's refineries in Williamsburg. F. D. Mollenhauer, the secretary, made this statement:

"We are shutting down temporarily because we have on hand more raw and refined sugar than ever before. Of the refined we have in Brooklyn 48,000 barrels, while there is a large stock at Chicago and all our other consignment points. We shall continue to fill orders, and when our stock is sufficiently reduced start up again. This we can do on twelve hours' notice.

We are, of course, losing money on account of the trust war, every barrel turned out by us meaning a loss of from eighty-five cents to one dollar, but we intend to stand by our customers, who have stood by us."

This company has taken no part in the fight between the Havemeyer and Arbuckle interests.

Commander-in-Chief of G. A. R. is Dead

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6--Colonel James A. Sexton, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, died at a quarter past three o'clock Sunday at Garfield Hospital in this city. He had been very ill for some days with pneumonia.

Colonel Sexton was born in Chicago January 5, 1844. He enlisted as a private at the opening of the civil war and served throughout, finishing with the rank of colonel. He served as postmaster of Chicago from 1889 until 1895. He was elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. at the last annual meeting. His latest work had been as a member of the war commission.

Mrs. Place Learns She Must Die.

Sing Sing, Feb. 6--Mrs. Martha place of Brooklyn, who killed her stepdaughter Ida on February 7, 1898, now knows that she will have to forfeit her life in the electric chair if Governor Roosevelt does not save her. Mrs. Place was told of this by the warden after the receipt of the papers in her case from the court of appeals.

Mrs. Place, on receiving the news buried her face in her hands and wept for several minutes without speaking a word. The court of appeals set the week beginning March 20 as the time within which the death sentence must be carried out. Mrs. Place has not yet been informed of this. She has sent for her lawyers and will instruct them to make every effort to secure executive clemency for her.

Mrs. Place will be the first woman to be executed in the electric chair in this state, and the first woman to suffer the death penalty since the hanging of Mrs. Druse in Herkimer county in 1887.

Vassar Will Not Teach Cooking.

New York, Feb. 6--President James M. Taylor of Vassar College took a firm stand against the idea of introducing any domestic training into the college course at the twenty-third annual luncheon of the Vassar Alumnae Association of New York.

After telling of the needs of the college President Taylor spoke of his hopes for a broader view of education, so that women would be put unquestionably on the same intellectual plane with men.

"There is a new danger which threatens," he added. "I refer to the proposition which has been so widely exploited by many good women to put a course of domestic science into the curriculum of girls' colleges. I'm not going to take up the cudgels against domestic science. I'm a married man, and have use for it. But it is out of place in the college course."

Refinery Paid $12,000 to Stay Closed.

Marietta, Ohio, Feb. 6--The taking of depositions in the Standard Oil Company cases was completed here on Saturday and Attorney General Monnett went to Columbus expecting to return after service upon Nelson Moore superintendent of the Buckeye and Eureka Pipe Line Companies; C. S. Colt, his assistant, and H. J. Guthrie, manager of the Argand Refining Company, recently absorbed by the Standard.

W. J. Cram, manager of the Argand Company before it was gobbled, showed that the Solar Refining Company of New York paid down $14,700 and $3,000 quarterly since. Checks for these payments are signed by Wardwell, the treasurer of the Standard Oil Trust, and they are to continue regularly for ten years.

The plant is shut down but the Standard is still selling "Argand oil."

Life Sentence for Mrs. Botkin.

San Francisco, Feb. 6--Mrs. Cordelia Botkin has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning of Dover, Del. Sentence was pronounced by Judge Carroll Cook after motions for a new trial and an arrest of judgment had been denied.

The poisoning of the innocent wife of the man with whom she was infatuated received her sentence calmly enough. When asked if she had anything to say she raised her head and in a low but distinct tone said:

"I certainly have. I speak from only one standpoint. I am not guilty of this most atrocious crime."

Gen. John M. Palmer's Pension.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6--The House committee on invalid pensions reported the Senate bill to grant a pension to General John M. Palmer of Illinois. The Senate bill gave him a pension of $100 a month which the House committee recommends be reduced to $50 a month. General Palmer is suffering from blindness in one eye, defective hearing and impaired memory. He was the candidate of the Gold Democrats for president in 1896, and was formerly senator from Illinois.

Sale of Corliss Egine Works.

New York, Feb. 6--The Hoadley-Knight-Croker-Leiter syndicate, it is announced authoritatively, has completed negotiations by which the famous Corliss Steam Engine Company's works at Providence, R. I., have been absorbed and will be utilized by the International Air Power Company and its dependent auto-truck companies to manufacture air power engines for domestic and foreign uses.

PEACE COMMISSION DINED.

A Day but Mr. Day Guests of Philadelphia Union League.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6--The Union League tendered a reception on Saturday to the members of the Paris peace commission, at which there were over a thousand guests. All the commissioners were present except ex-Secretary William R. Day who was unable to make the ojurney from Florida. A private dinner preceded the reception, at which the guests were Senators Gray, Davis and Frye and Whitelaw Reid of the peace commission, John Bassett Moore, secretary of the commission, Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, Governor Voorhees of New Jersey, Governor Lowndes of Maryland, Senator Sewell of New Jersey and Postmaster General Smith.

President McKinley said in his letter of regret: "As I have long enjoyed the personal friendship of all the commissioners and have been closely associated with them in public life, I have uncommon regret that I cannot join in the dinner given in their honor. To the guests assembled please convey my good wishes and belief that the great work that the commissioners have achieved will redound to the good of the nation and of humanity."

Last Reconciliation Between the Sections.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6--When the House passed the Military Academy appropriation bill, carrying $601,817, Mr. Griggs, Democrat of Georgia, took up the president's recent utterances as to government care of Confederate graves. He referred to the devotion of southern men to the country, from the days of Appomattox to those of Santiago. Let there be an end, therefore, he urged, to the constant reiteration of reconciliation between the sections. That reconciliation had long ago been accomplished, and with the new generation of the South, the younger men, there was no need of reconciliation, as there had been no separation.

A Cast Iron Combination.

Chicago, Feb. 6--One of the latest movements to combine industrial corporations is that which has for its object the consolidation of a number of the most important cast iron plants of the country. The name for the company is to be the United States Cast Iron and Foundry Company. It will have a capitaliaztion of $24,000,000, divided into $12,000,000 of seven per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock and $12,000,000 of common stock.

The combination will be made up of the American Pipe and Foundry Company, Dennis Long & Co., the Addieston Pipe and Steel Company, the Lake Shore Foundry Company, the Ohio Pipe Company, the Buffalo Pipe Company, the McNeal Pipe and Foundry Company, and the National Pipe and Foundry Company. These eight concerns are said to control more than ninety-five per cent. of the total output of cast iron pipe in the country.

Samuel Sloan's Successor.

New York, Feb. 6--Leonard's Railway News will announce to-day the selection of W. H. Truesdale as president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

Mr. Truesdale has been selected by the nominating committee as the successor of Samuel Sloan, who retires from the presidency because of advanced years and failing health. The committee, consisting of George F. Baker, H. McKay Twombley and William Rockefeller, sent a telegram to Mr Truesdale on last Friday offering to him the position and asking him to come to New York to-day. His reply was satisfactory.

Mr. Truesdale is at present first vice president of the Chicago, Rick Island and Pacific road. He is 55 years old and is considered one of the foremost railroad men in the country. His salary in his new position will be $25,000 a year.

Rockefeller Property for Sale.

Tarrytown, Feb. 6--Edward Farrington, treasurer of the village of North Tarrytown, has made public the list of the property owners who had not paid their taxes for this year. They numbered ten and their property is to be sold on February 28 unless the taxes are paid.

William Rockefeller's name appears among the list of delinquents. He is assessed for $141.75 for the See Farm. The assessors placed the valuation of the farm at $18,000, but Mr. Rockefeller says he bought it for $3,000 and will sell it for that amount. He did not make any effort to prevent the authorities from advertising his property, although the fight over the taxes for this particular farm has been on for two years.

Lebanon Against Quay.

Lebanon, Pa., Feb. 6--The primary election in this city resulted in a sweeping anti-Quay victory and closed one of the most remarkable and hotly contested elections for a Republican nomination ever held here.

It was a contest for the nomination for state senator to succeed Lieutenant Governor Gobin, recently resigned, and was fought strictly on Quay and anti-Quay lines. Both factions had their friends lined up to a man, and hard work was done until the polls closed. Large amounts of money were brought into the contest by both factions, and the contest was closely watched throughout the entire state.

Roosevelt Names Architect.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6--Governor Roosevelt has decided a change is desirable in the office of capitol commissioner and state architect.

Isaac T. Perry, who has held that position continuously since 1883, must go. George Lewis Heins, a prominent architect, and a member of the firm of Heins and La Farge of New York, has been selected to be Commissioner Perry's successor and it is likely that the governor will send his nomination to the Senate to-day.

Home Burial for Soldiers.

New York, Feb. 6.--The transport Roumanian, which has just sailed for Porto Rico and Cuba, carries undertakers and grave diggers, and five hundred metal lines coffins. The object of the voyage is to exhume and bring home the bodies of soldiers who were killed in the late war.

PROMOTION FOR NAVAL HEROES.

Board Recommends Advancement for Twenty-nine Junior Officers.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.--Only twenty-nine officers of the navy are recommended for advancement for conspicuous and heroic action in the war with Spain, in the report submitted to Secretary Long by the naval board on promotion.

As the board still has to receive reports from Rear Admiral Dewey, its work is incomplete, and it can be confidently expected that promotion will be given to several officers who distinguished themselves at Manila.

The list made public recalls many stirring incidents in which those rewarded participated.

As all the commanding officers of the vessels which took part in the battles of Santiago and Manila bay have been promoted, the board considered only the cases of junior officers.

Six officers of the Gloucester, which performed such plucky and gallant work during the Santiago battle have been recommended for advancement.

The greatest advancement is given to Ensign J. H. Ward, who will be promoted ten numbers. Mr. Ward is the young officer sent on secret service to Spain and Porto Rico during the war.

Lieutenant C. W. Jungen, who commanded the Wompatuck, will be advanced five numbers; Ensign T. P. Magruder of the Marblehead five numbers, and Lieutenant A. C. Dillingham of the Nashville two numbers for gallantry in cutting cables at Cienfuegos and Santiago.

THE WAR INVESTIGATION.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6--The war investigating commission has nearly completed the report of the conduct of the war department in the war with Spain and expects to be able to present its conclusions to the president some time this week.

Unless something unforseen develops in the investigation of the beef controversy, the report may be presented before Wednesday next.

Positive conclusions on this subject have not been reached by the commission. It expects to receive additional testimony soon from the chemists of the agricultural department and the geological survey regarding the chemical analysis of the canned roast beef, samples of which were supplied by the committee.

All hope of hearing from James Farnan of Chester, Pa., who claimed to have seen beef chemicalized in Omaha, has vanished, as he has paid no attention to the telegraphic and written summons of the commission.

In fact all the witnesses who have been declaring that they knew positively that beef was treated chemically, have, when called upon by the commission, declined to testify under oath or have made some excuse for not appearing.

Three Records Broken.

New York, Feb. 6. --Three records were broken by the weekly bank statement issued by the clearing house in loans, deposits and specie holdings. The loans for the week aggregated $741,526,600, an increase as compared with the preceding week of $15,154,400. The deposits increased by $13,385,000, the new total being $880,022,500. The specie holdings increased $1,722,900, to $197,207,800, this increase representing the large consignments of gold which have been arriving here from California in the last week.

New Battleship Maine.

Philadelphia, Feb. 6.--The keel of the new battleship Maine, the contract for the construction of which was awarded a few months ago to the Cramps Shipbuilding Company, will in all probability be laid on February 15. This date will be the anniversary of the destruction in Havana harbor of the ship of that name, which resulted in the loss of 266 men of the United States navy, and which aroused intense feeling throughout the country against the Spaniards.

Big Oil Strike in Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 6.--The Gibson oil well, shot last night, is pronounced a hummer good for one hundred barrels per day.

It is located in the southwest district of the new oil field. Scio, from a population of eight hundred, has increased to a village of three thousand or more. Wells are being sunk in every back yard in Scio, and in the wild land as thick as they can be planted. The total output of Scio already is 2,100 barrels per day.

Death of Alice Atherton.

New York, Feb. 6.--Alice Atherton, the actress, died at a hotel yesterday after a lingering sickness. She had been suering from pneumonia, which followed an attack of congestion of the lungs. On Friday it was thought that she was improving, but a decided change for the worse set in early on Saturday. She was born in Cincinnati about thirty-seven years ago. Her maiden name was Hogan. She went on the stage when very young.

The New York Police Bill.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6.--The New York city police bill will be introduced in the legislature on Wednesday next. This statement was made by Governor Roosevelt on his return from New York city.

The governor declared that the measure was one over which every man interested in pure elections in New York city would rejoice. The bill will be submitted to the Republican leaders in the legislature on Tuesday.

Shot His Fiancee, His Rival and Himself.

Lima, O., Feb. 6.--Frank Blair, a well known young man of this city, shot and fatally wounded Mary Anderson, the woman to whom he was engaged, at Westminster, a small town near here. He then killed Edward Brovard, his rival, and afterward committed suicide. Jealousy was the cause.

Horseless Cabs for Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 6.--Twenty auto-mobile hansom cabs owned by the Croker-Leiter combine will soon be running in Chicago. Arrangements have been pending for several weeks and it has been definitely decided to build a line of cabs similar to those that will begin running in New York next month.

Cold Street Cars.

While Plainfield fares far better than many cities in the excellence of her street car service, there are two faults that the winter season has brought into evidence, and which deserve the immediate attention of the management of the local traction company.

No one expects the temperature of a public conveyance like the trolley car to be ideal. In fact, no arrangement has yet been invented that answers all the requirements of the situation. The Plainfield Street Railway Company has placed small stoves in each car with the intention of making the vehicles as habitable as possible. The stove is all right in its place but it certainly needs a fire inside it to secure the accomplishment of the object for which it was placed there.

Complaints have been made of late that the fire in these stoves is often allowed to fade away to insignifigance, leaving the passengers to fare as best they can. This has happened some times on the coldest days of the winter.

As passengers are frequently entering and leaving the car, it is necessary that the doors should be opened to allow them to pass. It is not necessary, nor conductive to the warmth of the interior, however, that the doors should be left open a greater part of the time. It is particularly uncomfortable to those who are compelled to occupy the seats close to the doors, to have them open and a cold draft speedily overcoming what heat may radiate from the stove in the centre of the car.

A rule that would require the conductors to keep the doors closed as much as possible, if strictly enforced, would be much appreciated by those who are frequently called upon to travel in the local trolley cars.

The New County Idea.

The new county idea which has developed from the project for a Greater Plainfield, and the attendant difficulties of consummating the consolidation of city and borough, is undoubtedly a popular one in both Plainfield and North Plainfield. While it is realized that to form a new county would be a difficult job, probably the hardest of any of the plans proposed for consolidation, it is nevertheless a fact that a majority of the people look at the idea, in view of Plainfield being made the county seat if the new county should become a reality, with particular favor.

Plainfield is the natural center for certain sections of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, and from our point of view it would not work hardships to any one of these bailiwicks if a small slice from each should be cut off to form a new county. But, of course, our point of view is considerably different than that guaging the sentiments of a majority of people in the counties concerned in the project. All three counties, as a whole, would undoubtedly oppose the formation of a new county that depended upon taking parts of their own present territory to accomplish the object. And so it would be an uphill job to carry the plan through the Legislature.

That does not, however, prevent us from dilating on the proposed new county with not a little love and hope for its accomplishment some day.

If Buck Grant, son of the famous General, who is leading candidate for Senator from California, is elected, says a Washington correspondent, an addition to the group of human icebergs in the Senate will have been made. Grant is said by his California friends to be one of the chilliest men on the Pacific coast. When John Sherman was in the Senate he was known as the Senator from the North Pole. It has been said that it takes Senator Hale half a dozen yeaas to become really familiar with anyone.

Governor Voorhees has issued a commission to Colonel Edward D. Fox as Executive Clerk. Colonel Fox has served in this capacity for thirty-three years, and is beginning service under his fourteenth Governor, twelve actual and two acting executives. He was a Union drummer boy and served throughout the Civil War.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Now we want trolley connection with Perth Amboy and a line from Metuchen to Plainfield. A line from Metuchen to Rahway will come next Now that this trolley business has been started let's have lots of it. If every new line is as much of a success as a trade bringer as all of the lines that now centre at New Brunswick the merchants of New Brunswick cannot have too much trolley or too many lines.—New Brunswick Times.

Newspapers opposed to publishing a synopsis of the laws are of two classes: One, because they didn't get them before and another, because they were paid high prices and are not willing to do the work now at a fair price. The Bayonne Herald is one of the newspapers which was not appointed in recent years to print the laws and is not likely ever to be appointed, but is still in favor of publishing a synopsis of the general laws and local statutes in full in all the papers at a fair price, or even at a low rate. The laws, to be obeyed, must be understood; to understand them they must be read, in the public press, and not consigned to pamphlet oblivion, as is the case now. —Bayonne Herald.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The Chicago Record, in an editorial, calls attention to the fact that the present century does not end until Dec. 31st, 1900 The popular idea that the century will end next December is all wrong. The twentieth century will not begin until Jan. 1st, 1901. so people need not be in haste about becoming poetic over the last year of the nineteenth century.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Among the most important dramatic happenings of the present season will be the magnificent production of "Faust," which is to be given at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night of this week. Few plays on the American stage today have achieved such a lasting popularity. Its story, familiar to all, is so replete with poetic beauty and its incidents savor so strongly of the dramatic, that the public never wearies of it, but finds new attractions every year. The play will be given by an excellent company under the management of Messrs. Dexter & O'Neill and they have secured for a leading member of the company, Joseph Callahan, a gentleman well and favorably known in the theatrical world. Mr. Callahan is an actor of varied experiences. He has played many parts with success and this admirable training has fully qualified him to assume the difficult role of Mephistophelee.

Manager Edwards announces that after a great deal of trouble and expense he has finally secured Charles Frohman's company to present to our theatregoers the beautiful comedy, "The Little Minister." The success attained by this play is well known and has caused a great deal of comment. The mere announcement of its appearance here will undoubtedly be sufficient to create a demand for seats that will cause every one to be sold long before the day set for the performance.

For years American theatre goers have associated "Rip VanWinkle" with Joseph Jefferson, until one thinks and speaks of the man and the character as one and the same. And now the public has the opportunity of seeing and listening to this old and thoroughly American stage production in an entirely new light. The presentation by the Jefferson Comedy Company is one of special interest on account of the exceptional cast. The four sons of Joseph Jefferson who are so well recommended by the father and ex-President Cleveland, and Edna Carey and Blanche Bender, both connected by marriage with the Jefferson family, make up a most interesting company. Thomas Jefferson, who takes the part of Rip, is certainly most successful. This clever company will present "Rip VanWinkle" in Plainfield February 20th.

After seven years of persistent and constant presentation of the best programmes of refined vaudeville in New York city, the Proctor continuous performance theatres are now enjoying the greatest triumphs in their history. The Twenty third Street house, just west of Sixth avenue, in the centre of the shopping district, is perhaps the most accessible theatre for patrons of the continuous performance. For those who are uptown and come into the city via the Grand Central depot or the Long Island ferry, it is preferable to visit the Palace, Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue, near Lexington avenue. A special inducement is held forth to the ladies at the Palace, the price for the best seats in the afternoons to the ladies is 25 cents, no higher. The performance begins at the Palace at 1:30 and at the Twenty-third Street house at 12:30 and run continuously until 10:45 p. m.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 6th—The real estate dealers in town are looking forward to an expected boom in Scotch Plains real estate this coming spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schmidt have the sympathy of their friends in the sudden death early Sunday morning of their five-months-old son. The parents were awakened about 4 o'clock Sunday morning by the little one. Mrs. Schmidt gave him his bottle and he went to sleep again and nothing was noted wrong with him. About 7 o'clock Mrs. Schmidt arose and went over to the cradle and cried out to her husband that the little one was dead. Dr. Westcott was hurriedly summoned and decided the little one had passed away with heart trouble or some other sudden death as there was no sign of pain or suffering. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the parents' home at Lee's Hotel. Interment will probably be made in the Catholic cemetery at Plainfield.

A horse, owned by a Lincoln farmer by the name of Nelson, met with a peculiar accident late Friday evening. The horse was tied behind another horse and wagon which was being driven by Nelson's son. The horse was tied so long that he started to wander ahead and in some way became entangled in the wheel, breaking his leg in two places.

Union services of the Baptist and Methodist churches was held in the Methodist church last evening, Rev. Mr. Boyle, who was occupying the Baptist pulpit for the day, preaching. The Christian Endeavor and Epworth League also united in a very interesting union service, which was led by Miss Nellie Hollingsworth.

Mrs. Wm. Maxim and Miss Marion Hall, of Fanwood, who have been spending several weeks at Newport, are expected home this week.

Herbert Marsh has returned from a visit of several days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jimerson, of Westfield.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

There Wouldn't

Be anything extraordinary about this store if we asked as much for reliable goods as others. It's what has made this store what it is—Plainfield's Shopping Centre—selling at lower prices than all others. Our great Inventory Sale continues with new attractions.

KID GLOVES.
Your Kid Glove economy and this store go together. Over a thousand pairs to be sold. Not a pair worth less than one dollar, and most of them $1.50, yours for 79c.
An elegant lot of fine CHAMOIS GLOVES in white and colors, 49c.

SKATING CAPS.
About a hundred of them, were 35c to 50c, closing price 19c each.

POCKETBOOKS.
Almost too many to take in stock, so down goes the price. Were 50c. and 75c., now 29c. each.

BLACK
and colored Underskirts for Spring. The new ones are here, styles, makeup and price just as you would wish them. Fine black Satines, ruffled, $1 each.

MUSLINS.
Take our advice and buy your Sheeting and Muslins now. Manufacturers are advancing prices every day, but we still sell Fruit, Lonsdale and Dwight Anchor 6c yard.

A BARGAIN
in Crash. It's a heavy cotton Huck-a-Buck Crash. Will wear as well as linen and only costs 5c the yard.

A LINEN SPECIAL.
A beautiful cream Damask Towel, all-linen, heavy tied fringe, size 22x45; such a towel usually sells for 40c; we will sell twenty-five dozen at 25c each.

ANOTHER
Bargain in Linen is a lot of twenty inch Linen Birds-eye, regular price 15c yard, price will be 9c the yard.

HOSIERY.
Economical Hosiery buyers always take advantage of our yearly sale of Importers' sample Hose. You get two pairs for the price of one. The sale is now on—it will pay you to investigate.

LADIES'
medium weight Ribbed Vests. Too many in stock, were 39c each, we close them out at 19c each.

WRITING PAPERS.
About a thousand boxes of fine cream Papers, both plain and ruled. Such a paper always sells for 25c the box, will go at 13c.

SOFA
and Chair Cushions. We place on sale today about one hundred of them at a price that hardly pays for the making—24c each. They are large size and covered with fine cretonne.

CHESS CLOCKS.

How They Are Used to Time Matches Between Great Champions.

Hour-glasses or "sand-glasses" were formerly used for the purpose of measuring time at chess matches, but now specially constructed clocks are in general use for this purpose. These clocks consist of two clocks mounted on a common base, which moves on a pivot, the two clocks therefore being on the arms of a sort of see-saw. The beam or base is so constructed that when one clock is elevated it stands perfectly perpendicular, whilst the depressed clock lies over at an angle. But as the mechanism of each clock is so constructed that it only moves when the clock is perfectly perpendicular, it follows that when the upright clock is going the depressed clock is at rest.

Another and more modern variety has the two clocks fixed on the same level, but with a small brass arm reaching from the top of one to the top of the other. This arm acts on a pivot, and can be brought down into actual contact with one clock at a time by a touch of the finger. When it is thus in contact, by an ingenious device the clock is stopped, and the desired result is attained. The working of the clocks during a match is simplicity itself. At the commencement of the match the hands of each clock point to twelve, then at the call of "time to commence play," the clock of the first player is started. Then as soon as he makes his first move he stops his own clock, either by depressing it or by touching the arm referred to, the same motion starting his opponent's clock; so it goes on during the entire course of the game, each move being marked by the stopping of one clock and the starting of the other.

Water Makes Us Live Long.

Solid and dry as the human body appears, water constitutes more than one-fourth of its bulk, and all the functions of life are really carried on in a water bath, and, although the sense of the thirst may be trusted to call for a draught of water when required, the fluid can be imbibed most advantageously for many reasons besides merely satisfying thirst.

In the latter stage of digestion, when comminution of the mass is incomplete, it is much facilitated by a moderate draught of water, which disintegrates and dissolves the contents of the stomach, fitting it for emulgence, and preparing it for assimilation. Hence the habit of drinking water in moderate quantities between meals contributes to health.

Water is the universal solvent of Nature and the chief agent in all transformations of matter. When taken into an empty stomach it soon begins to pass out through the tissues into the circulation to liquefy effete solids, whose excretion from the system is thus facilitated. Very few people think of the necessity of washing the inside as well as the outside of the body, and should be as careful about the cleanliness of his stomach as that of his skin.

Where Gold Fish Grow.

The world's supply of goldfish is obtained chiefly from Shelby County, Indiana, where the largest goldfish farm in the world is to be found. There are two farms in the county—one, measuring thirty acres, is in the southern portion; the other, about one-third that size, lies some miles to the north.

Each farm is divided into ponds, many of which are only ten feet square, all being connected by little channels. Those set apart for breeding have high embankments to protect the fish from wind and cold; no other protection from the elements is necessary during the winter.

It is a common, but mistaken idea that the fish has the power to change its scales as soon as it is taken out of the water. As a matter of fact, the scales of the ordinary fish, and of course those of the experienced farmer, are quite different from the small fry that are found in most ponds.

HOW TO FOLD NAPKINS.

Some Fancy Designs that Make an Effective Showing.

There are many unique and dainty ways to fold the napkin, or serviette, and one of the simplest and prettiest is here reproduced. The most difficult part in the operation is the plaiting, which with great care can be done successfully. To fold a simple "leaf fan," first lay the napkin open on the table, with one of the corners toward you, and the opposite away from you and carry it up to a level with, but some two or three inches to the left of, the opposite corner, letting it rest there. Then press down the crease, and you have the linen folded as in Fig. 1 before you, ready for further manipulation.

Fig. 1.—Press the forefinger of the left hand firmly on point E—the centre of the lower edge—and, taking hold of C by the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, fold it over and carry it up until it lies on point B. Next press the forefinger of the right hand on point E, and, with the left, fold over and carry up D in the same manner, letting it rest on point A. Press the creases flat, and Fig. 2 is complete.

Fig. 2.

Fig. 3.

Fig. 2.—The next operation is a perfectly simple one, consisting, as it does, of folding up a good piece of the bottom point, and bringing it nearly to the

Fig. 3.—Having carried up the bottom point, and pressed it flat, half of it must be folded back again and brought to the centre of the lower edge (see Fig. 4).

Fig. 4.—Now comes the most important stage of folding, and one which must be carried through with great care. The linen, folded so far, must now be plaited, the approximate width of the plaits being indicated by the dotted lines in this diagram. This plaiting must be done from the centre to the ends, squeezing up the plaits between the thumbs and second fingers of both hands. When completed, the serviette will appear as Fig. 5.

Fig. 5.

Fig. 5.—All that now remains to be done is to grip the folded linen endways firmly between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand; shake gently from side to side, and place in a wineglass, when the "Leaf Fan" will require no further attention.

He Was Nearest.

A boy of six years, who attends a private school where prizes are given on every sort of provocation, but as yet had never earned a prize, came home one afternoon and exhibited proudly one of these awards of merit.

"Good!" said his mother. "How did you gain it?"

"I was first in natural history."

"Natural history at your age? How did that happen?"

"Oh, they asked me how many legs a horse had."

"And what did you say?"

"I said five."

"But a horse hasn't five legs, child!"

"I know; but all the other boys said six."

GREAT GUNS AND SMALL.

The Sources of Shot and Shell Upon which the Government Depends.

(By Thomas Burke Grant.)

When one day long after the termination of the great war in which he was a leading strategist Moltke was listening to the encomiums of a friend upon the indebtedness of Germany to himself and Bismarck and Von Roon, Moltke interrupted him, saying: "No, sir, the German Empire was made by our proficiency in small arms; the German Empire was made mainly by the needle gun." It was not until recent years that our country seemed to realize the truth of this saying, or its application here and how much dependent are great nations upon the extent and the proficiency of their means of defense.

Since the Venezuelan question the former indifference of the American people has been superseded by a desire to learn where Uncle Sam keeps his ammunition or manufactures his Krupp guns and torpedoes, and what steps the authorities have taken to protect our large cities and to strengthen the coast defense of the country.

In the manufacture of small arms it has long been a recognized fact that rifles of the greatest accuracy and impact, and capable alike of the longest range and of the greatest possible multiplicity of discharge within a given time, are made in the United States. As a weapon of war the Winchester repeating rifle is to the corresponding military arm of most European nations, what the needle gun of the Prussians was to the antiquated muzzle loader at Sadowa. We make the best rifles in the world, and we have just invented a revolver for cavalry use which beats the Winchester rifle; while in respect of large field pieces the best testimony that can be given is that foreign nations like Russia, which since the days of Ivan, the Terrible, has been spending its energies in warlike developments, find it necessary to place large contracts for the manufacture of cannon in the United States.

No foreign nation excels this country in the department of heavy artillery. In Germany, however, the manufacture of cannon is a private enterprise maintained since the days of Frederick the Great as a hereditary perquisite of Herr Krupp, whose family has stood in much the same relation to the Empire in respect of the manufacture of artillery, as the Pullman company in the matter of sleeping car construction now stands to the great railroads of the United States. The Krupps have invested a fortune at Essen in perfecting processes of which little is known to the rest of the world. But here the great gun factories at Springfield, Mass., at Rock Island, Illinois, at West Troy, N. Y., Frankford, Philadelphia, and at Watertown near Boston are all government concerns, and are under the constant supervision of special officers of the War Department. At Essen, too, the establishment while under one head has different classes of cannon manufactured in branch departments. Here on the other hand each of the national arsenals is devoted to artillery of a special class, in this way maintaining a healthy rivalry and giving each special merit. Thus mounted guns are made at Springfield, ordinary field guns at West Troy, siege artillery guns at Frankford, and heavy guns for coast defences and for throwing projectiles of enormous might and power of penetration at Watertown.

The Watertown factory has just turned out a breech loading gun which is equal to anything at Krupps. It weighs 140 tons, has a bore of 16 inches, length of barrel 49 feet, and will throw a ball weighing one and one-sixth tons a distance of two miles sinking an iron clad belted with 29.6 inches of the best quality of steel at that distance. Here also is manufactured the new variety of gun carriages—viz., the barbette and disappearing carriage, so constructed that no part of the gun can be seen by the enemy except at the moment of firing, after which the gun drops back into its place—and with which the harbors of cities and forts along the Atlantic coasts are all supplied. In proficiency and scientific results the United States are as much advanced in these departments as in respect of infantry or cavalry equipments; while in the matter of facilities in case of emergency the great steel firms at Bethlehem, Pa., at Joliet, Ill., or at the Carnegie establishment at Pittsburg, could all discharge supplementary functions to the government arsenals in case of war. These various steel works could without much alteration in plant or machinery be adapted to the manufacture of military defence on the principle that ocean liners could be transformed into armed cruisers to prey on merchant marine in the event of hostilities.

As the centers for manufacturing the needs of the army are decentralized, so is it with the navy, and which, since the army is small, may be said to be the right arm of the nation's defence. The establishments for the manufacture of naval supplies are at Brooklyn, Norfolk, Virginia, Mare Island, California and at Washington, D. C., this distribution tending, like the practice of naming our vessels after localities, instead of monarchs, to distribute national pride in the achievements of the navy and to make this country as formidable in spirit as it is powerful in numbers or abundant in means of war.

But it is in connection with the manufacture of explosives that the greatest distribution is reached. There are to fewer than sixty such manufactures in the United States, and curiously

Speyer. Eine große Holzbelversammlung beschloß unter Vorsitz des Regierungspräsidenten Freiherrn v. Welser, hier ein historisches Museum für die Pfalz zu erbauen. Die Stadt schenkt den Bauplatz.

Landau. Der hiesige Stadtrath stimmte einhellig dem Projekte der Lokalbahn Landau-Frankweiler zu und wird dieses mit allen Mitteln unterstützen.—Die Projektirungsarbeiten der Eisenbahnlinie Bergzabern-Grenze bei Schönau mit Anschluß an die von dort geplante Linie in's Elsaß sind beendet worden.

Ramstein. Zwischen hier und Lindsbach hat der im vorigen Frühjahr gegründete pfälzische Arbeiterkolonie-Verein ausgedehnte Moorländereien zu der Anlegung der ersten Kolonie erworben. Da die Meliorations des Torfmoores im Sommer wie im Winter die nöthige Arbeit ermöglicht, wurde diese Wahl getroffen.

Stuttgart. In Folge außerordentlich heftigen Sturmes stürzte in der Danneckerstraße ein Gerüst ein, das den Apotheker Zwick unter sich begrub. Zwick war sofort todt.—Auf die seit dem Rücktritt des Prälaten v. Schmid erledigte Stelle eines Oberhofpredigers an der hiesigen Schloßkirche ist der seitherige Dekan Adolf Bilfinger von Ulm unter Beförderung zum Prälaten berufen worden.

Backnang. Zum evangelischen Seelsorger in Kiautschau wurde von der Reichsregierung Stadtvikar Wilhelm dahier ernannt.

Gmünd. Zwei Knaben von Rechberg, im Alter von acht und neun Jahren, fanden an der Straße einen geladenen Revolver. Die Knaben spielten mit dem ihnen unbekannten Fundstücke, der Revolver ging plötzlich los und der Schuß drang dem achtjährigen Knaben in den Unterleib. Das Kind wurde sofort in das hiesige Spital gebracht, ist aber seiner schweren Verwundung erlegen.

Göppingen. Bei der Bürgerausschußwahl drang der vereinigten Volkspartei und Sozialdemokratie gemeinsam aufgestellte Wahlzettel vollständig durch. Es wurden gewählt sechs Volksparteiler und drei Sozialdemokraten.

Heilbronn. Kürzlich kam hier um die Mitternachtsstunde ein Tagelöhner auf die Polizeiwache und verlangte, man solle ihn, da ihn seine Frau nicht mehr in's Haus hereinlasse, auf der Wache beherbergen oder in das Spital verbringen. Da ihm Beides nicht gewährt wurde, weil durchaus kein Grund hierzu vorlag, erklärte er beim Verlassen der Wache sofort, er werde sich auf dem Marktplatz so aufführen, daß man ihn bald aufhebe. Dies geschah, indem er eine grobe Majestätsbeleidigung ausstieß, worauf allerdings seine Festnahme erfolgte.

Oehringen. Hier wurde eine Getreideverkaufs-Genossenschaft gegründet und zum Vorstand derselben Oekonom und Landtagsabgeordneter Gebert von Möhrig gewählt. Gegen 500 Mitglieder sind bis jetzt beigetreten. Der jährliche Umsatz wird auf 50,000 bis 80,000 Centner geschätzt. Die Getreidehalle kommt in die Nähe des Bahnhofes zu stehen. Der Bauplatz wurde von Bierbrauereibesitzer Bader hier unentgeltlich abgetreten.

Winnenden. Dem hiesigen Landjäger gelang es, den in der ganzen Umgegend durch seine Diebstähle und sein Räuberleben bekannten Ruoff von Rattweil, Ober-Amt Schorndorf, in einem Weinberghäuschen, wo er sich eingerichtet hatte, festzunehmen. Ruoff war dem Gefängniß in Heilbronn entsprungen.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Die Strafkammer verurtheilte den Maurermeister Hermann Pfeifer von hier wegen fahrlässiger Tödtung und Körperverletzung zu vier Monaten Gefängniß. Pfeifer hatte bei dem Bau einer Kellerdecke geringwerthigen Cement und schlechten Sand verwendet, so daß die Decke einstürzte und einen Arbeiter tödtete. Bei einem anderen Bau wurden mehrere Arbeiter erheblich durch ein herabstürzendes Mauerwerk verletzt, da das Gerüst nicht stark genug und obendrein unrichtig konstruirt war.

Auggen. Wie ergiebig die Jagden in hiesiger Gegend sind, bewies das Treibjagen, welches kürzlich in einem größeren Theil der hiesigen und in einem kleinen Theil der Neuenburger Gemarkung abgehalten wurde. Es wurden gegen 1000 Hasen geschossen.

Heidelberg. Gegenwärtig werden bei der Molkenkur Nachgrabungen angestellt. Beim Teufelsloch fand man zwei Pfeiler, die am Eingang eines Gewölbes standen. Weiteres Mauerwerk wurde entdeckt, konnte aber noch nicht näher untersucht werden. Man vermuthet jetzt, daß das obere Schloß (die Molkenkur) und das untere gleichzeitig angelegt wurden.

Oberkirch. Die glückliche Gewinnerin des Haupttreffers der Badener Loterie im Werthe von 10,000 Mark (zwei Zuchtstuten) ist die in der hiesigen Papierfabrik beschäftigte ledige Marie Vogt von Gaisbach.

BOOKS READ AT SING SING.

"Never Too Late to Mend" is Most Popular Among Convict Readers.

Many records have been made among different people to obtain "the favorite author." None has revealed more astonishing results than a two months' record kept by the librarian of Sing Sing Prison.

The most popular author in Sing Sing year in and year out is Charles Reade, and the most popular book is "Never Too Late to Mend." There are about thirteen hundred convicts in the prison, and in two months 463 of them read this book, which has been responsible for many reforms in prisons. Next on the list comes "Put Yourself in His Place," with 436 readers.

Charles Lever's "Charles O'Malley" comes next in favor, with the same author's "Tom Burke of Our's" following, which is pushed hard by Bulwer Lytton's "Paul Clifford."

Samuel Lover's "Rory O'More" is next. Duma's "Monte Cristo" is his most popular book. Dickens ranks next with "David Copperfield" in the lead, and "The Tale of the Two Cities," with its wonderful convict pictures, third in favor.

Conan Doyle, with Sherlock Holmes, is the first modern author who is at all in favor. Capt. Kink's "Deserter" comes next. Capt. Marryatt's "Mr. Midshipman Easy" leads the sea tales. Wilkie Collins's "Moonstone" and Black's "Shandon Bells" are next in demand. Then come "Lorna Doone" and "Vanity Fair." The only woman's book that is popular is "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Love stories are not wanted. —New York World.

The Contractor Was Discharged.

Franklin W. Smith, a Boston contractor, was tried by court-martial and found guilty of pocketing a thousand or two dollars out of a contract with the Navy department for supplies. The report of the court-martial was sent to President Lincoln for his examination, who returned it with this characteristic endorsement:

"Whereas, Franklin W. Smith had transactions with the United States Navy Department to a million and a quarter of dollars, and had the chance to steal a quarter of a million; and whereas, he was charged with stealing only ten thousand dollars, and from the final revision of the testimony it is only claimed that he stole one hundred dollars, I don't believe he stole anything at all.

Therefore, the records of the court-martial, together with the finding and sentence, are disapproved, declared null and void, and the defendant is fully discharged.

CURRENT HUMOR.

Author: "Here are some thoughts that burn."

Editor: "Well, hold on to them, and I'll see that you both get fired."

Dobson: "Shakespeare never repeated. He was original in everything."

Smiley: "Guess that's so. He didn't even spell his own name twice alike."

"Is that report true about the cashier of the Confidence Bank committing suicide?"

"It is, poor fellow. He was caught when he had embezzled only $1,200. The disgrace was more than he could bear."—Indianapolis Journal.

Nerve Strain—"It must be a good deal of a strain to run a trolley-car," said the talkative man on the platform.

"You bet it is," said the motorman. 'W'y, when I go along fer two or t'ree weeks without runnin' over anybody I git so nervous I can't eat nor sleep." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Priscilla—Jack is the oddest fellow. He took me driving yesterday, and when we were seven miles from home he said if I wouldn't promise to marry him he'd make me get out and walk back.

Penelope—Did you walk back?

Priscilla—No, but the horse did.—Truth.

"When I was your age," said Mr. Cumrox sternly, "I earned my own living."

His son looked uneasy, but was silent.

"Well, have you nothing to say for yourself in that connection?"

"N—nothing, sir, except that I sympathize with you and congratulate you on the fact that it's all over with."—Washington Star.

"The Green Bag" tells this story of Judge Wilson, of Ohio: "Several lawyers gathered in Judge Wilson's room after adjournment of court, and were discussing the retirement of a member of the bar. Among them was one whose practice is worth $25,000 a year. He said: 'I have been practising several years, and am well fixed. I have thought I should like to retire and devote my remaining years to studies I have neglected. 'Study law,' said Judge Wilson."

RIGHT IN IT.

Old Spurhumper—Speaking of coasting. Well, say!

WHY HE WAS DISCHARGED.

Difficulties That Secretaries Encounter in the Navy.

There are many stories told about the manner in which Secretaries in the different departments are hampered by what is known as regulations, law and general red tape. An instance of this occurred the other day in the Navy Department. A case was being presented to Secretary Long concerning an enlisted man who went into the Navy as a sailor at the beginning of the war, but as there did not seem to be any near prospect of further fighting the man wanted to return to his family and his old occupation.

To the Secretary it was a meritorious case, and he decided to issue a discharge for the man. He called in an officer from the Navigation Bureau and made his wishes known. "It can't be done, Mr. Secretary," said the officer. A sailor cannot be discharged except for cause." The Secretary sent for the Chief of the Navigation Bureau. "I want to have this "any man can be discharged for cause." "Not otherwise?" asked the Secretary. "I am anxious to have this man discharged." "Well," answered the Judge Advocate, "the law says a man discharged from the Navy," he announced. The Chief knit his brows and replied: "Mr. Secretary, the law cannot be discharged from the Navy and regulations are very strict; a man except for cause."

The Secretary was not yet satisfied, and requested the attendance of the Judge Advocate General, the law officer of the Department. "Is there any way in which a man may be discharged from the Navy?" asked the Secretary. "Oh, yes," answered the lawyer, man cannot be discharged from the Navy except for cause, and the reason stated in his discharge." The Secretary looked at the officer for a moment and then said, with a twinkle in his eye; "Make out the man's discharge," and added, after a slight hesitation, "because it rained yesterday morning." The man received his discharge.—Washington Star.

MICKY FEAR'S BIGOTRY.

He Declined to Paint His Name on His Farm Implements in Roman Letters.

It was in Topeka, and some of the men at the club were discussing the bigotry which led a lot of Kansas preachers to object to the publication of 'Gene Ware's "Washerwoman's Song" in a school book. Lawyer Downey, who is an Irishman by birth and education, listened for a time and then he told the following story:

"Speaking of the bigotry, gentlemen, I think the most bigoted man I ever knew was a little old Irish Presbyterian by the name of Michael Fear who used to live in my parts in Ireland. We had a county ordinance there which required every man to paint his name on the shafts of all the carts or other implements he might own, the purpose being to fix their ownership for taxation. Fear had a number of carts, but he obstinately refused to obey the ordinance, and in due time he was hauled before the county magistrate. The magistrate was a lenient old fellow who had no desire to punish his neighbors, so he said in a fatherly manner to the culprit:

"'Now Micky Fear, I want you to go home and paint your name in plain Roman letters on all of your carts. The law is no reflection on your honesty, and you should not look at in that way. It is a good law, a necessary law, and every man ought to obey it, and if you do not obey it in a reasonable time I shall be compelled to fine you."

"Micky backed away to the court-house door and then he shouted: 'Fine, an' be d—d to yez! I'll not paint me name on the ca-arts in Roman letters! To hell wid the Pope!"—Kansas City Journal.

Sleeping Machines.

Experiments have been made recently with some curious devices in the shape of "sleep machines." Sleep will sometimes result from fatigue of the eyes. Looking at trees or other objects as we rush along in the train will frequently "send us off."

An ingenious gentleman has produced a machine for this purpose. It is a box surmounted with two fan-like panels, one above the other, revolving horizontally in opposite directions. These panels are studded with mirrors that throw upon the retina a vibrating flood of twinkling light.

A similar effect is produced by staring at a bright ball placed high above the head, so that some slight strain is caused by staring at it.

Another apparatus for causing drowsiness is formed of clamps for squeezing the arteries leading to the brain. The clamps remain in position for less than half a minute, and by that time the sufferer from insomnia has been placed in a state of somnolence by the decreased flow of blood to the brain.

Still another method is to arrange an electric battery in the bed so that a mild current acts upon the spine.—San Francisco Call.

All Have Done Well.

Farmer Cornfed—Ya-as, my son John took the law course at Yale. Rube took the scientific course, and Dave took the divinity course.

Farmer Hayrake—And they have all done well, I suppose?

Farmer Cornfed—Yew bet they have. Josh is trainer of the Washout Indian University football team, Rube is coach of the Bungtown Military academy crew, and Dave is athletic director of the Pokeville Young Ladies' seminary track team and baseball nine.—Judge.

THE GREATEST GUNS.

KRUPP'S FAMOUS FACTORY AT ESSEN, GERMANY.

This is the Town from Which Pullman, Ill., was Modeled—The Works Turn Out Locomotives, and Other Machines Used in Peaceful Pursuits.

Beside a black river termed the Ruhr which washes a smoky forest of tall chimneys and innumerable iron foundries, and surrounded by coal mines, crossed here and there with avenues, the whole topped by a little neighboring hill, lies the far-famed village, of Essen. Essen is famous in Europe as the home of the Krupp gun and in the United States as the model out of which the late George M. Pullman made his famous experiments of a paternal municipality. The very traditions of Essen run into parables about princes and paternalism, but here four generations of the Krupps have lived and died, each generation adding a large slice to their fortunes as the hereditary gun-makers to the Kings of Prussia.

If one were asked what is Essen he could truly answer that Essen consists of 1,553 big blazing ovens, 439 steam boilers, 450 steam engines, 1,622 machine tools, 82 trip hammers, 21 rolling trains, a forest of tall chimneys, 500 acres of land under one cover and 19,605 workmen tortured during their comparatively short lives in order to forge implements of human destruction. The capstone, the climax and the arbiter of all is Herr Alfred Krupp.

That is all there is in Essen. And yet though the industrial chief of his own principality, in the only attempt which Alfred Krupp ever made to enter the Reichstag, he was defeated by a Socialist, and chiefly through the suffrages of his own workmen. There is an eloquent chapter of nineteenth century history in these two facts indicating as they do that though an institution and an organic part of the German Empire the people who derive their living from him wouldn't trust him with the making of the laws. So much for Krupp; now for his hammers.

There are as I have said 82 steam hammers in the Krupp factories varying from 500 pounds weight to 50 tons. These hammers have each names taken from the Emperor's household. The largest of these hammers is termed the "Kaiser," whose ponderous weight of 50 tons falling upon an anvil block weighing 1,250 tons crushes with its inherent weight and acquired momentum the hughest mass of steel to a thickness of a sheet of tissue paper. This hammer is operated by a button and can be stopped suddenly within the eighth of an inch of the plane of the anvil, thus giving a light or a heavy stroke as the occasion requires. The "Kaiser" is capable of giving 300 strokes a minute. The force of its impact on the foundations is distributed by means of water; otherwise when in action it would shake the city. It is attended usually by four expert workmen upon either side who swing the casting operated on over the anvil by means of a crane, while the fifth man operates the hammer by touching the button.

In a Krupp gun nothing is put except what is termed crucible steel. This crucible steel is at first a huge ingot which in uniformity is matchless in the world. The ores that make the best steel are known in chemistry respectively as red hematite and spathic ore, and of which with a sprinkling of manganese and suitable combinations of carbon and silicon the famous cannons that bear Krupp's name are made. A large ingot of this ore, usually weighing twenty-five tons, is lifted on the anvil and is there deftly moulded by highly trained men who roll it and twist it and turn it with surprising rapidity while the great hammer unmercifully plays upon the hot amorphous mass until the desired shape is attained. The highest grade of intelligence is necessary for these men and sometimes their observation has to be so prompt and fine that an attendant has been disqualified for his work by even a bilious attack. When the piece of steel is duly formed and without a weld, it is cooled and bathed in oil. From the bath it is taken to the boring lathe where the interior is scooped out by boring machines to the required calibre. In this department the gun is tested and subjected to various scientific processes which provide safety in use, care being taken that where the force of the explosion is greatest the part is thickest while towards the muzzle it is grooved by what is termed the "choking" process, so as to give the projectile from the moment of expulsion to that of penetration the same motion as a spinning top.

Safety has been for years one of the special features of the Krupps. During the war with Denmark in 1864 several of their guns burst at the breech and there was grave dissatisfaction in the German army in which the firm was in some danger of losing its monopoly, but owing to greater care and proficiency and a new test the danger is now reduced to a minimum, and not more than one gun in 2,300 guns could possibly burst.

Many people believe that the Krupp works are wholly devoted to the manufacture of heavy artillery and that no nation save Germany can acquire Krupp guns. This is a mistake. The Krupps will manufacture guns for any nation with which Germany is at peace and a few years ago the firm entertained an offer to sell two cannons to the British war office. Herr Krupp said the price would be $5,000,000 in view of which prohibitive figure it is needless to say there was no sale. About two-thirds of the working force of the establishment is devoted to building steam engines, locomotives, shaftings, and other rolling stock and machinery of a purely commercial character. The long duration of peace in Europe has been discouraging of late years to the purely military part of the establishment since cannon once supplied to the army last many years in times of peace. The commercial features of the establishment therefore overshadow the gun-making department, and Herr Krupp has been increasing that part of his plant which is devoted to the interests of peace, rather than to those of war. The number of bridges, beams, rails, tires, switches, steamer shafts, rudders and other marine machinery made at Essen, is far in excess of the cannons and gun carriages and mortars and howitzers on exhibition or which the firm turn out annually. Essen which is thus fast becoming the home of Vulcan rather than the shrine of Mars is but a reflex of the change from war to peace which is fast coming over the minds of man. Upon entering the establishment it presents the view at first sight of a military museum where are arranged in rows all the different forms and varied improvements in cannon during a century or more. These weapons are stored in chronological order and indicate wonderful progress and precision from the primitive gun used in the wars of the Tyrolese, made of the trunk of a tree and bound by an iron band, down to the more formidable arms of the cars of Moltke and Von Roon. The development of arms has probably reached the highest point of perfection, but the demand for this perfect weapon is much less than in the days of Prince Eugene. To such an extent is this the case that Essen which for the better part of a century has resounded with the Titanic blows of Odan and of Thor is at length devoted to the manufacture of implements of peaceful commerce though it is of course as the national armory of the German Empire that this unique place is still famous and chiefly interesting to the world.

A Queer Lottery.

Men do not acquire their better halves nowadays in civilized nations as the result of the tossing up of a coin or the cast of a die, nor are Englishmen in the habit of taking their spouses with a halter round their neck to Smithfield, and there sell them by public auction to the highest bidder.

Russia, however, seems to form an exception, if we are to believe an advertisement relative to a lottery for which tickets can be bought for about a rouble each in the town of Smolensk.

There is only one prize to be drawn, and it consists of the entire sum yielded by the sale of the tickets, amounting to 5,000 roubles, together with a lady described as of noble blood. The tickets are sold only to males, and the lucky drawer of the prize will have to marry the damsel if he takes the 5,000 roubles. If, however, he be already married, he is at liberty to turn over the money and the lady to any friend whom he may wish to put in for such a good thing. If the winner should be willing to marry, but is not found to the damsel's taste, then they are to be dispensed from matrimony, and permitted to divide the roubles.

We surmise that, unless the prize-winner should happen to be an eligible young bachelor, the spinster will prefer the last method of settlement, the more so as she has described herself as being not only no longer young, but also poor.

Teeth as Big as Your Hand.

"Whoever has looked inside an elephant's mouth has seen a strange sight," said an elephant trainer of P. W. "Elephants have no front teeth, and they never eat flesh or any food that requires tearing apart. Eight teeth are all they have, two above and below on each side, huge yellow molars as wide as a man's hand and a couple of inches thick.

"Over these hay or fodder is shifted by the queerest, ugliest tongue in the whole animal kingdom, a tongue that is literally hung at both ends, having no power of movement except in the middle, where it shifts back and forth from side to side, arching up against the roof of the big mouth like an immense wrinkled pink serpent. There is nothing stranger than the working of an elephant's tongue, unless it be the working of his breathing apparatus when he sleeps.

"Elephants, like human beings, have two sets of teeth—the milk teeth, which are smaller than the permanent molars, fall out when the animals are about fourteen years old. These baby teeth, which are nevertheless enormous, are occasionally picked up by circus men among the fodder and preserved as curiosities."

A Large Key.

"The oldest lock in existence is the one which formerly secured one of the doors of Nineveh," says the St. Louis Republic. "It is a gigantic affair, and the key to it, which is as large as one man can conveniently carry, reminds one of the Scriptural reference to such instruments being carried on the shoulder. The exact words are, 'And the key to the house of David I will lay upon his shoulder.' The key to the lock from Nineveh is nearly three and a half feet in length, and of the thickness of a four-inch drain tile."

Household Hints.

To keep rust away rub steel over with lard after having been well cleaned, and to take off the lard use lime.

An excellent liniment for bruises is equal parts of laudanum, alcohol, and oil of wormwood make a good liniment for bruises.

For an eye-wash have 3 to 5 grains of alum dissolved in ½ pint of water, and applied to the eyes whenever they are weak or inflamed will strengthen them.

ELECTRICITY IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

Its Progress Slow for Domestic Uses—Electric Kitchens Hardly in Sight.

"I think," said the electrician, with a weary air, "I saw something in the paper the other day about lighting closets with electricity. Opening the door turns on the light; shutting the door turns it off. It's a beautiful scheme, and as practicable as it is beautiful. But that's all the good it does. People will keep on pawing around in dark closets, or setting all their best clothes on fire by lighting matches among them until I am gray—or until you are, which you probably think will be longer.

"We hear a good deal of talk about the giant strides of science and things like that. I suppose it does seem to be getting over the ground when you look at it from one point of view. But from another way it seems fairly to crawl. For instance, twenty years ago there was in London an exhibition of cooking by electricity. Now you would think that in twenty years a process like that, one which comes home to every household, would have been adopted everywhere. And seven years ago the papers were full of descriptions of the Peabody house in Brooklyn, where the lighting, heating and cooling, washing, ironing and cooking were all done by electricity. People predicted then that the finish of the coal ranges and gas stoves was in sight. But I notice that the stove makers are still doing business and they don't seem to have a lean and hungry look.

"The invention of a thing isn't all that's necessary. That's only the first step. If you can't make your invention do its work as cheaply as its rivals you will never get the world to use it. Cooking by electricity is hardly any further along than it was five years ago, and it wont be any further along until it gets to be as cheap as gas or coal. That time is coming slowly but surely nearer; in the meantime though, you won't find many electric kitchens outside of exhibitions. They have one down at the Edison Company's new plant in Duane street, but that doesn't count outside. Every Friday luncheon is cooked there and served to the staff and the kitchen works all right. The trouble isn't in the cooking, anyway. It's in what the cooking costs.

"It's as hard to push a new device in electrical household appliances as it is for some people to get into society. Take electric curling irons, or rather the heaters for these irons. Women go into the new hotels, where there are electric lights, and the only way in which they can heat a curling iron is to use an alcohol lamp. There is more damage done to furniture and carpets and hangings in this way than would cover the cost of the hotel man of providing the attachments for heating the iron. Yet I know of only one hotel in this town where a woman will find that convenience.

"One trouble in getting private houses to use electricity is that they don't want to tear up the house to have the wires strung. The fine new houses are being provided with electric wires in the building, and many of the old ones have had them put in; but people are slow to make radical changes of any sort. Physicians have been about as ready to avail themselves of the new opportunities as anybody. A great many of them have an office wire which taps the street wire and use electricity in cauterizing and for regular electrical treatment. It does away with any fussing with batteries, and is always ready. Dentists do the same way. But when it comes to really domestic uses we have to admit that electricity has gained ground very, very slowly. It's always the way, though. You will find men's offices equipped with the very latest conveniences, but the women's kitchens have to get on as best they can."

WIT AND HUMOR.

"My boy," they said to him warningly, "she's too smooth. She'll fool you every time. She's one of those sweet, clever little woman, who knows just how to manage men. If you marry her, she'll be the boss.

"Well," he replied slowly, "from what I have seen of matrimony, it is a question of being handled with a club or with taffy, and for my part I prefer the taffy."

And their engagement was announced shortly afterward."—Chicago Post.

In her heart love and duty strove for mastery, and duty won. "No man shall wed me," she exclaimed, with suffused eyes and quivering lips, "who does not promise me that if he is ever President of the United States he will use his influence to have battleships christened with water!" Such was the ardor of his passion that Algernon hesitated not a moment. "I promise," he cried, and fell upon his knees. —Detroit Journal.

We would have had a pleasant evening if it had not been for one of the most insufferable little youngsters who was ever allowed to sit up late.

"Why, what was the matter with him?"

"Oh, he is one of those children that say the smart things that tickle us so much when we read about them in the newspapers and that drive us distracted when we have to listen to them."—Chicago Post.

Justice (to negro prisoner)—"You are charged with stealing chickens Do you want a lawyer?"

Prisoner—"No, your honor."

Justice—"Why not?"

Prisoner—"If it pleases de co't, I'd like, if yer nonor pleases, ter keep dem chickens myself, after habbin' de trouble er gettin' 'em."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

Manager George Fuller is very anxious to give the people of Plainfield a chance to see more of basket ball. According to the present schedule, there is no game here until the last part of the month. Mr. Fuller will try to secure several other dates in the interval. He is particularly anxious to have a game here on the evening of February 13th, which is a holiday.

One of the new registered teams in New York that has been distinguishing itself is that of the Columbia College Freshmen. The team includes two of the old Twenty-third Street Branch players. Lester Glenny, of this city, is also on the team. The reputation of the Plainfield team has gone forth and the Columbia boys are quite anxious to come here to play. The management is now considering the matter.

There is great regret expressed among the basket ball enthusiasts that action has not been taken on the movement to get the Yale basket ball team to play a match game with the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team. Now that the Plainfield team is standing so high, it is a great pity that it cannot meet the best teams in the country. If the association insists on the rather narrow policy of not allowing the team to play anywhere in Plainfield outside of the gymnasium, another year may see the team under independent control.

Baymond Carroll, the winner of the recent indoor athletic contest at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, is making an excellent showing in basket ball this year. He has so improved that at the opening of the season he was made a regular substitute for the first team. He has since travelled with the team and done excellent work. Fred Bonney, since there has been some competition for the place of substitute, has shown decided progress and now playing in good form. Carroll has the advantage over him through his weight and height.

Volcanic Eruptions

Are grand, but Skin Eruptions rob life of joy. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, cures them; also Old, Running and Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, Warts, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Chapped hands, Chilblains. Best Pile Cure on earth. Drives out Pains and Aches. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

A Perfect Laundry.

We want to have a perfect laundry and give perfect service. Most of our customers think we do now. If every man in Plainfield knew how well we launder shirts, collars and cuffs, we would do nearly all the linen worn. Our aim is to match the laundering of new goods. A trial will show you how near we have come to doing it. Send for our wagon.

The bowling tournament on the Plainfield Catholic Club alleys will terminate on Wednesday evening.

Next Wednesday evening the entries for the bowling tournament to be started on the Ulrick alleys will be closed.

There was no bowling on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club last Saturday evening in the tournament now in progress, and it will be impossible to complete the tournament early this week. Tonight the games will be continued and the members hope to finish this week.

VARICUS SPORTS.

The next event scheduled to take place at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is the gymnastic contest for novices, to be held Saturday evening. A novice, according to the ruling of the association is one who has never won a medal of any kind at the association. The object is to encourage some of the new members to try in the contest. There are a number of them who are doing excellent work in gymnastics while their athletic work has not been of such a high standard. The work will be on the regular apparatus according to a certain plan drawn up by Physical Director Heywood which will be duly announced. The contest will be held Saturday evening and the visitor's gallery will be open to the friends of the contestants and those interested in the work.

WHIST

This evening the "pony" team from the Park Club will play for the State trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association. The Roseville A. C., winners of the D. L. and W. section, have defeated the Ridgewood Club, winners of the Erie section, and will now meet the Park Club, winners of the Jersey Central section. If the Parks win then they will play the Ridgewood Club. A victory then would give them the trophy and the State championship. The game tonight will be played at Roseville.

GOLF.

The annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be held this evening at the Casino. Important business will be considered and a full attendance of members is requested.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Columbia agency received the last shipment of Model 49, which will be sold out at $40. Order quick and save future disappointment.

Funeral of Evan Jones.

The funeral services of the late Evan Jones were held from his residence on Kensington avenue this morning. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes conducted the services and made a short address.

There were several solos by Miss Ripley, of Westfield. There were a number of floral pieces, including a handsome one from the Board of Trade. The attendance was small. The remains were taken to Jersey City on the 1:15 train for interment.

SMALL JUDICIAL FIELD.

ONLY TWO REPUBLICAN LAWYERS ELIGIBLE TO SUCCEED BARTINE.

They are Senator Reed and Lewis Schenck—Judge Must be Five Years a Counselor—Bartine May be Continued.

A very singular state of affairs exist in Somerset county as regards the filling of the judiciary position now held by Judge Bartine at Somerville. Judge Bartine's term expires next year and it will be the duty of Governor Voorhees to fill the place. Naturally, a Republican should get the position. Here is where the peculiar part of the affair comes in.

Just now there are only two lawyers who are Republicans, that are eligible to the office. They are Senator Chas. A. Reed and Lewis Schenck, the former of the borough, and the latter of Somerville. The requisites are that a lawyer must be a counselor for five years in the county. Of course, there are a number of Democrats eligible to the position. Some say that Judge Bartine has been such a good man on the bench that he deserves a reappointment.

THROWN IN THE DITCH.

Miss Arlene Crane and J. C. Kirkner Met With an Accident While Driving.

Miss Arlene Crane and J. Caspar Kirkner, both of West Eighth street, were thrown from a buggy and Miss Crane was seriously injured, Saturday afternoon, near Dunellen.

They were coming from the direction of Bound Brook and had just passed the residence of J. P. Osmund, when they met one of the trolley cars of the Brunswick Traction Company, which had left Dunellen at 5:15 o'clock, under the care of Motorman Smith and Conductor J. C. Kirkner.

The horse shied and turned the buggy upside down in the ditch and Miss Crane was thrown out on her face, badly cutting it. Mr. Kirkner escaped with a shaking-up. Aid was secured from a neighboring house. The horse was pinned to the ground and could not run.

DETAILS OF MANAGAMENT.

Directors of Watchung Silk Company Arranging With Promoters.

A meeting of the directors of the Watchung Silk Company was held Saturday evening when a proposition of the two promoters, Messrs. Bullock and Young, was submitted to them. It was not entirely satisfactory to the directors who drew up another somewhat different, which will be given to the promoters today. Another meeting of the directors will be held tomorrow night. While the directors are willing that the promoters shall buy the raw materials and sell the finished product, they have decided to appoint the book-keeper themselves so as to keep in touch with the details of the business.

Dr. French's Condition.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Feb. 6—Dr. J. Clement French, pastor of the Park Presbyterian church, who has been very seriously ill for a month, was reported to be a little better yesterday. There has been a perceptible improvement in his condition during the last day and a half, although he is a very sick man. He took a little more nourishment yesterday than he had been able to for some days.

Borreco Family Has Recovered.

Mrs. Borreco and her infant child, both of whom were injured in the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck at West Dunellen, left the hospital last Saturday cured. The infant child was the one that Dr. Zeglio took special care of and brought to the hospital. The child was found by him in an out of the way place and was apparently dying when discovered by the doctor. He is now exceedingly gratified to learn of its recovery.

Dr. Taylor Broke His Arm.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor, of Park avenue, slipped on the ice yesterday on the sidewalk in front of his house and broke his left arm. Dr. Henry H. Lowrie was called and set the arm, and today Dr. Taylor is resting comfortably. Dr. Taylor was about to enter a hack standing in front of his door and be conveyed to the station, where he was to take a train for Middletown, where he holds service every Sunday morning.

Leaders to be in Charge.

On Thursday evening of this week the ladies will have charge of the Plainfield Catholic Club and several interesting features have been arranged by the committee in charge.

To Preach to Juniors.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey will preach to the J. O. U. A. M. next Sunday at the Y. M. C. A. Members of both the lodges, Somerset and Franklin, are invited, and will attend in a body.

Congressman Fowler Talked.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler, of New Jersey, delivered an address Friday night at the dinner of New York bankers on the "Present Status of Currency Legislation."

—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Mission Circle of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of President Mrs. Walter Freeman, 819 First place. Subject, "China." All cordially invited.

CONTEST HALF OVER.

Very Successful So Far and Bright Prospects for the Future.

The Daily Press subscription contest is now half over. It has, so far, been an unqualified soccess and there are even brighter prospects for the continuation of it. It is growing late to enter the contest now, but plenty of hustle and enterprise can still enable a newcomer to push well up toward the front. The leaders are now hard at work. Early this morning they brought in a number of new subscribers, the result of their labors Saturday evening. Several of the contestants have gotten their friends to turn out and assist.

The prizes are still on exhibition in the show windows of Woodhull & Martin's big store in the Babcock building. They will remain there for a few days longer. Saturday evening they attracted much attention.

Eulogized As a Hero.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, February 6.—The funeral services of Policeman Manning T. Crow, who was mortally wounded by a burglar in the Somerville beefhouse robbery twe weeks ago, were held at Second Reformed church Friday afternoon. All the business houses in town were closed as the funeral procession moved through the streets. Rev. Dr. E. G. Reed conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Stockton Crammer. Rev. Dr. Reed classed the dead officer, who had lost his life in the faithful performance of duty, and who continued to fight a gang of desperate burglars, single handed, long after he had received his death wound, as a hero equal to any soldier who lost his life on the field of battle in the Spanish-American War.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvet skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

LIVELY TALK ABOUT CITY ASSESSMENTS.

Drawn Out by Nomination of a Commissioner of Appeals.

MR. ATTERBURY OPPOSED.

HE WAS CHARGED WITH HAVING USED BAD JUDGMENT.

When the Nomination Came to a Vote for Confirmation, However, None of the Councilmen Voted Against Him—Other Nominations Made by Mayor Rockfellow—Much Important Business.

An unexpected storm of opposition arose at the regular February meeting of the City Council last evening when Mayor Rockfellow appointed Albert H. Atterbury as a member of the Commissioners of Appeal. Before he was confirmed a great deal of discussion was listened to regarding his appointment. Mr. Hetfield introduced the subject after the appointment. He stated that he understood it was Mr. Atterbury who had caused a reduction in the tax bills of many complainants at the last sessions of the Commissioners, after the Board of Assessors and the Council had gone carefully over the books. He was of the opinion that there was too much of that sort of thing, and that the Board of Commissioners should be composed of men of good sound judgment who know the value of property. He stated by way of explanation, that personally he did not know Mr. Atterbury, but from what he had heard he thought someone else should appointed. He also understood that one member of the Board had favored his clients by reducing their tax bills, and at the same time had paid no attention to other complainants.

Mr. Barrows made a few remarks in which he stated that in a measure he agreed with Mr. Hetfield, but he felt as though Mr. Atterbury would make a good commissioner and would improve the standing of the Board.

Mr. VanHerwerden believed that there could be an improvement in the Board of Assessors. In his opinion the whole trouble was to be found there and not with the Commissioners of Appeal.

Mr. Coriell agreed with Mr. VanHerwerden, but he understood that Mr. Atterbury was a capable and efficient person for the position, and he favored him. Mr. Mellick and Mr. Buckle favored Mr. Atterbury and thought he would be a good man for the position.

Mr. Atterbury is a Democrat and the law requires that one member must be of the opposite party. When the vote was taken for confirmation all the members voted in the affirmative. Mr. Atterbury was appointed for three years.

On a motion offered by Mr. Barrows, bids for macadamizing East Sixth street, Ninth street and Franklin place, were received. There were three bids. J. A. Wilson bid 72 cents per foot for East Sixth street, 79 cents for East Ninth street and 70 cents for Franklin place. For the same streets C. A. Meeker bid 72 cents, 69 cents and 68 cents, while A. I. & N. B. Smalley bid 67 cents, 66 cents and 65 cents.

After the ordinances providing for the introduction of the Park avenue storm sewer, the macadamizing of West Third and Fourth streets were presented, and there were no objectors, the same were adopted on first and second readings, and ordered engrossed and advertised. Mr. Hetfield alone objected to the Park avenue storm sewer ordinance.

Fred W. Bird petitioned the Council to establish a city scales and gave as important reasons for such scales that he had on several occasions received different weights in purchasing coal. The petition was referred to the finance committee.

Petitions for crosswalks were received as follows and were referred with power: West Sixth street and New street, West Fifth street and Muhlenberg place, Arlington avenue and Ninth street, East Third street and Fillmore avenue, East Third street and Church street.

The Board of Health asked the Council for $681.45, 5 cents per capita on the population, as an appropriation for the coming year.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company filed their bond and necessary papers showing location of tracks for the proposed extension in the east end. They were referred to the finance committee and later were confirmed by the Council.

Mr. Hetfield presented a petition from Jos. Carbone in which the latter asked the Council to cause a discontinuance of his case in the courts, and

POLICE LOOKING FOR ALLEGED MISSIONARY.

"Rev." Charles Mohamed is Reported as Unworthy.

PLAINFIELDERS AIDED HIM.

GOT PASSAGE TO AFRICA FOR HIM THAT HE DID NOT USE.

He Has Addressed Several Meetings Here and Enlisted the Interest of Secretary Manning, of the Y. M. C. A. and L. W. Randolph—Supposed to Have Sailed for Africa, But He Did Not Go

"Rev." Charles Mohamed, a missionary, so-called, who claims that his native place is in North Africa, and who made an address at the Mt. Olive Baptist church last Sunday afternoon, is reported as being unworthy of any help that people are inclined to give. Several months ago this man visited Plainfield and secured the interest and help of Secretary Manning, of the Y. M. C. A., and L. Warren Randolph. Others were also led to help him. He addressed several meetings here, including one at the Sunday afternoon meeting of the Y. M. C. A. His story was that he was completing his education in this country and expected soon to return to his native land and teach his people.

Having fully impressed this fact on the minds of several Christian workers he had no trouble in getting help. Through the efforts of Mr. Manning, Mr. Randolph and a man of prominence in Washington Park, passage was secured for him to his home. As was supposed, he started for home.

When he was supposed to have been half way home, people in this city were greatly surprised to learn that he was again in town, and this time he was collecting money from friends of Mr. Randolph and Mr. Manning. In order to make his scheme a success he would produce a letter showing Mr. Randolph's signature. This letter was originally given to Mr. Mohamed to present to the person who assisted in securing him a ticket to his home, but he did not let people read the entire letter. Among the most prominent people he called upon and secured money was Rev. Dr. Yerkes, L. W. Serrell and Charles Matthews, but there were many others. Then people began to get an inkling that something was wrong and they spoke to Mr. Randolph about the missionary. Each one was informed by Mr. Randolph that he had not authorized anyone to collect money.

At that time an effort was made to catch Mr. Mohamed, but he escaped before such a result could be brought about. It was then thought that he had left for good and would not return again. Nothing more was thought of him until yesterday when The Daily Press announced that Rev. Mr. Mohamed made an address at the Mt. Olive Baptist church. This news reached the notice of Mr. Randolph and Secretary Manning and they took immediate steps to locate the missionary. They learned, however, that he had gone to New Brunswick, but would return to Plainfield next Sunday. If he does return there will be people on the lookout for him and the police have been given instractions to arrest him.

The missionary is of small stature and very dark. His hair is black and long and is parted in the middle. He has a persuasive manner about him and is a very smooth talker. He says that he can talk several languages fluently.

Edward Lutz has resigned his position with Butcher Kilfoil, of the borough, to accept a position with the new firm of Crane & Smalley.

PARKS WON AT WHIST BY A SINGLE TRICK.

Final Round for State Championship Trophy.

DEFEATED ROSEVILLE A. C.

VICTORY OVER RIDGEWOOD WILL WIN THE TROPHY.

The Game Last Night Was Played in Roseville—Very Close Throughout—Parks Won by Score of 9 to 8—Changes This Season in Arrangement of Contest—The Score by Rounds.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Feb. 7.—The second match in the final round for the championship trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association was played at the clubhouse of the Roseville Athletic Club last evening. The teams from the Park Club, of Plainfield, and the Roseville Athletic Club, were the competitors. After a hard fought game the visiting team was victorious by a single point.

A new plan was tried this season in playing for the State championship trophy. Instead of the old method in which a club held the cup until defeated, the cup then passing into the hands of the victorious team, and finally becoming the property of a team winning it fifteen times, the clubs in the State association were divided into three sections, the Jersey Central, the D. L. and W., and the Erie. Each team in each section played two games with each other team in that section. The Parks, the Rosevilles and the Ridgeweods were victorious in their respective sections.

In the first match of the final round, Roseville defeated Ridgewood. Last night the Parks defeated Roseville and will next play Ridgewood. If the Parks are victorious then the State championship trophy will be awarded to them. Otherwise the series will have to be played over again.

The game of last evening was one of the closest ever played at the Roseville clubhouse. Roseville was represented by a team composed of Messrs. Wyckoff, Hurd, Ebbott and Hoffman. The "pony" team of the Parks, Messrs. Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Fred H. Freeman and Albert O. Woltmann, represented them.

The score by rounds was as follows:

	PARKS.	ROSEVILLE.
First round	2	3
Second round	3	2
Third round	4	3

Matthews and Woltmann completed their game before the Freemans did at the last. The score then stood tie. The Freemans took their game by one trick, giving the Parks the one point necessary for victory.

The next game will be played in Plainfield between the Parks and the Ridgewoods some day next week.

Street Needs Attention.

The street committee of the City Council would make an enviable reputation for themselves if they would remedy the difficulty on Front street opposite Washington avenue. The ground is so low in some places that it does not take much water to flood that spot and make walking disagreeable. The roadway is also bad and water stands there for days at a time.

For Infirm Laborers.

A movement has been started looking toward the erection of a home for aged and infirm men at Lincoln. It is planned to have the establishment under the control of the various trades unions so that their members may have the advantage of the home. Mayor Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, has offered a tract of ground for the proposed building free of charge.

Voters of North Plainfield are asked to fill out the above blank and forward their vote to Consolidation Headquarters, 107 East Front street. An X on either of the three last propositions is requested from voters who desire to be recorded in favor of consolidation. It is probable that the scheme receiving a majority will be adopted by the committee having the matter in charge and the same submitted to the voters for approval at the borough election to be held March 14.

"THE MAPLES" TORN UP BY ITS PROPRIETOR

George Thatcher and His Wife in a Lively Spat.

POLICEMAN WAS CALLED.

PATROLMAN MYERS WAS UNABLE TO MAKE PEACE

By the Time He Arrived on the Scene the Barroom and Fixtures Had Been Wrecked by the Wrathy Minstrel Man—Second Call for a Cop—Thatcher Finally Went Away and Took Train to New York.

Early this morning the police headquarters in this city were notified that there was imperative need of a policeman at "The Maples," the roadhouse on the county road run by George Thatcher, the well-known minstrel man. Patrolman Nick Myers hurried to the hotel and found Thatcher chasing his wife about the house and uttering dire threats.

The minstrel man was flourishing a revolver and Mrs. Thatcher was fearful of the results. The officer learned that the rumpus had been in progress for some time, and previous to the former's arrival on the scene the barroom and its contents had been wrecked and were strewn about the place in a promiscuous manner.

Officers Myers tried to subdue the angry Thatcher, but for the nonce he found his persuasive powers at low ebb. Fearing that there might be a tragedy, he called Chief Grant on the telephone and asked for help.

The Chief detailed Officer Higgins to go to "The Maples." By the time the latter arrived on the scene, Thatcher had left the hotel, going towards Fanwood, where he took a train and went to New York.

No arrests were made by the officers as the hotel is just beyond the city limits.

LICENSE APPLICATIONS.

FOUR NEW APPLICANTS BEFORE THE COMMON COUNCIL.

They Were Obliged to Secure the Signatures of Twelve Property Owners—Eight Established Dealers Applied Again

At last evening's session of the Common Council fourteen applications for liquor licenses were presented and referred to the proper committee. There were four new applicants and they were obliged to make application the same as other applicants in previous years. They were obliged to secure the signatures of freeholders. The new applicants were J. H. McVey and J. H. Staats, of North avenue; Andrew Shlick, 724 West Third street; Hans Hansen, East Front street, the place formerly occupied by Mrs. Caspar, and J. A. Blatz, corner of Front and Somerset streets.

With the other applicants it was only necessary for them to petition the Council for a license as they have held licenses before and have not been convicted of illegal selling or any other crime that would bar them from receiving a license. Those who petitioned were Henry Haurand, J. E Beerbower, Jacob Bloom, Alex. Findley, Daniel Galbraith, Frank Linke, J. J. Goff, Martin J. Kane and John Rafferty. These licenses will be advertised in the usual way and will be considered Thursday evening, February 23d.

BIRDS FIGHT AT PLAINS

EXCITING COCIKNG MAIN HELD LAST EVENING.

Plains and Plainfield Were Triumphant Over the Madison Aggregation in a Series of Contests—Much Money Changed

(Special to The Daily Press)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 7—Hereby a local hostelry there was a gathering of individuals with sporting proclivities, last evening, to attend a cocking main, held there. Birds from Scotch Plains and Plainfield met with other birds from Madison. As such gatherings are not looked upon as healthful by the law, the participats waited for the witching hour of midnight for the contest.

The Madisonites came over with a clear understanding that their birds were the best. They departed early this morning with the conviction that they made a mistake. The birds from the 'Plains and Plainfield were too many for them. As a result considerable money changed hands and the local sports are richer in consequence.

FINE OPENING FOR THE FIREMEN'S FAIR.

Warren Engine Company's Events Under Full Sway.

PROFITS TO BUY UNIFORMS.

GESANG AND TURNER HALL PRETTILY DECORATED FOR THE AFFAIR.

The Members of the Company Were Attired in Their Present Uniforms and Their Wives and Sweethearts Were on Hand to Give Them Assistance—Dancing Was Enjoyed—Numerous Games Played.

Last night was the opening night of the fair and bazaar which is being held all this week in Gesang and Turner Hall, under the auspices of Warren Engine Company No. 1. For an opening night the attendance was good, and if as much interest is shown in the fair during the balance of the week, the object for which the fair is being held will be assured, and the uniforms for the boys can be purchased at once.

Under the eyes of the committee the hall was transformed, Saturday, into a glimpse of a fairy land. With evergreen trees, ribbons, banners, flags and bunting the bare hall was made to look attractive, and the booths and tables were trimmed and decorated, and the articles for sale displayed so artistically that they attracted the attention of the purchasers at once. The firemen wore their hats and those who have uniforms wore them. The firemen's wives and sweethearts were there, and the ladies looked after the booths and tables.

Mrs. George H. Fairchild, wife of Chief Fairchild, has entire charge of the ladies and the tables. At the fancy table are Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel, Mrs. Rosenthal, Mrs. George Kesselring, Mrs. Bamberger, Mrs. J. J. Stahl and Mrs. Walter Bennett.

At the grocery table is Mrs. Rosenthal and Miss Sadie Searing. Miss Lillie Lang, Miss Carrie Mehl and Miss Anna Searing have charge of the perfumery counter.

On the opposite side of the room is the candy table and at that are Miss Lillie Zeisz, Miss Mamie Kohler and Miss Emma Bolsterli.

Miss Minnie Winckleman, hidden in the depths of a big tent, tells fortunes at ten cents apiece, and next to her Whit Frazee has charge of a num of phonographs where one can hear the latest popular airs for a small sum.

The "roily powly" board is in charge of J. J. Stahl. Pools of five are made up for five cents apiece and the lucky one of the bunch gets a ticket on a handsome Rambler wheel.

The two contests for the gavels and for the firemen's badge are looked after by Joseph Newman, and Mrs. McGann, Mrs. William Newman, Mrs. David Allen and Mrs. Edward Smith have charge of the refreshments.

Last night there was no programme rendered, but dancing was the order of the evening, music for which was furnished by Frazee. Bert Lunger, Mr. Rosentral and George Kesselring composed the floor committee. Down in the basement the alleys were kept hot all the evening. Rudolph Spiegel looked after them, and Thomas McGann had charge of the "knock the babies" game.

There are thirty-eight members of Warren Engine Company, all of whom are active in making the fair a success.

The fair committee consists of W. B. Bennett, chairman; James D. Anderson, secretary; W. G. Debele, treasurer, F. M. Lunger, Frank E. Kesselring, George R. Schlereth, J. M Higgins, J. B. Newman, L. Rosenthiel and Ray Schenck.

Wants Broken Window Paid For.

Mrs Amelia French, who owns the store on West Front street now occupied by Drake & Mundy, has brought suit in Justice Moffett's court against Peter Zimmerman for a broken window glass. Zimmerman occupied the store recently, and when he left neglected to repair the damage done. The demand of Mrs. French is for $50. Charles J. McNabb represents her.

Chaperoned by a Cop.

Stray pedestrians who were hurrying home late last night through the storm noticed Patrolman Myers walking down Park avenue in the middle of the street, with a man hanging intimately to his arm. It was Charles Brighton, colored. This morning Brighton was nearly overcome by the shock when City Judge Runyon suspended sentence on him.

Silas Yerkes, of Sixth street, left yesterday morning for Philadelphia on business. From there he will go to Buffalo, and will also visit Niagara Falls.

LEGISLATIVE MEASURE TO PRINT THE LAWS.

Bill Introduced by Senator Frances This Morning.

BEST PAPERS TO BE CHOSEN

MANAGERS FOR VILLAGE FOR EPILEPTICS CHOSEN.

The W. C. T. U. Aroused Over the Attempt to Deal Liberally With Liquor Licenses in Public Parks, and Petitions Presented to Both Houses in Opposition—Fight for Prison Inspectors' Place.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 8.—Senator Francis, of Monmouth county, today introduced a bill providing that the Governor, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House shall select ninety newspapers in the State each year, before February 1st, in which a synopsis of the laws is to be printed at the rate of sixty cents per folio. A similar law was repealed three years ago.

The newspapers of the two leading political parties, as shown by the popular vote at the next preceding general election, are to be chosen and each party is to be equally represented. Not less than two nor more than eight newspapers are to be chosen in a single county, and preference is to be given those papers that have been published the greatest number of years and having the largest circulation in the county where they are published.

Senator Stokes introduced a bill amending the act of 1897, relative to the protection of oysters in Delaware Bay and Maurice River Cove. It changes the license fee from $3 to $5 and provides for more effective operation of the tongers' law.

Governor Voorhees sent in these names of nominees for the board of managers for the Village of Epileptics: Salin Garrison and Thomas J. Smith, of Cumberland county; Willis S. Combe, Monmouth; John H. Ewing, Hunterdon; Rev. James M. Buckley, Morris, and John W. Ward, Mercer. The nominations will probably be confirmed tomorrow.

Two Mercer county Republicans are making a bid for the scalp of one of the members of the Board of Prison Inspectors. One is John Fell and the other Captain Louis Clayton, both citizens of Trenton. It is believed that the contest will end in the reappointment of both Carter, of Burlington, and Stanger, of Gloucester county.

Senate Bill No. 21, which provides that companies conducting parks and picnic grounds may operate more than one bar under the license granted to sell intoxicating liquors, each bar to cost an extra $100 fee, will probably come up in the Senate this week, and its friends claim that it will pass, though numerous protests were presented in both the Senate and House last night. The petitions in opposition came mainly from Methodist clergymen and members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the southern part of the State, who were urged to protest by Mrs. Emma Bourne, president of the New Jersey W. C. T. U. The latter, it is claimed by friends of the bill, labored under the misapprehension that the measure gives the right to park companies to grant licenses for the various bars, when, in fact, the company applying must take out the extra licenses.

Arranged for a Card Party.

A short meeting of the Catholic Club was held last night. Bills were ordered paid and dues were collected, but, as there was not a large attendance, nothing of importance was brought up. It was decided to give a progressive euchre tomorrow night at the clubhouse to be followed by a dance. Already twenty couples have entered for the euchre. The euchre is for the club members and their friends.

Hopes for Her Recovery.

A consultation Sunday of Dr. Probasco and Dr. West, of Jersey City, over the illness of Miss Louise Verdon, of Shady Lawn, Somerset street, gives her relatives and friends hopes for her recovery. Miss Verdon is at the home of her sister, Mrs. Steinhauser, Jersey City Heights.

A Correction.

SUNDAY GOLF PLAY STRONGLY TABOOED.

Hillside Club Will Not Allow Sabbath Desecration.

MET A BIG ADVERSE VOTE.

HOWARD FLEMING PROPOSED THE SUNDAY PLAYING.

Former Councilman Dumont Opposed the Project of Sunday Playing in a Vigorous Manner—Deplored the Existence of a Sentiment Favoring the Idea—Amendment Defeated by Vote of 68 to 6.

In anticipation of the annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, when amendments to the constitution of the club could be made, a number of the younger members, who have liberal views, have of late been discussing the project of having the club allow the playing of golf on their links on Sundays.

Those who favored the idea were careful to lay their plans so that they could not be accused of directly interfering with the church-going hours. At the meeting last night Howard Fleming, who took the leadership in the proposed innovation, offered an amendment to the constitution which would permit playing on the links Sundays after 1 p. m. The proposition was not entirely unexpected, but nevertheless it caused a small-sized sensation when presented.

Mr. Fleming made no detail argument in favor of the amendment, but at the first opportunity former Councilman John B. Dumont, who is an active member in Grace P. E. church, arose and opposed the amendment in most vigorous fashion. It was evident from the start that the amendment was doomed to defeat. Mr. Dumont made a plea for the sanctity of the Sabbath, and deplored the existence of a sentiment such as prompted an attempt to put the members of the club, one of the most representative in the city, in the light of countencing the desceration of the day that should be devoted to other than worldly pleasures.

Several others spoke briefly on the subject and then the vote was taken. It was not a surprise when it was announced that the amendment was defeated by a vote of 68 against to 6 for. Mr. Fleming and his supporters took their defeat in a philosophical manner and didn't seem to be greatly put out over the decision.

Numerous other amendments were also proposed for the constitution, but few of them were adopted. The most important changes were the ones regarding the notice that must be given when an amendment is proposed, and the one changing slightly the admission of visitors.

The following trustees were elected: Josiah Brown, Charles J. Fisk and A. H. Atterbury.

Mr. Hummer's New Location.

L. A. Hummer, who for many years has been one of Plainfield's leading butchers, will move tomorrow from Park avenue to 163 Somerset street, where he has erected a large and commodious building to carry on his business. His new market will be opened on Thursday morning with a full and complete line of first class meats and in fact everything to be found in an up-to date meat market. He hopes that his friends will continue to give him their patronage and he promises to still give them their money's worth and satisfaction. The new store is at the corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue.

Funeral of a Little Fellow.

The funeral services of the late Charles Emmons, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Emmons, of Somerset street, were held Sunday at the house. Rev. Father Brennan, of St. Joseph's church, officiated. A short sermon followed, in which he dwelt on the purity and happy eternity of little children. A very impressive scene was the four little boys who acted as pallbearers. They were Andrew Carney, Jr., George Becker, Lloyd Sharp and Clarence Pope. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

Judgment in Favor of Wanamaker.

John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, secured judgment in Justice Nash's court yesterday against Frederick W. Hand for $31.70. Hand purchased a set of books November 8th, 1897, for $38.50. The sum of $8.50 was paid on the bill at different times, leaving a balance of $30, and with interest added, brought the amount of the judgment up to $31.70. Reed & Coddington represented Mr. Wanamaker.

Ripans Tabules certainly fulfill their mission. I was induced to try them through an advertisement, but shall never cease to be thankful for the good they have done me. I am better both mentally and physically. And one gives relief.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at liquor stores and barber shops.

THE CAPITAL STIRRED.

Conflict at Manila Had Been Expected by the Administration.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Washington, buried beneath a foot of snow, was stirred and excited as it had not been since those portentious days last summer when, with the temperature in the nineties, the president and his cabinet waited day and night for news from the front.

This last battle, which may or may not be the closing one in the drama begun when war was declared between Spain and the United States, was not unexpected by the president and his cabinet. They have feared it all along, and for the past two weeks they had reason to believe that it would occur before the vote on the ratification of the treaty of peace was taken.

The agent of Aguinaldo, whom they have suspected of keeping the insurgent chief informed as to the proper time to act, has been under close surveillance since January 27, when it was announced that one of his incendiary cable dispatches to Aguinaldo had been intercepted.

The government was so greatly impressed with the information that the navy department officers cabled it to Admiral Dewey.

Congressmen began calling at the executive mansion at an early hour in the morning, and while it seems to be the general impression that the Filipinos have been taught so severe a lesson that they will not be likely to make further trouble at present, the administration would be surprised at nothing.

One fact it does not attempt to conceal—Admiral Dewey and General Otis both apprehended a conflict and were prepared to meet it promptly and defeat the rash natives quickly.

These officers knew the condition of the insurgent troops and how they were armed. But if they knew who supplied them with their Mauser rifles and other effective weapons and whether or not Germany had a hand in the work, as the public seems to believe, they are keeping discreetly quiet on the subject.

Queen's Annual Speech.

London, Feb. 7.—The following is a forecast of the queen's speech delivered to Parliament upon the occasion of the opening of the session to-day. It contains the salient points of which the address treats:

The speech begins by declaring that her majesty's relations with the foreign powers continue to be friendly. References are made to the campaign in Egypt, the rescript of the Emperor of Russia proposing international disarmament, and the assassination of the Empress of Austria. Her majesty also calls attention to the plague in India, recommending measures for its suppression, and to prevent its recrudescence, and mentions the contribution of the Cape Colony to the British fleet. Reference is made to affairs in the West Indies.

The forthcoming legislation announced by her majesty will include measures dealing with the municipal government of London, the establishment of an Irish agricultural deparment and amending the usury laws.

Poured Oil to Still Sea.

New York, Feb. 7.—The Cunard line steamship Lucania arrived yesterday from Liverpool and Queenstown after a most tempestuous passage, lasting seven days and nineteen hours. Thousands of gallons of oil were poured on the water to lessen the force of the seas.

From the time she left the Irish coast she experienced a succession of terrific west gales and high seas.

Captain McKay looked thoroughly worn out and exhausted. During Wednesday and Thursday he spent forty-eight hours on the bridge, during which time snow and sleet fell heavily.

Fatal Train Wreck in Michigan.

Imlay City, Mich., Feb. 7.—The Chicago and Grand Trunk passenger train No. 1, west bound, plunged at full speed into passenger train No. 6, east bound, while the latter was standing at the station here yesterday.

The following men were killed: Engineer Fairbanks of the west bound train, Edward Reid of Lenox, Mich., mail clerk of the west bound train, Thomas Stuart of Lansing, mail clerk of east bound train. Five persons were injured.

Alaska Gold Miners Petition McKinley

Skaguay, Alaska, Feb. 7.—A monster petition to President McKinley and the members of the joint high commission is being signed, asking for their assistance in securing the appeal of the alien exclusion act recently passed by the government of British Columbia, in which the Atlin mining district is located.

The petition has already received a thousand signatures and five thousand in all are expected.

The petition will be forwarded to Washington by the next steamer.

Robbing the Maine.

Havana, Feb. 7.—During the last few days the signal yard of the Maine has disappeared. There is no trace of it. For its loss the Americans must be held responsible, for it was stolen during the night.

This act of vandalism will be investigated. The heavy braces above the fighting top only are standing.

During the last week an extra guard has been appointed for the wreck.

Fatally Shot in a Sunday School

Biddenden Kent, Eng., Feb. 7.—Bertha Peterson, the daughter of the rector of this parish, on Sunday shot and killed John Wibley, a teacher in the church Sunday school. The shooting took place in the Sunday school room just after the regular service, during which Miss Peterson played the organ and also took communion. The shooting is supposed to have been the result of a quarrel with Wibley, who had been attentive to the girl.

A Bill to Save Mrs. Place.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Assemblyman Harburger will introduce a bill to relieve Mrs. Place from the death penalty. It provides that in case a woman is convicted of murder in the first degree the highest penalty will be imprisonment for life. In this bill section 186 of the code, which provides the punishment for murder, is amended.

ONE VOTE TO SPARE

The Senate Approves of the Treaty of Peace.

AYES 57, AND NAYS ONLY 27

Gorman's Men Routed—Doubtful Senators Join the Treaty's Friends—Speeches Before the Vote—Senator McLaurin Turned the Tide for Treaty.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The Senate in executive session at 3.25 o'clock yesterday afternoon ratified the treaty of peace with Spain. The vote was: Yeas 57, nays 27, giving the treaty the two-thirds vote necessary for ratification. The vote in detail was as follows:

Forty Republicans, 3 Populists, 10 Democrats, 3 Silverites, 1 Independent.

Twenty-three Democrats 3 Republicans, 1 Populist.

The pairs were Cannon and Proctor, paired with White, and Wetmore and Wilson paired with Turpie.

Before the roll call, on the question of ratification was ordered, a vote was taken on Senator Vest's proposed amendment. It was rejected by a vote of 53 to 30, a majority only being necessary to pass the resolution.

The amendment declared that the United States had no right to hold a conquered people as a colony or as a dependency against its consent.

Senator McLaurin of South Carolina seems entitled to much of the credit for saving the treaty. He was supposed to be opposed to the treaty, but at the right moment came out in favor of it in a speech that did much to turn the tide. McEnery of Louisiana did not make up his mind how to vote until just before the roll call, when he let it be known that he would vote "Aye."

The last man to cast his vote was Jones of Nevada, but his act lost some of its dramatic interest as his vote was not needed.

Counting the four senators paired, the advocates cast sixty-one votes, or three more than necessary for ratification.

The opponents needed thirty-one and got only twenty-seven direct votes, or twenty-nine counting the pairs.

The following is a recapitulation for illustration: For ratification, 57; paired for ratification, 4. Against ratification, 27; paired against ratification, 2. Total, 90.

Review of the Agreement With Spain.

The treaty of peace with Spain was signed in Paris on December 10 last, after negotiations lasting ten weeks, and was a triumph for American diplomacy. All the final provisions of the protocol of August 12 were incorporated in the treaty, and in addition it was stipulated that the Philippine islands should be ceded to the United States. Every provision and every concession on which the representatives of the American government had insisted had been yielded by the commissioners of Spain.

The treaty consists of seventeen articles, which are in brief as follows:

Article I.—Spain renounces all sovereignty over Cuba.

Article II.—Spain cedes to the United States the island of Porto Rico and the other islands now under her sovereignty in the West Indies and the island of Guam in the archipelago of the Marianas or Ladrones.

Article III.—Spain cedes to the United States the Philippine archipelago. The United States shall pay to Spain the sum of $20,000,000 within three months after the interchange of the ratifications of the present treaty.

Article IV.—Spanish ships shall be admitted to Philippine ports under equal terms with American ships for ten years.

Article V.—Provides for the evacuation of the Philippines and Guam by Spain.

Article VI.—Liberation of prisoners of war and political prisoners.

The remaining articles include the customary provisions of treaties of peace, covering the transfer of public property in the territory renounced or ceded, treatment of citizens in such territory, and adjudication of cases at law therein pending before the courts of Spain.

The final article stipulates that ratifications shall be exchanged in Washington within six months from the date of the signature of the treaty.

War Board Report Held Up.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The war investigating commission held an all day session considering their report, which, it is now said, would be ready for transmission to the president about Wednesday. The reports of the chemical experts have been received on the analysis of the beef samples submitted, but it is intended to call the chemists themselves to identify their reports, and, if necessary, amplify them by verbal testimony. This will necessitate another day of open session before the work is completed.

The commission adopted appropriate resolutions on the death of Colonel Sexton.

MR. PORTER AND GEN. GOMEZ

How He Persuaded Gen. Gomez Later Was Unwilling at First.

Havana, Feb. 7.—Robert P. Porter, who is now in the states, was greatly impressed with the fine executive ability of General Gomez. The distinguished Cuban leader held off for five hours before he agreed to accept the sum of three million dollars in gold which President McKinley has at his disposition.

He flatly said that it was not enough and laughed at the idea of such a sum being offered him as leader of the great party.

Mr. Porter informed the leader that Congress was likely to adjourn in a few days; that if the general did not take that sum he would get nothing for a year at least, and then said:

"You are a good hearted, fair man, general, and you certainly recognize the fact that there are many starving in Havana."

That ended the argument. Few will ever know what a hard time General Porter had to bring about the proposed meeting between Governor General Brooke and the veteran Cuban. The desire of the latter was to fight it out on regular military grounds. That is positively known to the administration. Not only did Mr. Porter manage to satisfy the General that the United States was anxious to deal with him fairly in all things, but he induced the latter to send to President McKinley the sweetest kind of a personal letter. Gomez was captivated with the magnetism of Mr. Porter, and at ball held in the latter's honor the two lead the dance. It was the first time that Mr. Porter had danced in nearly twenty years. When the time for parting came, Gen. Gomez embraced the American representative as if they were lifelong friends. They very likely will be after this famous meeting.

Quay to Name Widener

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 7.—When the break occurs at Harrisburg it will be by order of Senator Quay in favor of P. A. B. Widener. This statement was made yesterday morning in the corridor of the Hotel Walton and later events were indicative of the correctness of the prophecy.

Senator Quay slipped into town from Washington not unexpectedly, for his son Dick had preceded him to the Quay quarters in the Hotel Stratford. The father and son held a long conference, and during Sunday afternoon and night Quay leaders from all over the eastern part of the state were admitted to the Quay rooms. These conferences continued until late and were resumed yesterday morning. When they ended Dick Quay hurriedly left the hotel and proceeded to the office of P. A. B. Widener, in the Land Title building.

He entered the office at 10.35. That it was a meeting pre-arranged was evidenced by the fact that nobody was lowed to see the street car magnate pending Dick's arrival. He remained forty minutes and left with a smiling face.

P. A. B. Widener refused to discuss the conference. He said:

"You know I am not in politics. Dick Quay did call on me this morning, but it was—well, it was a matter of business, if that is what you want to know."

News of the meeting with Mr. Widener quickly spread, and it was not an hour before the prophetic phrase, Pete Widener will be the next United States senator," was on the lips of almost every politician.

Roosevelt's Appointments

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Governor Roosevelt has received word from New York that Joseph F. Daly, formerly supreme court justice, to whom he had offered the appointment as surrogate, to succeed Surrogate Arnold, had declined to accept it. No other selection for this position has been made as yet, and may not be for a few days. John Proctor Clarke, Henry W. Taft and Henry G. Beckett are among the candidates under consideration.

The announcement of George L. Heins's appointment to succeed Isaac G. Perry as Capitol commissioner was made officially. Heins is an old friend of the governor. He roughed it on the western prairies as Governor Roosevelt did some years ago, and at one time was a "cow puncher." Like the governor he was an athlete, having been champion pole vaulter when in college. There is talk of having a bill introduced to change the title of Capitol commissioner to that of state architect, to conform more strictly with the duties of that official's position, now that the Capitol is completed.

Sword for Sampson Assured.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 7.—The House last night concurred in the Senate resolution for the presentation of a sword in the name of the state to Admiral Sampson.

Governor Voorhees sent to the Senate these nominations: Board of managers of the state village of epileptics, S. Olin Garrison of Cumberland, Dr. William S. Combs of Monmouth, Dr. John H. Ewing of Hunterdon, Dr. Thomas J. Smith of Cumberland, the Rev. James M. Buckley of Morris, and Dr. John Ward of Mercer.

Among the bills introduced in the House was one by Mr. King, authorizing the state to pay to each volunteer soldier in the Spanish-American war $125, and one by Mr. Marnell authorizing Weehawken and Hoboken to consolidate.

Big Sale of Lake Vessels.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 7.—It is reported that John D. Rockefeller has made arrangements to turn over all his vessel property and other interests on the lakes to the Carnegie Steel Company. The transaction if it goes through, will be the largest ever made in the lake carrying trade. It means that the Carnegie Steel Company will get control of the finest fleet of vessels on fresh water, capable of carrying two million tons of ore in a season, and valued at several million dollars.

According to the story Mr. Carnegie also acquires control of the Duluth and Messaba Road, which carries the output of the Lake Superior Consolidated mines, and which is one of two roads that tap the mining property on the Messabo range.

To Make Wheeler a Regular.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Representative Stallings of Alabama has introduced a bill in the House to authorize the president to appoint General Wheeler a major general in the regular army.

BURIED DEFENSES.

OUR UNSEEN BATTERIES ARE OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE.

What Electricity Would Do for Us In Case of War With Spain—Its Use on Board Man-of-War—How Wires Are Operate From Aboard Ship.

"Take heed
How you awake our sleeping Sword of War:
We charge you in the name of God take heed."

There is no nation on the globe today, to which the above quotation from Shakespeare applies with greater force than to the United States. Spain should give heed to its warning. Other governments have more powerful navies and larger and better equipped armies; but of all nations the United States has the most complete mastery of that subtle and deadly something called electricity—and the King of the next war will be Electricity. "As it stands to-day a handful of men could sweep away an army. The destructive power is found in electricity," says Edison. This fact makes a brief account of some of the more important uses that can be made of electricity, especially in naval warfare, of pertinent interest now, when every southern breeze blows up a fresh war rumor.

In modern warfare the effectiveness of the harbor defenses of all great seaboard cities against the war vessels of an enemy becomes of the very first importance. Hostile ships must not be allowed to approach near enough to hurl their terrible explosives into the heart of a great city. If once the bombardment began, in a few hours the city would be debris. Electricity makes this needed harbor protection a possibility.

The waters of the surrounding harbors are plotted in such a way that the exact position of a ship at any moment may be known, by the aid of electric position and range finders, to an operator stationed on the shore, it may be miles away. Submarine mines, loaded with the most powerful known explosives, are planted in various parts of the harbor, and connected by means of wires with a common center. Men are stationed at this point, who, should a hostile fleet appear, have only to wait until a ship is over one of the submarine mines, then press a button and electricity and the explosive will do the rest. There is not a battleship afloat that could withstand the shock of the explosion of one of these powerful submarine mines.

Another method of harbor defense is suggested by Edison. "Suppose," says he, "you sink an endless cable to the bottom of a harbor, at the proper distance from the shore, and work it around wheels just as the bridge cable is worked, so that it can be moved forward and backward. Insulate the cable so that it can be charged with electricity. Then attach torpedoes to it every 200 feet or more. Now by having a long string of these torpedoes on a movable cable it would be possible to hit any ship that tried to enter the harbor. The operator of the cable at his inland observatory watching the ships calculates their positions with his electric position finder. He knows where his torpedoes are and at the proper time, he pushes the button and fires two or three of them. The result is the destruction of the ship. If thought necessary the harbor could be lined with such cables and the protection of the city would be absolute. Torpedo catchers would not be effective against such a defense, because if they began grappling for the cable, the first touch of their grappling irons would notify the operator. All he would have to do would be to fire a couple of torpedoes. That would be the end of the torpedo catchers."

Then there are the auto-mobile or fish torpedoes. These are guided and propelled through the water from the shore by electricity fed to them through wires which are uncoiled as the torpedoes speed through the water on their missions of destruction. Should one of these strike a ship the torpedo explodes and the vessel is destroyed.

The uses of electricity on board a modern man-of-war are manifold. The ships are lighted with electricity, the great guns are moved and fired by electricity, the speed of the ship is determined with electric "logs," the steering gear is handled with electricity, and in the engine-room, pilot-house and officers quarters are electrical annunciators, telephones, etc. At night time the powerful electric search light illuminates the waters in all directions; and, should a battle occur, small electric lights on the sights of the guns can be used to assist in the aiming. A network of wires, heavily charged with electricity and encircling the ship would make its capture by boarders an impossibility. At close quarters a continuous stream of water, charged with electricity and thrown by a powerful hose would kill every living thing it touched. Electricity makes the arming of vessels with dynamite guns a safe possibility. The shells loaded with this powerful explosive, carry small electric batteries, which fire the deadly charge at the proper instant and without danger to the gunners. A vessel armed with these terrible guns would be the terror of the seas.

Electricity is making possible the submarine boat. It is the only motive power that can be used to drive these mysterious crafts through the water; torpedo to her hull, and, when at a safe distance, fire the torpedo and blow the great ship out of the water.

Only a war can [illegible] the latest Such a boat could [illegible] seen to the largest man [illegible] fix a destructive possib [illegible] ricity but its powers are [illegible] well known to-day to [illegible] most powerful offensive a[illegible] agent a nation can have.

For a Twenty-five Year Limit.

Another bill that is undoubtedly the result of Assemblyman Murray's observation of local municipal affairs appeared in the Legislature last night. It prohibits the granting of the use of public streets or roads for street railway purposes for a longer term than twenty-five years.

During the latter part of the agitation in this city over the granting of a franchise to the Plainfield Street Railway Company for the extension of their lines to Scotch Plains, Mr. Murray appeared before the Common Council and entered a vigorous objection to a franchise to run longer than twenty-five years. In doing this the Assemblyman was bucking up against a body of officials already decided that twenty-five years was not long enough for the franchise to run, and consequently his advice availed nothing.

Now Mr. Murray has put his sentiments into the form of a proposed law of the State and by virtue of his position in the Legislature he is able to bring them out with considerable force. However, there is no likelihood of the measure becoming a law this year. The trolley companies and other corporations pull too strong a stroke with the powers that be to be subjected to any such limitations as proposed by Mr. Murray.

Opposition to Lentz.

Major Lentz wants to be Prosecutor of the Pleas of Essex county. He bases his claim for the office principally upon service to his party. He has not been in active practice as a lawyer for several years, but still it is said in his behalf that his ability as such is above the average. He is being opposed because he is considered too much of a partisan to discharge the duties of the office with satisfaction to all the people of a great county. It is believed that Governor Voorhees will be unable to resist the political pressure which is being made in behalf of the Major. Still there is a hope that some other candidate may make a favorable impression. Frank Swayze has a strong indorsement, and should Thomas N. McCarter, Jr., who has just resigned a District Court Judgeship, permit the use of his name he might seriously interfere with the Major's prospects. The appointment, it is said, will not be made for a month yet, and in the meantime the Governor will be kept busy listening to the pleadings of the supporters of the different candidates.

We are pleased to note that the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has overwhelmingly defeated the proposition to sanction Sunday golf playing. The Hillside Club undoubtedly has the most substantial and representative membership of any of the local clubs, and for it to countenance by official act the desecration of Sunday by golf playing on its links would offer a moral excuse to others to indulge in worldly things that the present Plainfield would not tolerate. If the Hillside Club had adopted the Sunday playing practice it would undoubtedly have caused a "muss" that they would have had good reason to regret.

Fred W. Bird, one of the leaders of the now defunct Citizens' party, bobbed up serenely last night with a petition to the Common Council asking for the establishment of a public scales, where all citizens might go to learn how nearly they had secured their moneys worth of goods purchased at the local marts. Mr. Bird seems to have a particular grievance against the coal dealers, and asserts that at various times he has received only 1,543 and 1,528 pounds of black diamonds when he has been charged for 2,000 pounds. Mr. Bird should see the sealers of weights and measures.

Assemblyman Murray introduced a bill in the Legislature last night that aims to make wholesale reductions in the cost of telephone service. It fixes telephone rates as follows: In cities of over 100,000 population, $50 per year; cities of from 20,000 to 100,000 population, $40 per year; under 20,000 population, $30 per year. The Attorney-General, Comptroller and Secretary of State are appointed a Board to carry into effect and hear appeals and complaints, and $2,000 is appropriated for the purposes of the act. The bill was referred to the committee on corporations.

The following from the Paterson Press will be interesting to Plainfield in view of the introduction of a silk mill in Plainfield:

Everybody knows, and all thoughtful Patersonians deplore, the causes that have worked together to build up silk communities in other States at the expense of and from the material furnished by New Jersey and especially by Paterson. Had common sense prevailed with all factors in the silk industry here we should be vastly stronger than we are, and have retained much that we have irretrievably lost.

Congressman Howell is making strenuous efforts in Washington to secure the appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of a postoffice building in New Brunswick. The Congressman lays particular stress upon the fact that the postoffice receipts for the last ten years were $321,732.85, and the expenditures $145,706,45.

Judging from the meeting of the Common Council last night the city solons are not all of one mind—that is, during the discursive periods of matters pending before them.

The Boston Aldermen last year ran up bills for carriage hire to more than $20,000. Judging from the size of the bill these rides are not popular with the people.

The Legislature is still at their old job—do nothing.

We may now expect the second crop of Dewey puns.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The revenues of the State were increased over $7,000 yesterday by fees received from new corporations. Certificates of twenty new organizations with a combined capital of $35,502,000 were filed in the office of the Secretary of State. This is the record day up to date for number, although single companies have been chartered having a larger capital than the entire twenty. The fees for incorporation here are $200 per million, while in New York they are $1,250, so that the companies incorporated yesterday saved about $40,000 in cash, to say nothing of the greater privileges and immunities that they secured by taking advantage of the New Jersey laws.—Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Under the present rule of the City Council liquor licenses are not read in open session, but simply referred to the proper committee, who in turn attend to the business of having them advertised in the local papers. These licenses have to be advertised a certain length of time before they can be acted upon, hence the adjournment of the Council to Thursday evening, Feb. 23d, which gives plenty of time so that those who secure licenses can have them by March 1st.

Thomas H. Cuming, of Putnam avenue, whose health has not been good for sometime past, will soon leave the city for a different climate, in the hopes that he may regain his strength and health.

Few people there are who have not heard of Goethe's "Faust." It has been made the subject of poem and novel, of opera and drama, and its poetic story has been told in all languages. Yet with all the many forms in which it has been placed before the world, there is none so graphic or entertaining as on the stage. Here the full meaning of the many dramatic incidents may be the most clearly demonstrated and certainly there is no way in which the eye can so readily follow the plot as through the artistic interpretations of capable people, enhanced by beautiful scenery. Under the efficient management of Messrs. Dexter & O'Neill, the play of "Faust" will be presented at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night with that eminent actor, Joseph Callahan, in the role of Mephistopheles. Mr. Callahan has long been before the public and his steady progress in his profession has won for him an honored place on the American stage. He has played many roles and has been identified with some of the greatest attractions of the day.

Another Legal Fight for Heifer.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 7—A new trial in a suit which promises to rival the famous Iowa calf case is to begin before Judge Atwater here this week. It is the McCartney-Coghlan heifer case, which in court costs and lawyers' fees has already cost hundreds of dollars more than the heifer, the innocent cause of the litigation is worth. The contest began when she was a calf. McCartney has her now, and is getting the milk she yields. Both litigants says they will carry the case to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Carpet Department.

Under new management since Jan. 1st. This department is being greatly enlarged and improved. Lace Curtains and Upholstery goods in general are to be added. New Goods are coming in rapidly, and although the stock is not yet complete—some of the carpets being still on the looms—we believe the department will compare favorably with any in the State. Our new manager would feel flattered by your calling, and begs us to assure you that he should consider it a pleasure to display some of his new goods.

The Wonderful Variety,

the skill and taste of arrangement and display, and the all-pervading air of neatness and order, together with polite and unembarrassing attention, combine to make our establishment a remarkably comfortable place in which to shop. Call as frequently as you may, you will be cordially received and your wants receive prompt and respectful attention. We give

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 7—Engineer John R. McCall, of the Central Railroad, went to Whitestone, L. I., Sunday, to visit a brother. A nephew of Mr. McCall's died Saturday and was buried yesterday. He was a young newspaperman and represented the New York Sun and a Brooklyn paper at Whitestone.

John Deneen was tendered a surprise party Saturday night to which about fifteen of his young friends were invited. A pleasant evening was spent in dancing, games and music. Refreshments closed the evening's pleasure.

The remains of Henry Corle, an aged man who died away from home Thursday, were buried yesterday from the German Reformed church at Coontown. Rev. George Bowers officiated at the services.

Philip Smith, who has been brakeing on the midnight train from Philadelphia to New York, during the illness of one of the regular crew, has been put on a morning local to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Todd spent Sunday with Mr. Todd's brother, at Martinville, who is quite ill. They returned yesterday morning.

The quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held last night. Rev. Mr. Smith, presiding elder, presided at the conference.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Smith, of Somerville, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer.

Mrs. Post, of Paterson, who has been visiting Mrs. C. D. Taylor, has returned to her home.

A. A. Lake will take part in a Christian Endeavor sociable at Bound Brook tonight.

Miss Pauline Kurzhals, of Cranford, visited her father, Paul Kurzhals, Sunday.

The continued cold, snowy weather is hindering the laying of the water pipes.

Miss Nancy Ettinger, of Newark, spent yesterday with friends in town.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will meet tonight.

Mrs. John Henry is entertaining company from out of town.

Paul Reusch's children are ill with the grip.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, Feb. 7—Rev. Frank Fletcher was in Trenton yesterday where he went to fill a business engagement.

Miss May Thompson, of Westfield, spent Sunday with friends in town.

Miss Irene Day was in Plainfield yesterday.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, February 7.—Rev. Ackland Boyle, of New York city, occupied the pulpit in the Baptist church Sunday morning, and in the afternoon made a very pleasant address to the members of the Sunday-school.

The contract case in Judge Clark's court of Trayno against McGinley has been settled by the defendant paying the full amount with costs. In the case of W. D. Clark against Mike Ricardo, on contract, summons has been issued, returnable on the 13th.

The four blacksmith shops in town were kept very busy Saturday morning sharpening and shoeing, as the condition of the roads made travel with a smooth shod horse impossible.

The friends of Samuel Tainter, the blacksmith, will be glad to learn that he will not lose the sight of his eye, and that under Dr. Ard's care the injured optic will soon be well.

The hop of the "Saturday Night Club" of Fanwood, held in the fire house Saturday evening was largely attended and as usual with the club hops a social success.

The Italian settlement on Hunter avenue celebrated the arrival of some new member of the colony Saturday evening with drums and a short parade.

Miss Squires and Miss Reger, of the corps of teachers of the school, enjoyed a visit to one of the Brooklyn public schools yesterday.

Harry Brown is around once more, none the worse for his icy bath by falling in Hoppell's cistern Thursday evening.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 7th—The board of governors of the Westfield Club will hold a meeting Monday evening, at which time one of the members of the club will be asked to explain why he should not be expelled for conduct unbecoming a gentleman. The member some time ago brought a professional poker player from New York and introduced him into a game which cost several of Westfield's sporty young men quite a large sum of the "long greens."

Mrs. Fanny Crosby, the blind poetess, will take part in an entertainment to be given at the Presbyterian chapel Thursday evening of next week.

The Westfield Club alleys will be the scene of a game between the home team and a team from the Park Club, Plainfield, tomorrow evening.

The Ladies' Sewing Society of the Presbyterian church will give a "tea" in the chapel Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock.

The Board of Education meets this evening.

We give no rewards, an offer of this kind is the meanest of deceptions. Our plan is to give every one a chance to try the merit of Ely's Cream Balm—the original Balm for the cure of Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, by mailing for 10 cents a trial size to test its curative powers. We mail the 50 cent size also and the druggist keeps it. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Gazelle Engine Company, No. 1, will hold an adjourned business meeting tonight.

—Florence McCarty, patrolman, is now doing duty in the business section of the city.

—Monday evening, February 20th, there will be a regular meeting of the Board of Trade.

—The Woman's Parliamentary Club will hold the regular meeting Thursday at 10 a. m.

—There will be a regular meeting of the Parliamentary Club next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

—L. A. Hummer's new building corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue, is about completed.

—Every week the variety of seafood continues and the finest will be found at the seafood market. Rogers.

—One would think that Peck's embroidery counter was covered with ice from the way the goods slip off it.

—Two candidates were baptised Sunday night after the evening service at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

—Hepburn & Company, the new druggists, say that they are well pleased with the way trade is coming to them.

—Friday evening, February 17th, the last regular adjourned meeting of the Borough Council will be held for the present borough year.

—The free entertainment at the Christian church, Grove street, this evening, promises to be something very good. There will be a one-act drama entitled "The Way to Keep a Secret." Mrs. Manley has been engaged to sing. The entertainment is to be followed by a lunchbox sociable.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

There Wouldn't

Be anything extraordinary about this store if we asked as much for reliable goods as others. It's what has made this store what it is—Plainfield's Shopping Centre—selling at lower prices than all others. Our great Inventory Sale continues with new attractions.

KID GLOVES.
Your Kid Glove economy and this store go together. Over a thousand pairs to be sold. Not a pair worth less than one dollar, and most of them $1.50, yours for 79c.
An elegant lot of fine CHAMOIS GLOVES in white and colors, 49c.

SKATING CAPS.
About a hundred of them, were 35c to 50c, closing price 19c each.

POCKETBOOKS.
Almost too many to take in stock, so down goes the price. Were 50c. and 75c., now 29c. each.

BLACK
and colored Underskirts for Spring. The new ones are here, styles, makeup and price just as you would wish them. Fine black Satines, ruffled, $1 each.

MUSLINS.
Take our advice and buy your Sheeting and Muslins now. Manufacturers are advancing prices every day, but we still sell Fruit, Lonsdale and Dwight Anchor 6c yard.

A BARGAIN
in Crash. It's a heavy cotton Huck-a-Buck Crash. Will wear as well as linen and only costs 5c the yard.

A LINEN SPECIAL.
A beautiful cream Damask Towel, all-linen, heavy tied fringe, size 22x45; such a towel usually sells for 40c; we will sell twenty-five dozen at 25c each.

ANOTHER
Bargain in Linen is a lot of twenty inch Linen Birds-eye, regular price 15c yard, price will be 9c the yard.

HOSIERY.
Economical Hosiery buyers always take advantage of our yearly sale of Importers' sample Hose. You get two pairs for the price of one. The sale is now on—it will pay you to investigate.

LADIES'
medium weight Ribbed Vests. Too many in stock, were 39c each, we close them out at 19c each.

WRITING PAPERS.
About a thousand boxes of fine cream Papers, both plain and ruled. Such a paper always sells for 25c the box, will go at 13c.

SOFA
and Chair Cushions. We place on sale today about one hundred of them at a price that hardly pays for the making—24c each. They are large size and covered with fine cretonne.

WITHIN THE HOME.

SERVICABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR THE PAINSTAKING HOUSEWIFE.

Food and Raiment, and Fanciful Things Considered in a Helpful Manner—Prominence Given to What to Wear and How to Make It.

To candy lemon peel, boil it in sugar and then expose it to the air till the sugar crystalises. Orange peel must first be soaked in cold water to remove the bitterness, the water to be changed every now and then. Boil till soft and transparent in the sugar.

The addition of a little subcarbonate of soda to milk will prevent milk turning sour so soon as it otherwise would, and is not in the least injurious.

To prevent a door creaking, rub a little soap or oil on its hinges, which stops it directly.

Baldness, it is said, may be remedied by daily rubbing the part with onions till the skin is aglow and looks red. This should be done morning and night.

Should a chimney catch fire, shut all the doors and windows at once, so that there is as little draught as possible to feed the fire, saturate a piece of coarse canvas or sacking with water, and stop up the bottom of the chimney with it, and throw either salt or sulphur on the fire.

If the teeth are loose, the following wash should be used every morning, and will make them once more secure: Take a quarter of a pint of port wine, dissolve in it a quarter of an ounce of myrrh, and add one ounce of oil of almonds.

To clean hair-brushes, wash them in a quart of hot water with a teaspoonful of liquid ammonia added. The backs should not be allowed to go in, the brushes merely want moving about gently for some few minutes.

Umbrellas will last longer if, when wet, they are placed handle downwards to dry.

BLACK VELVET BOLERO.

Boleros are by no means unfashionable, for they can be seen in many shapes, trimmed with narrow velvet ribbon on the most up-to-date gowns. One in red serge has the skirt trimmed with six rows of black braid, divided into two sets of three, the first going round at the knees and the second just below, but only traversing the side gores. The under bodice was of guipure lace over silk, while the bolero, was, like the sleeves trimmed with black braid.

Some of these jackets are made in such odd shapes that it is hard to distinguish our old friend, the bolero. A model in black velvet worn over a fancy shirred evening waist was perfectly plain in back, but in front was slashed to form separate points. The whole was lined with silk and edged with narrow fur.

APPLE DUMPLING WITH POTATO PASTRY.

Put six ounces of flour into a basin, add a tea-spoonful of baking-powder and a little salt; mix well and rub in five ounces of butter, then add six ounces of mashed potatoes. Mix all thoroughly and add a small quantity of water if necessary. Roll out the pastry and line a buttered basin with it, reserving part of it. Fill this with apples, sugar and whatever flavoring you prefer, cover the top with the remaining piece of crust, pinch the edges together and cover it with a well floured cloth securely tied down. Boil it in fast-boiling water for two hours. This pastry is considered by many persons to be much more wholesome than the suet crust which usually envelopes the apples. It is also suitable for hot pies of meat or fruit.

FADGE.

A very favorite bread made of potatoes goes by the name of fadge. Its manufacture is so simple that most cooks make it by the rule of thumb, and probably the receipt has never found its way into any cookery book. The potatoes should be mashed as smoothly as possible and seasoned with salt, then they should have as much flour well kneaded into them as will make a stiff dough that may be handled without breaking too easily. This should be rolled out to a thickness of about a third of an inch and cut into triangular or square pieces of convenient size. Prick each piece here and there with a fork to prevent its blistering, and bake on a very hot and well-floured griddle. This bread should be eaten hot and well buttered, or it may be fried the next morning for breakfast, when it will make a nice garnish for a dish of ham and eggs. Fadge is not extremely digestible, and should be partaken of cautiously by those who try it for the first time.

THE COIFFURE.

"Milady's" coiffure is receiving much attention from the manufacturers this season, hair ornaments, hairpins, etc., being shown in an unusually large number of novel styles. Pompadour or bolero combs, now so popular in Paris, will undoubtedly be in great demand here by spring. Another novelty is the empire or high-backed Spanish comb that many thought had gone out of fashion for years to come. The fulness at the sides of the head now demanded by the fashionable coiffure calls for many sidecombs, and it is a tribute to American women's good taste that these combs are invariably plain. If a woman's hair is beautiful, she only diminishes its glory by wearing a row of rhinestones or other mock jewels, on her combs, and, if her hair is not especially fine, she should not call attention to it by glittering decorations.

FASHIONS IN FANS.

Fashions in fans do not appear to vary much. They are still made of drab or white marabout feathers, in gauze, ornamented with spangles and inlaid with lace; also fans worked in needlepoint. The most in vogue are of black lobophore feathers and emeralds spangled with gold; others with bone handles, and made of promengranate leaves and marabout feathers, spangled with ruby or blue, or with gilt pearl handles made of lace.

AN OLD SUPERSTITION.

Many Stories Prove That Rats Will Leave an Unseaworthy Vessel.

The old superstition which has grown into an adage, that rats desert a ship which is no longer sea worthy, is still an article of faith with the fresh water sailors of the great lakes. Many well-authenticated instances seem to justify this belief. The Vernon was a three-master, which did a tramp business. Built in Buffalo in 1850, she was for many years regarded as one of the best crafts on the lakes. Late in the fall, about fifteen years ago, she unloaded a cargo of grain in Buffalo, and reloaded with package freight for Chicago. She was about to sail one rough November night. Just before the lines were let off, one of the seamen saw a rat run over the hawsers to the wharf. In a moment another was seen. The seaman called others of the crew to see the unusual sight. Between fifty and seventy-five rats poured out of the ship and took refuge along the wharf. The crew refused to sail, but the captain was obstinate, shipped a fresh crew, and sailed forthwith. The ship was lost with all hands. The Idaho, a fine passenger steamer, foundered in Lake Erie in November, 1897. Out of her crew of twenty-one men nineteen were drowned. Just before the vessel left her moorings a swarm of rats crawled over the hawsers to the wharf. This was known to part of the crew, and four men deserted at the last moment. Similar stories are told of other wrecked vessels, and an old lakeman says: "It has been proven a hundred times. There are a whole lot of things in this world that we don't know anything about. Rats live in the very filers of a ship. They see what we can't see. When the timbers are hollowed and the seams open, these little animals know that the ship is unsafe."—Household Words.

NOT A HAPPY LOT.

Civil Service Requirements for Would-be Soldiers in China.

Difficulties of the civil service examination are multiplied ten fold in the requirements set down by law of applicants for positions in the mail service of China.

In the first place an applicant must have strength and courage. To acquire these he goes through a very queer method of training. He wanders through mountains and valleys, forests and caves. The exact time to be occupied in a trip is fixed by law and a heavy fine is imposed for unnecessary delay. He must repeat these trips at night, and if he listens to the bad spirit and thereby fails to appear at the required time at a certain place he is sure to lose his right to a position.

This is not all. He is obliged to carry an enormous weight for many miles and return with it within a given time. No allowance is made for his inability to defend himself against thieves and highwaymen, his road usually leadng through a district thick with bandits.

In training the candidate eats very little—though he is used to this—and he tries every straining exercise. Then comes his real examination, under the direction of the government officials. He is taken into a long room where, suspended from a high beam with strong ropes are very heavy sacks filled with rocks.

The candidate must give a swinging motion to all these sacks and then run to and fro between them, carefully guarding against a blow by one of the heavy weights.—New York Herald.

When Ice Cream Was New.

When ice cream was first introduced many funny stories were told about it. It was first offered in the national capital, according to the authority on the subject, by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who had had it in her home in New York. She used to tell with amusement of the delight with which President Jackson first tasted it, and how he promptly decided to have ices at the Executive mansion.

"Accordingly," says the historian, "guests at the next reception were treated to the frozen mystery, and offered considerable fun to the initiated by the reluctance with which they tasted it. Those from the rural districts especially first eyed it suspiciously, then melted each spoonful with breath before consuming it. Their distrust was soon removed, however, and plates were emptied with great rapidity.

"The man who made the ice cream was, oddly enough, a negro by the name of Jackson, who in the early part of the present century kept a small confectionery store in Washington. Cold custards, which were cooled by setting on them on a cake of ice were very fashionable, and Jackson, at Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, froze them by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering them with ice. Eack bucket contained a quart and was sold for $1."

The "Poi" Cocktails.

Every visitor to Hawaii, according to Frank Leslie's Weekly, is expected to become accquainted with "poi," the Kanaka's staff of life. The taste for this national dish is undoubtedly acquired, and even after many trials often fails to come at all. This pastelike mixture is made from the taro plant, (Colocasia antiquorum,) from which originates the "poi" cocktail. In name it is quite as deceiving as the "oyster" cocktail, and those desiring it merely for the name are sadly disappointed on finding that the only liquid it contains is milk.

The "poi" cocktail is prepared by diluting the paste with milk, then adding sugar or salt, and serving ice cold. This drink is found to be very beneficial to dyspeptics and those recovering from fever.

THE COWARD'S SUBTERFUGE.

How a Paper Kept the Editor From Well Deserved Punishment.

"Years ago," said Mr. Hal Gentry of New York, "a certain publication whose habitat was on Manhattan Island, made a specialty of defaming people. The most scurrilous articles generally lies from the whole cloth were printed about well known citizens, and no man, however high his standing, was safe from outrageous calumniation.

"The proprietor of the sheet knew that in a big city like New York few would go to the length of seeking personal satisfaction, and he had no dread of libel suits. Now and then, however, an irate invidual who had been 'roasted,' smarting under a sense of wrong, would seek the office of the paper bent on finding the scoundrel who had written the injurious paragraph with a view to punching his face.

"But never was such a visitor successful in his mission. When in tones of blazing wrath he would demand the name of the author he would be invited to some little dingy room at the top of the house. In this boudoir there was no human being, but on a desk lay a woman's hat and gloves and the visitor would be told that Miss Blank would be in presently. Miss Blank, then, was the perpetrator of the outrage, but how was a man to fight a female, no matter how dastardly her misconduct.

"And thus it came to pass that a mythical woman was used as a buffer to mollify men who were bent on having gore. At the worst they could only indulge in profanity, and this didn't hurt anybody's feelings about that establishment.—Washington Post.

WHAT LOVE CAN DO.

Pluck and Energy Shown by a Soldier Who Had Lost Both Arms.

Speaking of a man's pluck and what he can do if he has courage and a good wife, reminds me of a chap who lost both his arms in the civil war, says one of our contributors. He found the most devoted woman I ever knew joyful on his return home. He had married just as the war began and that marriage was his salvation. I mind me now of how they struggled just after the surrender. The man could do nothing without arms, it was thought, but he did do something, and love for a good wife will make any sort of man do something.

At the surrender this family found themselves without a thing to go upon. But a crop must be made, said the wife. It was no sooner decided upon than this fra'l little woman gathered a hoe and proceeded to plant corn. The armless man went with her to the field and watched her at work, and you can better imagine how he felt than I could tell.

At last a happy thought hit the soldier. He could pull a plow. He was strong and healthy and willing, and he soon persuaded his wife to hitch him up, and their first day's work showed the great advantage over the hoe. To make the story short, this armless confederate, as a horse, with a frail wife as the plow hand, made a plenty to do them the next year, and to buy a horse besides, and they have prospered ever since.—Atlanta Constitution.

Animal Paradise.

The animals which are lucky enough to live in Holland are fortunate creatures. Cows and pigs dot the landscape in every direction and roam with the sheep and horses in the pastures bordered by the canals, which they cannot cross. In Switzerland, on the other hand, the cattle are kept shut up most of the time in dark, stifling little stables because there are no fences, and otherwise the animals would stray.

The happiest dogs live in the Hague, for muzzles are not compelled and every one seems to take his dog along when he goes for an airing. A touching story connected with the history of William the Silent, Prince of Orange, may have had an influence in disposing the Dutch people to a general regard and love for dogs. On a monument of this prince in a church at Delft is an inscription referring to a favorite dog of his. On one occasion when he was in great danger from Spanish assassins who were about to enter the tent where he lay asleep, the dog jumped on his bed and by barking loudly awoke him in time to make his escape. Afterward, when he was assassinated, the same dog is said to have pined away and died in grief. The fine statue of William at The Hague also has the dog at his feet, looking affectionately up to the face of his master. —Chicago News.

Quaker Courtship.

"Martha, doest thee love me?" asked a Quaker youth of one at whose shrine his heart's fondest feeling had been offered up.

"Why, Seth," answered she, "we are commanded to love one another, are we not?"

"Ah, Martha, but doest thou regard me with that feeling the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have tried to bestow my love on all; but I have sometimes thought, perhaps, that thee was getting more than thy share."

The Smallest Soldier in France.

The smallest soldier in France is said to be only two feet four inches in height. He is a dwarf with a slight mustache. When he presented himself to draw his number out of the conscription urn it was discovered that his head did not reach to the top of the table on which the urn was placed, so a gendarme held him up by the collar to enable him to put his hand in the urn.—New York Herald.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Einem Gerücht zufolge soll Prinz Adolf von Schaumburg-Lippe, ein Schwager Kaiser Wilhelms, als Nachfolger des Fürsten zu Hohenlohe-Langenburg zum Statthalter von Elsaß-Lothringen ausersehen sein.

Saarburg. Der vor einigen Wochen hier in einem Pistolenduell von dem Artilleriehauptmann von der Planitz schwer verwundete Ulanen-Rittmeister Schede ist so ziemlich wiederhergestellt. Es wäre auch zu traurig gewesen, wenn der schwer beleidigte Gatte und Vater sein Leben hätte lassen müssen, während der Schuldige mit heiler Haut davongekommen war.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Mehrere Handelsagenten, die planmäßig in strafbarem Einverständnisse mit einigen Schwindelfirmen günstige Auskünfte über diese ertheilten und auf diese Weise ihnen ermöglichten, Waaren bei Großhändlern und Fabrikanten zu beziehen und dann zu Schleuderpreisen zu veräußern, wurden dem Landesgerichte eingeliefert; zwei flüchtige Kaufleute werden steckbrieflich verfolgt. Die Lieferer sind um einige 100,000 Gulden geschädigt. — Der pensionirte Universitäts-Professor Dr. Finger, ein 80jähriger Greis, hat wegen langjährigen schmerzhaften Leidens einen Selbstmordversuch unternommen und sich schwer verletzt.

Bregenz. Die Stadt Bregenz bewilligte neuerdings 10,000 Gulden für die Bregenzerwälderbahn; 1893 waren die Arbeiten schon so weit vorgerückt, daß man an die Interessenten und an den Staat herantreten konnte. Damals hat die Stadt Bregenz 110,000 Gulden bewilligt. Nachträglich hat sich aber herausgestellt, daß die Bahn um 510,000 Gulden höher zu stehen komme, als Anfangs projektirt war. Der Staat hat hierauf für 450,000 Gulden die Zinsengarantie übernommen; es fehlen aber immer noch 60,000 Gulden.

Budapest. Graf Thonys Andrassy, dessen Gemahlin vor Kurzem dem Wiener Journalisten- und Schriftstellerverein „Concordia" 5600 Gulden gewidmet hat, spendete dem ungarländischen Journalisten-Pensionsinstitut 10,000 Gulden.

Innsbruck. Auf eine seltsame Weise hat vor Kurzem bei Reichen ein Rehbock seine Freiheit eingebüßt. Das Thier hatte sich auf den zugefrorenen Reichensee begeben, stürzte auf dem glatten Eise und konnte nun nicht mehr auf die Füße kommen. Die Leute sahen es und schließlich wagte sich der bekannte Jäger Josef Maaß auf den See hinaus. Er band das hilflose Wild an den Beinen zusammen und brachte es glücklich ans Ufer.

Podonejed. In der Nähe von hier unternimmt eine Gesellschaft Bohrungen auf Naphtha. Dieselbe hofft, auch ein großes Steinkohlenlager zu erschließen.

Reichenberg. Die Statthalterei von Böhmen hat den im Jahre 1889 gefaßten Beschluß der Stadtvertretung von Reichenberg, daß die Geschäftssprache nur deutsch sein soll, aufgehoben. Der Reichenberger Bezirk ist der deutschste in Bohmen.

Stanislau. Hier hat der Oberlieutenant Johann Salzmann vom 8. galizischen Ulanen-Regiment auf der Straße einen Landwehrkorporal wegen angeblichen Ungehorsams mit dem Säbel attackirt und gefährlich verwundet.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die Mitglieder der medizinischen Fakultäten an den schweizerischen Hochschulen, soweit sie deutsche Staatsangehörige sind, haben an den Reichskanzler eine Petition gerichtet, worin sie bitten, es möchte in der demnächst zu erlassenden deutschen Prüfungsordnung für Aerzte die Bestimmung aufgenommen werden, daß auch die Testate der deutschschweizerischen Universitäten Basel, Bern und Zürich als vollgiltig anerkannt werden, auch möge es den Regierungen der deutschen Bundesstaaten ermöglicht werden, Aerzte, welche das schweizerische medizinische Staatsexamen bestanden haben, ohne deutsches Approbationszeugniß zu den Universitätsassistentenstellen zuzulassen.

Luzern. Mit Beginn des Jahres 1899 ist die Stadt Luzern Besitzerin der Bahn Luzern-Kriens geworden. Im Laufe des Jahres soll die Linie für elektrischen Trambetrieb eingerichtet werden.

Uri. Dem Landrath von Uri ist eine Motion angekündigt worden betreffend den Bau der Surenstraße. Die neuen Pläne für die Isenthalstraße fordern eine Erhöhung des Kostenvoranschlages von 100,000 Franken.

Basel. Die Universität Basel weist für das Wintersemester 559 Hörer auf, darunter 35 Damen. Immatrikulirt sind 45 Theologen, 50 Juristen, 124 Mediziner und 222 Philologen; 329 Studenten und 2 Studentinnen sind Schweizer, die übrigen Ausländer.

JEWEL-CURE TREATMENT.

A French Woman's Expensive Method of Healing the Sick.

Mme. Honouix, of Paris, has been for some time well known as a healer, and is said to be wonderfully successful in the treatment of blindness and nervous diseases. Her method of cure is rather an expensive one, as the only medicine she employs is precious stones. In some cases the treatment consists in simply applying the jewels to the affected parts. Sometimes it is necessary to burn the stones and inhale the fumes, and sometimes the powdered stone has to be swallowed. One treatment alone costs from $50 to $600, according to the ailment and the gems used. Many treatments are often necessary, and the stones must be without flaws, otherwise their healing virtue is considered impaired.

Mme. Honouix keeps the stock of jewels that she employs in treatments in a handsome and elaborately arranged case, and from this receptacle the patient selects the quality and size of the stone, the kind necessary to the cure having been previously decided upon by Mme. Honouix. As may be readily seen, the clientele of this jewel cure woman must be composed almost entirely of the wealthy class, as the destruction of precious stones cannot but be exceedingly expensive.

Mme. Honouix claims to be the inventor of this cure, and has entered deeply into the study of gems, and has many curious ideas in regard to their powers. She says that chalcedony, worn about the neck, will dispel sadness, and onyx, if powdered and taken before retiring, will cure insomnia and prevent nightmare. Jasper, she claims, is a proof against the venomous bite of serpents, while amethysts are a cure for intoxication, and sapphires and emeralds are useful for strengthening the sight.—New York Tribune.

NOT AN UNQUALFIED SUCCESS.

The Result of the Mongoose Being Introduced Into Jamaica.

Quite an interesting story might be written some day about the attempts which have been made to acclimatize strange plants and animals, and then to eradicate them. There is the famous mongoose episode of Jamaica. The mongoose was introduced to kill the rats which ate the cane plantations. Having done this, and multiplied very rapidly, it proceeded to kill all the snakes and lizards as well.

It next attacked the birds (learning to climb trees in the process), until the poultry and wild birds disappeared. Then arose the "ticks," or "chigoes," which the birds used to keep down, and the island groaned under a fresh plague. The ticks, however, finally attacked the mongoose, which began to decline; the birds began to reappear, and attacked the ticks; snakes and lizards were seen once more, and in the end the cane plantations were devastated as much as ever by rats.

It is not often that we get quite such a complete history as this or else a longer time is wanted for development. One of these plagues, that of the gypsy moth, arose from six eggs, which a collector had placed on a paper, blown out of his window, and it has cost America many thousands of dollars a year ever since, whole gangs of men being organized to collect the larvae and burn them in piles.

Why They Raise Hay.

While I was up in Canada last summer says a writer, a venerable inhabitant told me the reason why the farmers of the Dominion raise so much hay. He said that two or three centuries ago tithes were imposed for the benefit of the church upon all agricultural products, and a list was made of them. The farmers were compelled to give the priests one bushel in twenty-six of every thing they produced, whether it was apples, potatoes, wheat, corn, onions, turnips or any other grain or vegetable. Everything that grows was on the list except hay, which for some reason was omitted, he doesn't know why. Perhaps it was a mistake, but it is more likely the hay crop was so insignificent in those times that it was overlooked. In 1764 when Canada passed from French to British rule, the tithing law was confirmed and ratified by the treaty, and continues in force this day in the Province of Quebec, and wherever the Catholic church is strong. Therefore, to escape tithes the farmers raise hay. —Chicago Record.

A "Big Die."

The average Southern negro looks upon a funeral as a function to be enjoyed, and one at which all the fine feathers of the women and the loud clothing of the men should be shown. In this city to-day there are hundreds of negroes and negresses who each month pay their pittance to their "s'cieties," and the "s'cieties" in return bury them with great pomp when they die.

Not long since a very largely attended funeral was passing along a prominent street. An old negro, impressed by the number of carriages and wishing to express his adoration, exclaimed: "Lawdy! Lawdy! Dat sho' is er big die!"—Memphis Scimitar.

A Scalp Restored.

A young laundress employed in a laundry, in Paris was caught by the hair by an endless belt for the transmission of motive power and was literally scalped from the back of the head to the forehead.

At the hospital, where she was taken, the hair was shaved off, and the scalp was washed on both sides with soap and antiseptics, and applied to the patient's head. The operation turned out completely successful, and marked a new and important step in surgery, since hitherto scalp wounds were only cured by grafting and by treatment which sometimes lasted for years.—Correspondent London Times.

A NEW SHOPPING SCHEME.

How New York Dry Goods Houses Get Business.

"You won't have to go as far as the racetracks if you want to find a tout," said a policeman who had lately been transferred to the shopping district. "There's lots of them here on this new post of mine.

"When I first came on the post I was kept guessing at the reason for the crowds of women in front of big windows. I never could get near enough to get onto the game, for what show has a man to get into a crowd of women looking at a new style of something to wear? I could always see one woman close to the window give another a card or write something on a slip of paper. At last I got so worked up about it that I asked my wife to find it out for me. It seems it wasn't a game but business but things are that mixed nowadays you can't for the life of you tell where a game stops and commercial enterprise begins. When a woman stops and gets to looking at some bargain in the window the woman alongside of her just mentions in a ladylike way that she saw some of the same goods down the street, and it was 3 cents a yard cheaper or some such thing as that. That starts them talking, and maybe the first lady thinks she will go down to the other place and have a look to see if the goods are the same thing. She may want to make sure of the address, for it's hard to make your way when the place is so crowded, and then the other lady happens just by accident to have one of their cards, which she picked up when she was in there getting something. They work it mighty fine and make it seem as natural as you please, but every one of them women is a tout for the other shop. Think of the smartness of them! It's like getting a stable tip on what to wear.—N. Y. Sun.

FAITHFUL JIM'S BABY.

The Dog Goes Foraging and Returns With an Indian Child.

Several years ago, John Harms and wife, of Suisun, with their three-months-old baby, took passage on a steamer from San Francisco to the Klondike gold fields. They took with them from their home a large dog, of no special breed, but, as Mr. Harms said, "dogs are valuable on the Yukon," and, as Mrs. Harms said, "Jim was baby's protector." The many stories of dogs' affection for children were not exaggerated in Jims's case. His only object of earthly worship was that baby. After a few months' residence on Bonanza Creek the baby died and Jim was inconsolable. He would not permit caresses or attentions even from his master, but kept watch over the little mound on the hill for many days and nights. One day he came home, and, after being fed by Mrs. Harms, trotted off in the direction of an Indian village about a mile distant. He was gone for two or three days. One evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Harms were eating their evening meal, they heard Jim's scratch on the door, and upon opening it there he stood, wagging his tail ferociously and looking very happy, and at his feet lay a little Indian baby he had stolen and carried home, tied up in a piece of old blue blanket, with nothing visible but its little round face.—Truth.

The Old "Lyceum" System.

During a long period, says Col. T. W. Higginson in the Atlantic, I lectured a great deal in what were then called "lyceum" courses, which stretched over the northern half of the United States, forty years ago, to an extent now hardly conceivable. There were two or three large organizations or bureaus which undertook systematically the task of bringing speaker and audience together, with the least possible inconvenience to both. One of these, whose center was Dubuque, Io., negotiated in 1867 for thirty-five lecturers and 110 lecture courses, undertaking to distribute the one with perfect precision, as to supply the other. As a result, the lecturer left home with a printed circular in his pocket, assigning his dozen or his hundred engagements, as the case might be. As a rule he would meet in each new place what looked like the same audience, would make the same points in his lecture as before, would sleep at what seemed the same hotel, and breakfast on the same tough beefsteak. He would receive the usual compliments, if any, and make the same courteous reply to the accustomed questions as to the acoustics of the hall and the intelligence of the audience.

White House Clock.

The most interesting clock in the White House, of course, from its history, is the clock in the blue parlor, which was once the property of Napoleon Bonaparte, who presented it to Gen. Lafayette, and the latter presented it to Gen. Washington. The frame of it is made of alabaster and French gilt bronze. It has to be wound but once a month. It keeps time to-day as accurately as when first made. What is known as the Lincoln clock, purchased when President Lincoln was in the White House, is an object of interest in the Red Room and is of ebony and gold. It strikes the quarters, halves, and hours. In Mrs. McKinley's room is a clock which has been running without the slightest intermission for nearly thirty years. The clock at the foot of the stairs leading up to the President's office is the one that the public generally sees. It is rather modern in construction, of the 'regulator' pattern, and is very reliable. The clock in the Private Secretary's room is admired for its cathedral gong rather than anything else, but it is a good clock, and has so proved itself for the ten or fifteen years it has been there."—Washington Star.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

Who laments the verdure vanished
From the hillside and the field
In the Fall?
Shall we cling to recollection and to melancholy yield?
Not at all.
Let the violets and the daisies in the year's procession pass
Let none in idle folly cry "Alack!" nor yet "Alas!"
When the celery is smiling on the table from the glass
Crisp and tall.

Why recall the morning jewels with their sparkle and their glow
Which we've lost?
And wail because the dewdrops which were glistening long ago
Turn to frost?
The sight of glimmering globules as they drip into the pan,
When the feast's in preparation on an epicurean plan
Makes the blisses of the present fully worth to any man
All they cost.

And he who mourns the songbird that was erstwhile perched so high
On a twig,
Deserves no recognition for his hypocritic sigh.
He's a prig.
For the bird which in the oven is reposing so serene,
Adds a vastly greater share of picturesqueness to the scene,
And he's infinitely sweeter and at smallest seventeen
Times as big.

STORY OF A STOLEN KISS.

"My dear Leslie," said Henry Seymour to his ward, "I do wish you would try to be a little less fast; every one is talking about you and it is very painful to me."

"My dear guardy," said the young lady he addressed, a very pretty girl, about eighteen, "what have I done? Just mention some of my sins and I will try to reform."

"Well," said Sir Henry, "to begin with you are much too fond of using slang expressions; I am sure you do not mean any harm, dear, but it does not sound well. I wish you would adopt a more ladylike manner, like those nice, quiet girls, Colonel Bond's daughters. I assure you, Leslie, men do not care for fast girls, however much they may flirt with them, and I confess I should like to see you well married."

"Now, my dear Sir Henry," said Leslie coaxingly, "tell me, did you ever hear me say anything the least weeny bit improper?"

"Certainly not, my dear child."

"Then let me tell you those nice, quiet, ladylike girls you admire so much say things that would make your hair stand on end. If you could only hear how they go on when we are by ourselves. I should be quite ashamed," she added, with energy, "to even think of the things they discuss freely; indeed, I cut them whenever I can. As for marrying—really, all the young men I know are such muffs or prigs I detest the whole lot. What is my next crime?"

"You smoke cigarettes, Leslie," said her guardian sternly. "I was told you were actually seen with one between your lips out of doors the other night."

Leslie hung down her head a little and then said, with a slight blush:

"I cannot deny I tried one once, and indeed it was so nasty and made me feel so ill that I assure you I am not likely to do it again."

"I am glad to hear it. So you think all young men muffs or prigs? I hope to introduce to you one who answers neither description; you have of course heard of Captain Murray?"

"Do you mean the Captain Murray who gained the Victoria Cross for defending that fort so gallantly in the last campaign? Of course I remember all about him. Why?"

"He is coming home, and, being the son of an old friend, he has promised to pay me a visit, and I expect him shortly."

"How delightful! I shall like to meet a real hero. I hope he is handsome."

"Douglass Murray was a very good looking lad, but you will not suit him, young lady; he abhors 'fast girls,' and is very fastidious.'

"Well, I shall survive his disapprobation, I dare say. Amy will suit him to a T. She is such a demure little mouse." And Miss Lindsay took herself off.

In due time Captain Murray arrived. Leslie Lindsay was disappointed; she could hardly believe that quiet, unassuming young man could be the hero who had startled the whole civilized world into admiration. To her guardian's great annoyance she seemed to make a point of showing herself in her worst colors, and when Sir Henry asked her whether she thought Captain Murray a prig or a muff she declared he was both.

One very hot day in July Leslie and Sir Henry's daughter, Amy Seymour, were returning from making a call. The drawing room windows opened on the veranda, which was covered with luxuriant creepers. It looked very cool and pleasant inside on such a sultry day. The two girls were about to enter the room when Leslie, who was in advance, suddenly drew back and pointed inside. Amy peeped in. There was Captain Murray fast asleep in an arm chair near the window.

"What a chance, Amy, for me to win a pair of gloves."

"For shame, Leslie. You surely would not think of such a thing."

"Who's afraid?" said Leslie. "Besides he is really fast asleep and will never know, and the temptation is too much for me. Consider, the hero the whole world raves about," and with a mischievous look at Amy, she stepped lightly in and dropped a kiss as light as a puff of thistledown upon the sleeper's forehead.

As the sound of the girl's retreating footsteps died away Douglas Murray opened his eyes, and, smiling to himself, said:

"I suppose that is considered a fast girl. I must confess I like her, and believe she is really true and womanly. That fast manner is all humbug. I must not forget to pay my debt, however," and he laughed. "She thinks me a muff, I know. Never mind, that kiss was very nice—I forgive her."

A day or two afterward, as they were all at breakfast, Sir Henry said:

"I forgot, Leslie, here is something for you," handing her a small packet, marked "Parcel Post."

"What can it be, I wonder?" she said, as she cut the string; "the handwriting is quite strange to me," and she was about to open it quite unconcernedly when Amy remarked:

"It is just the shape of a glove box."

Leslie started and looked guilty across the table at Captain Murray, who was, however, going on with his breakfast.

She took off the paper wrapper and discovered a white box—it did look horribly like a glove box, Leslie thought, as she lifted the cover—and, yes, inside lay several pairs of dainty kid gloves of different shades.

Hoping nobody noticed her confusion and not daring to look across the table she was replacing the cover of the box when Captain Murray said very coolly:

"I always pay my debts, Miss Lindsay; I do not like to feel under any obligation."

Hastily seizing her parcel Leslie rose, and, murmuring something to Sir Henry about not feeling very well, she flew upstairs and locked herself into her room, where she had a good cry.

After a little time she took a look at the gloves.

"Just my size. I wonder how he knew; and six buttons—and how pretty they are. He is not quite such a 'prig' after all, but it makes no difference to me now. He dislikes me, I know, and I wish he was gone." And then she had another good cry.

Sir Henry Seymour had no reason to complain of his ward's conduct for the next few days—but she avoided Captain Murray, who tried in vain to get a chance to speak to her.

One morning, however, fortune favored him. He was in the garden and Leslie was walking toward him; she was quite unconscious of his proximity and they met face to face in a moment more. When she saw him standing near she lifted her sweet blue eyes to his with a wistful, half-beseeching glance.

"Miss Lindsay," said Douglas, "shake hands with me, please. I am afraid I took a most unfair advantage of you; pray forgive me and let us be friends."

"Oh, Captain Murray, I do feel so awfully ashamed of myself—what must you think of me?"

"Shall I tell you what I think of you, darling?" as he gently drew her toward him; "I think you a dear, sweet, lovable girl, and if you can put up with such a muff as I am as a husband——"

"Oh, please don't," said Leslie, interrupting him; "do not remind me of my impertinence. You are much too good for me, but indeed," with earnestness, "I will never do it again!"

"I call that positively unkind, I assure you," said he, laughing. "I do not care how many times you repeat the operation——"

Leslie has been Mrs. Murray now some years, but her husband has never regretted he married a fast girl, while she declares she has found from experience all men are not either prigs or muffs.—London Evening News.

National Customs.

The traveler who lands at Calais from Dover and stops there over night is put into a bed having a hard round bolster, surmounted by a huge square pillow, very different from anything of the sort he has before seen, but which he is destined to find—perhaps to his great comfort—wherever he goes in France. Here is a French fashion.

The traveller who enters Switzerland—it matters not where—has honey placed before him the first time he breakfasts or takes his tea. He has not been treated to honey before in any adjacent country in which he has traveled, not, at least, unless he has specially ordered it; but now it is placed before him whether he cares for it or not, and it continues to appear both at breakfast and tea, so long as he continues his sojournings in Switzerland. Here is a Swiss custom.

One who crosses from France to Germany exchanges customs in regard to the time of day for taking dinner and the time of night for retiring to rest. The Frenchman eats but little in the morning or through the middle of the day, reserving his dinner until the close of the day. The German dines at midday. So much is this his practice, the very word for dinner signifies "midday's meal." And even fashionable Germany goes to its evening's entertainment at half past six P. M., and is at home and in bed before the night has barely begun in London or Paris. Here are German habits.

The more one travels, the more, of course, he observes of these national peculiarities. He finds them existing not merely in such outward matters as those just indicated, but in every department of life. So numerous, so deeply rooted, so widely prevailing are these peculiarities as to stamp ineffaceably the national character.

M'KIBBIN PROTESTED.

Handling Hogs Beneath the Dignity of the United States service.

It was during the big railroad strike of 1894, and Major Charles McKibbin—as he was then—was at all times anxious to avert trouble, although he was as firm as a rock when there was any attempt to transgress the authority of the military. He was never called upon a service that he did not render it if he possibly could. Newspaper men will always have the pleasantest of recollections of him and of his uniform kindness to them.

One day, when the end of the strike was near, it was decided by the superintendent of this division to take out a train if it could be done. The motive power called for was a consolidation engine. When it was ready to be taken from its stall in the roundhouse the superintendent sent to Major McKibbin a request for a guard "to take a hog out of the roundhouse." The major looked at the written request, and said nothing. Those who understood him best marked his expression and knew that it did not bode good for anybody. But the major said not a word. He simply left his tent and walked to the office of the superintendent. Entering, he said, with firmness and dignity: "Mr. Brimson, my men stand ready to do anything that they can to help you but it seems to me that they should not be asked to go and take a pig out of the roundhouse just because somebody has thrown it in."

The superintendent was at a loss to understand what was meant by the officer and asked him to explain. The major pulled out the request for a "hog," and asked what it meant, if it was not to take out a pig. Then the railroad man laughed loud and long. He couldn't help it; and when the major had been told that railroad men call a certain class of engines "hogs," he laughed, too, and sent a guard as requested. Speaking of the incident afterward, Major McKibbin said: "How was I to know that they called an engine a hog?"—Exchange.

BEYOND HIS IMAGINATION.

Could Not Believe a Steamship Would Cross the Atlantic.

Nearly all great scientific discoveries have been combated and misunderstood, even by great men. Admiral Sir Charles Napier fiercely opposed the introduction of steam power into the royal navy and one day exclaimed in the House of Commons: "Mr. Speaker, when we enter her majesty's naval service and face the chances of war we go prepared to be hacked to pieces by cutlasses, to be riddled with bullets or to be be blown to bits by shot and shell; but Mr. Speaker, we do not go prepared to be boiled alive!" The last words he brought out with tremendous emphasis. Steam power in men-of-war with boilers, which at any moment might be shattered by an enemy's shot—this was a prospect the gallant sailor could not face. Yet in a few years Sir Charles Napier found himself in command of the largest steam navy that the world has ever seen. Lord Stanley (subsequently the great Lord Derby) presided over a select committee of the House of Commons to examine into the state of steam navigation. George Stephenson, the eminent engineer, who was examined spoke of the probability of steamships crossing the Atlantic. "Good heavens! what do you say?" exclaimed Lord Stanley rising from his seat. "If steamships cross the Atlantic I will eat the boiler of the first boat." That pledge was never redeemed.—New York Mail and Express.

Moody's Forethought.

"One evening in San Francisco," says a writer in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Evangelist Moody sat in his room at the hotel playing a game of cards with Mrs. Moody and two friends when a messenger came in with a dispatch. As the boy stood waiting for a reply, Mr. Moody suddenly asked: "Won't you sit down, my lad, and have a game of 'authors' with us?" The boy declined and soon left the room. Hardly had the door closed when Mrs. Moody said: "Why, Dwight, what made you think of asking that boy to sit down and play with us?" "My dear," replied Moody, "don't you see, if I had not called the boy's attention to the fact that we were playing 'authors,' all the morning papers would certainly have announced under big headlines that D. L. Moody had been discovered in a San Francisco hotel engaged in a game of cards?"—New York Mail and Express.

Refinement of Taste.

He was an old man, says "The Baltimore News," and he had an honest face, but it was evident to all the passengers in the street car that his persistent stare at the pretty woman opposite embarrassed and annoyed her. Several hints were thrown out, but he did not take them, and the man beside him finally asked:

"Did you ever see a woman before?"

"Of course," was the reply.

'Well, they don't like to be stared at as you are doing. Can't you see how uncomfortable you have made that woman?"

"Have I? By George, I didn't mean to! Say, ma'am, you must excuse me. I didn't mean no disrespect nor nuthin,' but you are a gaul-durned good-lookin' woman, and I was gazin' at you same as I would look at a cow!"

The Park Club will run up against is greatest snag of the season Wednesday evening, its team in the Central Journal Bowling League will go to Westfield to roll three games with the Westfield Athletic Club team. Now there is a hoodoo that haunts the Westfield club house that always appears just when the Park Club bowlers reach that town. And that hoodoo remains there long enough to spoil any pleasure the Parks can get out of the result. Three years ago, Westfield ruined the Parks' chances of being first in the League at the very last moment by defeating them three times at Westfield. Captian Ball says he is going to defeat Westfield this year on her own alleys If the Parks can capture those games, or even two of them, then their chances of winning out in the League are rosy, indeed.

The bowling tournament now in progress on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club is becoming exceedingly interesting, and it now looks as though the winners of the first prize will be Shannon and M. Mack. Last evening this team beat McInnerney and Moynihan, also Hillman and H. Higgins. Shannon and Mack can lose one game and yet secure first place. If they lose two games they will be tie for first honors. This team has two more teams to play in the tournament. There is still great rivalry for second honors and good scores are being made The tournament will be continued this evening.

No Board of Education Meeting.

PLAINFIELD'S NEW CLUB.

"THE CLUB" IS A SELECT ORGANIZATION OF TWENTY.

It is Composed of Those Who Have Been the Backbone of Previous Local Organizations—Officers and Committees.

The congenial ones who formed the backbone of the late Crescent League and the defunct Crescent Wheelmen have gathered together once more and "The Club" is the result. While that organization has practically been in existence for several weeks, it was not until last night that it was formally organized.

"The Club" was organized with eighteen charter members and the membership limited to twenty. H. C. VanEmburgh was chosen president and Thos. Hanna secretary-treasurer. "The Club" is not a club, but a social organization, the object of which is to furnish its members a quiet place, where they can spend their evenings together without intrusion from the rest of humanity. Frank, Jones, Clarence Teal and Fred Viewig were appointed a committee to draw up the rules and by-laws for the government of the clubhouse.

The clubrooms are located on the second floor of the Clarkson building, East Front street. The members will alternate in alphabetical order as a house committee. During the month of February Amos Andrews and Frank Bowman will officiate. One room is devoted to a pool table, the other is a reception room. They are nicely furnished and well equipped.

After the club has once started there will be no club meetings. The rooms will be open every day and night and the members will congregate there when they wish.

"The Club" is entirely free from debt and, taking a lesson from the experiences of the previous organizations, it will not be allowed to get into that condition. The monthly dues are sufficient to pay the expenses of the club and leave a little over for emergencies.

PROPOSED NEW TROLLEY LINE.

Application for a Franchise from Sayreville to South Amboy.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Feb. 7—The Township Committee of Sayreville has received a petition for a public hearing on an application of the Sayreville Electric Light and Power Company for a franchise for a trolley line from Sayreville to South Amboy. Sayre & Fisher, who conduct brickyards at the place, are back of the application. The application will no doubt be granted.

The proposed line follows the route surveyed by the Brunswick Traction Company, which has a line from New Brunswick to the limits of Sayreville. Sayre & Fisher defeated the efforts of the Brunswick Traction Company to secure a franchise for the extension of the road. The proposed new line will be about five miles in length and will complete a line from Somerville on the north to South Amboy.

Rev. George W. Gardner, of the borough, has returned from a short visit out of town.

Howard J. Miller, of Park avenue, has secured a position in New York with an insurance company.

SOCIETY AT A MUSICALE.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR FOR BENEFIT OF CHILDREN'S HOME.

Held at the Handsome Residence of Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview Avenue, Last Evening—Fine Programme.

A well-conducted musicale, with such an exquisite setting as the home of Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, could not fail to charm and delight, and the many guests who filled the beautiful rooms of Mr. McCutchen's residence last night enjoyed a rare pleasure as they listened to a choice musical programme. The object of the entertainment was twofold, combing the pleasure of the guests with profit to the Children's Home, an institution that merits and elicits the sympathy and co-operation of Plainfield's best citizens. The number of tickets was limited to 250, and of these there was quick disposal.

The programme, as previously printed in The Daily Press, was rendered with exquisite finish and wonderful technique.

The instrumental numbers of the pramme were performed with great skill the duets being perfect in time and execution, and giving entire unity and harmony where two pianos were used.

Mr. Mall, the 'cellist, gave great pleasure with the vigor and delicacy of his performance.

In part second, Mr. Swayne sang DeKoven's "Armourer's Song" from Robin Hood with such taste and power that it won for him an encore, to which he responded with "The Bonnie, Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond."

Miss Grace Gregory, who has a rare voice, combining volume with sweetness, showed the bird-like tones of her voice in "L 'Leure Exquese" and sang for an encore "John Anderson, My Joe John."

Mr. Mein's voice possesses great strength and range of tone. His encore was "Ich Bin Deem Und du Bist Mein."

Miss Marion Dumont, accompanist, won for herself golden opinions from her fellow townspeople for her delicate and skilful technique.

Mr. McCutchen, in a few pleasant words, thanked the artist for their labors and the audience for their appreciation.

Refreshments were served at the close of the entertainment.

Much credit for the success of the musicale is due to Miss VanBoskerck who looked after the business end of the affair and planned and carried out her portion of the work with such skill and energy.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

he would pay costs, etc. This petition had the sanction of the corporation counsel and was agreed to by the Council.

It will be remembered that the suit against Mr. Carbone was for violating the city ordinance in selling chewing gum, cigars, etc, on Sunday, sometime ago, and the case is now in the higher courts.

At this time Mayor Rockfellow made his appointments for the year. Craig A. Marsh was appointed corporation counsel; J. H. Carman, city physician; members of the Board of Health, James H. Murray, F. W. Dunn.

J. W. Murray, Jr., was appointed first assistant chief of the fire department, and Andrew Jennings second assistant chief. As pound keepers Frederick Wenzel and John Meeker were appointed, while the usual list of special policemen were appointed, all of which were confirmed. The list of specials include church sextons, school janitors, etc. In all forty were appointed.

Overseer of the Poor Hansen reported that there were twelve new cases during the past month, of which number seven were granted, and four of that number was for temporary aid only. There were four deaths and at present there are twenty-four beneficiaries. The city physicians report was received and filed and the report of the Board of Health showed that at present there are two contagious cases in the city, one typhoid and one scarlet fever. The report states that the city is particularly free from contagious diseases. The Board of Engineer reported that Alex. Manning had resigned from the fire department and they asked the Council to accept his resignation as approved by the Board. Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of nine permits. The liquor licenses were presented and referred to the committee, and Mr. Coriell, chairman, moved that they be advertised.

Mr. VanHerwerden reported on the petition of Fred W. Bird for the establishment of city scales, and he thought it was a matter for the courts to decide upon and not the Council or any committe, and he moved that the petition be filed.

Mr. Coriell made a motion that inasmuch as the cost of the new engine house in the West End had exceed the appropriation that $300 be appropriated to complete the work. He also moved that Chas. H. Hand's petition for the privilege of erecting a porch on his new Watchung avenue building be denied and it was so voted.

Mr. Mellick stated that the contract for furnishing a complete set of maps of the city had been given to Frank J. Hubbard at a cost of $700.

Mr. Smith, as chairman of the alms committee, offered four resolutions to the effect that $50 be appropriated to make certain repairs at the Industrial Home, that six suits of clothing be purchased for six inmates of the Home at an expense of $6 per suit, that an amount not to exceed $80 be appropriated to wire the Home for electric lighting, and that one dozen mattresses be purchased for the Home at an expense not to exceed $3.25 each. All of the resolutions were adopted.

Mr. Buckle moved that the printing and stationery committee be authorized to purchase one hundred copies of the rules of order for the Council.

Mr. VanHerwerden called up the ordinance regarding the changing of time for the collection of taxes, and the same was adopted on first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Barrows stated that the street and sewer committee had been very busy in putting forth efforts to stop the ground flow at the sewage beds, that Engineer Farquar had visited Plainfield twice and that his report soon to be submitted would govern the committee's report it would make to the Council. In the opinion of the committee it was thought that additional pipes would have to be laid on Richmond street and Putnam avenue and that Cedar brook would have to be cleaned and made deeper. In connection with this report, he moved that $500 be appropriated for the preliminary work. Mr. Barrows also moved that the rules of order for the Council be made the by laws for 1899, and that when Council adjourn it be to meet Thursday evening, Feb. 23d.

Mr. Barrows called up the motion laid on the table at a previous meeting that the Council go into the election of a city clerk. He then stated that he had received the opinion of the corporation counsel and that he had been informed that his previous opinion would hold. In view of this fact Mr. Barrows asked the Council to kill the motion so that further complications would not result if the motion prevailed and Mr. MacMurray should be again elected city clerk. The motion was therefore killed.

Before the meeting adjourned Mr. VanHerwerden asked the president to instruct the various committees as to making their appropriations by the next regular meeting, so that the tax budget for the year could be arranged. The Council then adjourned.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAS. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 6th, 1899.

"AN ORDINANCE

to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in portions of Park Avenue, Front and Somerset Streets.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water of the water flowing into Green Brook, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Park Avenue from the Central Railroad of New Jersey to Front Street, with two inlets at the railroad bridge, one at North Avenue, six at Second Street and two between Second and Front Streets: In Front Street, from Park Avenue to Somerset Street, with two inlets at West Front Street and Braden's Alley and two at Somerset Street: In Somerset Street from Front Street to Green Brook, all with the necessary manhole and appurtenances to complete the same, said separate sewers or drains to be of the dimensions and material, and to be laid in said streets, and along such lines, and at such grades, and in such manner as indicated and specified on map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled "Map for Storm Sewers in Park Avenue, Front and Somerset Streets, made by Andrew J. Garrett, C. E., Sept. 1898."

Section 2. That the costs and expenses required to be incurred under this ordinance shall be provided for in the manner specified in the preamble to this ordinance."

ANOTHER LARGE PURCHASE OF High-Grade Clothing.

Purchased the balance stock of the Union Clothing Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., at 35c. on the dollar, and this being positively the finest and most up-to-date clothing ever shown in Plainfield, and this with the stock of Schaper Bros., of St. Louis, Mo., combined, makes the largest stock for this time of the year to be seen in any store in the country. And in order to dispose of this tremendous stock of clothing we will cut the price to less than 1-3 of the wholesale cost of manufacturing these overcoats, suits, ulsters and trousers.

Facts Are Stubborn

If Plainfield People Are Not Convinced By Local Testimony They Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed in the past two years how "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mushrooms in a meadow and following the Plethora of cures, the general public have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts are demanded but it has become also essential to know who supplies them, where are they from, in fine, whom have you cured. Doubting Thomas would not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home. "Give us some neighbor, then I will believe" is what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like, at home, local or neighbors testimony, you can always ascertain the truth of it without leaving the city limits. Here is a case:

Mrs R.A. Martin, of No. 70 Jackson Ave., says: "I had pains in my back and loins for about a year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain but they strengthened me in other ways. I can cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering with a lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50c. a box Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for U. S.

Filipino ...vidently Planned to ... ...ss Our Men.

OUR LOSS FORTY KILLED.

Aguinaldo's Forces Were Utterly Routed—33,000 Men Engaged—20,000 Natives Demoralized by 13,000 Americans—Dead Found Around Manila.

Manila, Feb. 7.—The scene presented in the environs of the city of Manila as the sun went down on Sunday evening was one of terrible desolation. In the fighting, which began at 8.30 o'clock on Saturday evening and continued Sunday in a determined or desultory manner, as the circumstances or conditions made necessary, the Filipinos were utterly routed with fearful slaughter. From the best information obtainable at this writing their losses are estimated at four thousand, which estimate is not believed to be excessive.

The natives were confidently aggressive, and wholly unprepared for the terrible punishment which the Americans inflicted upon them from the very outset.

They had evidently been getting in readiness for the attack for some time, their actions indicating expectations of taking the Americans off their guard, but the vigorous work of our troops completely demoralized them and put them hopelessly to rout.

The casualties, however, were not confined to the Filipinos, as the number of our killed and wounded shows. In fact, our troops suffered more than was at first reported, upwards of forty having been killed and one hundred and fifty wounded.

The number of American troops engaged was thirteen thousand, while the Filipino forces numbered twenty thousand.

The American troops while the fighting was going on were disposed in the following manner from the bay on the north around the city to the bay on the south: The 20th Kansas infantry, 3d Artillery, 1st Montana infantry and 10th Pennsylvania infantry, under the command of Brigadier General Otis: the 1st South Dakota infantry, 1st Colorado infantry, and 1st Nebraska infantry, commanded by Brigadier General Hale, both brigades being supported by Batteries A and B of the Utah Light Artillery, under command of General McArthur; the 1st California infantry, 1st Idaho infantry, 1st Wyoming infantry, and 1st Washington infantry, under Brigadier Gen. King; the 4th cavalry, 14th infantry and 1st North Dakota infantry, commanded by Brigadier General Ovenshine, both brigades supported by the 6th artillery division, commanded by General Anderson.

There was some firing to the north of the city early yesterday morning, but the general engagement practically ended on Sunday afternoon. The 14th infantry suffered most of the fatalities owing to the close approach of the enemy under the cover of the dense shrubbery and firing at short range from behind huts and other protecting objects.

The 1st Washington infantry and the Third artillery also suffered heavily. The Utah artillery division and the Sixth artillery were splendidly effective in shelling the insurgent trenches on Sunday morning.

The insurgents to the number of more than one hundred had concealed themselves in a church, from which they fired upon the 1st California regiment and also upon the ambulances which were conveying the American wounded to the rear.

The Sixth artillery turned their guns around and opened fire upon the edifice, and in twenty minutes the church was a complete wreck and its occupants killed wounded or dispersed.

The First California was also subjected to fire from the huts along the road, which were swarming with Filipinos, so the Californians set fire to the village and destroyed it. The slaughter of the insurgents north of the city by the fire of the quick firing guns of the captured gunboat Callao and the six-inch guns of the gunboat Concord and the eight-inch shells of the cruiser Charleston was particularly heavy.

The Filipinos had massed along the beach, where they had been driven by General Otis's brigade, and hundreds of them were literally torn to pieces by the terrific rain of shells from the warships.

The Charleston joined the Monadnock off Malate on Sunday afternoon and the two sent in shell after shell with awful effect upon the insurgents, who were falling back before the steady advance of the 14th infantry.

Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia, took no part in the bombardment, having taken a position directly in front of the city, between the former Spanish gunboat General Alava and the German cruiser Irene.

The American troops commanded the river front along the Pasig, while the captured Spanish gunboat Laguna from the bay swept the rice fields along the river bank, fairly riddling the village of Santa Ana with her Gatling guns.

The good results of the firing were seen yesterday morning. Nearly all of the native huts on the outskirts of the city were flying white flags. The enemy is still retreating.

The American troops on the north of Manila are following them up and have now nearly reached Caloocan, while on the south the Americans have advanced to a point near Pasay.

Five native commissioners who came from Iloilo to consult with Aguinaldo were arrested Sunday night as they were about to return to the island of Panay on board the steamboat Uranus. It is supposed that their mission was to order the insurgents at Iloilo to attack the Eighteenth regulars and a portion of the Sixth artillery, which are still there with the cruiser Baltimore.

Lieutenant James Mitchell of the Fourteenth infantry, who was wounded in Sunday's fighting, died yesterday.

A number of natives have been arrested in the city for carrying concealed knives.

Two men on board the Monadnock were wounded by rifle shots from the insurgents on shore, showing the closeness of the monitor to the beach.

The burial of the dead Filipinos by our soldiers began yesterday morning. In one place one hundred and eight bodies were found and in another sixty. Nearly every American regiment engaged has reported finding fifty or more of the enemy dead along its front.

General Hughes's provost brigade of Minnesota soldiers and men from the Twenty-third infantry has kept the natives in the city in subjection.

The First Tennessee infantry has been divided, one battalion reinforcing General Anderson and two battalions joining General McArthur's command.

Troops are now on the way to seize the water works, which are situated five miles north of the city.

DEWEY REPORTS AGAIN.

Admiral Sends a Second Despatch About the Fighting Monday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The following dispatch was received yesterday at the navy department:

Manila, Feb. 6.

Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

Insurgents have attacked Manila. Boston leaves to-day for Iloilo to relieve Baltimore, which will return to Manila. Two men wounded yesterday on board Monadnock, one seriously.

DEWEY.

The naval authorities are satisfied that this message means that another engagement has taken place. Lieutenant H. H. Whittlesey, who is in charge of the telegraphic correspondence of the bureau of navigation, says that this dispatch from Admiral Dewey was sent later and not earlier than the message that came Sunday morning, in which the admiral told of the general engagement along the American line.

The statement in the second dispatch that the insurgents had attacked Manila, is regarded by the naval officers as positive evidence that the town itself was attacked, the first dispatch reporting only the engagement along the line of outer intrenchments. Furthermore, it is pointed out, in corroboration of the belief that there was a second engagement, that while Admiral Dewey in his first message said there had been no casualties in the navy, he reported in his dispatch of yesterday morning that there had been two men wounded on the Monadnock.

The naval authorities say that there is nothing for them to do, as Admiral Dewey is well able to cope with the situation. He has plenty of stores of all kinds, including an abundance of ammunition.

The statement that he had cabled for more ammunition is denied by the department.

A Manila dispatch from Gen. Otis has been received at the war department, giving the casualties in the First Brigade, First Division. It includes the following:

Tenth Pennsylvania—Major E. Brierer, flesh wound, arm, slight; Lieutenant Albert J. Buttermore, flesh wound, slight; Sergeant Joseph Sheldon, Company H, slight flesh wound, thigh; Private Hiram Conger, Company H, abdomen penetrated, serious; Private Edward Caldwell, Company D, lung penetrated, serious; Private Debalt, flesh wound, back, slight.

No Instructions to Otis.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Secretary of War Alger said the war department had not sent a word of instructions to General Otis. Any statement to that effect is false. We do not intend to do so. General Otis is entirely capable of handling the situation and we do not intend to hamper him with any order. He knows exactly what to do and is doing it with entire satisfaction to the department. The only telegram that has been sent to him merely asked him to send a list of casualties as soon as possible.

If General Otis is not competent to perform his duties he should be relieved; if he is competent he should be permitted to carry out the campaign in his own way. He is on the ground and knows better than we do here in Washington what is required. More battles have been lost through hampering commanders with instructions than in any other way, and we don't propose to make any such mistakes.

Dewey to Aguinaldo.

Hong Kong, Feb. 7—The following dispatch was received here from Manila before the outbreak there occured:

"Rear Admiral Dewey, in an interview, said the Monadnock is guarding one end of the city, the Monterey the other and the army protects the rear. He added that he had sent word to Aguinaldo that if, accidentally, the insurgents entered Manila, he would reduce it to mortar and stone.

"The insurgents are an armed mob, incapable of government and are angry with Admiral Dewey for seizing vessels flying Filipino flags.

"The Admiral is not favorable to annexation, but believes in the gradual withdrawal of the United States troops. He also says the United States is morally bound to establish a stable government in the Philippines."

Spoiled Beef in Havana.

Havana, Feb. 6.—Inspector General Breckinridge has discovered among the army rations issued to the destitute in Havana hundreds of cases of spoiled beef and he believes that there are others—just how many only a thorough inspection can determine.

The canned roast beef was put up, as the cases show, in "Chicago, July, 1898." They were bought by Captain Oskaloosa M. Smith of the subsistence department from Armour and Libbey, McNeil & Libbey, and were sent to Porto Rico.

Honor to an Heroic Stoker.

London, Feb. 7.—A young Irish stoker, in the queen's navy, who gave his life in the performance of duty in his humble capacity, is to have a torpedo boat destroyer named after him. This is a most unusual compliment to an enlisted man. Stoker Lynch has just died at his home at Youghal, County Cork, of his injuries. He dashed into the scalding steam boiler room of his ship after an explosion, to rescue his mates. He received the Albert medal, first class, for his bravery.

To Succeed Rev. Dr. Hillis.

Chicago, Feb. 7—Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsalaus, president of Plymouth Congregational Church, will succeed Rev Dr. N. D. Hillis as minister of Central Church.

Dr. Hillis recently accepted the pastorate of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

COUNT CAPRIVI DEAD.

Former Chancellor of German Empire Passes Away.

Frankfort, Feb. 7—Gen. Count von Caprivi, former Chancellor of the German empire, died yesterday at ten o'clock, at Skyren, near Crossen, thirty-two miles from here.

General Georg Leo von Caprivi de Caprera de Montecuccuili was born in Charlottenburg February 24, 1831. He was the eldest of four sons of Julius Edward von Caprivi, a high legal functionary in the service of the Prussian state. He entered the army when 18 years of age, served with distinction in the campaigns of 1884 and 1866 and won rapid promotion.

COUNT CAPRIVI.

During the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71 he acted as chief of staff to the Tenth Army Corps, of which he subsequently became commander. In 1883 Caprivi was appointed to the command of the Thirtieth division at Metz. The next year, passing from the army to the navy, he succeeded Herr von Stosch on the latter's retirement from the head of the admiralty and naval men by profession were amazed at the mastery of their art displayed by a mere landsman and soldier.

AGONCILLO BOASTING NOW.

Aguinaldo's Agent Becomes Insolent After Crossing Canadian Border.

Montreal, Feb. 7.Felipe Agoncillo, the agent of the rebel Aguinaldo, and his companion Marti have arrived here. They went at once to the Windsor Hotel.

Aguinaldo's man was excited almost to the point of hysterics when seen at the hotel later. As nearly as he could be understood as he rattled off answers to the reporter's questions he spoke as follows:

"I have come to Canada as I was afraid that if I stayed in the United States my life would be in danger. I therefore fled at the earliest opportunity. Regarding the outbreak at Manila the Americans were at fault. The Americans have broken faith with the Filipinos on several occasions, and the time has now come for the natives to show their hand.

"It will take ten years for the Americans to bring my people to submission. They are not favorable to the Americans, far less, in fact, than they were to the Spanish, and they will fight to the bitter end. They have at the present time as prisoners of war ten thousand Spanish soldiers. These men they propose to make use of against the new enemy." Just how he couldn't say.

"The cause of the present outbreak," he continued, "was the recent order issued by General Otis for a search of the houses in Manila. This has enraged the people, and their rage has been increased by the outrages perpetrated on their women by the American soldiers.

"The islands are, with the exception of a small area around Manila, in full possession of the Filipinos, and they are governed by a recognized government. All dispatches from Manila of this affair are colored to suit the American people. When the truth is known it will indicate a victory for the Filipinos."

A Base Ball Deal.

New York, Feb. 7.—Another act in the Brooklyn-Baltimore baseball play has been arranged to take place today. Hanlon and Von der Horst of Baltimore are to meet W. G. Byrne this afternoon and turn over to the latter gentleman ten thousand dollars in cold cash for his Brooklyn club stock. This accomplished, it is expected that things will be in shape to proceed with the playing end of the club's affairs.

The big deal has created no end of talk among local followers of the national game, some of whom are uneasy lest something interfere with the consummation of the consolidation. Overzealous partisans of the Brooklyns already are claiming the pennant for this year, but the conservative ones are not so boastful. It is recognized that the reconstructed Brooklyns have a good chance to land on top, but there "are others" in the National League.

For Government Buildings.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—A large number of favorable reports on public buildings throughout the country were made yesterday by the House committee on public buildings and grounds. They will be taken up to-day, two days having been assigned.

The bills include: Indianapolis $1,200,000; Bluefield, W. Va., $50,000, Brunswick Ga., $50,000; Cleveland, O., $2,200,000; Wilkesbarre, Penn., $100,000; Annapolis, Md., $100,000; Bridgeport, Conn., (amends act so as to abolish provision for alley;) Springfield, Mass., extension, $20,000; New York custom house for site, $750,000; for building, $1,000,000; limit of cost at $3,000,000, Brooklyn, N. Y., $30,000; Baltimore, for site, $100,000; New Brunswick, N. J., $100,000; Norwich, Conn., $100,000; Jamestown, N. Y., $50,000; Rome, N. Y., $50,000; Providence, R. I., $1,500,000.

Filipino Junta in Flight.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Sixto Lopez and the other members of the Filipino junta in Washington have followed the example of their chief, Agoncillo, in hurriedly leaving town. They went away presumably to join Agoncillo in Canada.

Dreyfus Going to France.

Paris, Feb. 7.—A dispatch to the Patrie from Cayenne, capital of French Guiana, says that orders have been received there for the return of Dreyfus to France, with the statement that a vessel has been sent to bring him.

MID-WINTER WEDDING A FASHIONABLE EVENT.

Celebration of the Blake-Abbott Nuptials Last Night.

WAS A CHURCH CEREMONY.

THE MARRIAGE NOTED FOR ITS SIMPLICITY AND BEAUTY.

Ceremony Solemnized by Dr. Richards at 7:30 o'Clock in the Crescent Avenue Church—Bridal Party Beautifully Attired—After the Ceremony a Reception Held—Groom a New York Broker.

For simplicity and natural beauty the wedding of Miss Florence Alice Abbott, daughter of School Commissioner and Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, of 966 Central avenue, and James Robert Blake, also of this city, which was witnessed at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last evening, was perhaps the most striking of the season. The society folks of this and many other cities were present in large numbers to grace the event.

The wedding was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock. Previous to the appointed hour and while the guests were being seated, Frank J. Smith, organist of the church, rendered a musical programme of selections from Gabriel-Marie, Batiste, Wioder, German, Wely and Jensen. When it was announced that the bridal party had arrived, the sweet and familiar notes of the Loehengrin wedding march were heard.

First of all appeared the ushers, all of whom, with the exception of C. Westley Abbott, brother of the bride, were classmates at Princeton University of the groom in the class of '94. They were J. McThompson, of Albany; Walter Gibson, Walter Pearson, of Orange; McCready Sykes, William Meredith, of New York, and C. Westley Abbott, of Plainfield.

Following the ushers were the bridemaids, Miss May Waring, Miss Katherine Reinhart, Miss Caroline Vail, Miss Gertrude Andrews, of Plainfield; Miss Elizabeth Breslin, of New York; Miss Edith Blake, of Newark. They all were gowned in green net over green taffeta silk and carried pearl roses. They wore silver butterflies with white aigrettes as a coiffure.

The next member of the party was the matron of honor, Mrs. M. E. Tremaine, of Buffalo, who was gowned in white net over white taffeta silk. She also wore a silver butterfly with white aigrette as a coiffure and carried pink roses.

After the matron of honor came the bride escorted by her father. Her gown was a beautiful white satin, trimmed with point lace. She wore a veil of tulle caught up with orange blossoms. She is a brunette of striking beauty.

When the party reached the altar, which was luxuriantly decorated with palms, greens and smilax, arranged in a huge bank, they were met by the groom and best man, Judson S. Todd, of New York, who entered the church from a side door at the left of the altar. The entire party formed in a semi circle facing the officiating clergyman, Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, who performed the ceremony according to the service of the Presbyterian church. During the ceremony favorite selections were rendered by Mr. Smith on the organ.

After the couple were united in matrimony, they reversed, faced the throng of guests and left the edifice by the aisle on the left of the church, followed by the members of the party. As they preceded down the aisle that favorite wedding march from Mendelissohn was executed with rare skill. The guests received from the bride and groom smiles of recognition, and in return two of Plainfield's prominent young society folks were silently wished a happy and prosperous journey through life.

At 8 o'clock a wedding reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Blake at the home of the bride's parents, on Central avenue, where a very large and fashionable crowd gathered to extend their best wishes to the bride and groom.

The beautiful home was resplendent in the decorator's art. Smilax, greens and roses were used chiefliy and the many colored lights throughout the various rooms gave additional brilliancy.

During the evening a delightful supper was served by a well-known caterer. While the reception was in progress music was rendered by an orchestra from the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, of New York.

After congratulations were offered Mr. and Mrs. Blake left their relatives and friends to enjoy a honeymoon of one month. They have not as yet de

THE FIRE LADDIES FAIR.

CROWD OF WARREN ENGINE COMPANY'S FRIENDS ON HAND.

Rivalry in the Voting Guests and a Good Business at the Booths—Entertainers in Abundance Were Also There.

Despite the severe storm last evening Saengerbund Hall, where the fair of Warren Engine Company is being held, was packed with friends of the company, and everyone had a good time. The stands and booths did a good business, while there was great rivalry in the voting contests for the most popular secret society and for the most popular chief in this section.

During the forepart of the evening a fine programme was presented. There were several songs by the singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein, and a trio, violin, cornet and piano, by Miss Emma Nelson, Mrs. J. D. Anderson and Miss Irene Day. A feature was the slackwire performance given by Prof. Burke, and Andrew Carpenter entertained all with selections on the violin imitating a thunder storm. There was also a piano duet by Miss Emma Nelson and Miss Irene Day, and a song by Mrs. J. H. Manley. A pleasing number was another instsumental trio by Miss Becker, Miss Emma Nelson and Mrs. Anderson.

All of the numbers were given in a perfect manner and the artists were heartily applauded. Another number on the programme was popular songs by Harry Roberts. The selections caught the audience in good style, as did also the appearance of "Jack" Carney, who gave his latest, "The German Trolley." After the rendition of the programme, music for dancing was furnished by N. H. Guttman's orchestra, which also played during Prof. Burke's performance.

During the evening there was a fancy cakewalk exhibition by Miss Mamie DeNise and Harry Milligan. This evening there will be a prize cakewalk. Tomorrow evening firemen from nearby places will attend, and Friday evening the Mayor and Council of both city and borough will attend. Other attractions will also be offered.

LOCOMOTIVE DERAILED ON THE TURN-TABLE.

DELAYED SOMERVILLE LOCAL TRAINS.

Slippery Rails Caused the Accident—Relief Engines Sent From Dunellen and Roselle.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, Feb 8—Travel was interfered with on the Central Railroad this morning by an accident on the turntable in front of the engine house at this place. A drill engine was backing on the turn-table, and the slippery rails made the wheels slip more than usual. The brakes refused to work properly and the next thing the engineer knew the locomotive had left the table and was lying so as to prevent the table being turned.

The local trains running from this place were therefore delayed, as no engines could get out of the roundhouse while the drill engine was in the way. Engines were sent to Somerville from Dunellen, Roselle and Jersey City to bring out the trains, and meanwhile the wrecker was sent to get the drill engine out of the ditch.

Bullet in His Hand.

Wesley Messersmith, of Westervelt avenue, accidentally discharged a small revolver yesterday while handling it, the bullet lodging in the palm of his hand. Messersmith went to a physician and had the bullet cut out.

Partnership to End.

The partnership existing between William H. Hartley and Harry W. Fraleigh, real estate and insurance brokers, will be dissolved March 1st, by mutual consent. Mr. Fraleigh will open up an office elsewhere.

Voters of North Plainfield are asked to fill out the above blank and forward their vote to Consolidation Headquarters, 107 East Front street. An X on either of the three last propositions is requested from voters who desire to be recorded in favor of consolidation. It is probable that the scheme receiving a majority will be adopted by the committee having the matter in charge and the same submitted to the voters for approval at the borough election to be held March 14.

WHAT THE Y. M. C. A. GYMNASTS WILL DO.

Details of Gymnastic Coniest for Novices.

MANY ENTRIES EXPECTED.

WILL BE HELD IN THE GYMNASIUM SATURDAY NIGHT.

There Will be Three Moves or Trials on Four Selected Pieces of Apparatus, the High and the Low Bars, Parallel Bars and German Horse—How the Points Will be Scored, Ten for Each Move—The Judges

Considerable interest is being manifested among the members of the Y. M. C. A. over the gymnastic contest for novices which will be held in the gymnasium Saturday evening. From present prospects there will be nearly a score of competitors for honors in the contest. The details of the events are not well understood except by a few.

The contest will consist of twelve moves or trials on the four principal pieces of apparatus in the gymnasium, the high and the low bar, the parallel bars and the German horse. As the contest is one for novices, Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood has arranged it so as to be as simple and yet as thorough as possible. The four well-known pieces of apparatus have been chosen. Then Mr. Heywood has selected five moves on each and a list of them has been posted in the gymnasium so that all the members can familiarize themselves with them. From these five moves for each piece of apparatus, three will be chosen by lot the night of the contest. In all there will be twelve moves.

Unless the number of contestants is so large that it will be necessary to have their trials in two sections, all the competitors will, in succession, try the same move. They will alternate in leading so that, if possible, each contestant will lead on a different move.

According to the method of scoring to be used, the maximum score to be made on each move is 10, or a possible total of 120 for all twelve moves. In past contests, however, 35 points has been considered a good score for a novice. The 10 points for each move are divided as follows: 2 for approach, 2 for execution of exercise, 2 for retreat and 4 for general form. Robert A. Meeker and C. E. A. Heywood will be the judges.

The contest will be held in the gymnasium Saturday night beginning at 8 o'clock. The visitors' gallery will be open for the members and friends who are interested in the gymnastic work of the association.

Endeavor Anniversary.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Bethal chapel will celebrate its second anniversary next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Several persons will address the meeting, among whom will be W. D. Williams, the first president of Christian Endeavor work in the State of New Jersey. At the close of the exercises there will be a sociable. Every one is invited.

Clean off Your Sidewalks.

Street Commissioner Gavett this morning gave Chief Grant orders to arrest the property owners today who do not clean the snow from off their sidewalks. No arrests will be made, however, until four hours after it stops storming.

The New Meat Market.

Today Jed. M. Smalley and Ben. Crane opened a new meat market at 153 West Front street. These most excellent butchers will maintain their reputation for keeping only the best of meat and at prices that are reasonable. Their market will in every way be strictly up-to-date.

ELECTION OFFICERS' PAY

ASSEMBLYMAN MURRAY'S BILL GOES TO THE GOVERNOR.

The Pay Will be the Same in Small as Large Cities—License Bill Wanted by Thompson Passed by the Senate.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, Feb. 8—The first bill introduced in the House by Assemblyman Murray, of Union county, was passed by the Senate yesterday afternoon, and awaits the Governor's signature. It provides that in cities whose population is under 40,000, election officers shall receive $5 a day for the time spent in registering the names of voters, and $10 for election day. This is the same pay as for officers in larger cities.

The committee on banking and insurance gave a hearing yesterday afternoon on the Bell and Guenther bills, which provide for State supervision of building and loan associations. Secretary Forman, of the State League of Building and Loan Associations, and representatives of several of the smaller associations, appeared. The principal objection raised to the bills was against the provision that made the investigation compulsory and levied the expense on the association investigated. The associations want the State to pay the cost.

Secretary Forman said that a meeting of representatives of the building and loan associations would be held in Trenton, Feb. 17th, for the purpose of drafting a bill that would be satisfactory to them, and requested that action on the Bell and Guenther measures be postponed until after that date. Chairman Murray, of the committee, said that the request would be granted.

At the afternoon session of the Senate bill No. 21, which provides that the issuing of a license to sell intoxicating liquors to corporations and companies operating parks and picnic grounds shall permit them to run more than one bar, provided that $100 is paid for each bar a year, came up on final passage. Senator Martin, the introducer of the measure, referred to the larger number of remonstrances against the bill. He said that the remonstrances had been signed to a great extent while the signers were laboring under a misapprehension of the provisions of the bill.

The bill was finally passed by a vote of 11 to 9. Those voting in the negative were Senators Cross, Evans, Hutchinson, W. M. Johnson, Keacham, Pitney, Smith, Stanger and Stokes. Senator Miller, of Salem county, did not vote.

Next Monday being Lincoln's birthday and a holiday, the Senate adjourned till next Tuesday morning.

WHERE IS ROSE SEGAL?

She Flitted Out of the Chancellor's Court, but Not to Her Parents.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 8—If Miss Rose Segal can be located, it is said on good authority that she will be arrested and brought before Chancellor McGill to show cause why she should not be sentenced for contempt of court in disobeying the Chancellor's ruling, pending the trial of the habeas corpus proceedings.

At the first hearing Chancellor McGill gave a verbal order that Miss Segal should be remanded to the custody of her father, with reasonable liberty, pending a final hearing on the question of her age. This hearing is set down for the 14th of this month. The Court had no more than finished his ruling when Rose skipped out of the courtroom, and her father has never seen her since, nor does he know her whereabouts.

Card Party and Dance.

Miss Mable Smith, of South avenue, assisted by her sister, Miss Florence, gave a card party and dance to several of her friends last evening. The first prize was won by James Roome. The booby by Horace Martin. During the evening several selections were rendered by Mr. Martin, accompanied by Miss Jennie Thom. Refreshments were served in abundance. Among those present were Miss Jennie Thom, Miss Stella Boss, Miss Fannie Mills, Miss Mable Smith, Miss Florence Smith, Horace Martin, Edward Ross, Harry Page, James Roome and Bert Simpson.

Chancery Clerk Thompson Goes South

Clerk in Chancery Lewis A. Thompson left Somerville this morning for the South. He expects to spend several weeks visiting his daughter, Mrs. Charles Roberts, of Basking Ridge, who is spending the winter in Florida.

DUNELLEN WILL CLAIM BIG SUM FOR DAMAGES.

Borough Council Authorizes an Action to be Instituted.

ALL ABOUT SEWAGE BEDS.

DUNELLEN PEOPLE BACK UP ACTION OF THEIR OFFICIALS.

Resolution Introduced by Councilman Gaskill Authorizing the Commencement of the Suit—The Amount to be Demanded as Damages is Not Yet Decided—Money to Pay the Legal Expenses.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Dunellen, Feb. 8.—The threats of Dunellen residents that they would make trouble for the city of Plainfield if the latter continued to keep and use their present system of sewage beds, has now taken a definite form, and a suit for heavy damages against Plainfield as well as an attempt to secure an injunction against the further use of the beds will be started at once.

The suit this time is not to be begun by any individual or class of individuals, but by the borough as a whole. At the meeting of the Common Council Monday evening a resolution was offered and adopted authorizing the borough to start proceedings against the city of Plainfield. Just what the damages to be demanded will be is not yet determinated, but it will be a large sum. Some say $100,000, and others place it higher.

The resolution was introduced at the meeting by Councilman Harry Gaskill. When the resolution was read it was seconded simultaneously by every Councilman present, and carried with a rush. Everybody seemed to be in favor of it, and so expressed themselves. A committee composed of the Mayor, Councilmen Gaskill, Gaston and Wyhkoop was appointed to secure counsel and start the suit at once. A meeting will be held February 21st, at which the committee will report.

It is said that the borough treasury contains $1,900 with which the suit can be commenced, and what further sum is needed, they say, can easily be raised either by individual subscriptions or by taxation. It is said that there are not ten people in the borough who oppose this action of the Council, and that $5,000 can be raised for the purpose as well as $500. H. B. Willis, of New Brunswick, is the borough counsel.

A CHANCE TO WIN A PLACE.

Excellent Opportunities for Those Who are in the Subscription Contest.

The young man or young woman who wins The Daily Press subscription contest will demonstrate to the world his or her ability and enterprise. It is the young people who thus win for themselves a place that the business men of this country are on the lookout for. Besides gaining a complete business education, the winner will have won a recommendation that will carry great weight with it. The Plainfield Business College, a free scholarship in which is offered as first prize in the contest, is well adapted to prepare any young man or woman of ordinary ability to cope with the world and win a livelihood.

Of course, there isn't any drop in the interest in the contest. The various contestants are working harder than ever. Several new ones started only last week and have made an excellent showing. It will take untiring efforts to put them up with the leaders though. Every day sees a fresh batch of new subscribers turned into the subscription department. Manager Stout says that he never knew there were so many families in Plainfield.

It isn't hard work to get new subscribers for The Press. The only trouble is that so many take The Press already. It was prophesied that the contest would cut down the street sales of The Press but it hasn't. On the contrary, they have grown noticeably since the contest was started.

A Lunch Box Sociable.

A very successful entertainment and lunch-box sociable was held at the Christian church last evening and despite the storm there was an excellent attendance of members and friends of the church. A musical programme was rendered by Arthur Smith and Rev. H. W. McKane, pastor of the church. Miss Jennie Smith presided at the organ in an efficient manner. A dialogue entitled "The Way to Keep a Secret," was given by several people. Mrs. Andrew Cox took the leading part and every part was well taken. After the programme the lunch-boxes were sold by William C. Smith, Sr., and every box brought a good round price.

WANT RIGHT OF APPEAL.

PROPERTY OWNERS APPEAL TO LEGISLATURE.

They Ask for Jury Awards of the Value of Lands to be Used in Making the Widened Boulevard in Union County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 8—A committee of residents of Union county called on their representatives in the Legislature, Monday night, Senator Cross and Assemblymen Squire, Murray and Houston, and submitted to them a petition asking them to introduce and procure the passage of an act giving the right of appeal from the awards made by the commissioners appointed to condemn lands to be used in widening Westfield avenue in Union county.

The petition states that under the present system they have no remedy against unjust awards made by the commissioners, and ask to have the Hudson county boulevard statutes re enacted, allowing an appeal and trial of the award to be held before a jury.

The signers of the petition ask to have the statute used for Hudson county again put on the books. This statute allows any aggrieved property owners whose land has been condemned thirty days in which to file an appeal to the Circuit Court. There a struck jury may be ordered. If they award a greater amount than the commissioners the Board of Freeholders must pay the costs; if less than the property owner pay them. However, an appeal will not prevent the continuance of the work on the road if it is begun, for it is provided that the Freeholders may enter and use it if they have paid or tendered the amount awarded by the commissioners.

Where an award may have been made before the passage of the act, it is enacted that thirty days thereafter shall be allowed in which an appeal may be taken.

THE CHURCH WOULD NOT COUNTENANCE THE SHOW

REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE PROFITS.

There Was Buck Dancing and a Comic Prize Fight on the Programme Arranged for Entertainment.

The Afro-American Vaudeville and Comedy Company gave an entertainment in Washington Hall last night. The profits of which were to have been for the benefit of the Calvary Baptist church. The tickets for the show were sold with that understanding, and Rev. Mr. Wallace's name was put on the programme as pastor of the church.

The entermainment was advertised as a "strictly moral entertainment," and there was no change in the plans until just previous to the time for giving the entertainment when the church people discovered that there was to be a comic prize fight and buck dancing. Then they at once renounced all interest in the entertainment, and refused to take the proceeds.

It was too late then to postpone the entertainment, so it was given as advertised. Owing to the storm there was a small audience present. The artists were all from out of town, but among the members of the executive staff are S. P. Jackson and J. Stepp, of this city.

FROM COCK FIGHT TO JAIL.

Newark Man Started on Wild Career by Bad Luck at Scotch Plains.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 8—A well-dressed man, who described himself as George King, of Newark, was arraigned before Police Justice Hetfield yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. He had caused considerable excitement about the Central Railroad station by flourishing a revolver and firing it at an east-bound passenger train.

In explanation of his conduct, King said he had been to a cock fight near Plainfield and lost most of his money.

Judge Hetfield sent him to jail for days, and refused to let King off with a fine.

Still in Brooklyn.

Rev. W. B. G. Costor, the colored preacher who left town last fall carrying with him money belonging to St. Peter's congregation and other people, has continued to stay in Brooklyn, where he was heard from two weeks ago. The benevolent societies there, advised by Plainfield people who were duped by Costor, have refused to aid either him or his wife, but still they stay, persisting that the story of their wrong doings here is not true.

CITY ILLUMINATED BY BLAZING FACTORY.

Hartfelder's Establishment Was Burned to the Ground.

AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

FLAMES GAINED GREAT HEADWAY BEFORE DISCOVERED.

No Explanation for Origin of the Fire—W. O. Baldwin's Stable Caught—Fire Department Saved It—Hartfelder Badly Burned—Horse Burned to Death—The Loss is Nearly $4,000.

All Plainfield was illuminated at 5 o'clock this morning by a conflagration that completely destroyed George Hartfelder's stair factory on West Third street and partially burned the stables of Wm. O. Baldwin, the hay carter, of West Fourth street. Hartfelder's bay horse was cremated, while the owner was badly burned about the face, neck and hands in his efforts to save the animal. The total losses will reach nearly $4,000.

George Hartfelder lives at 735 West Third street. His stair factory occupied a two story frame building in the rear of the house. It is located right behind the new West End engine house. The factory was largely open beneath. Upstairs, there was stored 2,000 feet of pine lumber drying. There was considerable uncompleted work stored there. The machinery, consisting of saws, planers and lathes, were located on the second floor. In the rear of the factory, there was a stable where Mr. Hartfelder kept his horse.

The first the Hartfelders knew of the conflagration was when their bell was loudly rung and someone shouted "fire." Letter Carrier Patrick J. Reville lives opposite and saw the fire. He alarmed the Hartfelder household and then sent in an alarm from box 45, corner of South Second street and Muhlenberg place. The alarm was sent in at 5:10 o'clock. The flames had already been seen by the watchman at the car house of the Plainfield street railway on West Fourth street. He telephoned to fire department headquarters and part of the appartus was on the way to the fire when the alarm came in.

Half dressed Hartfelder rushed out to rescue his horse. The interior of the factory was then a mass of flames. He flung open the door of the stable and the fierce heat drove him back, badly burning his face, neck and hands. The horse was burned to death.

The large stables of William O. Baldwin, of 73 West Fourth street, were nearly in the rear of the burning building. The smaller stable caught fire. There were six horses inside that were led to a place of safety by Baldwin and his men. The snow-scraper of the Street Railway Company was working on Grant avenue when the fire was discovered. The man in charge drove into Baldwin's yard and dragged away two wagons, heavily loaded with hay, before they were ignited. He hitched them behind the scraper.

The fire illuminated the whole city and was seen for miles away. There was a sharp sleet falling at the time that greatly hindered the efforts to save the adjoining property. The factory itself was doomed before the alarm was sent in. The fire apparatus made a fast run considering the heavy pulling. The attention of the firemen was immediately turned toward the Baldwin stable which was finally extinguished. The recall was sounded at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Hartfelder has been unable, as yet, to figure out his exact loss. It will amount to $3,500. The loss is only partially covered by insurance, the amount of which Mr. Hartfelder does not know. The loss to the Baldwin stable, which is owned by J. W. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, will amount to $100, which is covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. Mr. Hartfelder says no light or fire was left in the building during the night. It is not believed that the fire was the work of incendiaries, but that a fire caught during the day in the shavings while the men were at work, and smouldered all night to burst out early this morning.

Talked on Junior Work.

The members of the Primary Teachers' Union met Monday afternoon as usual and there was a good attendance. Miss Lunger led the devotional exercises, and Mrs. Powlison taught the lesson. Rev. Mr. Bennett, State Superintendent of Junior Work, was present and led the discussion on the topic of "Junior Work?" which proved to be very interesting. Next Monday afternoon William D. Murray will teach the lesson.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be easily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co, Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

GEN. EAGAN SUSPENDED

The President Commutes the Sentence of Dismissal.

PHILLIPINES IN CONGRESS

House Must Appropriate $30,000,000 to Pay to Spain and an Army Bill of Some Sort Must be Passed—Otis Will See that American Interests Are Protected in the Islands.

General Miles lies in his throat. He lies in his heart. He lies in every hair of his head. He lies in every pore of his body. He lies wilfully, deliberately, intentionally and maliciously.—General Charles P. Eagan, commisary general, U. S. A., in his testimony before the war inquiry board.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—The president yesterday promulgated the sentence of General Eagan, dismissed from the army. He has commuted this to six years' suspension.

The effect of the president's order will be to give him $5,500 a year for six years, ending January 16, 1905. After that date he will go on the retired list on three-quarters pay. During the term of suspension he will not be entitled to the usual commutation for quarters amounting to about $100 per month.

The following is the order of the president:

"The accused, after a trial by a court martial composed of officers of high rank and distinguished services, has been found guilty of conduct unworthy an officer holding a commission of the United States, and obnoxious in the highest degree to the discipline and good order of the military establishment.

"Such behavior is especially deserving of condemnation in an officer holding high rank in the army and charged with the performance of difficult and important administrative duties in a time of great public emergency, and from whom, when subjected to adverse criticism, an unusual degree of restraint and constant and unfailing self control are confidently expected.

"The proceedings, findings and sentence in the case of Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence in the United States army, are therefore approved.

"In view, however, of his gallant conduct in battle upon more than one occasion, which merited and has received the warm commendation of his superiors, and of his long and honorable record of service, extending over a period surpassing in duration that usually allotted to a generation; having regard also to the mitigating circumstances which were developed during the trial of the case, and in deference to the recommendation of clemency submitted in his behalf, the sentence imposed by the court is commuted to suspension from rank and duty for six years.

(Signed) WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Won't Qualify Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 8—The question of the policy to be observed in relation to the Philippine Islands again presented itself in the Senate when the joint resolution introduced by Mr. McEnery (Dem. La.) was taken up. It declares the intention of the United States to be, not the permanent annexation of the islands, but the establishment of a government suitable to the wants and conditions of the inhabitants and their preparation for local self-government.

In view of the existing conditions at Manila the leaders of the Senate have agreed that it will be inexpedient at this time to pass the McEnrey resolution. This view meets with the concurrence of the author of the resolution, and it will be laid aside, at least for the time being. It is thought that the adoption of any such declaration would furnish encouragement to the Filipinos to continue the struggle begun on Saturday, and no attempt will therfore be made to force action upon the resolution until peace is brought about in the islands.

The Senate will instead take up the annual appropriation bills, the work on which has been suspended by the consideration of the peace treaty, and endeavor to dispose of those several measures awaiting action as rapidly as possible.

Another Battle Expected.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—After considering the situation at Manila carefully in the light of General Otis's latest dispatch, the military authorities believe that another big battle between the American forces and the Filipinos will soon occur, if not already in progress.

The statement in the telegram received from General Otis that the insurgents were concentrated about Manila indicated to the minds of the officers that Aguinaldo had merely fallen back to a safe position corresponding in appearance to the insurgent line that existed when the battle of Saturday and Sunday began. The Filipinos are, of course, some distance in the rear of the first position.

Congress will immediately take up the task of outlining our exact status in the Philippines and dealing with the immediate situation there and providing for the future. The Senate will proceed to dispose of the McEnery resolution, which was promised in return for the senator's vote for the treaty, and the House of Representatives will carry out the final part of the agreement with Spain by appropriating $20,000,000 to be available and paid to her when the treaty ratifications have been exchanged, which, of course, cannot be until the Spanish Cortes has taken action.

A question still exists in the minds of the president and his advisers as to the status of the United States in the Philippines and as to whether or not the Filipino troops owed allegiance to Spain at the moment when they rashly attacked the United States forces and killed and wounded so many of them. But that is a point that it is not necessary to decide immediately.

The first thing necessary will be to settle with the Filipinos now, for whatever may have been their rightful allegiance on Saturday they are no longer subjects of Spain. The United States are in control in the Philippines, a fact of which the Filipinos have already received official notice. Whether or not as a point of international law the United States can exercise sovereignty beyond the limits of the city of Manila prior to final ratification of the treaty, by Spain, may not be entirely clear. But to the Washington authorities it is sufficient for their purposes to know that the Filipinos, while still subjects of Spain, broke the terms of the protocol and fired upon the United States soldiers.

This act in itself will release the United States from all obligations, and General Otis will undoubtedly be authorized promptly if he has not already been authorized, to take any means which he thinks best to protect American interests and put down insurrection either within or outside the confines of the city of Manila.

As the treaty has been ratified, no extra session of Congress will be held. Twenty-five days remain of the present session, and already both houses are settling down in earnest to the work that must of necessity be done. The only administrative legislation left is the army bill, and the twenty million dollar appropriation. The latter is certain to pass, but the former is in doubt.

The Hull bill, which has already passed the House, cannot pass, but some makeshift bill giving the president such soldiers and army supplies as are absolutely necessary to maintain our authority abroad and at home will be at once prepared and enacted into a law. The Democrats had arranged to defeat any and all provisions for an increased military establishment, but in view of the ratification of the treaty this programme must be amended. Troops must be kept in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and Congress must provide for them.

FREE CUBA'S SLAVES.

Condition of Domestics Grows Most Deplorable.

Havana, Feb. 8.—The attention of the military authorities has been called to what is said to be an unjust persecution of Cuban servants by their Spanish employers. A number of instances have been cited tending to show that domestics have been grossly mistreated for the slightest violation of duty. One negro, fifty-five years of age, was driven out into the street at midnight, and had to be cared for by Americans. An investigation which has been set on foot under the direction of secret service men of Washington, an army of whom are here, shows that there is a tacit understanding on the part of the Spaniards to hound and harrass the Cuban poor; that many are ill fed and sheltered where an American would not put his dog, and that the Cuban, so far as household work is concerned, is further away from being free than before the war. In addition to all this it has been ascertained that those influential Spaniards who remain on the island through financial and commercial necessity, and not choice, are discharging their Cuban employes without consideration as to their former service, and that those who are being retained have been obliged to suffer a reduction in salary of fully fifty per cent. The average servant, irrespective of sex is thought to be worth seven dollars per month, at least that is the amount that is paid the Spanish servant, but the Cuban forces will in future get no more than $4 monthly.

No Change in Quay Situation.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 8.—Predictions as to probable changes yesterday in the lines of the fighters in the senatorial struggle were not confirmed. It is understood that the anti-Quay leaders have decided to defer their plans of taking votes from Senator Quay until later. A break may occur this week if the move shall hereafter be considered wise.

The train from the West with many senators and members on board was two hours late and the leaders on both sides were somewhat anxious, but the missing legislators arrived before the joint ballot. Congressman-elect J. C. Sibley, the wealthy silverite from the northwestern section of the state, said yesterday morning that John Wanamaker held the key to the situation and that should he fail to assist the Democrats in electing Jenks he would be responsible for the election of either Quay or Magee. His time limit of ten days would bring the dead lock to the opening of the Quay trial in Philadelphia.

To Fight Lower Interest Bill.

New York Feb. 8.—The Merchants' Association of this city is putting up a stiff fight to defeat the proposed bill to reduce the rate of interest in New York state from six to five per cent. It has sent out to thirty-two thousand business men throughout the state a circular headed: "Do you favor a law which will cut off commercial loans stop your cash discounts and compel you to pay time prices for merchandise?"

Astor Libel Suit Dropped.

London, Feb. 8.—The action brought by William Waldorf Astor against the Daily Mail for libel in having published a story of a dinner alleged to have been given by Mr. Astor on a table composed of a single section of a California redwood tree has been settled without trial. The defendant's counsel made on behalf of his client, in open court, an unqualified retraction and expression of regret and the matter was dropped.

Bishop Williams Dead.

Middletown, Conn., Feb. 8.—Bishop John Williams of Connecticut, and senior bishop of the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church, died unexpectedly at his home at six o'clock last night. He was eighty-two years of age.

Quay's Trial Postponed.

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—The trial of United States Senator Quay, Benjamin J. Haywood and R. R. Quay on the charge of conspiracy has been postponed until Feb. 27.

GENERAL OTIS MOVES

Our Lines Now Extend Six Miles Beyond Former Limits.

THE WATERWORKS TAKEN

Filipinos Murder a Captive American Surgeon—Native Loss is Growing—2,000 Killed 4,000 Captured and Several Thousand Wounded.

Manila, Feb. 8.—The Americans are taking every advantage of the splendid advance which they made on Sunday and Monday. Our lines now extend from two to six miles beyond the old limits all around and the American position is secure at every point. The water works, five miles north of the city, were captured late Monday afternoon by the First Nebraska regiment and two companies of the First Colorado and a battalion of the First Tennessee infantry. The First Nebraska, which was in the advance, found the place deserted but the natives had disabled the machinery of the works before leaving. Parts of the machinery had been disconnected and carried away, rendering the remaining parts useless. A careful search was made for the missing pieces with the result of their being found some distance away. The work of restoring them to their places will occupy only a short time.

The body of Surgeon Harry Young of the Utah Artillery division, who had been taken prisoner by the Filipinos, was found by our men. He had been murdered by his captors.

The Filipinos seem utterly demoralized. Wherever our troops advance the insurgents retreat after making a slight show of resistance. The drubbing which the Americans have given them has taken all the fight out of them, and they prefer to keep out of range of our guns.

The losses of the Filipinos are now estimated at two thousand killed and several thousand wounded. Besides, we hold four thousand prisoners. A scattering fire continues intermittently, but there is no fighting approaching the dignity of a battle.

After two days' fighting the American troops are taking a much needed rest. With the exception of the desultory firing consequent upon the movements of reconnoitreing parties, there are no hostile demonstrations on either side. In spite of this condition of affairs the insurgents are steadily losing ground, as every one of their movements is in the nature of a retreat.

The villages outside the city are in ruins, all of the houses having been burned by our troops to dislodge the natives who concealed themselves therein and fired at the American's flank and rear. Many of the natives were killed by the Americans, as they fled from the burning houses, and still more were wounded.

Perfect order prevails in the city proper, and matters are fast regaining their normal condition. The women who took refuge on board the transports in the bay when the fighting began on Saturday evening have all returned to their homes.

Many instances of personal heroism on the part of American staff officers on the firing line are related, and the splendid organization of the various departments is praised by everybody. The efficiency of these departments, it is admitted on all sides, contributed greatly to the thoroughness of the success of the American arms. By order of the chief quartermaster, the subordinate quartermasters seized every available vehicle in the city for purposes of transportation and the commissary department promptly furnished rations in abundance to the troops at the front, sparing no effort or expense.

The ordnance officers, too, displayed the greatest activity in forwarding ammunition to the front, and a magnificent record was made by the medical department, all of the wounded being cared for with the utmost dispatch.

The maps of the surrounding country, which had been made by the engineers, proved invaluable. During the advance of the troops the Signal Corps constructed telegraph lines as rapidly as the troops were sent forward, complete communication being kept up between all the brigades, divisions and detached troops and the general headquarters.

Aguinaldo has issued a proclamation suspending the Filipino constitution, terminating the session of the Malalos congress and declaring that the hostilities were begun by the Americans. He took no part in the fighting.

Aguinaldo's proclamation of Saturday says:

"I order and command:

"First—That peace and friendly relations with the Americans be broken, and that the latter be treated as enemies within the limits prescribed by the laws of war.

"Second—That the Americans captured be held as prisoners of war.

"Third—That this proclamation be communicated to the consuls and that congress order and accord a suspension of the constitutional guarantee, resulting from the declaration of war."

Aguinaldo's second proclamation says the outbreak of hostilities was "unjustly and unexpectedly provoked by the Americans;" refers to his manifesto of January 8 publishing the alleged grievances of the Filipinos at the hands of the army of occupation and the "constant outrages and taunts which have been causing misery" to the Manilians," and refers to the "useless conferences" and "contempt shown for the Filipino government," as proving a "premeditated transgression of justice and liberty."

The rebel leader also refers to the former losses of the Filipinos, but says "slavery is bitter," and calls upon them to "sacrifice all upon the altar of honor and national integrity." He insists that he tried to avoid, as far as possible, an armed conflict, but claims that all his efforts "were useless before the unmeasured pride of the American representatives," whom he charges with having treated him as a rebel "because I defended the interests of my country and would not become the instrument of their dastardly intentions."

"Just see, father, how this stocking is ruined, and I've only worn it once. I thought it was because Jane had rubbed it too hard, but mother says it's all the fault of the soap that Jane used. And she wants you to be sure and order a box of Ivory Soap to-day."

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Discards the Old Methods for Getting Children to Pose Properly.

A New York photographer has completed a system by which his pictures of babies have become famous. He has discarded all the familiar expedients of his profession to persuade very young children to submit to the camera, and his scheme has been completely successful. One part of his gallery has been fitted up like a nursery. Around the room at convenient points are situated cameras and these are in charge of his assistants. The photographer devotes his attention to the baby. He tries all the toys in turn, gets on as intimate terms as possible wth the baby after such short acquaintance and gradually lures the unsuspecting infant into looking his best. When pose and expression are satisfactory he gives a signal to one of his assistants at the cameras and the trick is done. Mothers bring their babies from all quarters to this tactful photographer. It would be a difficult matter to find any child who would not, after ten minutes' session with toys, exhibit some expression that his parents would be proud of. The artist catches that expression and as many other agreeable ones as possible. The final delight comes to the mother when she receives the proofs, not sent as proofs usually are, but mounted on a large piece of cardboard which makes it possible for her to compare them simultaneously. This wise man has left nothing undone which could strengthen his hold on the babies and their photographs.

Are Children Spanked Enough?

These are the days when, if a school master strikes a child, he will as likely as not have to appear in a law court on a charge of assault and battery. The question should be considered as to whether the sparing of the rod is spoiling your children. In olden times men pinned their faith to Solomon's precept.

It is well to recall, when schoolmasters are being terrorized by the law when they inflict corporal punishments, the doings of one Johann Jakob Haberle, a German master. He kept a diary of the number of punishments he inflicted on his pupils.

Johann records that during fifty-one years he distributed 911,517 strokes with a stick, 240,100 birch-rod smites, 136,715 hand smacks, 10,986 blows with a ruler, 10,235 slaps on the face, 8,000 boxes on the ears, 115,800 on the head, and that he set some 13,000 tasks from the Bible, so that it was necessary to purchase a new copy, through wear and tear, every two years.

Seven hundred and seventy-seven times did Johann make his children kneel on dried peas, while 5,001 times he stood them in his corners with rulers over their heads. Here is food for parents to reflect upon before they summon schoolmasters for spanking their children.—New York Times.

Oldest House in America.

The oldest house in America is in St. Augustine. It was built in 1564 by the monks of the Order of St. Francis, and the whole of the solid structure is composed of coquina, a combination of sea shells and mortar, which is almost indestructible. When Francis Drake sacked and burned the town this was the only house left in the trail of destruction. It has been purchased by a well-known antiquarian, J. W. Henderson, who will make it his winter residence.

Why the Third Finger Is Used.

How many women who fondly love the golden symbol of their wedding vow know why they wear it on the third finger of the left hand? That particular digit was chosen because it was believed by the Egyptians to be directly connected by a slender nerve with the heart itself, and these ancient worshippers of Isis held this finger sacred to Apollo and the sun, and therefore gold was chosen the metal for the ring.

SAVED HIS LIFE BY A JEST.

Wanted Time to Read His Bible Before He Died.

Archee Armstrong was the well beloved jester of King James VI. of Scotland, afterward James I. of England, and this is the traditional story of their introduction:

One day a shepherd with the carcass of a sheep upon his shoulders was tracked to his cottage on the moorlands by the officers of justice. In the cottage they found a vacant-faced lad, rocking a cradle with more attention than a boy is accustomed to give that duty; this, however, did not arouse their suspicions. They searched the cottage thoroughly, but failed to discover the sheep. They were about to depart, when one of their number accidentally looked into the cradle, and—the stolen sheep lay there! The lad, who was supposed to be the thief, was brought before King James VI. of Scotland. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to die. He began to plead with the king. He was a poor, ignorant fellow, he said; he had heard of the Bible and would like to read it through before he died. Would the king respite him until he did so? The king readily gave his consent, whereupon the culprit immediately said, "Then hang me if I ever read a word o't, as lang as my een are open."

The witty reply captured the king. He pardoned the prisoner, and took him into his service as jester. In this capacity Archee was soon a prime favorite.—Amelia Wofford in St. Nicholas.

Crank's Not a Success.

No successful man is a crank. Look over the cranks of your acquaintance and you will be surprised to notice that not one of them does anything well. They are not prominent citizens; they are not prominent socially; they do nothing for the general good. A crank who is a lawyer is not a good lawyer; a crank is usually a crank because he is a failure. After demonstrating that he lacks ordinary common sense, a crank pretends that he knows everything and that other people do not know anything; that society has learned nothing from experience, and that the world should be turned upside down to accept some of his untried theories. If you can avoid being a crank you'd better do it. You can't succeed as a crank at anything.—Nebraska State Journal.

Where Bears are Sacred.

The greatest bear country in the Southwest is the Navajo Indian reservation, where the bears are never hunted and may live, multiply and grow old in peace. The Navajo believes that bruin is a sacred animal, and they will never kill or consent to have one killed—except under one circumstance. This is when a bear has killed a red man, and the identity of the culprit is as well established as that of the victim. Then, headed by their medicine men, half the tribe will gather at Bruin's doorway, humbly beg his pardon for what is about to happen, and pray to his shade not to look for vengeance. This done, one or two warriors will boldly penetrate the cave and kill the bear, which is then accorded a decent burial.—San Francisco Call.

Therefore Popular.

"They say ladies wear costumes now in which fishnetting is conspicuous," said Mr. Whistles.

"Yes," said Mrs. Whitles, "they're very durable."

"Quite catching, too, I should say," said Whistler.—Harper's Bazar.

It is related of Fanny Kemble that she carried the tragic air of the stage into everyday affairs. While in Boston she stopped at the Tremont House, and was accustomed to dine in her rooms at five o'clock. On one occasion the waiter brought her dinner ten minutes too soon, and she made him take it away until the hour had struck. On another occasion she gave the servant some clothes for the laundry.

When a girl is 19 years old she ought to be a stranger to sickness. At that time in life she should be light-hearted, happy and well, but modern civilization seems to be responsible for this generation of weak women. A girl of 19 living in Tuckahoe, N. J., found her health breaking down two years ago. She became pale, thin and had poor appetite. Her stomach seemed to give out entirely. Great pain followed eating. She was also troubled with sore throat and catarrh. Seeing an advertisement of Ripans Tabules in the Philadelphia Record, she sent for some to the drug store and took them six months. "I am not entirely cured," she writes, "but I feel greatly benefited by their use."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

THE L. A. W. CONVENTION.

Many Important Matters Will Come Before the Meeting at Providence.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 8.—Probably no annual convention of the League of American Wheelmen was ever looked forward to with more interest than the meeting which began here to-day. Many questions will come up for discussion, and for once in the history of the league politics promises to cut less of a figure than for many years, and it is beginning to look as if the several old fighting factions will go to the assembly all eager to work in harmony and for the best interests of the organization. There will be no opposition to T. J. Keenan Jr., for the presidency, and it looks as if Herbert Foultz of Indiana will have no opposition for the first vice presidency. Tattersall of New Jersey has the best chance to succeed himself as treasurer. Boston seems to have the national meet secured. The racing question will be the one that will cause the most trouble. While it is generally expected that the league will remain in control of the sport, the opponents promise to make a fight. These same men will, in addition, make an effort to prevent the admission of professionals to the membership. Albert Mott of Baltimore will not be a candidate for re-election as chairman of the racing board under any circumstances. This is Mr. Mott's own statement. The fact that C. W. Mears of Cleveland has worked hard to bring Keenan to the front would indicate that Mr. Mears has the best chance to secure the chairmanship of the racing board. Robinson's candidacy will not probably receive the outside support expected. It seems to be the general opinion that Massachusetts has already received all the concessions she is entitled to. If Mears is beaten it will be by a New York man, rather than one from New England.

THE DEADLY GAS STOVE.

Asphyxiated by Gas in Their Room at the Ardsley Casino.

Dobbs Ferry, Feb. 8.—Dr. Henry Elmo Keyes and his wife of New York were found dead in bed in a sleeping room of the Ardsley Casino at Ardley-on-Hudson Tuesday. They had been asphyxiated by gas which had escaped from a gas stove.

There was a dance at General Henry C. Griffin's in Ardsley the previous evening, and Dr. H. E. Keyes and his wife were present. When the dance was over they decided to spend the night at the club house, and retired shortly after midnight.

When a servant went to waken them in the morning there was no response, and repeated calls at the door were in vain. A slight smell of gas in the corridor near the room increased suspicion that something was wrong, and about ten o'clock the door of the sleeping room was forced open.

Dr. Keyes and his wife were lying lifeless on the bed and the room was filled with gas, which was escaping from a gas stove in the room.

THE GENTLEMEN OF YALE.

Students Break Up the Annual Dance of the Soldiers.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 8.—The annual ball of the New Haven City Guard came to an abrupt end at two o'clock yesterday morning in a riot. At least a thousand Yale students took possession of the hall and succeeded in running the place after they had taxed the utmost energy of the police and the city military company. All the evening the Yale boys engaged in small fights and persisted in climbing over the chairs into the space reserved for dancers. They were as often driven back by the police and members of the guard but at midnight the throng was too large to be managed and with a mighty Yale cheer they scrambled over the chairs on to the floor. The students rushed from one end of the armory to the other, knocking over everything that came in their way.

Men fell to the floor and were trampled on. The ushers stripped for action, taking off their coats, collars and cuffs, and had fight after fight with the Yale men. The ushers huddled together for their own protection. One big Yale man sank to the floor with a big gash in his head from a blow from a billy and was carried away by his fellows. The band played at intervals, but of course dancing had to be suspended.

The women sought refuge in the galleries and dressing rooms. An attempt was made to resume the dancing, but at the first bar of music another riot broke out and continued until the committee decided to quit and ordered the band to play "Home Sweet Home."

New York's Police Bill.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Governor Roosevelt said yesterday that the police bill, which will be introduced in the legislature in a few days, will be the greatest advance ever made in police legislation in New York city. He explained that the bill is the result of an agreement between all factions in the party, and added that in reaching this agreement concessions had been made on all sides. The governor gave up some of his ideas in order to hasten the framing of the measure from which he believes great good will result to New York city. He said that he is in hearty accord with the fundamental principles of the bill; that he will hold frequent conferences with senators and assemblymen in regard to it, and hopes to see it become a law at an early day.

A GREAT METAL TRUST

One Organization to Control All the Iron Steel and Tin.

ANDREW CARNEGIE IS IN IT.

Working With Moore Brothers of Chicago He Turns the Tables on the Federal Steel Company, Which Will Have to Come In.

New York, Feb. 8.—The Moore Brothers of Chicago, whose genius for organization resulted in the formation of the tin plate trust, are now engaged in effecting the most gigantic consolidation of financial interests ever attempted. This is a combination of all the iron, steel and tin companies in the country with a capital of four hundred million dollars.

When the Federal Steel Company was organized by Judge Gary of Chicago, backed by the resources of J. P. Morgan & Co. of this city, its two hundred million dollars of authorized capital caused a sensation. The company issued less than one hundred million of its authorized capital, however, and the story went around that Andrew Carnegie, the only considerable iron power not in the trust, would be invited to take the other one hundred million dollars of Federal steel stock in exchange for his enormous steel and iron works in Pennsylvania. Mr. Carnegie, however, was in no hurry to embrace the trust, and at first, it is said, he flirted with the Federal Steel people a little. Then finding that they were buying up some iron mines and negotiating for the entire product of others he himself entered the field of active competition for iron ore.

In this way, it is alleged, he found the Moores of Chicago very useful, as the tin plate trust had already made many contracts with owners of iron mines. Accordingly a practical alliance was formed between the tin plate people and Mr. Carnegie. The method of the organizers was first to make arrangements for the entire product of a mine for a period of two or three years. Then having thus removed the mine from the ranks of their enemies, they next proceeded to secure, if possible, a controlling interest in it by the purchase of securities. The result of this activity has been a great development of iron mining and few, if any, mines in this country, except in Birmingham, Ala., which are not under the control of either the Federal Steel trust or Carnegie and the tin plate trust.

Now Mr. Carnegie is prepared for the organization of a four hundred million dollar steel and iron company to turn the tables on the Federal Steel company. He permits them to come in or stay out, as they please, but whether they come in or stay out, Andrew Carnegie and the tin plate trust will be the formidable interests with which they will have to deal, either as friends or foes. In other words, instead of being absorbed by the Federal Steel Company, Mr. Carnegie proposes to do the absorbing himself.

FOR HARBOR DEFENCE.

Gov. Bloxham Will Preside Over the National Convention at Tampa.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 8.—The harbor defence and National Guard reform convention called by Governor Bloxham of Florida convenes here to-day. The object of the convention is to aid the government in placing the National Guard on the most effective possible footing. The Florida state superintendent of education has also extended invitations to superintendents of education in all the states, inviting them to this convention to consider the introduction of a military drill system for public schools of the United States in the interest of patriotism, subordination and physical development.

GOVERNOR BLOXHAM.

The call, which explains more in detail the prospective work of the gathering, is in part as follows: "Impressed with the necessity for a thorough reorganization of our state militia service as discussed by members of the National Harbor Defence Convention at Tampa in 1896, I have deemed it proper to issue a call for a national convention in this interest to assemble at Tampa, Fla., on the 8th day of February, 1899. The object of this convention will be to discuss and suggest methods for placing state troops on the most effective footing. Questions relating to arms, equipment, tactics, clothing, food and transportation will be considered and discussed by experts. Special attention will be given to the subject of camp sites, sanitation and all precautionary measures that modern science can suggest to insure the comfort and health of troops.

Boston Suit Stopped Again.

Boston, Feb. 8.—For the second time the city teaming fraud case has been taken from a jury. The first time it was because of a newspaper headline. Yesterday it was because Assistant District Attorney McLaughlin charged that Charles H. Milliken, a juryman, had received money as a bribe in the course of the trial. Mr. McLaughlin produced witnesses in support of his assertion and Judge Bond took the case from the jury. Milliken denied the charge. A new jury will be impanelled.

FILIPINOS WANTED FIGHT.

They Tried Many Ways to Provoke an Outbreak at Manila.

Hong Kong, Feb. 8.—Leading up to the hostilities which began at Manila on Saturday evening, the conduct of the Filipinos around that city toward the Americans had recently been most exasperating, the actions of the natives evidently being intended to provoke the Americans to commit some overt act. These annoyances were so numerous that it is difficult to believe they were not sanctioned by the Filipino leaders.

Sergeant Fischer and four engineers, while making a reconnoisance on last Wednesday, north of Manila, within the American lines, were seized by the insurgents and conveyed to Malalos, where they were imprisoned. On the next day General Otis sent Lieutenant Hahn to demand their release. The lieutenant was arrested on the way and taken from tohe train by the Filipinos. He protested against the action of the insurgents and was finally allowed to proceed under escort.

After presenting his demand to the Filipino government at Malalos for the release of Fischer and his companions, a special cabinet meeting was held, which lasted three hours. After the adjournment of the meeting the men were released, having been imprisoned for thirty-six hours with nothing to eat but a cup of rice and what they were able to buy with seven cents, all the money they had with them.

Three other American soldiers were captured outside the lines and it is reported that they are to be court martialed by the Filipinos at Malalos. A sentry outpost of the First Montana infantry was fired upon twice last Wednesday night. In addition to these acts many Americans have been recently robbed. General Barry's horses and carriages were stolen and several other Americans lost valuable property.

Hundreds of savage tribesmen from the north armed with knives and bows and arrows have reinforced the insurgents along the line of the railroad.

The Americans are keeping a sharp lookout for filibusters. A small sailing vessel was recently seized in Manila bay and the crew was put under arrest. Other boats are believed to be on their way to the island of Luzon from various islands.

The insurgents at Iloilo boast that they have won their independence and have established a civil government, making the military authority subordinate thereto.

REPORT FROM GEN. OTIS.

Filipinos Well Supplied With Arms and Ammunition—Spaniards Helped Them.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Adjutant General Corbin made public yesterday the following dispatch received from General Otis:

Manila, Feb. 7.

To the Adjutant General, Washington:

Insurgent army concentrated around Manila from Luzon provinces numbering over twenty thousand, possessing several quick firing and Krupp field guns. Good portion of enemy armed with Mausers, latest pattern. Two Krupp and a great many rifles captured. Insurgents fired a great quantity of ammunition. Quite a number of Spanish soldiers are in the insurgent service who served in the artillery.

Insurgents constructed strong intrenchments near our lines, mostly in bamboo thickets. These our men charged, killing or capturing many of the enemy. Our casualties probably aggregate two hundred and fifty. Full reports to-day. Casualties of insurgents very heavy. Have buried some five hundred of their dead and hold five hundred prisoners. Their loss in killed, wounded and prisoners, probably 4,000.

Took water works pumping station yesterday, six miles out. Considerable skirmishing with enemy, which made no stand. Pumps damaged, will be working in week. Have number of condensers set up in city, which furnish good water. Troops are in excellent spirits. Quiet prevails.

Magowan Hasn't Got a Cent.

New York, Feb. 8.—In the course of an examination in supplementary proceedings before Justice Conlon in the city court yesterday, Frank A. Magowan, formerly mayor of Trenton, N. J., who has been conspicuous in the last two years because of various sensational escapades, declared that he had no money, and that even the watch and chain he carried are owned by his wife. He sighed when he said that he had no bank account, and was mournful when he declared that $2,600 was stolen from him in the Hotel Winslow a short time ago. The proceedings yesterday were brought by Addison F. Roberts, who wants to collect a judgment of $1,587 against Magowan.

Pan-American Exposition.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8.—A delegation of Buffalo citizens had a conference with the governor and leading members of the legislature, and a bill will be introduced to-day making an appropriation of five hundred thousand dollars for the proposed Pan-American exposition.

Arms for Sons of Veterans.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Assemblyman Frederick A. Ware introduced a bill to-day directing the adjutant general of the state to supply the Sons of Veterans' camps with arms and other military equipment, when there is a supply exceeding the demands of the National Guard.

Diphtheria Closes a School.

Hackensack, Feb. 8.—The diphtheria epidemic in this town is spreading, and several new cases were reported yesterday. The board of education has closed the Union street school, which about four hundred children attend. There have been two deaths from the disease.

Spain and the Treaty.

Madrid, Feb. 8.—The premier, Senor Sagasta, is quoted as saying he will immediately submit to the queen regent a decree convoking the Cortes, and declaring that he expects to have a majority of thirty favorable to the approval of the treaty of peace with the United States.

Repeal of the "Dunn Act."

When the irrepressible John Dunn, of Elizabth, decided that he would forsake the brush and the paint pot and try his hand at law he secured the passage of a law which has become known as the "Dunn Act." It provides for the admission of men as lawyers who have secured the approval of five counselors in good standing in the bar. Primarily, Mr. Dunn wanted the law passed so that he could profit by it himself, which he was able to do. But in doing this a large loophole was opened for the admission of many misfit lawyers whom the better side of the profession seriously regret are now entitled to recognition in the State courts. The recent agitation for a higher standing of the members of the bar has resulted in bringing the "Dunn Act" into a searching light where its true inwardness is recognized and deplored.

Assemblyman Walscheid, of Hudson, proposes to put up the bars let down by the "Dunn Act," and to guard against the influx of young lawyers by hedging the profession around with extra precautions. This the Hudson man proposes to accomplish by the provisions of a bill which he has introduced in the Legislature and which provides for the appointment, by the Chief Justice, of nine persons who shall serve as a board of examiners and who shall examine all applicants for licenses as attorneys and recommend the successful ones for re-examination before the Supreme Court. The bill imposes on aspirants for admission to the bar the necessity of serving a clerkship of three years, if the said aspirant be a college graduate, and four years if not.

Opposed to New County.

The idea of forming a new county, with Plainfield for the county seat, which has only been discussed in a passing way, has already stirred up opposition from sources that indicate how difficult it will be to carry out the project. The Newark Advertiser says:

A project of a new county to be carved out of Union and Somerset counties, with Plainfield for the county seat, is broached.

The idea is to take in enough territory to give the county a population of 30,000. Somerset now has a little more than that number of inhabitants, and if parts of the county should be taken away the population would be reduced.

The great objection to this or any similar project is that it increases the small county power in the State Senate and adds so many more rotten boroughs to be manipulated against popular government in New Jersey.

It is fair to say that the large counties will not consent to any increase in the already extraordinary minority representation in the State Senate.

The Newark News disposes of the subject with this tart comment:

Plainfield has need to restrain its vaulting ambition before it makes itself ridiculous. The Legislature is not going into the business of carving up small counties into smaller ones in order that Plainfield may enjoy the honors of a county seat.

The State Board of Arbitration, which gained considerable unenviable notoriety sometime ago owing to its having passed through the year without arbitrating a single labor trouble, has started out this year with better prospects for practical work. In fact, it already has one good mark to its credit. After extending over a period of twenty-nine weeks the strike of the employes in a silk mill in Paterson has been satisfactorily settled to both sides through the auspices of the State Arbitrators. In this particular case the strikers secured a increase of thirteen per cent in their pay. This ought bear fruit in recommending the services of the Board more readily to the laboring masses, who become involved in dispute with their employers.

County Collector Hugh Dugan, of Jersey City, has announced his determination of capturing the Democratic Mayoralty nomination from Mayor Hoos, who is a candidate for renomination. Such being the case, we rise to enquire what will Dugan do to him?

Assemblyman Squire has introduced a bill in the Legislature providing for the incorporation of New Providence as a borough. And yet Summit and Westfield, both big enough to lose New Providence in, hesitate about getting away from the township government.

William Waldorf Astor has compelled the London Mail editors to apologize in the Queen's court for having held him up to ridicule. Willie would have a big job on his hands if he tried the same proposition in this country.

The near approach of "moving" time suggests that there is no better way of renting a house than advertising it in the cent a word column of The Daily Press. The Daily Press C. A. W. brings results.

Governor Voorhees seems to have Major Lentz and his friends in a guessing mood as to which way the cat is to jump in the Essex county prosecutorship appointment.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A new rule, or perhaps the enforcement of an old one, in the central office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in Plainfield is followed out altogether too religiously for the accommodation of subscribers. Ever since the establishment of the local system it has been the custom for subscribers, in seeking connection with another telephone, to ask the operator at central to give them So and So, instead of taking the time to look in the telephone directory and find out the number of the telephone. In a small office like the central exchange in Plainfield the operators have ready knowledge of every number on the board, and heretofore they have always accommodated the subscriber without compelling the number to be looked up. Within the last few days, however, the operators have suddenly decided themselves, or else been instructed, to connect no telephones until the subscriber is able to give the number of the 'phone he desires to talk with. However, this rule is carried too far at times. Yesterday afternoon a member of The Press staff had occasion to talk with Street Commissioner Gavett. Without thought of the new rule about giving numbers, he rang up central. He asked for connection with Street Commissioner Gavett's office.

"You'll have to give the number," came back the answer from central.

Glancing at a specially prepared list of telephones frequently asked for in The Press office, Street Commissioner Gavett's telephone number was noted to be 221 F. Again the bell rang and the patient reporter gave the number noted on the list. Now it happens that very recently a large number of old telephones have been given new numbers. These new numbers appear in a volumnous book.

"That isn't the right number," came back the aggravating answer.

Once again the reporter hung up the telephone receiver and delved in to the telephone directory. He hunted through several hundred names, more or less, but it was in vain. Not a sign could he see of Street Commissioner Gavett's number. Again calling central he explained his plight.

"Wait and I'll see," came back the answer. A few moments later the bell rang and the reporter was politely told that he could find the number he desired in the last column on page No. 317 of the directory. Evidently the operator had looked the matter up and sought to show that she knew a thing or two.

Between perplexity and exasperation the reporter finally found Page No. 317 and strained his eyes for the desired information. But he could not find it. With feelings of humiliation he rang the bell for central again. No answer. He rang a second time. No answer. He rang a third time. No answer. Presumably, central decided that The Press office had gone out of business. The reporter hung up the receiver and decided that he would gain time if he walked two blocks to the Street Commissioner's office and talked with that official personally without the use of the telephone. And he did.

But then, why in the name of common sense should the operator at central absolutely decline to connect the two telephones when she knew the number desired—even if the applicant did not.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The great scenic drama of "Faust," with Joseph Callahan in the role of Mephistopeles, is the attraction at the Music Hall Saturday. In this character Mr. Callahan is said to develop an almost new creation. All the subtlety and knavishness of the part are brought out in full force and the management has surrounded him with an adequate company. But excellent as is the company it would scarcely give full prominence to the play were it not for the scenery. "Faust" makes great demands in the way of stage pictures, and these have all been lavishly provided for. There is the opening scene in the laboratory of Faust where the compact with the Evil One is made. Then comes the Kirmess, with its dancers and music; then the beautiful garden scene, followed by the cathedral; the night of the Brocken, accompanied with its weird effects, and finally the apotheosis and the picture of Marguerite being transported to Heaven. All through theplay the electricity plays a conspicuous part, and this feature alone is a most beautiful one. Music of an appropriate nature is introduced, the whole making a most attractive entertainment. There will be a special matinee for ladies Saturday.

Cake walking and minstrelsy are always popular, and all who delight in such amusements will have their tastes fully gratified next Monday night at Music Hall when the Championship Cake Walkers and Minstrels make their first appearance. This organization is announced as "An All African Aggregation." It includes in its numbers, the champion cake walkers who this week are contesting for prizes and superiority in graceful pedestrianism at the Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden, New York. There is also a complete company of vocal artists who are said to excell in singing effects, and comedians who render up-to-date specialties with fervor and unction. A brass band and orchestra accompany the performers, and a street parade will be one of the features Monday.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, February 8—John Runyon reached his seventy-ninth birthday Saturday, but passed the day in a quiet way until night, when his son, Augustus Runyon, of Plainfield, Mrs Augustus Runyon, Miss Myra Runyon, Mrs. Jennie Smalley and Mr. Hayes, also, of Plainfield, came to the house to spend the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Runyon retire early and were just going to bed when the guests arrived. They brought refreshments with them and all passed a jolly evening. Mrs. John Runyon is 82 years old, but both old people are hale and hearty and bid fair to live here for many years to come.

At the quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, held Monday night, a cordial invitation was extended to Rev. E. S. Jamison, Ph. D., to remain with the church as pastor for another year. Dr. Jamison was sent to Dunellen by the Methodist conference last year, and he has been so successful in his work among the people, and is so well liked that the invitation has been extended to him to stay another year. It is probable that he will accept, and that the conference, which meets in April, will grant the request.

Captain John Whirley, of Somerville, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer, of Dunellen, has been sent for at Athens, Georgia, where he is with the Third N. J. Volunteers, because of the death of his mother. Captain Whirley will reach home today, it is expected, and the funeral will be held tomorrow.

Miss Mary Bolton has returned from Somerville, where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Philip Carman.

Mrs. E. S. Jamison has returned from Brooklyn, where she has been attending her mother, who is ill.

Mrs. Elias Milliken has returned from Elizabeth, where she has been visiting.

Augustus Runyon, of Plainfield, visited his father, John Runyon, yesterday.

Leonard Dorsit, of Elizabeth, has been visiting his aunt, Miss Sheppard.

Randolph Runyon is confined to the house by an attack of illness.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, February 8.—Miss Emma Nelson, Mrs. J. D. Anderson and Miss Irene Day took part last night in the fair being held at Plainfield under the auspices of Warren Engine Company, No. 1.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Baptist church will hold a literary and musical entertainment tomorrow night in Friendship Hall.

Rev. Frank Fletcher will lead the Wednesday evening prayer meeting at the Baptist church tonight.

William Starr, of New Brunswick, spent yesterday visiting friends in town.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 8—The entertainment committe of Fanwood Council met at the home of William B. Noble Monday evening. Arrangements are being made for an entertainment for the benefit of the council during the latter part of February or first part of March.

Tramps are making such nuisances of themselves in the outskirts of Fanwood that the borough officials are considering the necessity of police to patrol the county road along the railroad between Graceland and Fanwood.

Funeral services over the remains of the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schmdit were held from the parents home Monday afternoon. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery at Plainfield.

The Common Council of Fanwood borough hold an important meeting in the borough rooms this evening.

Miss Beula Coles has returned from a short visit with her cousin, Miss Pauline Buckley, of Plainfield.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. F. C Phoebus, of Clinton avenue, is able to be out again after a severe illness.

Miss Katheryn Dwight, of Rockview avenue, is visiting relatives in New York.

Miss Amelia Kister, of the borough, is entertaining company from out of town.

Mrs. Joseph Blatz, of Somerset street, is detained at home by a slight illness.

Mrs. H. G. Adams, of East Front street, has been dismissed from the hospital.

Miss Wilson, of Hunterdon county, is the guest of Miss Sue Boss, of Central avenue.

Fred Serrell, son of George Serrell, of West Front street, is detained at home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Lovell, of Crescent avenue, are stopping in New York for a time.

Charles H. Herring, of New York, has been visiting his son, Rev. Charles E. Herring, of this city.

Miss Clara VanFleet, of East Third street, has returned from a visit with New Brunswick friends.

Among the guests registered at the Empire Hotel, New York, are Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter, of Plainfield.

C. Westly Abbott, of Central avenue, is home from Yale University to attend the wedding of his sister.

Mrs. George W. Gardner, of the borough, left Monday for Syracuse, where she will visit for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Flannery, of New York, returned to their home yesterday after a pleasant visit in town.

The Misses Shreve, of Island Heights, are visiting at the home of their uncle, B. J. Shreve, of Grove street.

Willard M. Miner, of East Sixth street, has left for Oriskany Falls, Oneida county, N.Y., where his mother is very ill.

Mrs. Robert Schriner and son, of Paterson, have returned home after a visit with Mrs. Margaret Wilson, of Grove street.

Miss Kate Kane and Miss Kate Maloney, of Bayonne, spent Sunday with Miss Mary Kenney, of East Fourth street.

Orville Waring, of the University of Pennsylvania has been spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Waring, of Willow avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pope, of Park avenue, left today for New Orleans, where they will remain for a time and witness the Mardi Gras.

Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place, returned last evening after spending a few days at Oriskany Falls, Oneida county, N. Y. Mrs. Morse will remain there a few days longer.

James Clark and wife, of West Seventh street, leave today for St. Augustine, Fla., where they will stop at the "Alcasar." From there they will go to Nassau to remain for an indefinite time.

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. King, of Brooklyn, have been called to the home of their parents, C. H. King, of 114 Plainfield avenue, the father being ill with the grip and the mother very sick with pneumonia.

Surprised by Their Friends.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Ayres, of West Seventh street, surprised them last night by arriving at the house in a body prepared to spend the evening. The surprise was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand and was a pleasant affair. Prof. W. C. Townsend furnished the music and the refreshments were brought by the guests themselves.

Judgment rendered—In the case of Richardson against Pierson, for $.04 66.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

GOOD SLEIGHING NOW AND SNOW STILL FALLING.

TROLLEY TRAFFIC WAS IMPEDED.

Six Inches of Snow Has Already Fallen—Snow and Gales Troubled Jersey Central Coal Trains.

Three snowstorms have visited this section during the past three days. The first two were insignificant, but the storm that began yesterday afternoon and still continues is quite a severe one. Six inches of snow have already fallen and there is every prospect that there will be more before the storm passes away.

The sleighing is excellent although the roads are somewhat drifted in the country sections. There was a good bottom on which the late fall of snow has packed well. The trolley cars are running but their progress is somewhat impeded and the regular schedule is not followed out. The scrapers worked all night and plows have been attached to four of the cars to keep the rails clean.

The Jersey Central Railroad encountered some trouble last night and this morning as a result of the storm and heavy gales. The coal and freight trains found some difficulty in getting over the grade at Fanwood so an extra engine was utilized in pushing them over. As a result the extra cars that are sent from Dunellen every morning to await the 7:55 train for New York were not here, the engine that usually pulls them being at work in assisting the coal trains. They came down with the rest of the train and there was a general scramble for seats.

cided upon a place of residence, which will be either in Plainfield or New York.

Mr Blake was formerly a resident of Newark, but has for about a year resided in Plainfield. He is engaged in business in New York as a broker. His wife is one of Plainfield's most accomplished young women, who has been prominently identified with the best society. They were both handsomely remembered by their many relatives and friends who bestowed upon them gifts of costliness and beauty. The best wishes of every one of their acquaintances is extended to them as they start life together.

SIXTEEN NEW CARS.

Brunswick Traction Company Will Soon be Able to Cope With Traffic.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Feb. 8.—It was stated yesterday by Edward H. Radel, secretary and manager of the Brunswick Traction Company, that the company had decided to purchase 16 new cars. This increase in the rolling stock of the compauy is made necessary because of the additional territory now being covered in the branch lines to Somerville and Plainfield.

An order has been placed with one of the leading street car manufacturers for six new open cars, similar to the summer cars now used by the company. These cars will seat 75 people and are to be delivered in this city between April 1 and 16. These cars will be used on the lines to Somerville and Plainfield.

Another order has been placed for 10 new winter cars. The company is obliged at present to use old Newark cars on the local lines. This, however, is only temporary and these cars will be replaced by new ones as soon as this order is filled. Upon receiving these 16 new cars the company will be able to meet all the demands of heavy traffic.

A Wonderful Success.

The Buffalo National Acetylene Gas Company of Buffalo, N. Y., are placing on the market on thirty days' trial, a machine for the manufacture of Acetylene Gas which is bound to take the place of all other illuminants. This machine is the latest improved and is recommended by all standard insurance companies. They light churches, steres, factories, residences and country homes. They want good representatives.

Miss Brown's Brother is Better.

Miss Mary Brown, of East Fourth street, has received a letter from her brother, J. D. Brown, of Nebraska, that he is improved in health. Mr. Brown is now under treatment at College View Hospital, Lincoln, Neb., and there appears to be strong hopes that he will recover. If he does he will come to Plainfield to visit his relatives in this city and vicinity.

Sudden Death at Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 8—George V. Tunison died suddenly at his home on South street, Somerville, Sunday afternoon. He was an old business man in the town, and was one of the most influential men in the Second Reformed church. He was always interested in benevolent and charaitable work.

FORMER FRIENDS GO TO LAW.

Dunellen Men Mixed up in a Trio of Legal Disputes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 8.—Two men who used to be friends, Colonel William B. Hayes, a New York lawyer living out here, and D. D. Williams, the liveryman, are now at daggers points and are mixed up in three or four suits at law over some business transactions between them.

The last suit was begun yesterday in Justice Warden's court, and is a case on contract brought for $43.08, Williams claims that it is for hack hire and for the use of a road wagon which the Colonel has had since last December.

The Colonel and Williams used to be friends until one day the Colonel loaned Williams $24 on a note. Hayes afterwards claimed that the money was secured by fraud and deceit, and started a suit in New Brunswick against him for deceit. This suit is still pending. The Colonel also persuaded Williams to bring suit against VanArtsdale, the blacksmith, so the liveryman says, for not having one of his horses shod at the time he was told to have the work finished.

Suits and cross-suits have been commenced until both parties have become involved in a mass of legal difficulties that will require several weeks to straighten out.

CALLED DOWN THE POLICE.

Criticism for the Way Carriages Were Handled at the Wedding.

The police who had charge of the outside affairs at the Abbott-Blake wedding at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last evening, have received much criticism for the way in which they performed their duty. The fact is that the police protection was wholly inadequate and things did not go along smoothly. Frank Hedden was in charge of the carriages, 279 in all, and he did his best to keep them straight and not have a hitch. One team of horses became balky and delayed the bridal coach for several minutes. Many things were allowed to go unnoticed by the police and there was apparently no effort made to keep things as they should be kept. It is understood that Councilman Barrows, of the police board, had occasion to call the police down, as well as several other prominent ex-officials.

PHOTOGRAPHIC PRINT EXHIBIT.

Camera Club to Hold an Event in Their Rooms in April.

The Plainfield Camera Club will hold a photographic print exhibition during the first week in April in the gallery of the club, Babcock building. Awards will be made in the following classes: Landscapes, interiors, portraiture, groups, hand camera work, mechanical, beginners' work and animal study. The exhibition will be open to all amateur photographers in this vicinity. Awards will also be made for the best general exhibit by a member of the club, and for the best exhibits made by lady and gentleman outside the club. These exhibits must contain at least ten pictures. The committee in charge consists of H. H. Coward, chairman; Mrs. A. W. Rand, Mrs. L. H. Morgan, Miss Susie Davies, W. B. Harsel, Louis Borsum and C. T. Coon.

Uniformed Rank Elects.

At a regular meeting of Crescent Division, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., last evening, the following officers were elected: Captain, J. E. Flannery; first lieutenant, Jacob Blimm, Jr.; second lieutenant, J. S. Higham; recorder, Charles McGinley; treasurer, J. C. Blimm; chaplain, David Bowden; guard, Louis Mohring; sentinel, Wm. Young.

Julius Williams, of Elmwood place, has left town on a business trip.

GREAT DIAMOND BUYERS.

The Favorite Stone of the American Nation.

The diamond trade is a very accurate thermometer of financial prosperity. When times are good the demand is large. American people buy more diamonds than any nation on earth; but when times are bad they practice economy, and the market is dull. The revival of prosperity is indicated by the Treasury statistics, which show that in 1898 we imported $6,955,789 worth of diamonds and $3,440,076 of pearls, while in 1897 we bought only $1,985,810 worth of diamonds and $1,573,788 worth of pearls. This, of course, does not include those smuggled. It is probable that the value of diamonds smuggled into the United States is greater than of any other article, because it is so easy to conceal them. Major Williams, who was charge of the special agents and detectives which are kept by the Government in Europe to prevent smuggling, says the illicit trade in jewels had fallen off a great deal since the reduction of the duty. When the tariff was 50 and 60 per cent. the temptation to smuggle was, of course, much greater than it is now, when the duty is only 10 per cent.; but at the same time, he says, competition is so active and prices are so close that the 10 per cent. makes a good profit if the goods can be imported without paying duty. Consequently, according to his estimate, fully half the diamonds sold in the United States pay nothing toward the support of the Government.

There are various ways of smuggling precious stones. They are concealed in cheese, in pomade, in soap, in cigars, umbrella handles, walking sticks, in the hollow handles of silver and tinware, in preserved fruits and confectionary. There is no comprehension of the ingenuity of the diamond trader who wants to cheat the Government, and he generally succeeds, because he has every advantage in his favor. And the manufacturers and merchants are always willing to assist him.—Chicago Record.

INTERVIEWING A DEAF WITNESS.

A Typewriter Plays an Important Part in a Trolley Damage Case.

John A. Lynch, fifteen years old, whose home is at Thirty-ninth street and Eighth avenue, New York, drove a milk wagon for his mother, Ellen Murray, who carries on the business left by her first husband when he died.

The son was injured in a collision between his wagon and an electric railroad car on November 3, 1897. His mother, as his guardian ad litem, sued for $50,000 damages. A sealed verdict in her favor for $10,000 was handed to Judge Dickey.

Through the collision the plaintiff was alleged to have been rendered so deaf that he cannot hear what is said to him, even when the words are shouted into his ears. During the trial, while he was in the witness chair, the railroad company's lawyer repeatedly walked up to his side and loudly asked him questions, to which, however, there was never any response.

It was necessary to have the numerous questions put the plaintiff reproduced on a typewriter and then submitted to him for his answers. This was a rather slow process, and it was the first occasion, so far as is known, in which is has been employed in a case at law.

Lynch alleged that the trolley car came suddenly upon him and smashed his wagon. He was, he said, pitched out and thrown upon his head. The result was that he became stone deaf.

Experts testified that there was no way of determining scientifically whether a person was deaf or not if the person could be smart enough to keep up the deception, if there was any. By their verdict the jury showed that they believed that Lynch was not shamming.—New York Herald.

Agriculture in Alaska.

Experiments with a view to demonstrating the possibility of growing a variety of food products of the United States in the soil of Alaska have been conducted during the past season by the department of agriculture.

Prof. Georgeson succeeded in raising and maturing oats, barley, flax, potatoes and a number of vegetables. He also planted grasses and clovers which made considerable growth in the comparatively short season they were in the ground. The potatoes grown were of a good quality, and when tested were found to be superior in many respects to those grown in this vicinity.

Reservations of lands for future experiments were made in the vicinity of Sitka, on Caodiac Island, in the Cook Inlet region. Some experiments were also begun in the storage of forage plants in silos for feeding the animals during the winter season.

Where Life is a Joy.

The Osage Indians are probably the wealthiest people per capita on earth, are aristocrats and scorn manual labor, according to Agent Pollock's annual report to the Interior Department. They own over 800 acres of land for each man, woman and child, each receiving an annuity of over $200 in cash.

As an illustration, if an Indian and his wife have eight children, the annual cash income of the family is over $2,000. Rather leading his white brother in this respect, he prefers the conveniences, luxuries and dissipations of village life to agricultural avocation. He loves to sing and dance and rest, and he has plenty of money to support his family in idleness.—Philadelphia Times.

Berlin. Der Bundesrath hat beschlossen, weibliche Personen, die auf einem deutschen Gymnasium das Abiturienten-Examen gemacht und die vorschriftsmäßigen medizinischen Prüfungen bestanden haben, zur ärztlichen Praxis zuzulassen.—Das Reichsgericht wies die Revision der Garantiefondszeichner der Berliner Gewerbeausstellung gegen die Urtheile des Kammergerichts zurück und legte ihnen auch die Kosten der Revisionsinstanz zur Last.—Ein Fesselballon soll dem Vernehmen nach in der Nähe von Berlin demnächst eingerichtet und in großer Höhe dauernd erhalten werden. Derselbe wird mit selbstmessenden Instrumenten ausgestattet und zu fortlaufenden meteorologischen u. s. w. Untersuchungen dienen.—Während seiner Berufsthätigkeit vom Schlage getroffen wurde der allgemein geachtete Kursmakler Max Halberstädter. Er war gerade bei der amtlichen Kursfestsetzung beschäftigt, als er plötzlich vom Schlage getroffen zusammenbrach.

Forst. Die fünfstöckige Tuchfabrik von Karl Menzel brannte total nieder. Um 4 Uhr Morgens hatte der Fabrikwächter noch alle Räume kontrollirt, eine halbe Stunde später wüthete das verheerende Element in allen Sälen. Bei dem herrschenden Sturme war es für die Feuerwehr unmöglich, den Brand zu löschen; sie mußte ihre ganze Thätigkeit auf den Schutz der schwer bedrohten Nachbargrundstücke, zumeist ebenfalls Tuchfabriken, richten. Von dem Fabrikgebäude sind nur die Außenmauern stehen geblieben. Die Stockwerke sind durchschlagen, Maschinen und Vorräthe vernichtet. Der Schaden ist enorm. Etwa 200 Arbeiter wurden beschäftigungslos. Die Fabrik ist vor etwa 15 Jahren erbaut worden.

Hannover. Nach Mittheilung in der "Landwirthschaftlichen Genossenschaftspresse" bestehen in der Provinz Hannover bereits 24 Eierverkaufs-Genossenschaften, die seit zwei Jahren entstanden sind und die durch Sortirung, sorgfältige Prüfung und Abstempelung der Eier, durch Verkauf nach Gewicht und direkten Versandt schon befriedigende Erfolge erzielen.

Hildesheim. Eine Ueberschwemmungskatastrophe, wie sie Hildesheim im vorigen Sommer zweimal heimgesucht, hat auch jetzt wieder die Stadt betroffen. In Folge der starken Regengüsse, welche hier und besonders in den Harzbergen niedergegangen sind, war die hart an der Stadt vorbeifließende Innerste verheerend über die Ufer getreten. Erfreulicher Weise ist die neue Brücke, welche zwischen Hildesheim und Moritzberg zwecks Regulirung der Innerste in Angriff genommen, so weit vollendet, daß sie den andringenden Fluthen Widerstand leisten konnte.

STAGE WIT.

Jokes Heard at Some of Our Metropolitan Theatres.

In "Gay Mr. Lightfoot," at the Bijou, W. H. Thompson says a husband is like an egg—the longer he is kept in hot water, the harder he gets.

During a jealous quarrel, Foreman and West, at the same theatre, discuss the alleged lover in the case. "Did you notice how his face lights up?"

"That's because he's lantern-jawed."

There's a deal of truth in this joke of the Russell Brothers at Weber and Field's:

"Which is worth the most—a horse or a man?"

"A man, of course."

"You're wrong. A horse is valuable when he's broken, but a man that's broken is no use to anybody."

Here's one of Fritz William's latest: Business was slack in a cafe adjoining a theatre. During the intermission nobody came in to "see a man." The proprietor sent his porter across the street to see if a rival establishment was getting all the trade.

"Anybody drinking in there?" he asked anxiously, as Mike returned.

"Divil a wan but two," was the paradoxical answer.

Richard Fuller Golden says he has discovered an occupation for retired sea captains—they should become insurance solicitors. In support of this statement he cites the case of a captain who, in trying to insure a farmer, nearly deluged him with his flow of eloquence.

"You're quite a talker," said the stranger. "How did you get your gift of gab?"

"Well," said the captain, "when I was before the mast I could talk to everybody."

When Digby Bell was playing in Newark recently a tall, elderly hayseed stepped up to the box office and asked:

"What be the play to-night?"

"'Hoosier Doctor,'"

"None o' your business who my doctor is. What's the play?"

"'Hoosier Doctor,'" repeated the box office man, smilingly.

"My doctor ain't a-comin', so it don't concern you," snorted the man, and a row was imminent, when the employe explained the matter and restored peace.

Assisting Young People to Marry.

A plan for financially assisting young people to marry has been devised recently by a wealthy and philanthropic New Yorker, and there can be no doubt that the good man will find many would-be beneficiaries. The scheme may come to grief, however, through unfitness of the applicants, for it is one of the torments of society that the people most willing and anxious to marry are the least fit. Marrying goes on merrily, in all our cities, between people who have nothing between them and starvation but wages of a salary that may be stopped at any time by an employer who has himself to look out for. The best form of association for the financial encouragement of marriage is one that prevails in some parts of England: a couple intending to marry announce to their unmarried friends that cash contributions will be acceptable, and they pledge themselves to return any amount when the giver himself—or herself—is bout to marry. How many Americans, however, would contribute with such a promise as security?

He Killed Spiders.

"No money in spider-killing?" said the shabby man. "Isn't there, though? You don't know what a really spider-infested house is. In the country you've probably noticed that the walls and ceiling-corners of houses are much more cobwebby than in the towns. It's almost impossible for a housekeeper to keep them down; they must be exterminated. Well, it has been done scientifically.

"I always carry ten or twelve pounds of sulphur and a very strong-smelling vegetable substance called asafoetida with me. I close the windows of the rooms and all the ventilators. Then I put a tray of powdered sulphur, generally about half a pound, in one corner of the room, and a small quantity of asafoetida in the other. I set light to both, and close the door tight, putting a wet cloth under the door-mat to keep all the air in.

"I then proceed to another room, and treat it in the same way. When I open the doors and windows of the room I have smoked out I find the spiders on the floor, dead as mutton.—Answers.

Mark's Confession.

One day Mark Twain was dandling his first-born infant upon his knees. His wife came in, and said, "Well, Samuel, you can't deny that you love that baby dearly." "No," said Mark Twain—"I can't admit that; but I don't mind confessing that I do respect the little thing for his father's sake."

Unkind.

Medium (to party at sitting)—The spirit of your deceased husband desires to converse with you.

Wife—Huh, if he ain't got no more spirit now than he had when he died, he ain't worth troubling about.

My Ladie Faire.

"My ladie faire is like a rose"
The figure's not a new one;
And well the modern gallant knows
It really is a true one.

For what with suppers, dances, shows,
In which he dare not stint her,
His ladie faire is like a rose—
She costs a heap in winter.

—Francis W. Daire.

England is apparently bent upon forcing a war with President Kruger, doing now directly what Dr. Jameson was expected to accomplish without involving the British Government in an act of treachery to a friendly power. Dr. Jameson admitted that if he had succeeded he expected his acts to be approved by the British Government. It is a cowardly business, this coercion of the little South African Republic by a powerful nation like Great Britain, but "To-Day" frankly expresses the situation when it says: "By all means let us fight and win the Transvaal. We are going to fight for gold mines and territory, if they cannot be got without fighting. Every nation has to play pirate at times, and let us play boldly when we do and trust to Mr. Chamberlain to see flags of truce kept out of the soldiers' baggage. Thrice the Boers have seen the flag of England hoisted on a stick and always white. It is time to prove we have a colored flag."

The Czar's order, that convicts sentenced to Siberia shall henceforth be carried by rail instead of being forced to march thousands of miles on foot is in the direction of mercy, and will be received as an encouraging sign of progress in one of the least progressive Governments on earth.

ANOTHER LARGE PURCHASE OF High-Grade Clothing.

Purchased the balance stock of the Union Clothing Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., at 35c. on the dollar, and this being positively the finest and most up-to-date clothing ever shown in Plainfield, and this with the stock of Schaper Bros., of St. Louis, Mo., combined, makes the largest stock for this time of the year to be seen in any store in the country And in order to dispose of this tremendous stock of clothing we will cut the price to less than 1-3 of the wholesale cost of manufacturing these overcoats, suits, ulsters and trousers.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

Another match in the interassociation basket ball championship of the Y. M. C. A. will be played Friday evening between teams A and C.

Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, secretary of the Girls' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School, is in communication with the manager of the girls' basket ball team of the Montclair High School, looking toward the settlement of a date for a match between the Plainfield and Montclair girls. Several dates have been set, but as yet none satisfactory to both sides has been chosen. It is a settled thing, however, that the two teams will eventually meet and that a return game will be played in this city. There is a girls' basket ball team at the East Orange High School, with which a series of games may also be arranged.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Central Journal Bowling League.	Won.	Lost.	Highest Score.
Park	19	8	905
Roselle	19	8	903
Newark Bay C. C.	14	13	955
Westfield	15	15	915
Elizabeth	13	14	894
N. J. A. C.	7	17	944
Cranford Casino	6	18	811

This evening will decide whether the Park Club is going to take the lead along in the Central Journal Bowling League, or whether they will relinquish it to the Roselle Casino team. Tonight, the Parks will roll three games on the alleys of the Westfield Athletic Club.

Six games were rolled in the Central Journal Bowling League last Friday night, three on the Westfield alleys and three on the alleys of the Newark Bay Boat Club at Bayonne. The team from the Elizabeth Club went to Westfield and took two games out of three. The team from the Newark Bay Boat Club was at home on its alleys at Bayonne and defeated the team from the Cranford Country Club in three straight games.

In the contests for the highest score and the greatest number of scores over 200 on the Park Club alleys last month, Clarence Roome was victorious, winning both trophies. During the month of January he rolled better than 200 twelve times. His high score was 231. Last Saturday night "Dod" Thiers set a high mark for the month of February that seems likely to carry off the trophy this month. He rolled 256. Yesterday Arthur Peck rolled 245 that ordinarily would have carried off first honors.

This evening will see the bowling team from the Park Club at the Westfield Athletic Club alleys to roll three games. While the name of the winning team in the Central Journal Bowling League is still an open question, it is now practically certain that it lies between the Roselle Casino and the Park Club. Even if the Parks can't land in first place, they are certain of second. The Parks have only nine more games to roll and are pretty sure of winning the three from Cranford when the latter teams comes to this city to roll. Then they ought to get two out of the three with Westfield. If they are going to win the championship they want to come out equally lucky on the alleys of the Newark Bay Boat Club. Even if they meet defeat there, however, second place is still assured.

VARICUS SPORTS.

In giving credit for the various indoor athletic records at the Y. M. C. A., an error was made in the record for putting the shot. The record is still held by George Proctor Smith, but his put was 38 feet, 1½ inches, instead of 37 feet, 6 inches.

When it came to settling the date for the dual athtetic contest between the teams from the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s the two physical directors found some difficulty in finding a day that would suit both teams. February 16th was first chosen but had to be given up as the State convention would be in session at Rahway. New Brunswick agreed to Tuesday, February 21st, but several of the Plainfield team couldn't take part on that date. It has now been decided to put off the contest until Friday, March 10th.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Shepherds of Bethlehem, Star of Plainfield, No. 25, meets tonight is the Grand Army Hall where they will entertain out-of-town members.

—H. E. Gayle, the carpenter, has signed contract with J. L. Bennett, for the erection of a dwelling house on Watchung avenue near Summit avenue.

—C. E. Bicknell, the Somerset street fruit dealer, is making special low prices this week on bananas and oranges. Look at his advertisement in another column.

—Florret Wormser, of this city, in a card published in another part of today's Press, warns the public not to give his wife, Francis Wormser, credit on his account, for she having left his bed and board he will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her.

Ice Palace, Niagara Falls.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company announces a rate of $8 for the round trip from Plainfield to Niagara Falls and return. Tickets to be sold good going on February 11th, and limited to return to and including last train leaving Niagara Falls February 13th. Tickets will be good on regular trains, except the Black Diamond Express. Inquire of Lehigh Valley Ticket Agents for further particulars.

READY TO QUIT.

Aguinaldo Asks for Cessation of Hostilities—Otis Sends No Reply.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Feb. 8—Gen. Otis in a despatch to the War Department received shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, describes the engagement at Caloocan six miles north of this city. The cable message says:

"Manila, Feb. 8, 1899.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Situation rapidly improving; reconnoissance yesterday to south, several miles to east to Laguuade Bay, to northeast eight miles. Driving straggling insurgent troops in in various directions, encountering no decided opposition; army disintergrated and natives returning to village displaying white flag; near Caloocan, six miles north, enemy made stand behind intrenchments; charged by Kansas troops led by Col. Funsten, close enccunter resulting in rout of enemy with very heavy loss. Loss to Kansas—Lient. Alford killed; six men wounded.

"Night of 4th Aguinaldo issued flying proclamation charging the Americans with initiative and declared war; Sunday issued another calling all to resist foreign invasion; his influence throughout this section destroyed; now applies for cessation of hostilities and conference; declined to answer. Insurgent expectation of rising in city on night of 4th unrealized. Provost Marshal General with admirable disposition of troops defeated every attempt; city quiet, business resumed; natives respectful and cheerful; the fighting qualities of American troops a revelation to all inhabitants. Otis."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

William Mowinkle is ill at his home with a severe attack of the grip. Dr. Adams is in attendance.

—Press want ads pay.

—Miss Lincoln, of Park avenue, had charge of the decorations at the Abbott-Blake wedding last evening, and were much admired.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvet skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

WESTFIELD'S HOODOO WAS PARK'S DOWNFALL

Parks Lost Three Games and First Place.

THEY COULDN'T BOWL.

SPLITS AND BREAKS WERE THE ORDER OF THE EVENING.

Parks Led at the Start in Two Games But it Wasn't Any Use—Pins Would Not Fall for Them—Westfield Rolled in Great Form—W. M. Townley Made a Phenominal Score—Plainfield in Second Place.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 9—Same old hoodoo again. It perched upon the alleys of the Westfield Athletic Club last night and when the famous bowling team of the Park Club, of Plainfield, came, it fell upon them. Three games were rolled in the Central Journal Bowling League there and Westfield took them all. Such an exhibition of hard luck and poor bowling as was witnessed on the part of the Parks, was enough to grieve the stoutest rooter. The effect of it was to topple the Parks out of first place in the league and leave Roselle there all alone in her glory.

Now the Park Club team went to Westfield with the intention of winning. The strongest team possible was sent. But it was a repetition of Plainfield's experiences on the Westfield alleys. In the first game, "Doc" Thiers had five splits and the others two or more. When they did hit the pins they wouldn't fall down. The second game was as bad or even worse, for both Will Thiers and Hibbard had five splits each. The third game the Parks rolled so poorly that it didn't take splits to keep their score down.

In the first game the Parks took the lead, but lost it on the fifth frame when the Westfield contingent went galloping away and won by 69 pins. W. M. Townley won the next game, rolling 246. The pins fell all over each other in their anxiety to lay down for him. He made five successive strikes, a spare, two strikes, two spares and a strike on the windup. The Parks never saw the lead in that game. The Plainfield team made a desperate effort in the third game and held the lead for the first three frames. Then that naughty old hoodoo flopped his wings and the Parks collapsed completely and entirely and lost the game by 106 pins. It was sorrowful indeed.

The individual scores were as follows:

PARK CLUB.	1st.	2d.	3d.
W. Thiers	148	144	146
Hibbard	137	119	149

TROLLEY KILLED THE HORSE.

Brunswick Traction Company to be Sued for Damages.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 9—Justice Warden has issued summons in the case of Victor D. Schomp, of Plainfield, against the New Brunswick Traction Company for damages. The case will be tried tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the town hall.

About a month ago Schomp's horse was killed by a trolley car near Bound Brook. After vain attempts to settle the claim, Schomp has brought suit against the company. Codington & Swackhamer, of Plainfield, will represent Schomp, and W. P. Voorhees, of New Brunswick is counsel for the company. The case may be tried before a jury, and in any event a sharp controversy between the legal lights can be expected.

Schomp purchased the horse, that was killed, up in the country, and I. C. VanNatta, also of Plainfield, was riding him home. Near Bound Brook the horse got to prancing about on the track, and before VanNatta could quet the animal and get him out of danger, a car came along and struck the horse, killing him instantly.

Neighbors Thanked.

To the neighors who so cheerfully came to our assistance last night at the fire at our house we desire to express our heartfelt thanks, and we desire especially to mention the heroic work of our next door neighbor, Andrew McArdle. Respectfully,

Mr. and Mrs. A. Vanderbeek.

TO OUTLINE POLICY.

Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS TO DECIDE ON YALE BASKET BALL GAME.

The Question Is as to Whether the Y. M. C. A. Team Is to Be Allowed to Play in the Crescent Rink.

There is a prospect that, after all, the meeting of the basket ball teams of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and the Yale University may take place. This evening the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. will hold their regular monthly meeting, which was postponed from last week. At the meeting the question of allowing the association team to play away from the gymnasium will be considered.

It will be remembered that the question came up before the physical work committee of the association and the members were evenly divided on the subject. So the matter was referred to the directors. As the expenses of the Yale team would be quite high it will be necessary to play the game in the Crescent Rink where a large crowd can be accommodated and sufficient gate receipts taken in to pay all the necessary expenses of the game.

There is no doubt but that the proposed game would be a success from a financial and athletic point of view as basket ball has grown very popular in Plainfield of late and the Yale boys, in any line, are a mighty attraction. The objection on the part of some of the members of the physical work committee was that it would start a a precedent that would be apt to take the basket ball team away from the restraining influence of the association and make a mere money scheme out of what was first intended as a means of simple recreation for the members. As Plainfield has improved so wonderfully in the game the enthusiasts of the sport declare it unfair to spoil their chances of playing the best teams in the country through such a narrow minded view of the situation.

FELL OUT OF SLEIGH AND BROKE HIS ARM.

FRISKY HORSE FLUNGED QUICKLY.

A Guest of the Revere House Seriously Injured This Morning.

Andrew J. Hope, a guest at the Revere House, met with an exceedingly painful accident this morning while he was taking his usual morning ride. He was in a sleigh and the horse was feeling rather frisky in the sharp winter atmosphere. Without any warning the animal gave a plunge and upset the sleigh, throwing Mr. Hope out in the road.

In consequence Mr. Hope's forearm, just above the wrist, was fractured very badly. Mr. Hope received assistance and was taken to Dr Zeglio's office, where he received the proper treatment.

Mr. Hope was rather nervous as a result of the accident and the work of treating it caused him much pain, but no serious after effects are anticipated.

Mr. Hope is one of the oldest confectionery makers in New York city and has a place at 41 Nassau street.

Protective Conclave Officers.

At the meeting of Protective Conclave, No. 505, I. O. H., last night, the following officers were installed: Archon, E. L VanCampen; secretary, J. P. D. Kirch; financier, John T. Green; treasurer, E. M. Laing; warder, J. P. Laire. One new member, Health Inspector Addis, was initiated and there was one proposition for membership. District Deputy Jas. M. Sipp, of Newark, was present and installed the officers. A collation ended the evening.

A FAT BERTH FOR UNION COUNTY MAN.

C. N. Codding Spoken of For State Tax Board.

HE MAY HAVE OPPOSITION.

MUST BE CHOSEN BY COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

He Was Only Elected Chairman of That Body by a Majority of One Vote and May Meet Trouble There—Plainfield Men in Line For Place—Office Has Salary of $2,500 a Year.

Former Assemblyman Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, is in the field again for State honors. Such is the rumor that is running through Republican circles and has every appearance of being correct. The particular berth that the Hon. Mr. Codding is credited with having his eye on is the place on the State Board of Taxation which will soon be vacant through the completion of the term of office there of Carl Lentz, of Newark. Mr. Lentz's term expires and he is now looking for the prosecutorship in Essex county. Governor Voorhees will have the appointment of a new man to fill the place in the State Board.

Now, according to the regular order of things, if Governor Voorhees decides that Union county is entitled to have the place, the question of the appointee will be duly considered in the county executive committee of the G. O. P. It so happens that Mr. Codding is chairman of that very committee. Now Mr. Codding was only elected to that office by the smallest margain possible, one vote, and it may be that the balance of power will not be sufficient to give him the coveted appointment.

There is some talk among the local Republicans that, if such a plum is ready for distribution among the good Republicans of Union county, there are several Plainfielders who will fill the position with credit and ability and who are deserving of it. The position brings with it a salary of $2,500 a year.

Industrial Betterment

The League for Social Service, located in New York city, is sending out such leaflets as "A Citizen's Manual," by L. T. Chamberlain; "Good Citizenship, What it Is," by Bishop F D. Huntington, LL D.; "The Value of a Vote," by Peter Linn, illustrated; "Duties of American Citizenship," by Hon. Samuel B. Capen, and "The Duty of a Public Spirit," by E. Berj. Andrews, D. D., LL D. The league seeks the co-operation of all good citizens. Under the auspices of the men's meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, the secretary of the league, Wm. H. Tolman, Ph.D., will give an illustrated lecture upon "Industrial Betterment" next Monday night.

Big Attendance at the Fair.

There was the usual large attendance at the Warren Engine Company fair last evening and a good business was done. Tomorrow evening a fine programme will be presented, also on Saturday evening when the various contests will be decided. The firemen appreciate very much the support accorned thus far.

To Close Up Accounts.

Friday, February 17th, the Borough Council will hold an adjourned meeting to close up accounts for the year. Another meeting will be held early in March which will be the final one for the year previous to the election.

Hoot Mon.

An effort is being made by the Scotchmen living in this city to form a society among themselves. A meeting will be held at an early date.

Voters of North Plainfield are asked to fill out the above blank and forward their vote to Consolidation Headquarters, 107 East Front street. An X on either of the three last propositions is requested from voters who desire to be recorded in favor of consolidation. It is probable that the scheme receiving a majority will be adopted by the committee having the matter in charge and the same submitted to the voters for approval at the borough election to be held March 14.

ENGINEER WAS KILLED

STEPPED IN FRONT OF A TRAIN AT CRANFORD JUNCTION.

Philip Brown Was the Ill-Fated Man—"Owl" Train Was the One That Struck Him—Death Came Instantly

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Feb. 9—Philip Brown, engineer of Engine No. 365, drawing a coal train going east, was killed at Cranford Junction at 1:52 o'clock this morning. Brown had stopped his train at the Junction to oil the engine. After completing the right side he walked in front of his engine to the left side.

As he was walking around his engine he stepped on the westbound track just as the 1 o'clock "owl" train from New York whizzed by. The fast train struck Brown and killed him instantly. The engineer of the westbound train was not aware that he had struck anyone, it is said, until he reached Dunellen. The crew on the coal train took charge of Mr. Brown's remains and the body will be sent to Mauch Chunk where they will be interred.

A report was circulated about Plainfield this morning that it was Engineer Stephen Brown that was killed. Mr. Brown resides at Dunellen and runs a coal train between Bergen Point and Mauch Chunk. This report was not true, for inquiry among his relatives in this city revealed the fact that he went to Bergen Point last evening about 5 o'clock and he was not to bring a train into Jersey City early this morning as reported.

CHANGES IN BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION.

TERMS OF THREE MEMBERS EXPIRE.

Some of Present Incumbents May Be Re-elected—Democrats to Make a Contest.

The terms of three members of the Board of Education of the borough will expire this year. They are R M. Fountain, E. A. Overton and A. V. D Honeyman. George F. Brown, now collector, resigned early in the year, but he says that he has received no word that his resignation has been acted upon. According to the law he cannot hold membership in the Board and be collector, hence his resignation. As a result the vacancy caused by Mr. Brown's resignation will have to be filled. As yet there is very little talk as to who will be chosen to fill these vacancies. It is likely that some of the members will be returned, but there are good prospects of a strong fight on the part of the Democrats for honors.

It has been stated by men of good sound judgment that the present membership of the Board is too large, nine members, and that a Board of five or six members would be large enough. This sentiment is growing every day. It is said that with a membership of nine it is difficult to adjust differences that are bound to appear, and with a Board of a less number the differences would not be so great. It is also said that if Plainfield can run her school business with five commissioners, surely North Plainfield ought to get along with that number.

CHIEF MARSHAL WILSON TO RESIGN HIS OFFICE.

HIS RECORD HAS BEEN A GOOD ONE.

Mayor Wilson Has Been Notified of the Chief's Decision—Who Will be His Successor.

After a very satisfactory service as Chief Marshal of the borough for two years, William A. Wilson has decided to retire from his position at the end of the present borough year, and has so informed Mayor Wilson. Mr. Wilson has been a thoroughly honest man and has attended to his duties in a business-like manner since he has been in office. While he has made enemies, owing to his position, he has many friends who will regret to learn of his decision. Since he has been at the head of the borough police department the order of the borough has been excellent. It is now an open question as to who will succeed him.

Mr. Wilson has not yet decided just what business he will engage in after his term expires and he retires from office.

Attended a Banquet at Delmonico's.

BEDROOM GUTTED BY EVENING FIRE.

Lively Conflagration at Andrew Vanderbeek's Residence.

FROM MYSTERIOUS CAUSE.

OWNER AT HOSPITAL AS THE RESULT OF NERVOUS ATTACK.

Mr. Vanderbeek Has Been Ill for Several Weeks But Insisted on Getting Up—Fire Started in Closet but Spread to Bedroom and Attic—Loss was $300, Insured—Good Work of Chemical Engine

In some mysterious fashion fire started in a closet at the residence of Addrew Vanderbeek, 910 West Front street, last evening and destroyed the contents of the closet and the room adjoining before the firemen were able to subdue the flames. The fire gained fierce headway, and, in extinguishing it, the efficiency of the chemical engine was again thoroughly demonstrated. The loss was $300 and fully covered by insurance. As a result of the excitement attendant to the fire, Mr. Vanderbeek is now resting at Muhlenberg Hospital after a severe nervous shock.

Mr. Vanderbeek resides in one of the row of handsome residences that make up West End Park. He has been ill for several weeks and has not been out of bed until last evening. His daughter, Mrs. J. J. Shotwell, and her husband have been staying with him.

The fire was first discovered in a closest opening out of the back room on the second floor, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Shotwell, shortly after 7 o'clock. Jacob Kriney, a neighbor, sent in an alarm from box 48, corner of West Front and Albert streets, at 7:21 o'clock. The fire department responded.

The flames spread from the closest and soon the interior of the room adjoining was all ablaze. The fire also ran up between the partitions and started a conflagration in the attic above. When the firemen arrived, the room was a mass of flames and the house was filled with smoke. A stream from the chemical engine was turned into the fire and soon brought the fire under control. Had the regular streams been used, it would have flooded the house and destroyed much property before the fire could be extinguished.

The fire was in a rather difficult place to get at. After forty minutes fighting it was extinguished. In the room were two beds, two bureaus and some other furniture. All was practically destroyed. The woodwork in the room was also badly charred. The attic above the room was damaged to a limited extent.

The house is the property of Mr. Vanderbeek. The loss is estimated at $300, which is covered by insurance.

When the fire occurred Mr. Vanderbeek insisted upon getting up. The excitement of the occasion was a severe shock to his nervous system, and it was deemed best to send him to the hospital later in the evening where he might have rest and quiet. He is somewhat improved this morning.

A Still Alarm.

A still alarm was sent to fire department headquarters this morning at 7 o'clock, telling of a fire at the home of Mrs. E. B. Smith, 65 Westervelt avenue. The alarm was sent in by D. S. Dunavan by telephone. Assistant Chief Jennings and No. 2 hose wagon responded and found that the soot in the chimney had caught fire. It was easily extinguished.

Stuck in a Snow Drift.

B. W. Hand, of West Seventh street, was out driving in Piscataway yesterday afternoon when his carriage was caught in a huge snow drift. In his attempt to pull the carriage out of the drift the horse broke a trace, and Mr. Hand had quite a time before he could repair it and get his carriage out.

Cases Put Over the Term.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, February 9—Owing to the illness of Judge Bartine, all cases in the Somerset County Court, that were to have been considered immediately, have been laid over till the April term. All the jurors were also discharged.

Curate to Be in Charge.

—Rev. J. O. McKelvey will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4:15 p. m. Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will attend in a body. Miss Harris, soprano soloist of the First Baptist church, will sing a cornet solo.

COACHMAN'S HEAD CUT

EXCITING RUNAWAY STARTED ON NORTH AVENUE.

Horse Frightened at Engine Blowing Off Steam, and Tipped Over Cutter—Kicked Itself Loose and Had Wild Run

A runaway occurred this morning on North avenue which resulted disastrously for John Doull Miller's horse and sleigh. Mr. Miller and his coachman, Henry Sampson, were both thrown out, and Sampson was cut about the head.

Mr. Miller was driving from his home on East Ninth street to the station to take the 7:53 train to New York. The horse is a spirited one. Just after passing under the Watchung avenue railroad bridge an engine standing near began to blow off steam. This frightened the horse and he broke into a run which carried the sleigh around the corner into North avenue on one runner.

Then the horse began to kick, and in a moment the shafts were broken off and the front of the sleigh demolished. The horse shied in towards the gutter and right in front of the station the sleigh struck the curb and both men were thrown out.

Mr. Miller who was driving, fell in the gutter and was not hurt, but the coachman struck his head on the sharp curb, cutting a gash behind one ear. He was taken to Mallinson's drug store where his cut was bandaged, and later he was sent home.

The horse left the sleigh, and continued his run down Park avenue and Somerset street to Craig place where he was caught by Chauncey F. Stout.

Down Somerset street the horse took the sidewalk. Near Powers' store a little girl stepped out of a store almost in front of the runaway. She had a narrow escape, but managed to get out of the way in time to avoid being struck. The animal was taken charge of by John Haffner, and later sent home. Mr. Miller took a later train to New York.

ZERO WEATHER DID NOT STOP CLUB PLEASURES.

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE WAS PLAYED.

Catholic Members and Their Fair Friends Enjoyed a Very Pleasant Time.

While the temperature without was hanging near the zero point, those who were so fortunate as to be at the Plainfield Catholic Club were enjoying themselves without a thought of the frigid weather. It was a progressive euchre party and those who played comprised the young men of the club and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary. There were ten tables and play was started at 9:15. It was nearly 10:30 when the games were concluded, but a more enjoyable evening has seldom passed at the club. Mr. Comerford had charge of the affair, assisted by Miss Keeley, president of the auxiliary.

Ten prizes were offered. Miss Julia Day and Miss Catherine Flynn won first and second prizes for the ladies, while Thomas Owens and Edward Flynn secured the first and second for the men. The booby prizes were presented to Miss Louise Medden and William Winn, and the consolation prizes were won by Mrs. T. J. Comerford, Miss Sadie Hibbitts, Miss Allie Keeley and Miss Nellie Keeley.

After the play dancing was enjoyed, music for which was furnished by Eugene O'Reilly. About midnight a bountiful supper was served by the ladies in charge, after which dancing was continued to 1 o'clock.

OVERHEATED STOVE.

A Small Fire in the House Occupied by Arthur Adams.

An overheated stove in the residence of Arthur Adams, 426 West Second street, this morning, set fire to a paper fireboard and wooden mantel. An alarm was sent in from box 46, corner of West Second and Liberty streets, at 7:38 o'clock.

The firemen carried out the stove, tore down and carried out the mantel while the fireboard was consumed. The loss will amount to $10 which is covered by insurance. The house is owned by Miss Bissell who makes her home there with Mr. Adams family.

Prompt Work Appreciated.

The prompt and efficient work of the fire department last night at our residence is more than appreciated, and confirms us in the opinion heretofore held by us, that there is no better fire department in the State. The gentlemanly conduct of the officers and members is especially to be commended. We thank you cordially.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Vanderbeek.

C. P. RALLI UNABLE TO PAY LONDON TAILOR

He Is Examined in Supplementary Proceedings.

OWES LONDON FIRM $130.

ARISTOCRATIC PLAINFIELDER WITHOUT WATCH OR JEWELS.

At Present He is Living at the Astor House and Pays $1 a Day for His Room—He Tells Frankly of His Poverty—Expects to Inherit Fortunes Left by His Father and Grandfather.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 9—Lawyers, justices and stenographers are giving themselves grave concern these days because a member of the wealthy and influential Ralli family says he cannot pay a London tailor's bill for $130. Constantine Pantaleone Ralli, who resides on Belvidere avenue Plainfield, the debtor, is related to the members of the firm of Ralli Brothers, Greek commission merchants, who have branches in every large city of the world. Demetrius Ralli, the Premier, belonged to the family. The London firm has a branch here at No. 13 Old Slip. Constantine Pantaleone Ralli was examined in supplementary proceedings last Monday at the office of John F. Forrester, at No. 45 Wall street. In 1892 and 1894 he bought garments from the London firm of Stulz, Pape & Co., now Binnie & Craggs. The firm obtained a judgment against Mr. Ralli, and, being unable to collect it, had recourse to the last resort, supplementary proceedings.

Mr. Ralli met his inquisition with a smile. He was not accompanied by any lawyer. He said that he was willing to tell all that he could about his financial condition. He was faultlessly attired, a courty mannered man, forty-three years old, who spoke with a marked English accent. He was for years a familiar figure in Wall street, for he once occupied a responsible position with Brown Brothers & Co., the bankers.

Mr. Ralli said that he was at present living at the Astor House, where he paid $1 a day for his room. He admitted that he generally occupied a house at Netherwood. He lived in the city because his dwelling had been made uninhabitable on account of a fire.

He testified that his father died in London on January 31st, 1873, leaving an estate of $700,000 in personal property exclusively. The income of the estate was to be paid to his mother during her lifetime, and was to be divided among the children upon her death. Mr. Ralli thought that his share would be between $50,000 and $75 000. The trustees under the will are Stephen Augustus Ralli, Alexander A. Viasto and Lucas E. Ralli, all of London. The first named is Mr. Ralli's cousin and the others are uncles. Mr. Ralli said that the trustees had paid him $25,000 on April 12th, 1892.

Mr. Ralli said his grandfather, Eustratius Ralli, who died in 1884, left $200,000, the income of which was to go to the witness' mother during her lifetime, and on her death was to be divided among her children. Mr. Ralli thought that he would receive $25,000 under this will.

He said that he had spent the $25,000 paid him in 1892. Of this $9 000 had gone for the house at Netherwood, $4 000 for grounds, to say nothing of house furnishings, stable, kennels, brougham and horses. The sum of $2,000 was spent in grading the grounds and otherwise improving the place. He deeded the house to his wife in 1893, and by a bill of sale transferred all his personal property—the contents of his house—to Mr. Ralli. His wife died intestate in 1896. He sold his horses and carriages on account of business reverses. His mother now pays for the education of his children.

Mr. Ralli said he was vice-president of the Penn Cordage Company, of Beverly, N. J. The corporation is now in the hands of a receiver. Mr. Ralli said that he had received $6,000 a year, but now the corporation owes him $1,073 for moneys advanced. He said that he had no personal property, and had had no bank account for two years.

Questioned with regard to jewelry, Mr. Ralli exhibited his ringless fingers and pointed to the fact he had neither watch, chain nor guard. He said that he had given his gold watch to a friend to whom he was indebted for a loan.

He testified that he was at present earning his living expenses as a broker. Justice Conlan, of the City Court, appointed George M. Boynton as receiver of the property of Mr. Ralli, if anything can be discovered.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

Facts Are Stubborn

If Plainfield People Are Not Convinced By Local Testimony They Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed in the past two years how "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mushrooms in a meadow, and following the Plethora of cures, the general public have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts are demanded but it has become also essential to know who supplies them, where are they from, in fine, whom have you cured. Doubting Thomas would not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home. "Give us some neighbor, then I will believe" is what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like, at home, local or neighbors testimony, you can always ascertain the truth of it without leaving the city limits. Here is a case:

Mrs. R.A. Martin, of No. 70 Jackson Ave., says: "I had pains in my back and loins for about a year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain but they strengthened me in other ways. I can cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering with a lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50c. a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for U. S.

MORE NEWS FROM OTIS

Manila Is Quiet And The Citizens Appear Generally Cheerful.

HIS SOLDIERS WERE BRAVE

Will Not Confer with Insurgent Chief—Native Forces Broken Up—Gen. Otis Reports That Their Army is Disintegrated.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—General Otis, in the following dispatch to the war department describes the engagement at Caloocan, six miles north of the city:

Manila, Feb. 8.

Adjutant General, Washington:

Situation rapidly improving; reconnoissance yesterday to south, several miles to east to Lagunade Bay, to northeast eight miles. Driving straggling insurgent troops in various directions, encountering no decided opposition; army disintegrated and natives returning to village displaying white flag; near Calcoocan, six miles north, the enemy made a stand behind intrenchments; charged by Kansas troops led by Colonel Funston; close encounter resulting in rout of enemy with very heavy loss. Loss to Kansas —Lieutenant Alford killed, six men wounded.

Night of 4th Aguinaldo issued flying proclamation charging Americans with initiative and declared war; Sunday issued another, calling all to resist foreign invasion; his influence throughout this section destroyed; now applies for cessation of hostilities and conference; have declined to answer; insurgent expectation of rising in city on night of 4th unrealized, provost marshal general, with admirable disposition of troops defeated every attempt; city quiet, business resumed; natives respectful and cheerful; the fighting qualities of American troops a revelation to all inhabitants.

CHARGE AT CALOOCAN.

Kansas Volunteers Gallantly Rescue a Reconnoitering Party.

Manila Wednesday, Feb. 8.—9.05 a. m.—Three companies of the Kansas regiment, under command of Colonel Funston, made a brilliant charge last evening against a body of Filipinos who were hard pressing a reconnoitering party which was doing duty not far from Caloocan. The Americans behaved with the greatest gallantry.

The reconnoitering party were fighting against very heavy odds, but they showed no signs of quitting though there is scarcely a doubt that they would have been cut to pieces had it not been for the opportune arrival of the Kansas troops. After a desperate conflict, in which Lieutenant Albert C. Alford of Company I and a private were killed and five wounded, the enemy were driven back to Caloocan, which is the strongest position of the rebels.

Meantime the light draught gunboats were shelling the town from the left, while the Utah Battery was putting in good work from the right.

Their shells set the town on fire and it is supposed inflicted severe losses on the Filipinos.

Casualties.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The casualties reported so far by General Otis number two hundred and fifty. In his dispatch to the war department Monday General Otis estimated the casualties at exactly that number, but the estimate did not include one officer killed and six wounded in the charge of the Twentieth Kansas on Caloocan, which occurred subsequent to the sending of the dispatch. The additional casualties reported yesterday number fifty-three, in detail seven killed, one missing and forty-five wounded. The reports to date capitulated are as follows: Killed, 57; wounded, 193; the missing being included among the killed.

AGAINST ILOILO NEXT.

Otis it is Believed Has Sent Reenforcements There.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Important news concerning Iloilo was received at the war department from General Otis yesterday. There is reason to believe that General Otis has sent reinforcements to Brigadier General Miller, who is in command of the detachment there, with instructions to demand the surrender of the place, and if the demand is refused to take the town by force.

The troops at Iloilo are the Eighteenth regular infantry and one battery of the Sixth regular artillery. They are on transports lying near the entrance to Iloilo bay. The warships Baltimore and Petrel are at Iloilo and the Boston is on her way there to relieve the Baltimore.

The latest information received from General Otis regarding the situation at Manila is regarded as most important. Notwithstanding the belief that there will be more fighting, it is felt that the backbone of the Philippine uprising is broken. This is indicated in the statement of General Otis that Aguinaldo's influence in the vicinity of Manila has been destroyed, and the fact that the insurgent leader has requested cessation of fighting and a conference.

It is believed that Aguinaldo depended considerably upon support in Manila, and the good work of the soldiers in the city is responsible for the failure of the natives to assist in the insurrection.

The assertion is made by several officers that the decision of the president and the cabinet that an aggressive campaign should be pursued by the United States forces had probably been communicated to General Otis. Secretary Alger says, however, that General Otis would not be instructed as to the detailed conduct of the campaign.

Yellow Fever Among Soldiers.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 9.—Six cases of yellow fever have developed among the soldiers belonging to the 202d New York regiment, stationed at Guanajay, province of Pinar del Rio.

Private Clooney is very ill, but the other cases are not regarded as being specially serious.

SHERMAN AND SPANISH EMBASSY.

On Restoration of Peace an Ambassador Goes to Spain.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Now that the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain has been ratified there is talk in administration circles of ex-Secretary John Sherman and the Spanish embassy. When peace is restored it will be necessary to send an ambassador to Spain to negotiate for the restoration of commercial, extradition and other treaties that existed before the war.

There is talk in official circles of offering this place to ex-Secretary Sherman, and asking him once more to enter public life and serve this administration and the country. Ex-Secretary Sherman, a few days before the vote was taken, changed his views and gave out an interview urging ratification of the treaty.

HON. JOHN SHERMAN.

It is argued by some that ex-Secretary Sherman would not care to take a commission after having been secretary of state, but it is acknowledged that such a special mission gives the ambassador a higher position in the diplomatic world than that of an ordinary minister.

Pan-American Fair Bill.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Senator G. A. Davis introduced the Pan-American exposition appropriation bill, authorizing the governor to appoint six general managers of the exposition, to provide a building for state headquarters, and an exhibit of the commercial, agricultural, industrial, military, naval, artistic and other interests of the state.

The governor is to appoint a board of district commissioners for each of the eight judicial districts of the state, a chief executive officer of the board of managers at a salary of $3,500 a year, and a secretary at a salary of $2,000, the slaries not to be paid for more than two years. Members of all boards are to serve without compensation. The act makes an appropriation of five hundred thousand dollars. Senator Davis secured the advancement of the bill to the order of final passage without opposition.

Honors to the Maine's Chaplain.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 9.—An unusual distinction was given the Rev. Father John P. Chidwick, chaplain of the battleship Maine, yesterday by the assembly of New York state. Upon motion of Assemblyman Trainor of New York, not only the privileges of the floor were extended to him, but he was also asked to occupy the speaker's chair, from which he briefly addressed the assembly on the blowing up of the Maine. Great applause greeted the chaplain as he took his seat in the speaker's chair.

He said that the assertion frequently made that the officers of the Maine were on land when the explosion occurred was a base falsehood. He recited the incidents of the awful night when the Maine's brave sailors became the victims of Spanish treachery.

He thanked the assembly on behalf of the sailors of the Maine for the distinction conferred upon him, which he said was offered in their name rather than because of his own personality.

Anxiety For Overdue Ships.

New York, Feb. 9.—The reports of the terrible hurricane encountered in mid-ocean on the last westward voyage of the big liners St. Louis, Lucania and La Champagne, have made the owners and agents of delayed vessels somewhat uneasy regarding their ships.

Seafaring men have given up all hope of ever seeing the British freighter Almida, which sailed from Shields, England, for this port, on December 19 last, in command of Captain A. McGregor, with a crew of twenty-five men.

The Tweedie Trading Company's steamer Catania, from Glasgow, December 21, left St. Michaels, Azores, on the sixth of January last, and up to the present time the vessel has not been heard from.

Bowering & Archibald, the agents of the Catania, say that the boat ought to have been here several days ago, but that it has probably been delayed by the hurricane.

The overdue liner is in charge of Captain Furlong and has a crew of thirty-five.

Barrios's Fortune Swept Away.

San Francisco, Feb. 9.—Of the splendid fortune acquired by President Barrios, while at the head of the Guatemalan government, not a vestige remains. Mme. Ageria Regia Barrios, his widow, has received advices from her agents in the Central American republic that the vast estates, valued at ten million dollars, have been seized by creditors and legal processes issued. Mme. Barrios, who saved her private fortune, consisting mostly of securities and jewels, will soon go to Europe."

London, Feb. 9.—A dispatch from Bucharest to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the sultan of Turkey is ill. He has a variety of delusions and is in constant fear of assassination.

MR. PORTER TO BERLIN

The President's Commissioner Is Sent On A Secret Mission.

IT RELATES TO COMMERCE

Declines to Discuss It, but Promises Important News—St. Louis Has a Big List of Passengers Including Several Persons of Note.

New York, Feb. 9.—The scenes attending the departure of the American line steamer St. Louis yesterday were like those of an early summer sailing, despite the miniature blizzard which howled through the ship's rigging and which kept the sailors busy sweeping snow and sleet from her decks. The St. Louis carried an unusually large number of saloon passengers, and there were many notable persons included in the list, besides a bevy of theatrical beauties to add life and gayety to the voyage.

Perhaps the passenger whose presence on board was fraught with the most importance was Hon. Robert P. Porter, who has only just returned from Cuba, after accomplishing a delicate mission, which will result in the disbanding of the Cuban army under Gomez. His intended departure for Europe had been kept a secret, and only those who had a personal acquaintance with the commissioner were aware of his presence on board, as his name did not appear on the published passenger list. A reporter found Commissioner Porter in the saloon and asked for information as to his trip.

"You can just say that I am going abroad for a short visit, and expect to be back in about six weeks," said Mr. Porter.

"But going so suddenly after your return from Cuba, and the fact that your name was not on the passenger lists will lead many people to think that there is some other significance to your journey," said the reporter.

"The Cuban and Porto Rico tariff measures which I was requested to prepare have been finished, and my latest mission to Cuba brought to a successful close, so why should I not take a little rest?"

"Will you state, Mr. Porter, whether you are going on any mission for the government?"

"I will say this much, I expect to visit London and Berlin in connection with commercial matters. More than this I cannot say at present. We may have a good story for you in a few weeks, however."

"Do you go as a representative of the United States government?"

"I am not answering any more questions," replied the commissioner with a laugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, General E. Burd Grubb, former minister to Spain; Robert E. A. Derr and General C. A. Whittier, U. S. A., were also on board.

Gen. Eagan's Suspension.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Although General Eagan has been suspended without rank or duty, he still remains commissary general of the army, drawing the pay of that office, and there is no way in which he can be displaced until he is retired. In this the army differs from the navy, because in the latter branch of the service such staff appointments are made for a term of four years, at the end of which time the incumbent may be changed or reappointed. In the army the appointments is for the remaining term of service.

This was decided in the case of Judge Advocate General Swaim, a number of years ago. Though suspended from the army for twelve years he continued to be the judge advocate general, although his duties were performed by the acting judge advocate general, Lieber, the present incumbent of the office, and this state of things continued for nine years during all of which time General Swaim continued to draw full pay, while his deputy drew only the pay corresponding to the lower rank.

General Eagan is still in Washington and the acting commissary general, Colonel John F. Weston, is sick in New York, never yet having been able to assume his place in the department at Washington.

Not to be Discharged Yet.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—It was said at the war department that the decision respecting the status quo in the Philippines also covers the question of the disbanding of the army. There is quite a large proportion of the increase of the regular army that was mustered in "for the war," with the specific pledge that on the return of peace these men, although regulars and mustered in nominally for three years, would be given their discharge at any time on their own request.

If advantage were generally taken of this pledge it would seriously deplete American forces in the field, but the time for the redemption of this promise has not arrived, and, according to the ruling of the department the war continues until after the exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty by the two countries. After that the end of the war probably will be formally announced by executive proclamation, as was the declaration of the war last spring.

Working on the Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The Senate committee on military affairs yesterday continued its consideration of the army reorganization bill. Major General Miles has been before the committee giving his recommendations as to the various provisions of the bill.

General Miles made the suggestion that if it was apparent the reorganization bill could not be passed by the Senate the only thing to do was to extend for one year the provisions for the present temporary increase of the army on the basis of sixty-two thousand men.

Cereal Trust a Fact.

DOANE & EDSALL'S.

A Burlington, Vt., engineer was troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion, accompanied by headaches and heartburn, for over two years. Some of the time he was unable to work. His physicians did him no permanent good. He commenced using Ripans Tabules and obtained immediate relief. "I took one after each meal for about two weeks," he writes, "and felt so much better that now I only take one after supper and I feel all right."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (FIVE TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

GEN. MILES DISCREDITED.

War Board Find His Embalmed Beef Testimony is Not Substantiated.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The war investigating commission has completed its labors and its report will be in the hands of the president to-day.

The report of the war commission is a voluminous document of 150 printed pages. The report makes an important feature of the beef issue and dismisses as a general proposition the charges that have been made against the beef furnished the army. It finds, it is understood, that most of the beef was such as could be properly furnished as an emergency ration, pointing out that the evidence showed it never was intended to be anything but an emergency ration.

It says that there were only two witnesses who really testified against the beef, General Miles and Major Daly, the chief surgeon, who made the report regarded as the most sensational forwarded to the commission by General Miles.

As to the testimony of these two witnesses the commission, it is understood, goes on to point out the mass of evidence submitted to the contrary as offsetting this testimony.

As to such of the canned beef as was found to be objectionable, the commission points out the effect of the tropical climate in producing liquefaction of the fat in the meat and the consequent rendering of the contents unpalatable.

Most of the beef, though, is found to have been satisfactory for emergency use, where fresh beef or beef on the hoof could not be procured.

The strictures of General Miles made publicly on the beef and his public expressions in other ways, it is understood, are subjected to a severe criticism.

The methods and manner of loading the transports in General Shafter's Cuban expedition are also discussed and responsibility placed for the results.

The report finds that the statements of chemical treatment made by General Miles, on the authority of Major Daly, are not borne out by the chemical experts, who were also placed on the stand.

It quotes from Major Daly's testimony and then takes up the testimony of Chemists Clarke of the Geological Survey and Bigelow of the Agricultural department, who examined analyses of the beef submitted and finds that as a chemical expert Major Daly is not supported by other chemical authorities and that therefore his testimony is regarded as not worthy of credence.

Saved Her Gems from a Thief.

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 9.—The cottage occupied by Alexander B. Coxe, millionaire coal miner and philanthropist, of Drifton, Pa., and his family, as a winter residence, was robbed of jewels worth more than three thousand dollars Tuesday night, but Mrs. Coxe's bravery saved many thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and silver after a hard struggle with the burglar.

Mrs. Coxe awoke at two o'clock in the morning and reaching for medicine, touched instead the arm of a man. The plucky woman jumped from the bed on the man, and seizing him, slammed the door. Her cries alarmed the household, but not in time to assist in capturing the burglar, who, shaking her off, wriggled about the floor, feeling for the door.

Again Mrs. Coxe grasped him, but the burglar, finding the door knob, threw the door open, and breaking away, disappeared down the stairs. Mrs. Coxe followed him to the door, crying for help.

The thief took one ring, with three diamonds, valued at one thousand dollars; one ring with three diamonds, one of which was a rare yellow stone valued at eighteen hundred dollars; one pin with twelve pearls, valued at five hundred dollars, and an engraved wedding ring.

Many gems, valued at more than twenty thousand dollars, were found on the floor, where they had been dropped by the burglar when Mrs. Coxe attacked him.

Big Winnipeg Hotel Burned.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 9.—The Hotel Manitoba, the property of the Northern Pacific Railway, is a smoking mass of ruins to-day. Fire was discovered in the dining room shortly after midnight, and in less than four hours the magnificent structure was entirely destroyed.

At first very little importance was attached to the fire, as only smoke could be seen, but in a very few minutes it had gained such headway that it was found necessary to send in a general alarm. Two hours later the building was a total wreck.

There were four hundred guests in the building, but no one was injured. There were many narrow escapes, however. The night was bitterly cold and many of those who were turned out in scant clothing suffered from the elements. Several were badly frostbitten.

The building was one of the finest in Canada. It was erected in 1891 and was seven stories in height.

The total loss is placed at four hundred thousand dollars. Many of the guests lost heavily in personal effects. Most of the guests were attending the big curling bonspiel here.

The Northern Pacific waiting rooms, baggage and express departments, despatchers', superintendent's and other offices, which were in a two-story extension of the east wing, were destroyed by the fire.

PHILLIPINE COMMISSION.

Schurman and Worcester May Reach Manila Just in Time

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—It is considered fortunate that the Philippine commissioners, Professors Schurman and Worcester, will arrive at Manila just in time to be of the greatest benefit to the president. A cabinet member on this point says:

"The commissioners arrive at Yokohama about February 13 and at Hong Kong February 21. A steamer will be waiting for them there and they will sail at once for Manila, reaching there February 23. Both Admiral Dewey and General Otis will be expecting them and the commission will organize and begin work. The commission will not be in existence until it reaches Manila and organizes with the naval and army officers. The president did not intend it to come into existence until after the treaty was ratified, and therefore the commissioners did not take the oath of office here. We are now in a position to make our own terms and lay down our own rules for the Philippines. The treaty has been ratified and we hold sovereignty over the islands.

"The first thing the commission will do will be to ask the Filipinos to show us of what the native government consists. The commissioners can ask to see the so-called Filipino congress and the other branches of the so-called government, and then they will be able to judge if it is sufficiently stable to be continued with our aid.

"The commission will then direct its attention to the location of garrisons for our troops. These, if it is found that local government in the islands can be established in a peaceful and satisfactory manner, will not be numerous, and the military protectorate will not be oppressive or harsh."

It is thought that as soon as the new commission arrives at Manila and has conferred with the Filipinos it will have an immediate effect for good and the natives will be ready to agree to a peaceful occupation of the islands by the Americans. The president is also of the opinion that kindness will do more with these people than oppression and harsh treatment.

Otis Proud of His Men.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Secretary Alger has received this message from General Otis, dated Manila, Feb. 7.

"Sincere thanks for congratulations. All credit due to hearty response of troops to orders of officers."

Dewey Also Returns His Thanks.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Secretary Long has received the following cable message from Admiral Dewey in response to the congratulatory dispatch transmitted to the admiral on Tuesday:

"The commander-in-chief, officers and men thank the president and secretary of the navy for their congratulations."

Equipped by Germany.

Washington, Feb. 9—It is stated here on what seems the best of authority that Germany furnished Aguinaldo 500,000 marks about January 1, and that when Aguinaldo's soldiers fired at the Americans they shot German bullets, bought with German money.

It is also stated Senator Foraker knew this when, on January 16, he made his speech with veiled references to the interference of foreign governments of which he might not speak with propriety except behind closed doors. This Government learned of Germany's action about two weeks after the transaction, or just before Senator Foraker made his speech.

The Senator to-day refused to affirm or deny the accuracy of the statement. "I have no doubt," said he, "that the Filipino rebels have been encouraged by Spain and probably other powers. I think, however, the ratification of the treaty will discourage Agnaldo and soon restore matters to a normal condition.

Among well-informed Senators there is a well defined impression that if Aguinaldo had been even half way successful, Germany would have intervened before this, basing her action upon the assertion that we were unable to preserve order.

Gen. Rios on the Fighting.

Madrid, Feb. 9.—Cabling from Manila, General Rios, the Spanish commander, reports that the Americans "repulsed the Filipinos after twenty hours' fighting." He adds:

"The Filipinos now occupy our old advance posts. The American artillery and guns of the squadron destroyed several villages in the neighborhood. They are treating the population with much severity, and many arrests have been made in Manila. Troops occupy the streets and the natives are prevented from circulating, though hostilities have ceased. I have no news from the rest of the archipelago and am anxious about the prisoners."

Agoncillo to the London Junta.

London, Feb. 9.—The Filipino junta here has received a dispatch from Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo, dated at Montreal, Feoruary 7, "deploring the hostilities, which have had the effect of securing the ratification of tht peace treaty." He says that he believes the outbreak was provoked by the Americans, in order to secure the ratification of the treaty, and declares that the Filipinos "far from being the aggressors, were taken by surprise and were unprepared."

Agoncillo Closely Watched.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—It has been ascertained that two members of the United States secret service are at present in this city watching the doings of Agoncillo and his companions, while two other unknown men are watching the secret service officers. Detective Kellert is also on the alert, but it is not known for whom he is working.

Finally, two men of the Canadian secret service have been detailed by Chief Percy Sherwood to watch the Filipinos and see that they commit no overt act. Senor Juan Luna, private secretary of Secretary Lopez of the Filipino junta in Washington, has arrived in this city, and has been in consultation with Agoncillo and Marti at the Windsor hotel.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL

May Attach The House Bill To River and Harbor Measure.

CONSIDERING PROPOSITION

This Would Insure the Matter Being Brought to a Vote in the House Despite Speaker Reed's Opposition. There are Precedents for this Course.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—A proposition to add the House Nicaragua canal bill as an amendment to the river and harbor bill in the Senate is now under consideration. The adoption of this proposition appears to depend upon Senator Frye, chairman of the Senate commerce committee, and it is believed that he will approve of it. The status of the Nicaragua bill is as follows:

The Senate has passed the Morgan bill, with amendments, and the House committee has favorably reported the Hepburn bill, with amendments. These bills differ greatly in form, but the House bill gives the president great latitude and might admit of his paying for work done on the canal by private corporations as is contemplated in the Senate bill.

It is claimed that there is an overwhelming majority in the House for the bill, but that Speaker Reed is not disposed to give time for its consideration. At the suggestion of Mr. Barham, a member of the House committee, the proposition has been made to attach the House bill to the river and harbor bill, which is now before Senator Frye's committee.

The objection that might be raised to this method of getting a vote on the measure is that it provides for work on water ways outside the United States and therefore has no place on the river and harbor bill. This objection is answered by the citation of the fact that an appropriation for the improvement of Pearl Harbor, in Hawaii, was made in a river and harbor bill while that island was foreign territory, and that an appropriation was made for Pago Pago Bay, Samoa, and that other like appropriations have been made in river and harbor bills.

It is stated that Senator Morgan is willing to accept the House Nicaragua bill as an amendment to the river and harbor bill and that Senator Frye appears to be favorably disposed if the precedents are established. The question is to be settled at a conference.

To the House.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—In the House yesterday Mr. Corliss, Republican of Michigan, called up the Senate bill to amend the law requiring ballots for members of Congress to be written or printed so as to permit the use of machines where authorized by the laws of the state. The bill was passed, 94 to 44.

When the regular order was called for Mr. Mercer, Republican, of Nebraska, chairman of the public buildings and grounds committee, instead of moving to go into committee of the whole for the consideration of the remaining bills reported from the committee, indicated his purpose, first to pass the bills favorably acted upon by the committee of the whole Monday. The members who still had bills unacted upon objected strenuously to this proceeding, and finally, under the threat of filibustering, Mr. Mercer yielded and the House went into committee of the whole and took up the remaining bills in their order.

He gave notice that he would move that the committee rise at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Maddox, Democrat of Georgia, made a general onslaught upon the work of the committee on public buildings and grounds, charging that the committee had discriminated outrageously in favor of certain cities. He cited particularly Carrollton, Ky. There were, he said, thirty-two larger towns than Carrollton in Kentucky, without buildings. But the popularity of the member representing that district, Mr. Berry, had secured a favorable report on that bill.

Army Bill to be Passed.

Washington, D. C. Feb. 9.—There is every reason to believe that the army reorganization bill will pass the Senate with a few slight amendments. The Democrats, held by Gorman against the treaty, cannot be kept in line against the army bill. Senators Murphy and Smith especially favor the measure, and there are others who opposed the treaty, but who will vote for the Hull measure.

The only hope of the opposition is to filibuster. Senator Gorman being a member of the committee on appropriations, will endeavor to have all the appropriation bills considered and passed by the Senate before the army bill is taken up. The minority are willing to pass a resolution continuing the army another year on its present basis, and they hope to compel a compromise on this ground.

Comptroller Issues Bank Call.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The comptroller of the currency has issued a call for reports of the condition of all national banks at the close of business February 4.

New President for Brown.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 9.—At a meeting of the Brown University Corporation the Rev. Dr. James Monroe Taylor has been unanimously elected president of the university. Dr. Taylor is now president of Vassar College and was formerly pastor of the Fourth Baptist church in this city.

National Power for Buffalo's Fair.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The House Committee on Ways and Means has agreed to report favorably the bill appropriating five hundred thousand dollars for the Pan-American Electric Exposition at Buffalo in 1901. The bill provides two hundred thousand dollars for a government building and three hundred thousand dollars for an exhibit.

Carnegie's Offer to Atlanta.

Atlanta Ga., Feb. 9.—Andrew Carnegie has offered the city of Atlanta one hundred thousand dollars for a free public library, the conditions being that the city furnish the site and devote five thousand dollars per year to the maintenance of the institution.

COMING EVENTS.

February 12—Franklin and Somerset Councils, O. U. A. M., will attend the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m. Rev. J. O. McKelvy will speak. All men are invited.

Something Must Be Done.

With the growth of every city from a small municipality there comes several important questions that must be answered by local legislators. The steps in the development of the fire department form a very important part. Plainfield is now struggling with a problem that must be answered. Through the exemption of the members of the volunteer fire department, after serving the necessary time appointed by law, it becomes necessary to either organize a new department of untried men or else establish a smalier force of competent paid men, after the plan commonly known as the "call" system.

While under ordinary circumstances the present state of affairs offers the city complete protection against fire, the conflagration of early yesterday morning was plain evidence of the need of a change.

The fire occurred at 5 o'clock in the morning when the volunteer firemen were fast asleep. The fire was some distance from the homes of many of them, and the tramp through the blinding sleet did not offer many inducements. Look at the result. The official reports, filed in the office of Chief Engineer Doane, show that of the officers and men of the Alert Hose Company not one was present. No. 2 Engine Company was represented by two officers and one man. Gazelle Engine Company had one officer and two men on hand. Three men were on duty from the Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company. Luckily, there was but little for the firemen to do, and the nine volunteers and the paid drivers were sufficient to cope with the situation. It might not have been so.

While the fire committee of the Council should be commended for not rushing into the matter without a thorough investigation of the advantages and disadvantages of the various plans proposed, the question is one that needs proper attention without delay.

An Imposing Array.

The Daily Press stands corrected on the statement made in its columns last Monday that there were only two Republican lawyers in Somerset county eligible to succeed Judge Bartine on the County Court bench. There is at least seven Republicans in Somerset county who are eligible to the office.

They are: Hugh K. Gaston, Lewis Schenck, former Surrogate Wm. H. Long and Henry F. Galpin, of Somerville; Henry C. Suydam, of Bound Brook, and A. V. D. Honeyman and Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield.

With this imposing array of legal talent Gov. Voorhees ought not to have any trouble selecting a good man from among the Somerset Republicans to succeed Judge Bartine.

It is doubtful if one man out of ninety-nine in Union county can tell offhand where Picton is, and many even do not know that there is such a place on the map. That does not prevent Picton from looming up in big proportions, however, for only the other day the "American Felt Company," capitalized at $5,000,000 with the whole earth for a field of business, was incorporated with the Secretary of State and the main office stated to be in Picton. It's dollars to doughnuts that if any one of the stockholders in that great concern was turned loose in this vicinity he would have no more idea of how to find his way there than we would of knowing the direction of north, south, east or west if we were in the middle of the Atlantic ocean without a compass. Of course, that's no reflection on the incorporation laws of New Jersey. Oh no!

Assemblyman Murray's bill which repeals the law of May 18th, 1898 extending the time to complete certain trolley roads so that the contracts between the municipalities and the corporations are practically nullified in favor of the latter, has been passed by the lower house of the Legislature. If ever there was a pernicious piece of legislation enacted in favor of corporations this law is. It is to be hoped that the Senate will pass the bill and that the Governor will sign it.

The public at large is losing interest in the methodical deadlock voting in the Pennsylvania and Delaware Legislatures for a United States Senator. Quay and Addicks are right on hand, though, and if there is the slightest loophole for them to squeeze through into an election at any time, they are the boys who will not miss the opportunity.

Dunellen has at last got her spunk up to the point of suing Plainfield for disposing of city sewage under her nose. The amount of damages to be demanded has not yet been decided, but it is not expected to be a wee bit. Dunellen has been deliberating over the matter too long to trifle with small demands.

The Newark Advertiser quotes President of the Senate Reed as one of the Republicans who assisted Billy Thompson in getting his amendment to the liquor license law passed through the upper house. Evidently the Tall Sycamore of Somerset has no fear of the W. C. T. U.

Crooked deals of any sort are still an unknown quantity in Governor Roosevelt's administration. The Colonel is too much of a rough rider for the "boys," but the rank and file of New York people are smiling satisfactorily over the present state of affairs.

That notable gentleman of Chicago, the Hon. Bath House John, announces his retirement from the office of Alderman in order to become the "main guy" of an automobile concern. Fated Chicago! What will the windy city do for a great statesman now?

Already there is a well-defined rumor that Major Lentz will withdraw from the race for appointment as Prosecutor of Essex county. The Major probably sees embarrassments ahead and he is preparing to fall as gracefully as he can.

Lincoln's birthday falls on next Sunday, but it will be legally celebrated on Monday. There will be more observance of the holiday this year than previously.

What a reception Dewey would get now if he he was only in this country and could take a swing around the circle, as we say of the politicians.

It is no trouble to lick the Filipinos. Where the tug comes in will be to keep them licked.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Your average Jersey constable won't do anything but appreciate such a law as the McKee bill promises, if it goes to the Governor and is approved. Oftentimes the criticism of the Justice of the Peace applies with equal force to his constables. The McKee bill grants to those functionaries fifty cents "for each attendance upon prisoners under examination before a Justice of the Peace." As the Justice may call the prisoners before him whenever he sees fit, by a little shaveoff with the constable the fifty cent fee can be stretched to comfortable proportions, while the taxpayers never will know how they are being robbed. The honest Justice wouldn't participate, of course, but there are others.—New York Press.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Joseph Callahan who appears as Mephistopheles in the great scenic production of "Faust" at Music Hall, Saturday, has made for himself enviable reputation throughout the country and is one of the most promising actors of the day. It is said that he has employed months of hard work on the part; he has read and observed and the result is that while he has embodied the best points of those who have preceded him in the character, he has added ideas and suggestions of his own which are not only effective but highly ingenious. With wise forethought, the management has surrounded Mr. Callahan with a company of players fully in accord with his ideas and the different members from an excellent background which admirably sets off the principal. Neither have the scenic accessories been overlooked, but on the contrary this important factor has been supplied with a lavish hand and a series of beautiful stage pictures is promised. It will undoubtedly be a fine production. The matinee performance will be particularly interesting for ladies and children.

The greatest personal success achieved by any actress in America for many years has been made by Viola Allen in Hall Caine's powerful play, "The Christian" now running at the Garden Theatre in New York and who will end her New York engagement Saturday March 4th. Although Mr. Caine's drama has met with phenominal public favor, its success is largely due to Miss Allen's artistic and most forceful impersonation of "Glory Quayle." Mr. Caine when in America pronounced her work a perfect realization of this character, both in the comedy scenes in the prologue, and in the strong dramatic situations in the second and third acts. Miss Allen has long held a conspicuous place on the American stage. She is the daughter of C. Leslie Allen one of the most famous "old men" players in America. She made her debut at the Madison Square Theatre in New York in the title role in "Esmeralda" when but fifteen years of age. A year later she became leading lady for the late John McCullough and made a hit as Virginia in his Virginius. The next season she supported Lawrence Barrett, and the following year became leading lady for the elder Salvini, playing Desdemona, Parthenia, Rosalie and Cordelia with great success. In support of Joseph Jefferson and the late William T. Florence, she made hits as Ciceley Homespun in "The Heir-at-Law" and as Lydia Languish in "The Rivals."

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 9—Although the borough election is now quite near at hand, there is very little being said about the candidates for the borough offices. A Mayor and several Councilmen are to be elected this spring, as well as other borough officials. The present Mayor, Dr. Brakeley, has held his office ever since the town was incorporated into a borough four years ago, and before that was president of the Township Committee for a couple of years. There is no talk of putting up another Republican for the office, for Mayor Brakeley has been such an efficient official that there is no opposition to him, and no doubt he will get the nomination and be elected. The Democrats are talking of nominating Lewis Snyder, a popular politician.

The Washington Avenue Card Club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Giddes and enjoyed a pleasant evening with cards. After the prizes had been awarded dancing was begun and kept up until a late hour. Refreshments were served by the hostess, and all voted that this meeting of the club one of the best ever held. The ladies' prizes were won by Miss Emma Marlow and Miss Jessie Maltby, and the gentlemen prizes by Fred Haynes and Robert Giddes.

The snow storm Tuesday night and yesterday interfered with the running of the trolley cars to Bound Brook and the railroad trains were the only means of transportation between the two places for several hours.

Samuel Merrill was out yesterday with his snow plough and very kindly broke paths through the principal streets.

Arthur Giddes, of Port Richmond, S. I., has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel C. Giddes.

Alfred Jeitties, of Philadelphia, is is visiting his grandparents, Squire and Mrs. Samuel Lucky.

Mrs. Charles Dineen has returned has returned from a visit with her daughter in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Kimball, of Kearney, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, of Mountain avenue.

Mrs. C. M. Bowyer is spending a few weeks among relatives at Beverley, this State.

The Misses Jamison are entertain a friend, Miss Compton, from Rahway.

Geo. Schenck attended the funeral of an uncle at Somerville yesterday.

John Beekman spent yesterday visiting relatives in Bound Brook.

Miss Mabel Walker, of New York, is visiting friends in town.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, Feb. 9—Mulford W. Casterline has signed a lease for Nelson's Hotel with Lloyd Nelson, its owner. The lease is for three years and is to begin April 1st. Mr. Casterline intends fitting up the hotel with all modern improvements and overhauling it thoroughly, making it an up-to-date roadhouse. The old "Nelson House," as it is called, is today one of the most popular hotels in this part of the country, and has been conducted as a hotel for half a century, if not more.

Rev. Frank Fletcher expects to move from his present location to a new house on Prospect avenue soon, and Henry D. Garretson and family of Piscataway, will occupy Mr. Fletcher's house.

David C. Frazeur has secured a patent from Washington for a "sun and planet" bicycle gear.

Lawrence Fletcher, of Boston, is visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher.

We give no rewards, an offer of this kind is the meanest of deceptions. Our plan is to give every one a chance to try the merit of Ely's Cream Balm—the original Balm for the cure of Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, by mailing for 10 cents a trial size to test its curative powers. We mail the 50 cent size also and the druggist keeps it. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—The monthly meeting of the A. O. H. will be held this evening.

—Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., will hold a regular communication this evening.

—A Christian Endeavor Society meeting of special interest will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening.

—The employees of the local telephone company are rapidly getting the new office on Park avenue in shape to take possession.

—An effort is being made by the members of the First Baptist church to raise money to purchase a new piano for the Sunday-school.

—There will be a St. Valentine sociable at the Congregational church St. Valentine's Day night, Tuesday evening, February 14th, at 8 o'clock. All the congregation and their friends are invited to come to get their valentines.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-day Baptist church will conduct a special missionary meeting tomorrow evening in the church parlors. His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, February 9.—The cock fight held in town Monday evening has aroused a great deal of indignation, and the residents of the quiet little village do not intend to stand such sport. It is said that another fight has been arranged for an evening the latter part of the week, but it is hardly probable that it will be pulled off in town.

John Thys, who met with an accident while working at Lambert's icehouse some time ago, is able to get around on crutches, but it will be some time before he will be able to use his foot as one of the small bones is splintered quite badly.

It is said that Robert Moore, the young man who was quite badly injured in a row at Emery's Hotel Sunday evening, intends making a charge of assault against his assailants and seek redress in the courts.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flannery, of New York, who have been visiting Mr. Flannery's sister, Mrs. George Johnston, has returned to their home in New York.

Randolph Drake and George Schick, have finished their labors as petty jurymen for the last term of court.

Ernest Wilson, of Newark, has been visiting friends in town.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, February 9.—"Tim" McCarthy, the backdriver, who was shot while in a fight with an Italian at the station recently, has been discharged from the Elizabeth General Hospital. The bullet was extracted from his shoulder. The Italian who did the shooting has not been located, although a warrant is out for his arrest.

At the annual school meeting to be held March 21st, the Board of Education will ask for an appropriation of $15,000 with which to build a new primary school building.

Harry Steele Morrison, the boy traveler, gives his lecture at the Presbyterian chapel Saturday evening.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

MAINE GUM PICKERS.

Delights of the Pursuit—Health and Wealth Among the Spruce Trees.

Year by year the gum pickers are obliged to go further into the woods. The quality of the gum must be kept up. Most of the Maine gum is sent away to the city market that demands for consumption by the society girls in their boudoirs the round red lumps that gleam with inner fires like the bloodstone. This sort of gum is sold readily by the Maine wholesalers at $1.50 per pound. The metropolitan price for this tip-top gum is so alluring to the Maine sellers that the provincials do not get it unless they go out into the wild woods and dig it themselves. The only peculiarly favored mortals in this respect are the Maine girls who have best fellows in the woods. These girls lollop over their tongues morsels that the city girl can get only by paying almost the weight in silver change.

Compared with his expenses, the wages of the gum picker are almost Klondike prices. A few bushels of beans and some flour furnish him his winter's food. Frequently he gets gum in one day that will net him $10 in the market. But the gum picker isn't apt to be a very energetic chap. He makes short days and goes fishing and gunning about half of the time. He doesn't leave the side of his cozy camp fire when a storm is on. And at the end of the season, when he comes out in the spring with his pack of gum on his back, it will be found that he has made but little more than day's wages.

But what a tonic it would be for the anaemic man—a winter in the woods gum-picking! The long evening by the hearth where the fire riots through the heaped logs that one piles on with never a thought as to the market price of dry wood; of the crisy side of the great trees; of the finding of the nuggets in the balmy, spicy rents in the trunks, the savor of the rude food, the passing of the quiet days—one so much like another that you get mixed on the calendar. And though you, O hustler, may not think so, the world would worry along through the winter just the same as though you were out lifting at the mired spoke that fate has assigned to your care-blistered hands. At any rate, when you came out in the spring and heard the news you would realize that it requires more than one man to make a world.—Lewiston, Me., Journal.

DICKENS A LOVER OF CATS.

Great Novelist Was a Slave to His Little Feline Pets.

At a recent cat show there was an Englishman who chanced to know many unrecorded tales of Dickens, and during a lull in the "meows" he casually inquired: "Did you know, by the way, that Charles Dickens was devoted to cats? He was indeed a lover of all animals, and frequently became the slave of his pets. Williamina a little white cat, was a great favorite with the entire household, but regarded the great author as her especial friend. She selected a corner of his study for her individual property, and one day committed the indiscretion of bringing in her little family of kittens from the kitchen, one by one. Dickens had them taken away, but Williamina brought them quietly back. Again they were removed, but the third time of their return the little mother did not leave them in the corner. Instead she placed them at her master's feet, and taking her stand beside them, looked imploringly up at him. That settled the question.

"Thereafter the kittens belonged to the sudy, and made themselves royally at home, swarming up the curtains, playing about the writing table, and scampering behind the bookshelves, until they were one by one given away; all but a poor little deaf one, which from her devotion to Dickens became known as 'the master's cat.' This little creature followed him about like a dog, and sat beside him while he wrote. One evening Dickens was reading by a small table upon which stood a lighted candle. As usual, the cat was at his elbow. Suddenly the light went out. Dickens was deeply interested in his book, and he proceeded to relight the candle, stroking the cat while he did so. Afterward he remembered that puss had looked at him somewhat reproachfully while she received the caress. It was only when the light again became dim that the reason of her melancholy suddenly dawned upon him. Turning quickly, he found her deliberately putting out the candle with her paw, and again she looked at him appealingly. She was lonesome; she wanted to be petted, and this was her device for gaining her end."

Whalebone as It Is.

A curious industry to the uninitiated is the conversion of whalebone from its original form into the various products, useful and artistic. Most of the crude whalebone is landed at San Francisco and shipped eastward to be distributed at the various centers. Before leaving the Pacific coast the bone is split, sorted according to color and tied into bundles. After splitting the pieces are called "stalks" or "slabs." These are from three to twelve feet in length and weigh from five to twenty-five pounds each. When received by the manufacturer each "slab" is fringed with strong, glossy black hair, which possesses a market value of its own for brushes. After this is removed the "slabs" are vigorously scrubbed and then put to soak in water for about a week. When sufficiently softened the "slabs" are treated to a steam bath and then are ready to be split into "shell" or "grain" bone, and finally cut into stays, whip stocks, aigrettes and the like.

SHE WAS JUST LACKING.

Scotch is a New Qualification for the Contemporary Teacher.

"You know nothing about the trials and tribulations of a governess?" declared a charming woman of Detroit who is in the business. "I was summarily dismissed from one place because I told a mother that her little daughter had no taste for music. The woman informed me curtly that if I didn't know enough to remedy the defect she could afford to hire some one who did.

"A wealthy lady with three delightful little children dispensed with my services because in playing for company I received more applause than she did. Another rejected my application because I could not understand her German. No one could.

"But an experience last week capped the climax. A gentleman called in answer to my advertisement and asked me to see his wife. He seemed very favorably impressed, and I imagine he must have been indiscreet enough to praise me on reaching home for she—that is to say—well, nobody would ever call her attractive. When I applied she catechised me closely as to my accomplishments. After learning with evident regret that I could play, sing, dance and had the conventional manners of the day, she started in to disqualify me in the matter of languages. But, in addition to German, French and Italian, I knew enough of the classics to give her children a preparatory course. This worried her, and after a silence she began again:

"'Do you teach Scotch?

"'I do not, madam.'

"'In that case it is useless to talk further. Scotch novelists are writing such beautiful things now that I insist on having my children taught the language.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Israelitish Blood In Royal Veins.

A remarkable feature in connection with the reigning houses of Europe, says the London Weekly, is the fact that nearly every one of them has strains of Hebrew blood in the veins of its members. Almost every one of the now reigning families are descended from Alberta, Queen of Sicily, who was a daughter of the old Hebrew banker, Perleoni. The latter was the first of his race to be admitted to the ranks of European aristocracy. Pope Leo IX ennobled him in the year 1116. Later on one of his sons, who became converted to the Roman Catholic Church, ascended the Papal throne under the title of Anacletus II. This, however, by no means the only source of Hebrew blood in the royal and imperial veins of to-day. There are others of a far less remote character.

The grandfather of King Ferdinand of Portugal, the grandfather of the present King, was a Hungarian Hebrew named Kohary, whose daughter an heiress married Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg. The King of Portugal is therefore indubitably of Israelitish descent, and so, too, is Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, whose features are remarkably Hebraic; he is, in fact, a grandson of old Kohary's heiress. A second of the latter's grandsons, Duke Philip of Saxe-Coburg, is wedded to the eldest daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, while a third, Augustus by name, married a daughter of the late Emperor Dom Pedro, of Brazil.

Bridget's Holiday at the Hospital.

Bridget Rafferty had served the best years of her life as a cook, and now that she was "wearin' awa'" and an operation became necessary, she haughtily declined to go to a ward, but took one of the best rooms in the hospital. The operation was successful, but the patient was allowed very little food. During her convalescence she made frequent use of the electric bell at her bed. The nurse would fly to her, to be greeted with some trifling question or the remark: "I only wanted to know if you were there."

As such frequent use of her bell suggested to the matron on that floor that the nurse was neglecting her patient, the nurse remonstrated, and received the following unique explanation: "Well, you see, miss, here I am paying $30 a week, and I'm not seeing anything, I'm not hearing anything, and, miss, I'm not eating anything. So I just ring the bell to get my money's worth, and, anyways, I enjoy hearing it ring."—San Francisco Argonaut.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"I wish now," shrieked the angry young wife, "I wish now, George Whackster, you had married Luce Jones instead of me! That's what I wish!"

"I would have married her," howled the equally angry young husband, "only she wouldn't have me and you would!"—Atlanta Constitution.

I think my Archie is the most painfully sensitive boy I ever saw," said Mrs. Upjohn.

"Yes?"

"When he first learned that the earth turns around on its axis at the rate of more than a thousand miles an hour it made him violently seasick."—Chicago Tribune.

"Well, Uncle Jim," said the lawyer, "the doctor says there is no hope for you."

"Yes, suh; dey tells me I gwine ter cross over."

"Have you made your will?"

"Yes, suh; I done will ter go."

"I mean," said the lawyer, in an explanatory way, "have you anything to leave?"

"Oh, yes, suh!" exclaimed the old man joyfully; "two wives an' de rheumatism!"—Atlanta Constitution.

THE RUNAWAY PIG AT EL CANEY.

An Episode Not Down in the Official Report of the Battle.

On July 1, 1898, when the battle of El Caney was the hottest, a curious commotion among the Spanish soldiers was visible in one of the trenches which defended the town. Toward the middle of the day the American soldiers on the nearest line saw a half grown pig come running out of a low thatched building inside the Spanish trenches, and rounding a corner of the ditch take to flight outside the trenches, in the direction of the American position.

The Spanish soldiers ceased their firing as the pig escaped, and there was commotion among them. Presently this commotion resolved itself into a rush of several soldiers out of the trench in the direction of the pig. Soon there were fifteen of them out in the open in the full sweep of the American fire.

Up and down went the pig; when a soldier's hands were on him he would make a twist and wriggle himself away. Once he made a long run straight toward the American lines; it did not help him, for the soldiers were after entirely disregarding the batle. Some of them headed him off again, and in another moment and the pig, firmly held, was on his way back to the trenches, riding on the shoulders of this young man, his forelegs gripped by one hand and his hind legs by the other.

The soldiers resumed their places in the trench; the one who had the pig put him back in the thatch-roofed building, and presently returned to his own place and took up his gun.

It is safe to say that during the chase of the pig no American soldier who saw the affair discharged his gun at the group. The Americans who saw it were too full of admiration and astonishment to add to the dangers which the audacious Spaniards were under; but thousands of Americans who could not see the incident were blazing away in that direction, and the Spaniards who were chasing the pig must have heard a great many bullets whistling about their ears during the performance.

The Americans who were within view of the occurrence were confirmed by it in the opinion which they had to form already, that the people at home who had told them that the Spaniards were cowards did not know what they were talking about.—Youth's Companion.

How It Saved Pain.

"There's been a wonderful advance in dental surgery of late years," said a man with a slightly swollen jaw. "The old, brutal way of yanking out molars by main strength and awkwardness has gone out of date. I had a tooth pulled this morning, and the whole thing was so quiet and easy I could scarcely believe it had been done. I took a whiff of gas and opened my eyes to find the tooth gone. I didn't even see the forceps. It was in strong contrast, by the way, with an experience of mine some years ago, when painless dentistry was still in its experimental stages. I had a back tooth that was giving me fits, and went to a man who advertised painless extraction by means of what were called 'electrical forceps.' It was a complicated foreign device, long since abandoned, that sent a current along the instrument just as it took hold. The dentist was a candid looking chap, and I asked him to tell me honestly whether it would hurt. 'Well,' he said, 'it's like this: Suppose a fellow hit you in the mouth with his fist, and at the same time hit you on the nose with a brick—you wouldn't feel the fist, would you? I told him to go ahead and drag out the tooth in good, old-fashioned way. After that explanation I wanted no electric forceps in mine."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Helped His Father in His Sermon.

Bob Jones is Sam's noble son. He told his father that a certain estimable citizen of Sam's town had invited him into his rear office to take a drink of whiskey. Sam cut loose the following Sunday with a roaring sermon, of which mislending a boy was the text. He said: "The man who tempted my boy to drink must leave this town. If he will not go peaceably he will go at the muzzle of my shotgun. I am ready to go before my Maker with a record of having shot a scoundrel who led my child to drink." There was a barrel of the same sort, only hotter, and Sam fairly foamed at the mouth with threatenings. The whole congregation got excited. The excitement spread through the town, and every one was asking his neighbor, "Who can be the man?" One of the good women called Bob into her house and asked who had persuaded him to drink. Bob laughed. "Why, it ain't nobody," he said. "I just told pa that lie to give him something to preach about, and didn't the old man howl!"

Geese With Shoes.

It is not generally known that in Prague there exists a goose "bourse," where yearly some three million geese change hands. Its most active time lasts generally from about six to eight weeks, from the middle of September till the first day of November. During this time immense flocks of geese are driven into the suburbs, especially from the districts living on the right banks of the Weischel. These are then conducted at night over the bridges to the Jewish quarters, the trade being principally in the hands of the Israelites. As the geese are driven in from long distances they are "shod," that is to say, walked repeatedly over patches of tar mixed with fine sand. This forms a hard crust on the feet of the geese, and they, thus "shod," are able to cover immense distances without fatigue.

CHILDREN'S CONDUCT

THE BAD EFFECTS OF TOO MUCH INDULGENCE.

Lesson Drawn From the Treatment of Dion's Son by His Enemy, the Tyrant Dionysius—Need of Subduing Irregular Passions.

Let parents consider and often represent to their children how Dionysius, the tyrant, treated the son of Dion, his enemy. As he had a mortal hatred to the father, he considered how he might most effectually wreak his vengeance on the son, whom he had in his power. He therefore invented a new sort of cruelty.

In what do you suppose it consisted? He did not plunge a dagger into the heart of this innocent child. He did not confine him in a prison and make him suffer hunger and thirst. What is infinitely worse, he corrupted in him all the good qualities of his mind, and in order to effect this he gave him whatever he wished for. He indulged all his humors and fancies. The young man, carried away by the love of pleasure, abandoned himself to the most shameful excesses. No one had an eye to the regulation of his conduct. No one contradicted his whims or endeavored to stop the torrents of his passions. All he did was right. All his desires were gratified. All his faults were overlooked, if not commended. What was the consequence? His mind was completely corrupted by flattery, and he ran headlong into every kind of vice.

But mark how much more easily young people go wrong than get right again, how easily they fall into a variety of disorders, but with what difficulty they are brought back into the way of virtue. This young man was afterward restored to his father, who committed him to the care of proper tutors in order by every possible means to reclaim him from his evil habits. But all their exertions were in vain. The youth chose rather to deprive himself of life than to forego his pleasure. He cast himself down headlong from the top of his father's house and was dashed to pieces. Hence we may learn, first, that our true friends are those who resist our passions and our great enemies those who flatter and encourage them; second, that much depends on the proper parental authority over children and on giving them a good education betimes, whereas if the mind is once corrupted and imbued with false maxims the force of habit becomes almost invincible and the evil past remedy.

The following example is more recent and was mentioned in public prints not many years ago: A youth had connected himself with immoral companions, who led him into extravagances which his income could not support. Rather than give up such associates and resign his loose pleasures he was prevailed upon to rob his father. The parent sought him, and at the first interview the precipitate and unprincipled youth drew a pistol from his pocket and shot himself in the presence of his disconsolate father. The observation which the unhappy man made some little time after to one of his friends deserves the consideration of all such fond parents as, like Heli, in some degree connive at their children's irregularities. "Had I fortunately been less indulgent to my boy," said he, "had I checked him in his early life, had I subdued his irregular passions and accustomed him to restraint, this violent act would never have happened, and I might now have been a happy father of a virtuous son."

As nothing insinuates itself more easily into the minds of young persons or leaves a more lasting impression on them than historical narratives, it is proper to set before them such edifying examples as are to be found in the holy Scripture and in the lives of the saints.

Jeweled Chalice of Watch Cases.

Among a number of gifts recently received at the Jesuit novitiate, Frederick, Md., was a chalice made of watch cases. It is not the custom for the Jesuits to wear gold or jewelry of any kind; hence for years past the young men on entering the college gave their gold watches to form a part of a chalice toward which it was their ambition to contribute. Several months ago the required amount of gold had been collected, and the accumulated watch cases were melted and formed a chalice valued at $1,000. It is a beautiful and massive piece of work. The bowl is of solid gold, cast in an original mold, and the base is of solid silver, very heavily plated. Medallions of the four evangelists ornament the base, while the whole is a net of scrollwork studded all over with precious stones. Immediately in front of the base is a cross formed of rare and exquisite pearls. It is said that the handsome jewels that stud it are more valuable than the chalice itself.—Boston Herald.

An Archbishop's Anniversary Banquet.

The anniversary of the elevation of Archbishop von Geisel to the cardinalate is annually commemorated at Cologne by a banquet given to 72 poor old men. This year Cardinal Krementz, the archbishop of Cologne, was unable to be present owing to illness, but Dr. Scmitz, assistant bishop, attended and addressed the guests, whose united ages amounted to 5,435 years, the oldest being 88 years of age and the youngest 61.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

Cardinal Gibbons' New Year Advice.

In his New Year's sermon at the cathedral in Baltimore Cardinal Gibbons spoke of the memorable happenings of last year, using as his theme the "Imperishability of the Church." In conclusion the cardinal extended to the congregation the following suggestion for the new year: "Maintain a pure conscience toward God, a spirit of continued benevolence toward your fellow men and cultivate habits of self denial for yourself."—New York Sun.

WORK OF CATHOLIC SISTERS

In Paris It Comprises Service Among All Classes.

It is learned from the latest issue of Le Clerge Francais that Paris possesses no less than 128 different religious congregations of women, with 550 houses of various kinds. Five are exclusively devoted to a contemplative and penitential life, many others combine a severe penitential rule with educational activity, while 41 are exclusively devoted to teaching, 26 to the care of the sick and the majority of the rest combine the various works of charity and mercy.

The Sisters of Motherly Help devote themselves to the care of poor mothers and their babies and also nurse in the houses of the rich. A goodly number of societies are devoted to nursing the sick in their homes, and thus they do much good in the poorer parts of the city. The Little Sisters of the Assumption not only attend to the sick, but take entire charge of the house, children and kitchen of the poor sick, acting just like domestic servants of the poor, accepting not even food in return.

The Blind Sisters of St. Paul, consisting partly of "seeing" and partly of "blind" members, offer a home for life to poor blind girls from the age of 4 years onward, let apartments to blind women and provide a kind of hospital together with medical attendance for poor girls afflicted with eye diseases. The Little Sisters of St. Anne take care of consumptive children, the Franciscanesses of the Immaculate Conception devote themselves to the street arabs and beggar children who swarm in Paris, the Sisters of Mary of the Atonement and the Sisters of the Child Jesus look after young servant girls, the latter particularly those from Normandy and Brittany. Other sisters occupy themselves with the care of homeless shopgirls and factory hands, prisoners, fallen women, orphanages and foundlings. In fact, there is no conceivable variety of social misery and evil for which Christian charity has not been organized by some of these Parisian societies of sisters.

A CHAPLAIN'S HEROISM.

While Reading the Burial Service a Bullet Shattered the Priest's Hand.

On the occasion recently of the Aid society of the seventy-first regiment, New York volunteers, giving a reception and banquet to the members of that famous military body who had distinguished themselves in Cuba, Major Frank Keck, who led the brave boys in the charge on San Juan, was asked to tell of some notable exhibition of personal courage on the battlefield. The brave and handsome officer, universally loved and respected by his men, said:

"On July 2 while the fighting was going on I sent word to our chaplain to come to the front to officiate at the burial of comrades who had been killed in action. For some unexplained reason he failed to respond. A Catholic priest, the chaplain of one of the regiments of regulars in Lawton's division, volunteered his services, which were promptly and gratefully accepted. As he was reading the service over the body a Spanish bullet struck his left hand, in which the book was held, shattering it horribly. Without a change of voice the book was dropped into the right hand and the services continued without a moment's halt. The mutilated and bleeding hand dropped to his side. Having finished the burial service, he asked if he could be of any further assistance. My answer was a detail to get him to the field hospital as quickly as possible and my sincere, heartfelt thanks."

In answer to a question as to the name of this chaplain and regiment to which he belonged Major Keck replied: "I do not know either, but I think he was the chaplain of the Sixth or Sixteenth. A more heroic deed was never witnessed on a battlefield."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Ave Maria!

A fair, sweet girl, unused to mother ways;
A child in years, scarce past her baby plays,
Holds close a little baby all her own
And sings the while to hush its tiny moan.
She wonders much, but questions naught she hears,
Thrilled with a thousand mother hopes and fears.
Tender and young and wee
The baby is on her knee.

Far out upon the night her sweet voice rings.
What thinks the little mother as she sings?
"O baby, baby mine! My son, my king,
Accept the mother love I fondly bring!
My heart, my love, my life, I give to thee!
But Christ, child dear, what hast thou given to me
What am I dear, to own
The Great God's Holy Son?

"No Jewish maiden ever lived to wear
Upon her bosom jewel half so rare.
What mother, too, can boast a child so wise
Whose wisdom circles earth and sea and skies?
O glorious God, the Father of my boy,
What have I done deserving such a joy?
Thine own handmaiden, I;
Our son infinitely.

"My song and prayer this night go up to thee.
A good, sweet mother to thy Son I'd be,
And may the Christ child in his mother's face
See all the truth and beauty of God's grace!
Mary, the mother, yet the servant still,
To her own flesh, by God's own holy will,
My son, God's son, is he;
Flesh, yet Divinity!"

She kisses soft the tiny baby hands
And loves her boy, but little understands
That this dear, tiny child upon her knee
For her own sins shall die upon the tree.
Her mother love o'ershadows any loss.
She looks ahead, but sees no cruel cross.
Like mothers all, her boy
Is destined but for joy.

Sing, little mother of our Holy Christ!
Thy Son o'er the prince first!
Thy hopes and prayers for him shall be Fulfilled throughout eternity.
No other little woman bore such son—
God, Christ and Holy Spirit—thee in one!
Our only hope is staid
On thy Son, little maid!

—Elizabeth Graves-Neel in Atlanta Constitution.

NEWSPAPERS BY WEIGHT.

Odd Way in Which American Newspapers Are Sold in Australia.

In Australia, a country that follows American custom very closely, the people have a great desire for American newspapers. Every steamer that arrives from this country brings its full quota of American journals, which are immediately put on sale. One day says a writer, I was in Adelaide, South Australia, and I went into a store to buy the Sunday edition of a New York paper. The dealer took one, placed it on the scales, which he scanned very closely, and then said: "Eighteen pence!" (36 cents.)

"That costs about one-eighth as much in New York," I said.

"Cawnt 'elp that," answered the dealer. "These 'ere papers is massive. They contain lots of good paper, and we got to sell 'em by weight."

"Have you any cheaper?" I asked.

"Yes," he said again. "I've got some cheaper; this one is only 10d; it weighes much less; it has no pictures, you see," and he picked up a Chicago newspaper of a midweek date.

"But I want a New York Sunday newspaper," I persisted.

"Well those will cost you from 18d to 20d (36 to 40 cents) each, according to weight; but I can sell you a Kansas City Sunday paper for 6d (12 cents) if you must have a cheap Sunday edition."

Then I found the dealer would sell separate sections of a Sunday edition if the customer didn't want the whole, and while I was in his store three men came in and bought different parts of a journal, paying as much as 4 cents a section. Of course when the "want ad" part was put on the scales and sold to the fourth customer he didn't know how interesting New York news was until he got home.—New York Times.

INTENSELY AMUSING.

It Was Fun For the Boy But Not Particularly Funny to the Man.

The depot master in a certain city not far from Detroit, is the proprietor of a palate that is only about half size and in the manipulation of which he falls down at times, with the result that his words are spoken with lisps and stumbles that make them hardly intelligible.

A few days ago a stout German woman leading a little boy by the hand approached the official and asked "Vhat dime does der train go py Kalamazoo oudt?"

The depot master looked down at her, twisted his face and replied, "Hathree o'hock. Ho an' hithown hare hat Hi'll hall you when hit's hready."

The woman took a seat over in the far corner of the depot. After a period of ten minutes she again approached the official and asked her former question. "Hat hree o'hock, Hi hol' hou," he exclaimed. "Ho han' hit down hare han Hi'll hall you when hit's hready."

Again did the woman seek a seat.

And after another fifteen minutes had passed she approached the caller of trains a third time and again asked that question. "Vhat dime does der train go py Kalamazoo oudt?"

The depot master waxed wroth, and in the excitement of his anger, he lost all control of that vocal organ of his. He cried "Hat hree o'hock, hree o'hock, hree o'hock! Hi tol you at hree o'hock a hozen himes. Hree o'hock, can't you underhand? One! Hoo! Hree! Han't you underhand?"

And, increasing the pressure of her hand on that of the child, the old lady replied calmly: "Vhy, off gourse, I understands, put little Yawcob likes to hear you say it."—Detroit Free Press.

Avoid Coughing.

A physician who is conected with an institution in which there are many children, says: "There is nothing more irritable to a cough than coughing. For some time I have been so fully assured of this that I determined for one minute at least to lessen the number of coughs heard in a certain ward in a hospital of the institution. By the promise of rewards and punishments I succeeded in inducing them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough, and in a little while I was myself surprised to see how some of the children entirely recovered from the disease. Constant coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body; so long as it is done, the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from this process. The nitrogen which is thus confined acts as an anodyne to the mucuous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal."—Scientific American.

A Very Methodical Man.

One of the most methodical men who ever lived in Washington County was a native of Harrington. He was always so very particular about his dress that he would not allow himself to appear in the company of strangers without first making a complete change of clothing and attending to all the details of his toilet. Once his eccentricity in this direction caused him the loss of his house and other buildings. This was the time his house caught fire, and his wife, after working several minutes trying to extinguish the flames, went into one of the front rooms where she found her eccentric husband with a lamp and razor before the looking glass taking a shave and putting on a clean paper collar. "What on airth are you doin'? Ain't you aware that our house is on fire and will burn down?" "Oh, yes," he replied, calmly, "the house is on fire. I know it, and soon all the people in town will be here, and who knows but there'll be a few strangers in the crowd?"—Bangor Commercial.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The medals that are won in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this season will not be presented until the close of the indoor season when a special evening will be devoted to the presentation of the medals and a social time for the athletic members.

Much interest is shown among the athletes of the Y. M. C. A. regarding the personnel of the team that will represent Plainfield in the dual athletic contest with the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. There are six of the boys whose standing makes it difficult to select the best three. It has been proposed, and Physical Director Heywood is considering the advisibility of it, that a preliminary trial should be held in the events and the three men making the best showing in them shall make up the team. The responsibility of selecting the team falls on the Physical Director and he may take this method of solving the difficult problem. The chief candidates are Raymond Carroll, George Proctor Smith, Frank O Bristol, Walter L. Long, William Townsend and Ivan Hardingham.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Prudential's Remarkable Showing.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company of America, in its statement of 1898, crowds all the detail information of its financial condition and insurance transactions into its half-page exhibit in yesterday's issue that is possible in the space occupied. While those familiar with life insurance business are able to gain a good idea of the company's progress in 1898, an officer of the company gave a more detailed account of the year's business to one of our reporters. He said: "As the result of the year's work the company, after the payment of death claims, dividends, taxes and other expenses, is able to show an increase in assets of nearly $23,000 000 and $6,000,000 of a surplus, the place where it counts. Its policy holders now number nearly three millions. The Prudential issues insurance on the lives of all healthy people of both sexes from the age of 1 to 70, for all amounts from $15 to $50,000. Life insurance, in these days, is being considered as one of the necessities of life, and those persons who have not already come within its protection should make an investigation of the liberal contracts offered by the Prudential.

FILIPINO LEADERS FLED.

Defeated Generals Hurried to Interior in Disguise to Escape Mob Violence.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Manila, Feb. 9—The Filipino generals, whose forces were so unmercifully punished by the brigade, commanded by Brig-General King, Sunday, are reported to have fled to the interior in disguise to escape violence at the hands of their own people.

The officers commanding the main body of Filipinos have asked Aquinaldo to send them reinforcements but declare that they don't want any more lagards.

MR. MARTINE WAXES SARCASTIC.

How the G. O. P Would Have Wailed if the Democrats Had Helped Thompson.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—For the past few years the Republican press and orators have urged the citizens to vote the Republican ticker, that the commonwealth be saved from the clutches of "Billy Thompson, and the evils of his liquor and gambling establishments in this State." Where, now, are their protests? Yesterday news from Trenton tells us that the Thompson bill passed the Senate without a voice or protest being raised against it. Be it remembered that this Legislature is Republican, the Senate having fourteen Republicans and seven Democrats.

In what froth of righteous fury the Republican press and orators would wax should a Democratic Senate have dared to ignore the numerous petitions and remonstrances of the clergy and the W. C. T. U. that flooded the Senate Chamber against this bill. Me thinks I can read in great head lines in the moral Republican press "Thompson and his gang of venal Democrats ignore petition and vote to turn the State over to blacklegs and free liquor." Heaven help the people; what pretense and hypocrisy this vote shows. But we wait, there will be another day and another election, too.

YOUNG WOMEN POSED.

CHARMING ENTERTAINMENT AT ENDEAVOR SOCIABLE LAST EVENING.

"Dream of Fair Women" Presented in a Series of Tableaux at Residence of J. R. Truell, of Central Avenue.

Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women" was presented in a series of tableaux at a sociable, given by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh Day Baptist church, at the residence of Mrs. J. R. Truell, of Central avenue, last evening. The house was crowded with guests. A stage was erected in the dining room while the audience occupied the parlors.

The programme opened with a vocal selection in German by Mr. VanNorst. The poem was then read by Mrs J. E Kimball and illustrated by the following tableaux: "Beauty and Anguish," Miss Ruth Maxson and Miss Nan Randolph; "Helen of Troy," Miss Myrtle Randolph; 'Cleopatra," Miss Elfreda Randolph; "Jeptha's Daughter," Miss Mildred Green; "Fair Rosalind," Miss Ethel Titsworth; "Joan of Arc," Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph; "King and Queen," Miss Evelyn M. Lewis and Asa Randolph. The tableaux ended with one in which all the characters were grouped about the stage.

A number of phonograph selections were given under the direction of W. H. Rogers. There were several remarks by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the church; D. E. Titsworth, City Judge William N. Runyon, besides out of town talent. Then D. E Titsworth sang into the instrument and the record was given later. Refreshments were served and a general social time followed.

Mrs. A. M. Ross was chairman of the committee on refreshments. The entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. J. E Kimball and Miss Ernestine Smith.

SNAPPING COLD WEATHER.

This Day Goes on Record as One of the Most Frigid.

Today can safely claim the record of being the coldest day of the winter so far. There isn't any doubt about that. The good folk of the weather bureau say, however, that it is going to be even colder tomorrow.

The mercury fell considerably below the zero point during the night, and this morning at 7 o'clock stood at four degrees below zero.

Traffic on the Jersey Central this afternoon is somewhat delayed on account of it. The local trolley car system is still unable to keep strictly on schedule time.

HOW HE KNEW HE WASN'T DEAD.

He Thought He Would Not Feel Hunger If He Had Gone to the Other Side.

Thomas H. Grisham, President of the Board of Managers of the Dodge City Soldiers' Home tells a story about an old soldier named John Clark, who came near being buried alive. He had been ill a long time with typhoid fever, and at last lapsed into a comatose state and was pronounced dead. Burial robes were placed upon him and he was tenderly placed in a casket to await interment on the following day. During the night Clark regained his senses and rose up in his narrow prison. He upset the coffin and he was sent sprawling on the floor. In consternation one attendant rushed into the room and retreated, declaring he had seen a ghost. Then other attendants came. Stimulants were quickly applied, the limbs and body of Clark rubbed with alcohol. He soon opened his eyes. After careful attention and nursing he recovered entirely.

"Tell me," said Grisham to Clark one day, "how did you feel when you died and how did your first know that you were not dead?"

"When I appeared to myself," said Clark, "to be dying, the experience was a very pleasant one. I seemed to be entirely free from trouble and to be passing into a new realm. When I began to recover consciousness I found myself in what seemed to be a coffin, but I at once knew that I was not dead because my feet were cold and I was hungry."

"I don't understand what you mean," said Grisham.

"I knew," replied Clark, "that if I were in heaven I would not be hungry, and if I were in hell my feet would not be cold."—Topeka Journal.

The Essence of Caution.

Two Birds and One Stone.

An impressionable Paris banker, the owner of immense riches, died of grief on hearing that he had lost everything in the world except $20,000. His pauper brother on inheriting that sum from him died of joy.

An Awkward Predicament.

Father: "What, sir, you want to dishonor my name on the stage?"

Son: "I will take an assumed name."

Father: "Then, if you succeed, I'd like to know how people are to know I'm your father."

In Brazil, at the funeral of an unmarried woman, the mourning color is scarlet. The coffin, the hearse, the trappings of the horses, and the livery of the driver are all scarlet.

HIS GRANDMOTHER'S GIFT.

The Colonel Learned that "He Who Laughs Last Laughs Best."

Men who have reached exalted positions in life should never forget that others are struggling along the same path that they have traveled with more or less pain, and should show a little indulgence; but whether treating a struggler favorably or unfavorably, it is always best to be cautious. Probably a well-known Colonel in Berlin seriously thought of this after a certain little mistake he made at a state ball.

A young Lieutenant who wore a single decoration, a large badge richly set with diamonds, attracted the Colonel's attention, and in a supercilious manner he asked:

"Young man, what is that decoration?"

"An order, Colonel," replied the Lieutenant.

"An order? Dear me, I don't know it."

"It is an English order, Colonel."

"Oh, yes, yes; but who ever gave it to you?"

"My grandmother."

"Your grandmother!" And here the Colonel burst into a fit of laughter that lasted a couple of minutes.

During the interval the young Lieutenant, unabashed, stood calmly by, looking at him.

"But—er—young man, what is your grandmother's name?" finally asked the Colonel.

"Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, Queen of England," replied the young Lieutenant, who was Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein.

The Colonel left the ballroom suddenly, and was seen no more.—Harper's Round Table.

Carrying Out Instructions.

There was a young man whose social education had been somewhat neglected, and it chanced that he received an invitation to a church wedding.

The morning of the ceremony found him quite excited, and he started for the church some time before, as he would have said, "the show was billed to come off."

Under his arm he carried a small bundle, and before he had proceeded far he met a friend.

"Hello," said the friend, "and where are you going all dressed up at this time in the morning?"

"Wedding," answered the young man briefly and proudly.

"Indeed? Going to do some errands on the way?"

"Certainly not."

"But you're not going to a wedding with a bundle under your arm?

"Of course I am. That's my present."

"Present! But you don't take your present with you, man. You send it beforehand."

"That's all you know about it. I've got a card right here in my pocket, and the card says, 'Present at the church.'"—Boston Budget.

A Deal Failure.

A certain professor in one of the leading schools of Nashville was not long since desirous of incorporating some negro dialect in a story he was preparing. Not being very well versed in the manner of speech, he bethought him that it would be a good idea to study the language in its purity undefiled. With this end in view he betook himself to the vicinity of the union depot, near which representatives of the ebon race are always to be found.

One effort was enough. Meeting a coal-black negro driving a wagon rather well loaded, and accosting him as "Uncle John," the following brief dialogue ensued:

"Pretty heavy load, uncle. Can you get up the hill with it?"

"I do not know, sir, but I presume so."

Such an example of pure and undefiled English coming from such an unexpected source almost paralyzed the professor, who muttered something about "the degeneracy of the modern negro," and mentally deciding to consult the works of "Uncle Remus," he retraced his steps to his apartments.—Nashville American.

Georgia's Cotton King.

James M. Smith of Oglethorpe, Georgia's greatest farmer, has just broken all records of cotton sales from a single plantation by selling to Macon cotton-buyers in one lot over two thousand bales of cotton of his own raising. The cotton was sold on a basis of seven cents for middling, and when it is all weighed and shipped Mr. Smith will receive a check for about $70,000. This would be a tremendous crop, even if Mr. Smith raised nothing but cotton, but when it is remembered that he grows similarly large crops of grain and hay, and that cotton is his surplus money crop after producing all the provision crops he needs, then one can grasp some idea of the scale on which Colonel Smith farms, and see the justice of calling him Georgia's cotton king."

Florence Nightingale.

Florence Nightingale is 76 years old and so broken in health that she can scarcely write a letter, yet she never forgets to send some message to the veterans of the Crimea on the anniversary of a victory, or to remember, at Christmas time, those who are laboring in the institutions for training nurses which she founded at St. Thomas' Hospital soon after the close of the war. Surgeon-General Manifold was one of her warmest friends, and one of the first to promote the employment of women nurses in the army.—New York Sun.

One Method of Lowering Level of Ground Water.

ADOPTED BY THE CITY.

IT IS EXPECTED TO REDUCE LEAKAGE INTO SEWER SYSTEM.

Gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's Men Have Been Cleaning Out the Bed of the Brook and Lowering It From Six to Eighteen Inches—Is Not Expected to Stop All the Leakage.

For nearly a week a gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men have been at work cleaning out the bed of Cedar brook and lowering it anywhere from six to eighteen inches. While the cleaning is an annual affair it is hoped that by lowering the bed of the brook that the height of the ground water in Richmond street and vicinity will be lowered and the leakage into the sewage system reduced.

Every storm washes a quantity of sand, gravel and other debris into the brook, helping to clog its channel. To keep the brook running clearly, the street department has for the last few years looked after the channel yearly. Incidentally they have lowered the bed of the brook each time. As a result much of the land on either side of the brook that was formerly swampy, is now well drained.

They worked first on that portion of Cedar brook south of Watchung avenue, bordering Cedar Brook Farm. The brook was lowered from six inches to a foot there. The land on either side was consequently improved. The greatest need of lowering is in that part of the brook between Putnam and LaGrande avenues, where the brook runs parallel with Richmond street. The gang of men are employed there at present.

Close to the LaGrande avenue bridge, it is expected to lower the brook as much as eighteen inches. The depth will be gradually reduced to twelve inches toward Putnam avenue bridge. With this noticeable lowering of the brook, the level of the ground water will be lowered, the leakage into the sewer system decreased and the general health of that neighborhood bettered. While it is not expected that this method will entirely do away with the leakage, it is expected to give some relief.

Yesterday afternoon, Street Commissioner Gavett was obliged to stop the work temporarily and employ his entire force in cleaning the snow off the sidewalks. The work will be resumed shortly and continued until the whole length of the brook, where it passes through the residential district, has been cleaned.

A YOUNG TRAIN WRECKER

SERIOUS MISCHIEF OF A 12-YEAR-OLD MIDDLESEX BOY.

Mysterious Train Wrecker of the Pennsylvania Proves to Be a Child—He is in Jail at New Brunswick.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Feb. 10—George Conly, a boy of 12 years, is lodged in the Middlesex county jail charged with attempting to wreck a train on the Camden and Amboy branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Conly is a grandson of John Quinn, a well known citizen of Jamesburg.

Detectives who were set to work on the case were much surprised when they traced the crime to so young a lad. Constable Wm. H. Davison arrested the boy Monday and Justice Lucas gave him a hearing.

Conly confessed, but claimed that he had no intention of doing any harm to the railroad company, saying that he had placed the obstruction on the track just for fun. Mr. Quinn, the boy's grandfather, has tried every possible means to induce the railroad company not to prosecute the case against his grandson, but as the prank might have resulted in the loss of many lives, Conly will have to answer for his crime. He will probably be sent to the State Reform School for Boys.

SECOND "AT HOME."

Mrs. E. W. Hedges Received Her Friends Yesterday Afternoon.

The second and last of Mrs. Ellis W. Hedges "at homes" was given yesterday afternoon at her home on Watchung avenue. A large number of friends and society people were present, in spite of the severe cold. The rooms were artistically decorated with roses, while in the dining room, a charming effect was produced with pink roses and pink shaded lights. Mrs. Hedges was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Charles Butler and her sister, Miss Butler, of San Francisco, Cal., Mrs. F. H. Andrews and Mrs. Harmon, Mrs. A. H. Atterbury and Mrs. Clay presided at the table, assisted by her cousin, Miss Isabielle Butler and the Misses Ginna, Stewart, Munger, Munger, Abernethy and Andrews.

Entertained at Whist.

The Thursday Evening Whist Club was entertained last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Brown, of Westfield, and the members had a delightful time. The trip there and back was made in a box sleigh and the ride formed one of the pleasant features of the occasion.

Horse Couldn't Stand the Cold.

A horse owned by Grocer Wm. A. Wilson, of the West End, became chilled this morning while standing in front of a customer's house and ran away. Later the rig was found at Mr. Wilson's store and there was no damage.

COLDEST OF THE SEASON.

THERMOMETER STOOD AT FOURTEEN BELOW ZERO.

All the While There is a Heavy Gale Blowing From Out of the North—Exposure Means Frost-bitten Face, Hands and Feet—Several Victims of the Cold Already Noted—All Records Broken

"Rather cold this morning isn't it?" remarked the cheerful spirit, whereupon his neighbors fell upon him without more ado and rumor has it that he was badly done up.

Even the oldest inhabitant had to admit that all past records were broken. The mercury evidently wanted to get out of the tube and chose the lower end as its means of exit. While it didn't quite escape, the descent continued to a point painfully near the end.

Yesterday was cold enough to suit anyone but this morning it was even worse. The mercury dropped way below the zero point and at 5 o'clock the thermometer registered fourteen degrees below zero. But the north wind was in the combination as well and a formidable combine they made.

The chilliness of the air was enough in itself but the wind made it many times worse. The warmest of wraps was nothing when the wind began to blow. Altogether this is a day when most good folk prefer to sit by the fire than wander about the face of the globe to any extent. Those who haven't any fire to sit by are consequently compelled to suffer greatly.

The cold was nipping. The thoughtful ones covered up their ears and only exposed such part of their face as was rendered necessary in the navigation over the icy sidewalks. It was a funny sight thts morning when business men and commutors came slipping and sliding along all bundled up to withstand the cold. The platform at the North Avenue station offered no attraction. The commutors huddled around the radiator and waited there for the morning trains.

It was the kind of weather when long exposure to the open air meant the freezing of such part of the body as was not fully protected. In another column will be found an account of one victim of the cold who was found by the police nearly frozen to death. One small boy, who happened at the station soon after, confidentially informed a juvenile friend that the man "was overcome by the heat."

There were many who had ears, nose or fingers frozen. Herbert Richardson, of Prospect avenue, walked to the depot this morning for the 8:30 ex-

UNION BIBLE MEETINGS.

REV. D. M. STEARNS MEETS WITH GREAT SUCCESS IN HIS WORK.

His Work is Highly Appreciated by Students of the Bible—A Large Attendance Desired at Plainfield Meetings.

The people who attend the union Bible meetings at the Y. M. C. A. every alternate Monday evening, the next being February 13th, are becoming so enthusiastic over their leader, Rev. D. M. Stearns, of Germantown, Pa., that they are discussing plans to more thoroughly draw public attention to these meetings so that every one will avail of the opportunity to hear Mr. Stearns. That this feeling is not confined to Plainfield is shown by the fact that he not only conducts these meetings here, but also similiar meetings at Brooklyn, New York, Newark, Jersey City, Morristown, Orange, Easton, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Lancaster. At Germantown, Pa., he is pastor of the church of the Atonement, Reformed Episcopalian. The average attendance at these meetings is from 150 to 300 at each place.

The Plainfield meetings were begun a few years ago, when there was but a small attendance. The meetings here have gradually grown in numbers and have become so much more interesting that the people who attend are now making a special effort to have everybody enjoy and profit by them, as they themselves have. While Mr. Stearns does so much work at the different places named, he does not neglect his own church, which is in a highly flourishing condition. He conducts these union meetings at different places without remuneration. A collection is taken at each of these meetings and after deducting the expenses for rental of hall the balance is forwarded to the various foreign missions under his charge.

The Plainfield meetings are held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall and when it is otherwise engaged the use of the Crescent Avenue and Vincent chapels and the First Presbyterian church have been kindly proffered, the pastors and congregations here as elsewhere being in full sympathy with his work. Mr. Stearns is known as one of the greatest expounders of the Scriptures.

PASSED THE CENTURY MARK BEFORE DEATH.

MRS. STEAD WAS IN HER 101ST YEAR.

She Possessed Remarkable Health Up to the Very End—Born in Sussex County.

The death of Mrs. Thomas J. Stead, of Somerset street, occurred last Wednesday night the home of her daughter, Mrs. Allen, of the borough. Mrs. Stead was in her 101st year of her age and the oldest resident of Somerset county. She was born in Sussex county in May 1798, but the greater part of her life was spent in Somerset county, in the valley back of North Plainfield. She was a woman of rare qualities and a steadfast Chistian. She was the oldest member of the First Baptist church. For many years she had lived a quiet, retired life at the home of her daughter.

In May of last year Mrs. Stead celebrated the one hundrdth anniversary of her birthday and the event was one of special moment. She was in her usual good health up to the time of death, and her demise was unexpected somewhat.

Mrs. Stead leaves two children, Mrs. Allen, with whom she lived, and Thomas J. Stead, Jr., of the Penfield Hat Company, New York. Mrs. Harrison Coddington, of the borough, is the only grand-child. There are three great-grand child children, Miss Coddington, Allen Coddington and Harry Coddington, of the borough.

The funeral services will be held from the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon next at 4 o'clock.

THE SEWAGE BED VIEWS.

They Are Instructive In View of the Present Agitation About Them

In view of the excited agitation in Dunellen and the western part of the city over the sewage beds, the cuts on either side of this article, showing the beds in various conditions, are particularly interesting and instructive. The pictures from which the cuts were made were taken last fall. Street Commissioner Gavett says that the beds were in ordinary condition for that time of the year when the pictures were taken, and therefore are fair and representative views.

Not Quite at Four Score Point.

The death of Israel R. Blazier, aged 79 years, formerly of Millington, died last evening at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Theodore French, 408 West Third street, after a long illness with dropsy. The interment will be at Millington Sunday next.

MYSTERIOUS PATIENT APPARENTLY FROZEN.

Found Unconscious on North Avenue Near Midnight.

SENT TO THE HOSPITAL.

"FRED G. MILLER" TATOOED ON ONE OF HIS ARMS.

Patrolman McCarthy Found Him Leaning Against an Iron Fence at North Avenue Station—Uttered "Take Me Home" and "Girl" When Received at Hospital—In An Unconscious State.

An unknown patient was taken to the hospital late last night from the North Avenue station, suffering with the cold or a blow on the head. No one knows who the man is, and as yet he has not regained consciousness so as to be able to give any information regarding himself.

Patrolman McCarthy found him about 11:30 o'clock leaning against the iron fence near the station. He was almost unconscious. The man did not seem to have been drinking, so McCarthy got him into the station and sent for the ambulance, fearing that the man was nearly frozen.

When the stranger arrived at the hospital he was only able to mutter a few words, "Take me home" and "girl." Then he lapsed into an unconscious state again, from which he has not yet been aroused. The physicians carefully examined him, and could not determine whether the man was suffering from the cold or had received a blow on the head which rendered him unconscious. No marks of any wound were apparent, and the physicians are inclined to believe that he was frozen.

No one knows the stranger. On his right arm is tattooed the name of Fred G. Miller. He wore good clothing and had the appearance of a gentleman. In his pockets were several tickets for the Pennsylvania ferry from New York to Jersey City, 56 cents in money and a pocket knife with the name of Wm. H. Cook scratched on the blade. The stranger is tall and slender, with light hair and eyes, and wears a moustache. Probably some clue to his identity will be secured today.

Had a Cold Ride.

Among the numerous sleighing parties that were out last evening was one arranged by Edward Baker, of this city. There were about twenty young people in the party and Garwood was the destination. Those in the party claim that they had a delightful time.

REFORMATORY PROBLEM

GOVERNOR VOORHEES INSPECTS THE UNFINISHED INSTITUTION.

Estimated That It Will Take $240,000 to Finish the Structure According to the Original Plans Designed for It.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Rahway, Feb. 10—Governor Voorhees, Senators W. M. Johnson, of Bergen; Hutchinson, of Mercer; Braun, of Passaic, and Stokes, of Cumberland, with Assemblymen McKee, Dexheimer, Coles, Welsh and Eckert, the Appropriation Committee of the Legislature, came here yesterday afternoon to meet the members of the State Reformatory Commission.

The object of the joint meeting is to visit and inspect the unfinished buildings of the State Reformatory and to consider the advisability of completing any portion of the structure according to the present plans. It is estimated that it will take about $240,000, in addition to the amount already expended on the buildings, to finish up one wing of the place so as to make it habitable.

The suggestion has been made that it would be a matter of economy for the State to tear down the big dome-like structure now standing and use the material for the erection of a cheaper and less pretentious building.

The Committee on Appropriations will go carefully over the plans and the prospects for the place and will endeavor to reach a conclusion in the near future.

There seems to be a general disinclination among the legislators to agree to the expenditure of so large an amouut of money as the Commission would require to put the place in condition for use.

TO SUE TRACTION COMPANY.

William VanHorn Wants Pay for Injuries to Himself and Horse.

William VanHorn, of this city, after vainly negotiating with the New Brunswick Traction Company in an attempt to settle with them for injuries sustained by himself and horse two months ago, has at last concluded to go to law to secure a settlement and has placed his claim in the hands of Codington & Swackhamer, who will bring suit against the company before Justice Warder, of Dunellen.

VanHorn was driving home from Bound Brook several weeks ago, when his horse stepped off of the dirt road on to a trestle owned by the Traction Company, and fell through the open work. The trestle was built lower than the roadway, and the night being dark, VanHorn could not see where he was driving. Several men were required to get the horse out of the trestle. The horse was cut some, and the wagon was broken.

WAYWARD LIFE ENDED BY SUICIDAL ACT

Remains of Walter Brown Found in the East River.

HE LIVED AT DUNELLEN.

DISAPPEARED FROM HOME ABOUT TWO MONTHS AGO.

Had Been Addicted to the Excessive Use of Liquor—Resented the Attempt of His Brothers to Reprove Him for His Habits, and Suddenly Left Home—Had Been an Expert Stenographer.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Dunellen, Feb. 10—Word was received in this place last night that the remains of Walter Brown, aged twenty seven years, who mysteriously disappeared from his home two months ago, were fished out of the East river yesterday afternoon, into which he is supposed that he had jumped in order to end his miserable life. Brown was an expert stenographer, and previous to his disappearance had been employed in the Central Railroad of New Jersey building on the corner of Liberty and West streets in New York.

During the past two years he had become addicted to the excessive use of liquors and frequently came home in a bemuddled mood as a result. He lived with his two brothers on the old New Market road in what is known as the Barker house. One of his brothers is a cripple, and the other, Edward, is a stenographer employed in New York. The two brothers of the dead man are the reverse of the latter in habits, and while Walter resided with them they frequently took him to task for his dissipation. In their endeavors to reprove him Walter became fretful of their interference with his conduct, and two months ago he left home one morning and never returned. Until they received the news of his death last night neither one of the brothers knew what had become of the wayward fellow since his disappearance.

It is probable that he committed suicide in a fit of despondency. Walter and his brothers came to Dunellen about two years ago. They moved about but little in local society and were not well known by the townspeople. The brothers, however, were held in high esteem by those who knew them. The only fault of Walter seemed to be his drinking habit, and the vice seemed to have too strong a hold on him to overcome.

Edward will probably claim the body at the morgue in New York today, and arrange to give the remains decent burial.

—Through the insurance agency of William A. Woodruff the loss by fire on the Hartfelder building on West Third street was settled yesterday.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be easily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co, Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

WE WANT AGUINALDO

Gen. Otis Expected to Make the Filipino Leader a Prisoner.

GERMAN PLAN IS BLOCKED

Filipinos Reinforced by Better Drilled Men from the Northern Provinces—Dewey Ordered the Insurgents to Leave San Roque, and They Left—Now Occupied by Our Troops.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—The navy department has received the following dispatch:

Manila, Feb. 9.

After continued interference and intimidation of our workmen, I ordered insurgents to leave San Roque by 9 o'clock this morning. They left during the night, a few remaining, who burned the village this morning. It is now occupied by our troops. All is quiet.

DEWEY.

San Roque is a village on the neck of land connecting Cavite and the mainland of Luzon.

All Quiet at Manila.

Manila, Feb. 10.—All is quiet here. The Filipinos are lying low, except on the extreme left and right. They are evidently concentrating between Caloocan and Malabon. Judging from appearances the insurgents are being reinforced by better drilled men from the northern provinces. In front of Caloocan they are as thick as a swarm of bees.

The American troops are beginning to feel the heat at midday in the open and they are also anxious to proceed. The soldiers are impatient of restraint while in sight of the enemy.

Sergeant Major Smith of the Tennessees, has been ordered to proceed to the United States by the next transport as an escort of the remains of Colonel William C. Smith of the First Tennessee volunteers, who died of apoplexy during the recent battle with the Filipinos.

To Capture the Dictator.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—The war department is certain that the Aguinaldo rebellion has been broken, and it is waiting for the announcement that General Otis has captured the Philippine dictator and is preparing to put him in a safe place.

The president and the war department officials have nothing but praise for General Otis and his course toward Aguinaldo. His refusal to recognize or consent to a conference with Aguinaldo has prevented many diplomatic complications, and has blocked once more the scheme of the Germans to interfere in the islands.

General Otis has had suggestions from the war department that the best thing he can do is to "Get Aguinaldo, the sooner the better." The president does not want General Otis to go after the Filipino, as he would after a bad Indian chief, which means get him dead or alive, but he does desire the capture of Aguinaldo, so that the latter can be brought to some place where he can be reasoned with without recognizing him as a belligerent. It is probable, therefore, that as soon as the Filipino is captured, he will be shipped to the United States as a military prisoner and kept there.

Had General Otis responded to Aguinaldo's request for a conference he would have been recognizing the belligerency of the Filipinos. Germany would have at once proclaimed the right to sell arms to the insurgents without having the course legally considered as an unfriendly act. It is said in congressional circles that if this country recognizes Aguinaldo as a belligerent Germany will have an excuse for intervening in the Philippines just as we did in Cuba, although the officials at the state department deny that there is any such critical state in our relations with Germany.

It is nevertheless a fact that Germany has been trying ever since last May to force a declaration of policy from the administration but without success, of course. The German ambassador's instructions, it is said, were to sound this government on a proposition to make reciprocal arrangements with regard to naval bases.

Germany, it is claimed, was willing to offer the United States a naval and cable station in the Marshall islands for the privilege of Manila bay on the same terms as Spain for a period of ten years, and the use of a harbor for a naval station.

In addition, Germany was to propose to help us restore and maintain order in the Philippines and to make it a penal offense for any German to sell or take arms into the island. This offer was to draw out the administration and at the same time excite the British government's suspicion as to the sincerity of our professions of friendship to Great Britain.

At present there is no likelihood of such a proposition being made, because the diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, in view of a recent discovery of German ammunition and field guns in the hands of the Filipinos, are not of the most cordial nature.

General Otis telegraphs that the total casualties resulting from all engagements since February 4, aggregate 268, as follows.

Killed—Three officers, 56 enlisted men; wounded, 8 officers, 199 enlisted men; missing, two enlisted men.

N. Y. Capitol Deficiency.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Superintendent of Public Buildings Bender has presented to the commissioners of public buildings and the finance and ways and means committees of the legislature a statement claiming that there will be needed to complete the year's work, ending October 1, 1899, the sum of $221,000, and there is eight thousand dollars in the treasury. The deficiency is therefore about $213,000. The appropriation made last year for Superintendent Easton was supposed to last until that time.

Mr. Bender makes no charges either of extravagance on the part of his predecessor, or dishonesty.

Mr. Easton says the deficiency was caused by alterations to suit the enlarged assembly and senate, and that the expenditures were approved by the commission.

THE SITUATION AT ILOILO.

Armed Natives Prepared to Resist the Forces of Gen. Miller.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 10.—Hong Kong mail advices describe the situation at Iloilo, when it was first expected that General Miller's troops would be landed, as follows:

For days armed natives have been coming into town in a steady stream, and fully two thousand soldiers, armed with Remingtons and Mausers have taken possession of the church and government buildings. Officers are scurrying about on ponies, ammunition is being brought in from Malo, and an apparently stout resistance is being provided for any landing attempted by the Americans.

Stores and banks are closed, the excitement is intense. Outside of the city are nearly ten thousand mixed natives armed with knives and spears. They are anxious to be allowed in the city. In Negros, a nearby island, it is reported that some twenty thousand men are in arms awaiting the call.

Several schooners, loaded with men, are daily entering the river. They are not being interrupted. Day and night preparations continue for a lively resistance. Every hour of delay is made to account in throwing up works and barricading the streets. It is threatened that if the Filipinos should meet with defeat the town will be burned.

The transport Francisco Reyes came in on the ninth with five hundred and fifty Filipino soldiers, who were allowed to land without interference.

Altogether fifteen hundred soldiers have been landed in this manner, and this is not counting the hundreds that have come from other islands on schooners and small boats. Fully twenty-five hundred men with riefls are in the city.

The Spanish gunboat El Cano is still lying just off the fort, and it was reported that some two thousand stands of arms had been landed by her.

Filipino Generals Flee.

Manila, Feb. 10.—The Filipino generals whose forces were so unmercifully punished by General King's brigade in the fighting last Sunday, nearly one thousand of them having been killed in the attacks upon Santa Ana, San Pedro and Macati, to the southeast of the city, are reported to have fled to the interior in disguise to escape violence at the hands of their own people.

The officers in command of the main body of insurgents have asked Aguinaldo to send them reinforcements, but say they don't want any more Tagalos.

With the exception of the general advance of the American troops on Sunday morning, which was made for the purpose of teaching the Filipinos a lesson because of their attack upon our lines on the previous night, and our capture of the water works on Monday, every forward movement of our troops thus far has been immediately provoked by an attack by the enemy.

The territory to the east and southeast of the city is now deserted by the insurgents far in advance of our lines.

Reconnoitring parties are finding villages in every direction flying the white flag, and there is every indication that the villagers have had quite enough of the effective warfare waged by the Americans.

Interest now centers in front of General MacArthur's division on the north of the line, several regiments of Stalolos having reenforced the insurgents at Calocan, where they fired upon the Americans from their intrenchments for half an hour last evening.

The newly arrived native troops are very aggressive and are much in need of such a lesson as was given to their companions in arms last Sunday.

Boom Prices in Iron.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 10.—The iron trade has moved farther up in the past week, and is coming close to the line that in the minds of many of the leaders may not be crossed with safety. There is not the same conservatism in all quarters that has been shown in advancing ore and coke, or even Bessemer pig iron; and this fact, together with the control of intermediate products, already exercised in some cases and aimed at by pending negotiations in others, presents some possibilities of complications later.

Plate demand continues out of all proportion to the ability of the country's present capacity, and prices are determined by the urgency of each individual want. Bridge and shipyard work continues on an immense scale. Structural mills are probably in better shape to make deliveries than those in any other line.

Big Fire in Saratoga.

Saratoga, Feb. 10.—Fire early yesterday morning totally destroyed the Delaware and Hudson Railway depot here, the depot restaurant and baggage room, J. T. Sweeney's hotel and gutted Dwyer's hotel. All adjoining property was damaged, including bowling alleys owned by J. M. Marvin.

James V. Snyder, night watchman in the depot, was asleep and was burned to death. The fire caught from the electric light wires in the depot. The mercury was at zero and several firemen had their feet and hands frozen. The ruins were burning at a late hour last night. The loss is estimated at $60,000.

President's Trip to Boston.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—The president will leave Washington at 7 p. m. February 15, on a special train, for Boston, where he will attend the banquet of the Home Market Club. He will not decide until he reaches Boston whether he will address the Massachusetts legislature.

Mrs. McKinley will not make the trip. Several of the speakers at the banquet will be members of the presidential party.

Coldest in Twenty Years.

Pittsburg, Feb. 10.—Ten degrees below zero by the weather bureau thermometer, and fifteen to twenty degrees below in more exposed places, was the record here. This is the coldest it has been since January 3, 1879, when the mercury dropped to twelve degrees below zero.

FOR THE MILES INQUIRY

"Embalmed Beef" Court Is Now Named by the Department.

WILL MEET FEBRUARY 19.

Commanding General of the Army Will be Compelled to Prove His Charges of Corruption in Subsistance Department—The Board Will Make Recommendations as to Further Proceedings.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—An order has been issued by the war department for the appointment of a board of inquiry to investigate as a general subject the charges against the quality of the beef furnished the army.

The formal order was as follows:

Special Orders.

The following order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

In accordance with the instructions of the president of February 3, 1899, a court of inquiry to consist of the following named officers is hereby appointed to meet in this city on February 19, 1899.

Detail for the court: Major General James F. Wade, United States volunteers; Brigadier General George B. Davis, United States volunteers; Colonel George L. Gillespie, Corps of Engineers, United States army; Lieutenant Colonel George B. Davis, deputy judge advocate general, United States army, recorder.

The court is hereby directed to investigate certain allegations of the major general commanding the army in respect to the unfitness for issue of certain articles of food furnished by the subsistence department to the troops in the field during the recent operations in Cuba and Porto Rico. In addition to its findings of fact, the court will submit an opinion upon the merits of the case, together with such recommendation as to further proceedings as may seem to be warranted by the facts developed in the course of the inquiry.

The officers named will repair to this city for the purpose herein indicated, and upon the adjournment of the court will return to their proper stations. The travel enjoined is necessary for the public service.

R. A. ALGER,
Secretary of War.

By order of the Secretary of War,
H. C. CORBIN,
Adjutant General.

The instructions given by the secretary of war to the court are very broad and are regarded in military circles as being entirely beyond criticism, as they guarantee that the inquiry shall be fair to all concerned.

The court appointed will be obliged to report on the merits of the case and to make recommendations as to what further proceedings are necessary.

This places in the hands of the court the right to determine whether or not General Miles was justified in making his charges against the subsistence department, and to advise the war department whether or not a court martial of General Miles or other officers is necessary.

THE NATION'S FINANCES.

Deficit for the Current Year Estimated at $279,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—Mr. Cannon called up the sundry civil appropriation bill in the House yesterday, and its consideration was begun in committee of the whole.

The actual deficiency for the seven months ended January 31, was ninety-three million dollars, Mr. Cannon said. At the same rate of expenditures and receipts for the remaining five months the deficit for the year would amount to one hundred and fifty-nine million dollars, besides the twenty million dollars to be paid to Spain under the treaty of peace.

The available cash balance in the treasury, March first, inclusive of the gold reserve, was two hundred and seventy-four million dollars, two hundred million dollars of which was derived from the sale of bonds.

At the end of the current fiscal year the cash balance will have been reduced to $208,000,000. This estimate, Mr. Cannon said, took no account of the sinking fund, which is not provided for. It amounted for the current year to $51,000,000, and for the coming year to $53,000,000.

Secretary Gage's figures for the coming year, Mr. Cannon said, were $641,000,000 of expenditures and $611,000,000 of receipts, leaving a deficit of $30,000,000.

But this estimate, he continued, took no account of the increased expenses made necessary by the results of the war with Spain, including the army of occupation and the additional navy.

Paying the Cuban Troops.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—No movement has yet been made by the war department in the two most important matters of Cuban reconstruction, the disbanding payments to the Cuban troops or the affirmation of concessions and franchises which were some time ago declared void by General Brooke.

When the army payments are taken up they will be made through the regular officers of the pay corps in the presence of Cuban officers, who will certify to the character and standing of the Cuban troops and will see that the arms they relinquish are turned over to the Cuban assembly.

General Brooke has not yet acted in the matter of the concessions and franchises secured by enterprising outsiders from the retiring Spanish officials and municipal authorities. This matter is left primarily with the American officers in charge of the various departments of the island, and after them to General Brooke, upon whose recommendation the department will act.

Alarmed by Earthquakes.

Berlin, N. M., Feb. 10.—Inhabitants of this vicinity are much alarmed on account of a series of earthquake shocks that have occurred here recently.

Many have betaken themselves to prayer and fasting.

THE WHEELMENS' SESSION

The National Secretary's Report Shows a Falling Off in Membership.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 10.—The delegates to the National Assembly of the League of American Wheelmen began work yesterday in Columbia Hall.

Chairman Mott of the racing board was absent. President Potter read his annual report, and Secretary Bassett followed with his summary of the year's work. The secretary's report in brief was:

"Our membership has fallen off this year, but the year has been fertile in good works. It is to our credit that we retain the better class of wheelmen. The veterans are with us and stand with unbroken ranks. We enrolled last year 77,091 members, including applicants and renewals.

"The net cost of the Bulletin in 1898 was ten cents per capita to the treasury, which reduced the income of the national body to thirty cents per capita. At the present time $62,000 is out on loan accounts."

PRESIDENT KEENAN.

In conclusion Mr. Bassett says: "The record of 1898 is a grand one save the single item of growth. We are very far from the grave of failure, however, for we still remain the largest athletic body in the world."

In the contention to relinquish control of racing, the ranks of the anti-racing element were strengthened by the auditing committee's report to Chairman Mott of the L. A. W. racing board. It showed that more than nine thousand dollars had been received, of which but $162 remained in the treasury. Mott retained his salary of $2,500, while the same sum had been paid to the other members of the racing board. Of the remaining $4,000 there is an item of $800 for legal services, and $890 for stenographer. The sum of $2,200 is marked as expense.

The report has caused much comment among the delegates and Mott has received a scoring at the hands of those men who are fighting to retain control of the sport, but who are well aware that the racing board report is a hard blow.

The election of T. J. Keenan to succeed President Potter is assured.

Youthful Train Wrecker.

New Brunswick, Feb. 10.—George Conly, twelve years old, is locked up in the Middlesex county jail here on the charge of attempting to wreck a train on the Camden and Amboy branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Young Conly is a grandson of John Quinn, a well known citizen of Jamesburg. On Sunday last the boy placed a piece of iron across the rails of the track near Jamesburg and fasted the obstruction with wire.

Young Conly had been reading dime novels and also the newspaper stories of the wreck at Dunellen.

He thought it would be a great idea to have something like that at Jamesburg, so that he could see the whole thing for himself. Telegraph Operator Harvey Stonaker came along before any train approached and removed the iron in time to prevent any accident.

Fitz and Sharkey Cant Agree.

New York, Feb. 10.—Out of the oceans of fighting talk has come a tiny rivulet of a fight. Out of the dream of a fight between Sharkey and Fitzsimmons has come the prospect of a contest between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries. Almost the last ray of hope of a fight for the championship between the men who are entitled to fight for it—Fitzsimmons and Sharkey—has vanished. In its place there looms up a mill between Fitz and Jeffries, which may or may not take place, and which if it does take place, cannot be decisive of anything except the relative ability of the principals to it. A fight for the championship in which Sharkey is not one of the principals cannot settle the championship. The managers of the big fellows would not agree as to date and so a match between them is improbable.

Graves of Maine Victims.

Havana, Feb. 10.—Commodore B. J. Cromwell commander of the United States navy yard here, following the instructions received from Mr. Charles H. Allen, assistant secretary of the United States navy, recently had a large number of flowers and potted plants placed on the graves of the dead of the United States battleship Maine. Three days afterward every flower had been removed by memento seeking visitors.

Strict orders have been issued to prevent soldiers from selling portions of their rations to storekeepers and others who speculate in them.

British Warship Sunk.

London, Feb. 10.—Her majesty's ship Resistance, from Portsmouth for Liverpool, put into Holyhead yesterday morning leaking badly, from causes which could not be ascertained. She had not been in collision nor had she met with any other mishap which would have started her leaking. She was moored in the harbor, but afterward slipped her cable and sank at high water. Her crew was saved. The Resistance was ranked as a non-effective vessel.

Sharkey to Meet Mitchell.

New York, Feb. 10.—Tom O'Rourke announces that Charlie Mitchell accepts Tom Sharkey's challenge for a fight. The men will meet on May 29, before the Bolingbroke Athletic Club of London. The fight is to be for a purse of $11,000.

State Expenses Have Increased a Million in Twenty Years.

ABUSES ARE POINTED OUT.

The State Committee Sits Down Hard on the Gratuities Given Reporters by the Legislature — Many Recommendations Offered to Lessen the Running Expenses of the Commonwealth.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 10.—As a result of the can condition of Connecticut fiscal affairs in 1897, when the receipts of the state treasury were running behind expenses, Senator J. Carl Converse, Representative T. Attwater Barnes, ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller, Huber Williams and Philo S. Bennett were appointed a committee to inquire into all matters relating to state receipts and expenditures. After careful investigation, covering two years, into all branches of state administration, and involving hearings held in many parts of the state, the committee yesterday handed in an exhaustive and painstaking report of 143 printed pages to the governor, showing the existence of widespread abuses.

Since 1877 there have been added to institutions asking for state expenditures twenty-eight, calling for $242,277. During the twenty years from 1877 to 1897 state expenses have increased from $1,385,846 to $2,445,716, while receipts increased only from $2,316,881 to $2,382,273

The largest increases were for judicial expenses, $189,902; common schools, $107,192, and National Guard $130,945, the general increase being immensely out of proportion to population. No provision has been made for paying the state debt of $3,240,000 at maturity, and the committee recommend strongly a tax of one-half mill on the grand lists of the towns, which will provide a sinking fund for the purpose.

Taking up in detail the branches of state administration, the committee finds great extravagance in the judicial system of the state, which costs the people 46.4 cents per capita, as compared with 7.26 cents in Maine, 11.6 in New Hampshire, 18.7 in Vermont, 14.1 in Massachusetts, 35.9 in Rhode Island, and 14.2 in New Jersey.

Some of the sheriffs and clerks receive two or three times as much in fees and salaries as the salaries of higher court judges; counties, without apparent warrant of law have shifted jail expenses on the state, and overcharged the state unjustly; and nearly all the courts of common pleas are superfluous. The committee recommends the abolition or most of the latter courts, payment of clerks and sheriffs by salaries, the transfer to the counties of expenses now loaded on the state, and the increase of the number of superior court judges from eight to eleven. Many minor reforms in the judicial branch are also recommended.

In legislative expenses the committee criticises with the utmost severity the system of voting gratuities to newspaper reporters and other persons, as being "pernicious in effect, wrong in principle, and without legal warrant or authority." It has cost the state since 1887 $103,930. A statute is recommended to check the comptroller and treasurer from paying such grants. It is pointed out that by such measures, and by reducing the lower house to one representative from each town, $50,000 every two years can be saved in legislative expenses.

An Improved Electric Lamp.

London, Feb. 10.—A young German, Walter Nernst, a professor in the Goettingen University, has invented an electric lamp which does not require enclosure in vacuum, as is the case with the present glow lamp.

The Nernst light is emitted by a rod composed of rare earths, similar to those used in the manufacture of certain gaslight mantles. These rods do not conduct electricity when cold, but only when heated. They give out a mild, yellowish light, and work equally well at any pressure, with consequent economy in copper.

The invention was discussed by the Society of Arts last evening. Messrs. Swinburne and Ayrton, the celebrated chemists, declared it to be the greatest discovery in many years. The invention created a sensation among the members of the society.

Justice Killed a Burglar.

Altoona, Pa., Feb. 10.—W. I. D. Sechrist, justice of the peace at Johnsonburg, last night shot and killed an unknown burglar, after a struggle in which the justice came near losing his life.

Two men were seen entering a house and Sechrist volunteered to help two policemen capture the pair.

One of the men rushed out of a door and grappled with Sechrist, trying to shoot him, but the cartridge did not explode. In the struggle Sechrist fired instantly killing his adversary.

The other burglar jumped out of a window in the confusion and shooting back as he ran, escaped.

Quay Deadlock Yet Holds.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 10.—The joint ballot of the legislature in the senatorial election contest proceeded yesterday along the lines which have been so tightly drawn during the last three weeks.

The break that was predicted from the Quay ranks did not materialize, and there is no possibility now of a break of the deadlock this week at least.

The joint ballot, the twentieth, resulted as follows: Quay 100, Jenks 77, Dalzell 18, Irvin 4, Stewart 5, Tubbs 2, Huff 6, Stone 5, Rice 1, Grow 1, Markle 1, Widener 2, Riter 2, total 224. Necessary to a choice 113.

King of the Klondike Weds.

London, Feb. 10.—Alexander Macdonald, a gold miner of Dawson City, Alaska, reputed to be the possessor of a fortune of over twenty-seven million pounds, was married yesterday at Brixton to Margaret Chisholm, daughter of the superintendent of the Thames Water Police. Macdonald, who is called the "King of the Klondike," was born in Nova Scotia and is forty years old.

EXTRA SESSION POSSIBLE.

President Gives Warning Action Must be Taken on The Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—President McKinley has called sharp attention to the absolute and immediate necessity of an army reorganization bill. He declares that there will be an army bill passed in this Congress or he will call an extra session. There is no half-heartedness in the announcement, nor an intention to bluff the Senate into compliance. The president means what he says, and he has instructed his friends in the Senate to pass the army bill even if some of the appropriations fail.

The president has given to Senator Allison his ultimatum and told him to aid in making way for the army bill regardless of the consequences. The lack of appropriations could be remedied before the next fiscal year, but the failure of the army bill could not.

The Hull bill, as passed by the House and amended in the Senate committee, is satisfactory to the president. It is regarded by the war department as the best bill possible under the circumstances. General Corbin says it will give the United States the best organized army in the world.

President McKinley does not seek to dictate the character of the legislation of the army. That he leaves for Congress to decide. He does however, propose to exercise his prerogative and fulfill his executive duty by calling an extra session if it is needed too obtain support for the government.

The ratification of the treaty of peace makes it absolutely necessary that there should be an increase in the regular army. It will not answer for Congress to grant authority for the continuance of the present military organization. The men who enlisted in the regular army between May 10 and October 26 are entitled to discharge on the date when the exchange of ratifications takes place if they so demand. Their enlistment papers contained an agreement to that effect. The government would be in the position of dealing unjustly with its citizens if there should be an insistence upon holding the war regulars after peace is declared.

WINTER'S COLDEST DAY.

Thursday Breaks the Record in Many Localities.

New York, Feb. 10.—Yesterday was the coldest day of the season. Following upon the big snow storm of Tuesday night, the weather bureau predicted the arrival of a cold wave which would bring with it a drop of from 20 to 25 degrees in temperature. But the fall of the mercury more than fulfilled expectations. At 7.30 o'clock the temperature officially recorded by the weather bureau was three degrees below zero, a drop of thirty-three degrees. The lowest temperature previously recorded this winter was five degrees above zero.

Twenty-Two Below in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—This city is in the grip of the coldest weather since 1872. The thermometer began to fall steadily at midnight Wednesday, and by six o'clock registered 22 below at the weather bureau. Many thermometers throughout the city, however, showed the mercury down to 25 and 28, and in the fashionable western suburbs like Lagrange, it is claimed that thirty below was reached.

About twenty people were so severely frostbitten during the early morning hours that they had to be removed to police stations and hospitals.

The fact that there is no snow on the ground caused the snow to penetrate to the water mains, and several portions of the city are suffering from a lack of water.

Hard to Run Trains.

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 10.—Wednesday night was the coldest since 1888, when thirty degrees below was the record. During the night the temperature ranged from twenty-five to twenty-nine degrees below zero. Railroad men found the greatest difficulty in running trains and all were behind time. There is much suffering among the poorer classes and reports from the country tell of the serious condition of stock.

The Potomac Frozen Over.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—The thermometer went to seven below zero in the early hours this morning, the lowest since 1881. The city is covered with deep snow from the storms of the past week, and sleighing is more general than in years. The Potomac is frozen over.

Coldest in Twenty Years.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 10.—This is the coldest weather in twenty years. The government observer's thermometer registered fifteen degrees below zero. At exposed points it showed two degrees lower, and on the river front, where a strong west wind was in full force, the mercury showed twenty-two below.

Damage in the Oil Fields.

Bowling Green, Ohio, Feb. 10.—The thermometer registered eighteen degrees below zero here and much damage has resulted in the oil fields.

Work there is practically suspended. All the gas lines in the city are frozen and the fuel supply cut off.

Thirty-Four Below at Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 10.—Last night was the coldest for several years. The thermometer dropped to 34 degrees below zero. The wind has ranged from twenty to thirty-six miles an hour, making it doubly severe.

Fifteen Below at Topeka.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 10.—The weather record scored in 1892 was broken in Kansas during the night. Thermometers in Topeka registered fifteen below.

Twenty-four Below at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 10.—It was twenty-four degrees below zero in Peoria yesterday.

IT IS NOT economy to buy a cheap quality of meat. You will usually find it stringy and tough with plenty of white, sinewy matter through it. Good honest meat aids good digestion. That is the kind you want—and the kind we keep, and while our prices are not below value, we don't charge any higher, because we give good service.

COMING EVENTS.

February 12—Franklin and Somerset Councils, J. O. U. A. M., will attend the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m. Rev. J. O. McKelvy will speak. All men are invited.

Need of Constitutional Changes.

All careful and fair students of State affairs agree that there is imperative need for a constitutional convention in New Jersey in order that the fundamental laws of the commonwealth may be altered to suit the existing conditions, but nevertheless many of the smaller counties are opposed to any such process of changing. This is due to the fact that the smaller counties fear that a constitutional convention might strip them of their present Senatorial representation with a corresponding increase of power to the larger bailiwicks such as Hudson and Essex

There is unquestionably a good deal of injustice in the present Senatorial representation. For instance, Cape May county, with 12,855 population, has as much representation as Hudson wih a population of 328,000. Hudson and Essex counties, the premiers of New Jersey, secure only two Senators to the seven of other counties whose total of inhabitants does not equal them. Of course, it would be utterly impossible to make an entirely equal ratio of population for each Senator to represent, but under the present constitutional arrangement Hudson and Essex do not fare as well as a strict view of popular government would accord them.

But the Senatorial representation is not the only faulty construction of the present antequated constitution, which has been patched by Legislative amendments till it puzzles the most astute lawyers to know exactly what some of its portions mean. There are a great many other sections that are obviously misfitted for this day and generation. Sweeping changes are desired, and the only proper way to secure them is by holding a constitutional convention.

Next Wednesday will be the first anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor. When one considers the occurrences since then it emphasizes strongly the wonderful reserve force of the United States in dealing quickly and successfully with questions that threaten the welfare of the country and are as little anticipated as it is possible to imagine.

The Republicans in the borough will hold their caucus about March 2d or 3d, and the election will occur Tuesday, March 14th. The first registry day will be Thursday, March 2d, and the last Tuesday, March 7th. The registry this year promises to be much larger than in previous years.

It is said that the State association of justices of the peace have decided to postpone action to secure legislation in their behalf until next winter, when they think their organization will be strong. They think wrong. The antipathy among the people at large to the present justice of the peace system in New Jersey grows more pronounced every day.

Mayor Hoos, of Jersey City, has vetoed an ordinance changing the names of forty streets. That is quite proper. There is altogether too much senseless changing of street names in American municipalities. And Plainfield has not been among the least of the offenders in the past, either.

An Old Maids' convention is being held in a New York State town. We suppose, of course, that the spinsters will have a lively discussion over the subject "Is Marriage a Failure?" Well, they ought to know if anyone does.

It is hard work these days to keep track of all the trust formations, but among the latest we notice the paper bag trust. Turn it over to the small boy and he will show you how to fill it with wind and make a lot of noise.

One needs a double jointed tongue to be able to talk intelligently in describing the geographical points of the Phillipine battles, as well as the cognmens of the native officers concerned in the insurrection.

In today's Daily Press is printed a series of four illustrations showing the condition of the sewage beds last fall. In view of the present discussion about the beds the pictures become especially interesting.

Evidently the powers that be in G. O. P. circles believe that the easiest way to keep the Legislature on its good behavior is to have it in session as little as possible.

The plentifulness of ice now does not mean that it will be easy to get next summer. The ice trust is among the things that New Jersey has yet to hear from.

There is not much doubt now but that the ground hog saw its own shadow the other day.

Learn when young—give advice when old.—Bam's Horn.

It's against human nature.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Plainfield wants to be a county seat and is willing to carve up a little of Somerset, Middlesex and Union counties in order to attain that distinction. The best thing to do is not to do it. Once begin cutting up the counties in order to accommodate ambitious municipalities and there will be no end of counties. Beware of too many divisions. Behold Bergen county with its borough craze and fifty-two municipal divisions. If the two parts of Plainfield want to get in one county that might be accomplished, but don't manufacture any more State municipal divisions unless there be a plain necessity for it.—Hackensack Record.

PROTEST AGAINST HIGH PRICES.

A Correspondent Says the Local Newsdealers are a "Corrupt Combination."

To The Editor of The Daily Press:—I want to protest against the high prices charged here for New York newspapers. An advance of one cent on the regular price seems a small thing, but it increases the cost 33 per cent in the case of the Tribune, and more for the cheaper papers. The regular New York price is charged in Elizabeth and Bound Brook for the morning papers and also in Plainfield for the evening papers. In view of these facts it is preposterous to say that dealers here cannot afford to sell at the regular rate. It is nothing but extortion and some one of our dealers ought to have sufficient sense and courage to cut the price and break up what one of them, in conversation with me, called a "corrupt combination." THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

A well organized company under ther management of Messrs. Dexter & O'Neill with that sterling actor, Joseph Callahan, at the head, has been presenting "Faust" this season with marked success and the reports from cities where the company has aleady appeared, warrant the assertion of a delightful entertainment at Music Hall tomorrow night, and tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Callahan's name is familiar to theatre goers. He has won by hard work an honored place in the profession and his experience and training have eminently fitted him for the role of Mephistopheles. Mr. Callahan is said to give an original impersonation of this part, combining the best elements of other actors with some unique ideas of his own, and received highest praise. The matinee tomorrow afternoon will be as perfect as the night performance, and the prices will be 10c. for children under 12 years of age and 25c. for adults.

Lots of fun and enjoyment is promised at the performance of the Championship Cake Walkers and Minstrels at Music Hall Monday night. The company is said to excel in novelties and up to-date "coon" specialties and give an entertainment that is highly praised by the press of the cities wherein they have lately appeared. One of the specialties is the wonderful feats of James Miller, the acknowledged champion trick bicycle rider, and another feature is the quartette singing in the minstrel part of the bill.

"Jolly Nellie McHenry" with her own new vaudeville company will be the attraction at Music Hall Washington's Birthday, instead of the entertainment previously announced. This will be welcome news to all lovers of genuine mirth.

* * * * *

The Pittsburg Press pays the following tribute to the Jeffersons, who are soon to appear in Music Hall:

"Rip Van Winkle" was given yesterday afternoon and last night at the Alvin Theatre by the Jefferson Comedy Company, large and appreciative audiences being present to witness the production of the famous old play. Of course, Joe Jefferson was missed in the part he has so long and so grandly portrayed, but there was no lack of applause for the actors and actresses who so acceptably filled his place and the other parts of the play. Thomas Jefferson took the role of Rip and performed it so successfully that he was several times called before the curtain. He gave a most satisfactory rendition of the part. Joe Jefferson, Jr., played Hendrick Vedder.

* * * * *

Everyone is undoubtedly familiar with the fact that "The Little Minister" as produced in New York by Charles Frohman achieved a remarkable success. It was seen there for 300 nights and at every performance, without a single exception, the theatre was crowded to the doors. Since leaving New York wherever it has appeared the same story is told, every seat sold long before the company arrives. It is with a great dead of pleasure that we announce that it will shortly be seen here.

—L. A. Hummer, the borough butcher, now located corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue, is well pleased with the trade accorded him.

—Under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, a fair will be opened in Washington Hall Monday evening, February 20th and continue for one week.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but does not order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1/4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 10—Albert Apgar, of Church street, celebrated his twenty-third birthday last night by surrounding himself with his friends and giving them a little party. The time was spent in a social way and all left after enjoying a pleasant evening.

Water pipes for the Watchung Water Company have been distributed along the streets and avenues, but the cold and stormy weather has prevented any attempt to lay them. Several carloads of iron pipes for the company arrived a few days ago.

A sociable under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will be held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. George Giles.

The Ladies' Orchestra will furnish music for an entertainment to be given in the Presbyterian church, Westfield, tomorrow evening.

Lewis and Joseph Thomas, who have been visiting their mother, Mrs. Nancy Thomas, have returned to their studies at Princeton.

The meeting of the ministers of this place and New Market will be held Tuesday afternoon in the study of Rev. A. I. Martine.

I. J. Romayne and Joseph Maier, of the Park Hotel, spent Wednesday visiting relatives in New York.

Miss Nellie Dodwell fell from the school steps Tuesday and severely sprained her ankle.

Theodore Apgar has begun the erection of a new house on Front street.

Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer has been visiting among relatives in Somerville.

Mrs. Jennie Maltby, of New Brunswick, is visiting Miss VanNest.

Randolph Runyon, who has been quite ill, is improving.

Miss Ethel Jamison is visiting with friends at Boonton.

Mr. Dickinson is quite ill with the grip.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, Feb. 10—Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Day, to Franklin VanNuis. The ceremony will take place Wednesday afternoon, February 15th, at the bride's home. Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton will officiate.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church held a sociable last night in Friendship Hall. A programme of music and recitations was rendered, after which refreshments were served.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 10—Harry, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Darby, of Alton, entertained a number of his young friends at a birthday party at his home Wednesday evening. Among those present from the village were Miss Sadie Reger and Miss Cora Miller.

Gustave Warta, an employee of the paper mill, met with an accident by which he lost one of his fingers, Wednesday, while working around what is called the "chopper," a machine used to cup up the ropes and rags used in making the pasteboards. Dr. Westcott is attending the injured hand but will be some time before he works.

As soon as possible after the storm Wednesday the township snow plow was out cleaning the sidewalks through the village, thus making travel quite good. The plow has been used to good advantage this winter and the residents of the village appreciate it.

Lynus Marsh, an old and respected resident of the village, while walking Monday evening was unfortunate enough to slip and fall, spraining his ankle quite badly.

The scholars of the public school will celebrate Lincoln's Birthday this afternoon by a short programme consisting of recitations and addresses.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. SHE MEANT WELL.

But Didn't Know the Minister's Feelings on the Temperance Question.

Te wife of a prominent lawyer living in Germantown recently engaged a new servant from Virginia, who, although black as coal, was endowed with the fair name of Lillie, and whose desire to please her mistress has already occasioned more than one embarrassing situation. The other day an eminent minister and temperance reformer called at the house, and in a short time he launched off upon a violent denunciation of intemperance in the family circle, and drinking in general.

Lillie had heard that the visitor was a man of prominence and standing, and she acted accordingly. Going to the medicine case she brought out a flask of old whiskey kept for sickness and poured a generous quantity over the cracked ice in a bowl. Taking the scissors she went to the yard fence and looked over, and seeing the coast was clear, appropriated a large bunch of mint from the neighbor's garden. Putting a clean handkerchief on her head she sallied in to honor the 'quality' in the parlor, who was just in the midst of his denunciation, and whose views were being heartily concurred in by his hostess. Just then Lillie came sweeping in and presented the astonished divine with a mint julep. He gave one withering glance at his hostess, and, taking up his hat, left the house, evidently believing that the lady was a hypocrite or that his zeal for temperance had been made the subject of a joke.—Philadelphia Record.

HOURLY VISITING BY NURSES.

A System Which Gives Comfort to a Large Class of People.

There are thousands of people who are ill, and yet cannot afford the luxury of a trained nurse. Again there are others who do not need the services of a nurse all day and all night. The first class cannot have them on account of the expense, and consequently suffer and are ill longer than if they could have only a portion of a nurse's care. The second class are not ill enough to need the constant presence of a trained nurse.

The nurse can now be hired to come in and assist at an operation, to visit the patient at certain hours, dress wounds, bathe or change or otherwise make them comfortable in a manner such as a woman trained to such work alone can do.

Many sick persons are made very nervous by the presence of an absolute stranger constantly in the room with them, and often prefer to dispense with the services of a trained nurse for that very reason. Under the new arrangement such persons can obtain all the benefit necessary by these visits.

The fee charged is graduated very fairly and comes within the reach of the greater majority of persons. For a case requiring six hours the fee is $4, for an attendance of one hour $1, and for each succeeding hour or fraction thereof fifty cents.—New York Herald.

A Good Old King.

The old Emperor William was announced to pay a visit to Baden-Baden, says a writer in Chambers' Journal, while I happened to be staying there in 1879. Shortly before his arrival he must have accomplished a feat in a railway carriage which a "change artist" at a music hall might have envied. Only a few minutes before the train actually stopped I had at a point on the line seen him in the costume of an old gentleman en voyage. When the station was reached the Kaiser stepped forth on the platform blazing in a magnificent and bejeweled uniform. A little later on the same day his Majesty, once more in unofficial costume, was inspecting on foot the pretty things in the shops of the Baden Kursaal, rather suggestive, as they are, of a section of the Paris Palais Royal.

Two peasants from the neighboring Black Forest, evidently a young man and his sweetheart, wistfully eyed some little object, timidly asked the price, and on hearing it almost tearfully turned away. The grand and kind old Kaiser had noted it all. The peasant pair had just reached the exit from the inclosure, when one of the people of the shop came up to them, placed a packet in their hands with some such words, murmured low, as, "By the will of the Kaiser."—Chambers' Journal.

Sailors' Love of Animals.

An incident illustrating the sailors' attachment for animals recently was reported in the London Times. The item was as follows:

"As Commander Lewis Blackburn, of the cruiser Blenheim, was leaving the hulk Royal Adelaide, in Chatham dock yards, on the night of November 24, a gazelle which he had recently brought from abroad ran to meet him, and while affectionately rubbing against him fell overboard. Commander Blackburn, who was in full uniform, promptly plunged into the basin although the risk was great the night being intensely dark and there being chains between the Adelaide and other ships. Shouting for lights to be brought he kept himself and the gazelle afloat until both were rescued."

Miss D.—"Angelica, why don't you marry Lieutenant Y—?"

Miss A—"First, because he has no brains, and he can't ride, dance, or play tennis. What could we do with him?"

Miss D—"But he swims beautifully."

Miss A—"Oh, yes; but one can't keep one's husband in an aquarium, you know."

UNAPPRECIATED KISSES.

He never sunk a collier
To bottle up a fleet,
But the pretty maidens kiss him
And exclaim: "Oh, ain't he sweet!"

He never scoffed at danger,
Nor made a poet sing;
He has never done a single Extraordinary thing.

Still the women, when they see him,
Utter words of wild delight,
And at once begin to kiss him,
Each of them with all her might.

But it hasn't swelled his head up,
Hasn't spoiled the little chap—
He is three weeks old and doesn't
Care a continental rap.

THE CRAMPTON MYSTERY.

"Please tell Mr. Crampton that I must see him—I have something of the utmost importance to tell him.'

"Very well, sir."

The maid left Fred Palmer, a hustling youth, with an habitually sensational air, standing by the hat rack, and ran upstairs as fast as she could. The parlor seemed deserted, for there was no fire in it, though it was midwinter. Altogether, the house had a disagreeable feeling of sadness about it. No wonder, considering that the only son of the family had been missing for over a week, and nothing but a crumpled and battered hat found in a passenger coach on the railroad to give a hint of his fate.

Presently the maid came running down the stairs with, "Please come up to Mr. Crampton's room, sir." Which message she delivered breathlessly before she could touch the last step of the flight.

The young man found a picture of bereavement in Mr. Crampton's room. A week before that Leonard Crampton would have been set down by any chance acquaintance as a robust, prosperous man of forty-five. This evening he looked, wrapped in a drab flannel dressing gown, and seated in an armchair close to the fire, like a man of seventy.

"You have something to say to me, Mr. Palmer?" he asked, in a shaky voice.

"Yes, sir, and it would not wait, or I would not have troubled you at this hour. To come to the point, I have traced the—murderer."

Mr. Crampton pulled himself forward by the two arms of his chair and stared with open mouth.

"Then poor Bob—my boy has been murdered?"

"Oh, I beg your pardon, sir," said Palmer, starting back and hesitating—"I—I thought—why, everybody says—I thought you were all reconciled to—to this view."

"Yes—yes; go on and tell me. I suppose it must be so. Sit down."

"The man has left Chicago, sir. The police think he has made his way to Oregon or Washington. They are looking for him on other charges."

"Yes, but I care nothing about other charges. Tell me about this—about my boy."

"Yes, sir," said Palmer; "I am coming to that. This man—commonly known as Nipper Cary—was seen here a week ago last Wednesday, wandering about the town. He had on an old brown traveling cap and a dilapidated summer suit. Said he was looking for work. The police here had no idea as to his identity. Thursday he was seen speaking to poor Bob—"

"Good God!"

"Yes, sir. Then he followed Bob down toward the freight yards. You remember that was the night—"

"Yes. Never mind that—"

"Well, sir, it seems that the wife of the gatekeeper at the Love Lane crossing heard some one call for help—a man's voice. She went out and spoke to her husband about it, and he told her she must be dreaming, that it was a drunken man trying to sing up the lane. Seen after that this same gatekeeper admits that a man answering the description of Cary, only with a derby hat, came to the crossing, carrying a bundle under his arm."

"And which way did he go?"

"Well, the gatekeeper says he turned and walked up the line away from town. It was just after that that the No. 9 train went out, you know, sir. And it was on the No. 9 that the porter found Bob's hat—a derby—under the seat. The conductor said, you remember, that a rough-looking man boarded the train at Whitger's and paid his fare as far as Evanston."

The unhappy father was sobbing, and Palmer respectfully paused a moment in his story.

"What do you think this scoundrel did with my son? Where is the body?"

"I have been looking through Love Lane this afternoon, Mr. Crampton, do you know the cedar clump at the edge of the Carpenter place, just about fifty yards from the crossing?"

"Well?"

"I found the bushes a good deal trodden at one place there. The long grass in the ditch at the roadside is dry now, of course, but at this place it was broken and stamped. And two rails of the snake fence have been let down there. Mrs. Carpenter told me that she had never known any one to make a short cut through the cedar clump at that place. But I went and looked about among the trees and found a well there. It has not been used for years, and the story goes that it is a used-up oil well."

"And you think?"

"Yes, sir. I think that the murderer threw poor Bob's body down that well."

"But isn't it filled up."

"Not up to the top, sir."

"Isn't there any machinery in it?"

"No, sir. The machinery was all removed long ago."

"Then," said Mr. Crampton, "I'll have that well opened, if I have to pay ten thousand dollars for it."

Here was where Palmer found his difficulty in the task he had set himself. The Carpenters—two brothers and his wife or one of them—refused to allow the well to be touched. When Mr. Crampton, accompanied by Palmer, visited the Carpenters' place on the morning after this interview, the Carpenters pointed out that the short, thick undergrowth of brushwood at the mouth of the hole was not disturbed, as it would be if a dead body had been dragged thither and thrown in only a week before. Mr. Crampton pointed to the disturbed fence rails and trampled grass at the break in the fence, and the unquestionable evidence that some one had passed in that way, walked to the old well and gone back again the same way.

But the Carpenters, though they admitted all these evidences, denied the force of Palmer's theory that a murder had been committed thereabouts on the Thursday night of the previous week.

It must be said that the Carpenters were in a minority. Fred Palmer, in whose ability to ferret out a mystery most of his fellow-townsmen had great confidence, had discovered fresh evidence in the shape of a rag with blood on it in the ditch. Apart from all this strong circumstantial evidence, Fred Palmer was the assistant editor of a local morning paper, and at least once before had successfully traced the guilt in another lesser crime to the guilty party.

In the previous case, a small gambling swindle, the opposition paper and most of the inhabitants had ridiculed Palmer's pretensions to being able to solve the problem; this time, at least, the citizens were very wary of premature ridicule.

The upshot of all this was that, while Mr. Crampton consulted lawyers to find a means of compelling the Carpenters to allow their oil well to be excavated, local public opinion in the space of forty eight hours pretty generally came round to Palmer's views; that young Bob Crampton had been murdered for his watch and the considerable sum of money he was known to have had in his pocket; that the murderer was a tramp who had disappeared from the neighborhood on the night of Bob's disappearance, and that Bob's body had been thrown into the abandoned well.

"If you will only bring that villain to justice," Mr. Crampton said to Fred Palmer at a second interview, "you may command any service I am able to do you from now on."

That was just what Palmer wanted to hear from Bob's father, chiefly because Bob's father was also the father of Clara. There was more than mere reportorial ambition in this activity of Fred Palmer.

Palmer knew that Nipper Cary was supposed by the Chicago police to have made his way to Oregon or Washington state. He did not hesitate to follow the desperate villain whose description answered so completely to that of the tramp with whom Bob Crampton had been seen.

He had $500 of his own within easy reach. He resolved to send that sum in his struggle for justice and Clara. So he went and spoke about the matter to his editor and chief.

"And you want to go all the way to Seattle to hunt this desperado?" the editor-in-chief asked, incredulously.

"Just that," said Palmer. "See here; suppose I end by finding the fellow, the paper gets fame, doesn't it? Suppose I don't find him, what does the paper lose? You can get Giles to supply for me."

"Go ahead," said the chief.

And ahead Palmer went. But he did not leave town without one brief interview with Clara, in which he got that young lady—she was very young, besides being heart-broken about her brother—to promise that if he brought her brother's murderer to justice she would honestly try to love him. The promise was not given very willingly, but it was sincere, and it meant an indefinite deal to Palmer, who was very sanguine.

So Palmer, leaving Mr. Crampton to fight with the pig-headed Carpenter family, set out for Oregon by way of Chicago.

Two days later a letter with typewritten address came to Clara Crampton. Don't be shocked. I have just met that ass, Palmer, coming out of a police station. He rushed up and grabbed me by the shoulder. His jaw dropped when he first saw me. He says you all think I am dead. I am not.

"The fact is, a tramp I came across last week followed me all the way out of Love Lane, trying to bulldoze me into giving him something. You know, I meant to go out there and make a moonlight study. It ended in my giving him a bloody nose. Then I went on my way, carrying my sketching box and book under my arm. The tramp tumbled so dead-like into the ditch that after I had left him I gave up the idea of making my moonlight sketch and came back to see if he was hurt badly.

"I found that he had crawled on to the Carpenter farm. Then he and I made friends, and I took an idiotic notion to go tramping with him. I had read so much about that sort of thing in magazines. Some days ago I caught on to it that my tramp was not a regular tramp at all, but a big criminal the police here are looking for. Then he suspected me and gave me the slip.

"Since then I have been having a great time looking for him in the slums of Chicago—the police and I.

"I shall be home to-morrow. I am an ass, I know, to frighten you like this. But Palmer is a still bigger ass. He says he will go to the Pacific and begin life afresh. I told him it was the best thing he could do. Your own brother, R. C."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Die Waisenanstalt erhält 2000 Mark, der Erziehungsverein 1000 Mark, die Kleinkinderbewahranstalt 2000 Mark, der Verschönerungsverein 1000 Mark. An die Arbeiter der Fabrik wurden 4000 Mark vertheilt, weitere 4000 Mark finden zu einer Stiftung zu Gunsten der Arbeiter Verwendung.

Sonneberg. Das große Woll-, Weiß- und Pelzwaarengeschäft der Firma Aschleben ist abgebrannt.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die hiesigen Maurer-, Schneider-, Schuhmacher- und Drechslergehilfen sind der Ansicht, daß sie für ihre Arbeitsleistungen nicht genügend bezahlt werden und treffen Vorbereitungen, einen Massen-Lohnkampf in Szene zu setzen, eventuell einen Riesenstrike zu inszeniren. — Der langjährige erste Direktor der Wechselbank, Julius Seckels, der in hohem Ansehen stand, ist an einem Schlaganfall gestorben.

Bremen. Der Senat übergab der Bürgerschaft einen mit Preußen vereinbarten Vertragsentwurf: Darnach soll Bremen die Kanalisirung der Oberweser bis Minden ausführen und die Kosten von 42,500,000 Mark durch Schiffsabgaben decken. Bremen soll sich mit Berlin in die restlichen 15 Prozent der Garantiesumme für den Mittellandkanal theilen.

Lübeck. Der Jahresbericht der Handelskammer konstatirt den Aufschwung von Handel, Industrie und Schiffahrt Lübecks. Er kündigt weitere große Hafenbauten, sowie die Vertiefung des Hafenfahrwassers bis in die See hinein und die Einrichtung eines besonderen Fabrikviertels in Verbindung mit den Seehäfen und dem Elbe-Trave-Kanal an. Der letztere wird im Herbst 1899 fertig.

Oldenburg.

Dangast. Auf der Wilhelm Onken'schen Bauernstelle brach Nachts Feuer aus, das mit furchtbarer Schnelligkeit um sich griff und in kurzer Zeit das ganze Wohnwesen, sowie die sämmtlichen Nebengebäude in Asche legte. Der Schaden für den Besitzer ist sehr groß, da die Familie nur das nackte Leben gerettet hat.

Of course it's busy here

—the wholesale way we've been lowering prices in EVERY department is inducement enough for ANY ONE,

Shrewd buyers are selecting NOW—goods are held for later delivery—NO extra cost—and our usual liberal terms of credit JUST THE SAME, if you don't want to pay cash.

No house in all N. J. proves by its prices and dealings, as we do, that they're for and with the people. Abundant capital, long-established reputation and experience and the biggest stock let us sell below any other "Cash" or "Credit" house in the country.

Midwinter Sale—$16.50 for this green velour Parlor Suit—carved mahogany finish frame. Dozens of other styles to go on same low price plan.

Midwinter Sale—$2.25 this brass mounted, Enameled Bed—not a sturdier one at the price to be found—others from $1.95 to $40—during this cleaning up.

The Bedding Sale is making heaps of talk, too. Excelsior Mattresses, $1.95—Soft Top Husk Mattresses, $3.98—All-Hair Mattresses, $5.98—Odorless Feather Pillows 59c. up—Blankets, 49c. up—Comforters, 65c. up.

Midwinter Sale—$6.98. Heavy, French turned and fluted legs—high polish top—the other bargains in extension tables run from $3.95 to $40.00.

Progressive Australia.

Australia claims the largest automobile carriage ever constructed for actual service. This car utilizes seventy-five horse power. The car travels from Coolgardie to the coast for the transportation of merchandise to the mines.

Besides the load on the car itself, it drags two trailers over a distance of four hundred miles. A railroad was too expensive a luxury to indulge in in that country, and so the idea of the big motor was conceived. So scarce is water along the route traveled, that the steam is not exhausted into air, but saved, reconverted into water, and thus used over and over again.

A Peculiar Plant.

A plant grows in Assam, the botanical name of which is gymnena sylvestre, that has the peculiar property, when chewed, of temporarily neutralizing the sense of taste as regards sweet and bitter things, while sour and saline substances remain unaltered. The Hindoos claim that the plant is an antidote to snake bite. However that may be, it is believed that the plant might be advantageously introduced in our pharmacopoeia as a means of disguising the bitterness of quinine and other disagreeable medicines.

Consul General Goodnow, writing from Shanghai, where he has an opportunity to study the Nicaragua Canal question from the other end, thinks the United States should buy a strip of land across Nicaragua and "build the canal on our own territory." There is wisdom in this suggestion. It is a settled principle in this country that, if the canal is ever built, the United States must control it; but, in the proverbially uncertain state of both Nicaraguan and international politics, the only way to insure control of anything on Nicaraguan soil is to own it absolutely. As for the canal itself, Mr. Goodnow argues that if we are to maintain our trade relations with the Orient, it will be a necessity in order to let our vessels go through from the Atlantic to the Pacific quickly and economically.

Secretary Long holds that, while our naval power will expand naturally in keeping with our territorial growth, "it is doubtful if we should develop it as England does, because, from our geographical position, there is not the same necessity." Our geographical position is the same as England's—between two oceans. Our larger size gives us an advantage, inasmuch as we can and do produce many things for ourselves; while England must send abroad for them and must have merchant vessels to carry them and war ships to protect her commerce. In another sense, however, and this is probably the one intended by Secretary Long, our position is different, since we are separated from the jealous Powers of Continental Europe by thousands of miles of water, while England has them at her door. For this reason, and also because we have heretofore held aloof from European politics and thus have avoided making enemies, we have not needed a very strong navy in the past; but the acquisition of Hawaii, of Porto Rico and of footholds in Asiatic waters have changed our relation to the whole world, Europe included. We provoke more jealousy now than we did before and are more exposed to assault; besides which, our new relations make it absolutely necessary for us to demand a larger share in the management of the world's affairs. For these reasons, we must have a strong navy—not so strong as England's, perhaps, but much stronger than anything we have ever had in the past.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 12, "Joy in Finding the Lost." Text, Luke xv, 1-10.

"This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them."

There are many who admire purity and desire to be clean. The most natural feeling to all such is dislike of the impure and shrinking from the unclean. Can one handle coals and his hands not be soiled? Can one wade in mud and keep his garments unspotted? How much less can one keep company with the vile, hearing their talk, and seeing their actions, and remain clean in speech and uncorrupted in thought. "Evil communications corrupt good manners." So to the Pharisees it seemed a proof of unholiness in Jesus when he made friends with the common people.

Filth breeds disease surely, and disease is contagious and deadly. Spiritual evil is the worst of all. How, then, can the pure come in contact with the polluted without becoming itself unclean?

There is power in life and good to transform the noxious into the wholesome. Lilies can grow in mire and transmute muck into beauty and fragrance. Holiness can touch sin and not only be uncontaminated itself, but also send the thrill of power and sweetness into the bad. Evil can be overcome of good. Fire can make the blackness to glow with light and burn out all dross.

No joy in this world is comparable to the pleasure of being pure and right, loving and gentle, except that glory of imparting one's own purity and rightness, of communicating love and gentleness to others who have been hateful and passionate. An uplift of soul, an enthusiasm of sacrifice, draws one forward, careless of pain, forgetful of self, only so that the lost one be saved. Fear is for the time unknown, and all feeling is merged in the exaltation of self giving, of conquest of the evil by the pure.

This uplift is felt not only by Jesus, but by every one of His followers who overcomes. It is shared by all the heavenly hosts. "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

Secretary of First General District.

The president and secretary have usually been ministers, but at the Bangor convention last July it was thought wise to depart from the custom, and Mr. Penniman was elected as secretary. He is one of the most widely known Leaguers in the east through his connection with the secular press and his lectures.

He was born in Quincy, Mass., is somewhat under 40 years of age, has traveled extensively throughout the United States and Canada and Mexico and been very efficient in temperance work. He has been connected with several of the large daily papers of Boston and is at present on the staff of The News, the leading daily of Fall River, Mass., where he resides. His patriotic, historic, temperance, art and travel lectures have been given in all parts of the country. He is prominent in several fraternal orders, has been a member of the Massachusetts legislature and assistant clerk of the house of representatives. He is an officer of the State Sunday School association.

He is energetic, resourceful, tactful, courteous and spiritual. He makes a good secretary.

The League's Place.

It is settled that the League is not to be used as a money gathering device. That is well. But the very fact that the League exists should be a pledge that the contributions of the church to all worthy objects increase greatly. The Methodist idea is peculiar. No other church makes a pledge to support the church and the benevolent causes a condition of membership. No one can legitimately enter the Methodist Episcopal fold until this pledge has been made. The League is a branch of the church, or rather a department. The quarterly conference committees in most churches do little of the work assigned them in our disciplinary plan. The League should supplement and fill this lack. Let the various fields of missions be studied in succession and presented at public services. Thrill and enthuse the church with missionary zeal by presenting to them the romance of the conquering Christ.

Self Seeking.

It is not easy, even for a follower of Christ, to humble himself and accept second place. Many renounce the world who are never able to renounce self. They are not blind to the importance of humility in others, but they are content to live without this personal adornment for themselves. They condemn selfishness in others, while they unwittingly or secretly foster this un-Christlike spirit in their own hearts. It is no easy matter to purge out this leaven of unrighteousness.—Lutheran Observer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 12—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The joy in finding the lost.—Luke xv, 1-10.

The parables of the lost sheep and the lost coin illustrate the fact that the mission of Christ in the world was to seek and to save the lost. Incidentally Christ speaks of the joy in finding the lost. When the shepherd found the lost sheep, "he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing, and when he cometh home he calleth his friends and neighbors together, saying, Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep, which was lost." The woman who found a coin which she had lost had a similar experience. She was filled with joy, and called in her friends and neighbors to rejoice with her.

That there is joy in finding that which has been lost is indisputable. The joy increases with the value of that which is lost. Material things of value lost and found bring great joy to the owners. The finding of a lost child will thrill an entire community with enthusiastic joy. How much more does it stand to reason that there would be joy in finding a lost soul, worth more in value than a world!

The Scripture constantly bears testimony to the joy in finding the lost. The disciples of Christ, sent out two by two to preach the gospel, returned after a successful itinerary with great joy because of their success. The Acts of the Apostles frequently record the fact that the apostles found great joy in their work. Paul writes to the Thessalonians, "For what thanks can we render again unto God for all the joy wherewith we joy for your sakes before the Lord?" His joy was so great in having led the Thessalonians to Christ that he could not find language sufficiently strong to thank God for it. The beloved John says, "Greater joy have I none than to hear of my children (those he had led to Christ) walking in the truth." The joy of leading them into the truth is evidently also embraced in this joy. All Christian ministers and Christian workers can testify of the joy in saving the lost. And not only is there joy on earth for this cause, but also in heaven. "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

There are many characteristics of this joy. It is the joy of reconciliation. How it fills our hearts with joy to be able to reconcile two friends who have been estranged, and especially so if they are closely related! What joy, then, in bringing home a lost son or daughter of God and having both reconciled by the blood of Christ! It is the joy of success. There is joy in succeeding in what we undertake to do. Have you never felt the joy of finding a lost soul because you never looked for one? But, above all, the joy comes from the consciousness that we have had something to do with saving an immortal soul for God and for heaven and from hell and destruction. Only those who have had experience know the full measure of this joy.

Bible Readings.—Dan. xii, 3; Luke xv, 21-24, 32; Acts, viii, 5-8; Phil. i, 3-11; iv, 1; I Thess. ii, 19, 20; iii, 9, 10; II Tim. i, 4, 5; Jas. v, 19, 20; III John, 1-4.

Enthusiasm a Virtue.

Some people decry enthusiasm, but little can be done without it. Warmth and earnestness attract and give force to noble movements. He of cold blood is not fitted for work that calls for moving power. Even a political club needs the manager who can put life into it. Christianity above all else must have back of it the aroused and fervent agent. It is the soul on fire which has given it its aggressive force from the beginning. It is not so much the man of intellect who moves the masses as the man of heart. Fervency of spirit is the secret of pulpit success. Paul was thought to be mad because of his Christian fervor. More of his madness is necessary in our day if we would properly push the kingdom of our Lord far and near.—Presbyterian.

Australian Endeavorers.

Australia reports 1,722 Christian Endeavor societies, with 52,340 members, to which must be added unaffiliated societies, bringing the total membership up to 55,000. Of these 3,148 joined the church during the year and 1,461 associates became active. The Wesleyan Methodists lead, with 585 societies; then come the Baptists, with 150; the Congregationalists, with 131; the Presbyterians and Primitive Methodists, with 110 each; the Bible Christians, with 89; the Church of England, 27.

The Fog Bell.

The fog bell strikes only on occasion, but all the time and every night the light flashes out from the lighthouse. All the time and every night this light is flashing out from you if you are God's children. "Let your light so shine." Do not flash it—let it shine. Just have it, and then let it shine. You cannot let it shine unless you have it, and if you have it you cannot keep it from shining.—Lyman Abbott, D. D.

One-tenth or Ten-tenths?

A cheap religion wins a cheap return. It is right for a man to give a tenth of his income directly to the Lord's work, yet a man who thinks he has thereby done his whole duty is but a tenth of a man and a tenth of a Christian. Only the man who dedicates himself and all that he has to the service of his Master will get all that the Master has to give.—Sunday School Times.

Ministerial Settlements.

A rule of parish life is that just in proportion to the length of a ministerial settlement are the chances for its longer continuance. Within the limits of old age and disability the rule holds good. The longer a settlement the greater the probability of its continuance. The hardest ruts come somewhere about the second and third years.—Christian Register.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—This is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.—John iv:42. Feb. 12, 1899.

17. "But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto and I work." Because He had healed the impotent man at Bethesda on the Sabbath day they persecuted Him and sought to kill Him. Dr. Weston says that their Sabbath day was to them their national banner, and it was not well for any one who would dare break their laws concerning it. God's Sabbaths and feasts which He instituted had become the Jews' Sabbaths and feasts and instead of observing His laws concerning them they had multiplied traditions of their own, thus making the commandment of God of none effect by their tradition (Math. xv, 3, 6).

18. "Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill Him, because He not only had broken the Sabbath, but said also that God was His Father, making Himself equal with God." On another occasion they were going to stone Him because, as they said, He, being a man, made Himself God (John x, 33). What spectacle is this, the Creator hated by the creature, sticklers for the Sabbath day seeking to kill the Lord of the Sabbath! Yet such is religion that is not of God.

19. "Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of Himself but what He seeth the Father do, for what things soever He doeth these also doeth the Son likewise." Their unbelief and opposition did not and could not alter the facts in the case, so without argument He quietly went on with His teaching. When one is right, the only thing to do is to keep right on saying and doing right, sure that they who war against us shall be as nothing and as a thing of naught (Isa. xli, 12).

20. "For the Father loveth the Son and showeth Him all things that Himself doeth, and He will show Him greater works than these that ye may marvel." In chapter iii, 35, "The Father loveth the Son and hath given all things into His hand."

In chapter xv, 9, we read, "As the Father hath loved Me so have I loved you;" and in xvii, 23, that the Father loves us as He loves the Son. We wonder at the manifestation of God in Christ, but what shall we say when we read that it is His pleasure that Christ should be manifest in us? (Gal. ii 20; II Cor. iv 11).

21. "For as the Father raiseth up the dead and quickeneth whom He will." In the following verses this is explained as referring not only to those who are dead in sin, living in pleasure unto themselves (Eph. ii, 1, I Tim. v, 6), but also to those whose bodies are dead in the grave. In verses 28, 29, we read His voice and shall come forth either unto life or damnation.

22. "For the Father judgeth no man but hath committed all judgement unto the Son." He hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom He hath ordained, whereof He hath given assurance unto all men in that He hath raised Him from the dead (Acts xvii, 31). One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day (II Pet. iii, 8). At the beginning of the day shall be the judgment of the righteous, and also of the living nations, and at the end of the day that of the unrighteous.

23. "That all men should honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. He that honoreth not the Son honoreth not the Father which hath sent Him." He will be honored by all kings and all nations, and to Him every knee shall bow (Ps. lxxii, 11; Phil. ii, 9, 10). A day is coming in which every high thing shall be brought down, and the Lord alone exalted (Isa. ii, 11, 17). He is the only Saviour of sinners (Acts iv, 12), the only Judge as we saw in the last verse, and He will be the only Ruler, for He must reign till He hath put all things under His feet (I Cor. xv, 25).

24. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth My word and believeth on Him that sent Me hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." Here is the way of life described in chapter i, 12, as receiving Him, in chapter iii, 16, as believing on Him, and here as hearing His word and believing on Him. This verse was blessed to my soul in the summer of 1873 with a blessing that has lasted ever since and will to all eternity. It was somewhat like this: Do you hear the word of God and believe that Jesus died for you and rose again, and do you receive Him as your Saviour? I do. Then you have everlasting life. No, I cannot feel that I have. What does God say? He says that I have. Is His word sufficient? I would like to feel it. Will you take Him at His word or make Him a liar? (John v, 1.) I will believe God.

25. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live." This hour has already lasted over 1900 years and is still on. The dead in trespasses and sins are hearing the word of God and receiving it and life in it, or rather in Him who is the Word and the Life. Faith cometh by hearing the word of God. I had been hearing it from my childhood, and before 1865 I had been received into church membership and was regular in my attendance upon ordinances and outwardly consistent, but until the time and the experience mentioned in the last verse I did not know that I had passed from death to life.

NIGHT WAS TOO COLD FOR Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS.

SO THEY HELD NO MEETING.

The Project of Getting The Yale Basket Ball Team Here is Now Practically Killed.

Neither the necessity of electing their officers nor of settling the question of the appearance of the Yale 'varsity basket ball team was sufficient to persuade the directors of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. to leave the warmth of their firesides and attend the meeting of the Board. In consequence there was no quorum and therefore no meeting of the Board. The meeting was to have been held regularly a week ago but a quorum was then lacking. Last night was then set as the time for meeting. Another failure was the result.

As this was to be the first meeting of the Board since the meeting of the association, the election of the officers of the association would then be held. Another matter of great importance was a decision as to whether the association basket ball team was to be allowed to play outside the gymnasium and thus meet the Yale team in the Crescent Rink.

The date for the proposed game with Yale was February 23d. By the failure of the Board to consider the matter last evening it will probably be necessary to give up the game, as a future postponement of a decision would make the notice of the match rather too short to ensure its success.

LEAVES UNCLE SAM WITH HONORABLE DISCHARGE.

CHARLES PETERSON OUT OF ARMY.

He was With General Miles at Porto Rico, Where He was Stricken With the Fever.

Charles A. Peterson, of Watchung avenue, who enlisted May 23d in the Engineer Corps, U. S. A., has been honorably discharged from service, and yesterday morning arrived home. Peterson has seen about nine months of army life, most of which, however, was spent in the hospital where he was ill with the typhoid fever.

Peterson was assigned to Co. C, and July 5th he left Newport News on the Grand Duchess for Porto Rico. When he arrived there Peterson was one of those transferred to the Commache, Gen. Miles' vessel, and he was also one of those to form Gen. Miles' body-guard ashore and on board the vessel.

Peterson was taken ill while in Porto Rico, and September 15th was sent north and lay ill in Fortress Monroe (Old Point Comfort) until December 7th when he was sent to Willetts Point, L. I., on thirty days sick furlough.

CALOOCAN IS CAPTURED

FILIPINOS DRIVEN OUT WITH A GREAT LOSS.

The Action Short and Decisive—The Attack Made While They Were Concentrating There and at Malabon.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Manilla, Feb. 10—7:25 p. m.—Caloocan was captured by the Americans at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, after three hours' fighting. Brig.-Gen. A. A. G. Ottis was in command of the troops, and was assisted in the defeat of the rebels and capture of the town by the gunboat Concord, the monitor Monadnock and a line artillery.

The insurgent forces were massing at Malabon and Caloocan up to the time that the battle began. It was reported then that they had 6,000 men including the famous native regiment which in the last revolution deserted from Manila after killing their Spanish officers.

Aguinaldo himself is at Marilao, seven miles north of Manila, endeavoring to reorganize his shattered army.

The Americans were fully prepared for an attack. There was some skirmish firing there early this morning, but no damage was done. All is quiet to the south of the city.

LANTERN TIPPED OVER, CAUSED AN $700 FIRE.

ROBERT M'NABB'S BARN BURNED.

Fire Occurred at 6 O'clock This Morning—Fire Department Was Not Called Out.

Just at daylight this morning Robert McNabb's barn, on the Rahway Road, took fire and was burned to ground. The contents, consisting of three tons of hay, two wagons, one a runabout, carpenter's tools and a number of chickens and fowls were lost. A horse and a chest containing other tools were saved, but before Mr. McNabb could rescue anything more the fire had gained such headway that it was dangerous to go near the burning building.

Just how the fire originated is not known, but it is thought that the dog knocked over a lighted lantern which Mr. McNabb had left in the centre of barn floor while he was doing the morning chores.

Mr. McNabb arose about 5 o'clock and went out to see to his horse, and after feeding him went to the chicken yard near by to feed the fowls. Upon his return to the barn a few minutes later he found the whole interior in a blaze, and the latern lying on its side.

At first Mr. McNabb thought that the lantern had exploded, but later concluded that his dog, in chasing a rat, upset it. Mr. McNabb had $250 insurance on the building and $450 on its contents, which he thinks will bring him out whole. As there is no fire alarm box near, and the fire had gained such headway before it was discovered, no alarm was sent in.

WHITE'S CLERKS MADE MERRY.

The Light Fantastic Toe Tripped in Red Men's Hall.

The clerks in Edward White's dry goods store gave an invitation dance last night in Red Men's Hall. The company did not consist entirely of the employes of Edward White, for there were guests present from New York, Newark, Elizabeth, Bound Brook and Plainfield who joined in the festivities with the others.

This was the first dance given by the clerks of that store, but last night's dance was so successful that they are already talking of giving another. The idea was first suggested by two lady clerks and two of the gentlemen employed in the store, Miss Sadie Searing and Miss Daisy Snyder, J. C. Martin and Caspar F. Waglow, who formed the committee.

Rogers, with three pieces, furnished music for the dances which were kept up until 3 o'clock. Refreshments were served during the evening, and in the early morning hours the party dispersed.

SPLIT IN SILK COMPANY.

BULLOCK & YOUNG, THE PROMOTERS, HAVE RETIRED.

They Wanted Absolute Control of the Company and the Stockholders Declined to Accede to This Request.

The Watchung Silk Company and the promoters of the local silk mill have separated and are now going their own devious ways. The split came about on the question of management. Messrs. Bullock & Young, of Paterson, the promoters, wanted to have entire control of the business affairs of the concern. The Directors agreed to everything but the appointment of the bookkeeper whom they declared must be appointed by them.

A meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Watchung Silk Company was held last evening at the office of the secretary, Harry C. Runyon, in the Babcock building. Messrs. Bullock and Young were present and explained their position stating that they never would have entered into the company unless they had understood that they were to have exclusive control. The stockholders sustained the stand taken by the directors to the effect that Messrs. Bullock and Young might have entire charge of the buying, selling and running of the factory, but that the directors should appoint the bookkeeper and look after the financial end.

No agreement satisfactory to both sides could be reached and Messrs. Bullock and Young withdrew. They asked that they be given a price on the plant so that they might purchase it and conduct the business themselves, The stockholders did not favor that idea and expect to continue the business, placing a superintendent in charge under a regular salary.

HIS WHEEL BURNED UP.

It Was in Thompson Building Fire and Bard Co. Wouldn't Pay for It.

Augustus Marsh sued the Bard Cycle Company yesterday afternoon in Justice Nash's court for the value of a wheel which was destroyed in the fire that occurred in their store in November. The wheel was a Cleveland and Mr. Marsh used to store it with the Bard Company while he was in New York during the daytime. That Saturday night Mr. Marsh didn't ride his wheel, so it was burned.

G. W. V. Moy, the druggist, who was admitted to the New Jersey bar last June, represented the plaintiff, and secured judgment against the company for $75, the value put upon the wheel.

Clarence L. Murphy appeared for the defendants and tried to have the case postponed by filing an affidavit that Mr. Colgate, an important witness, was out of town. Mr. Moy produced a witness to show that Colgate was in town at 11 o'clock yesterday morning so Justice Nash refused an adjournment. Notice of appeal was given.

The various thermometers in the city registered all sorts of different temperatures this morning, but all uniformly cold. The lowest point noted within the city limits was at Brittin's, Clinton avenue and West Front street, where the mercury went down to twenty degrees below zero early this morning.

Girl Overcome by the Cold.

Miss Elizabeth Jordan, aged 18 years, colored, and a former resident of Elizabeth, is now detained at the home of Mr. Lewis, colored, Manning avenue, suffering from the effects of the cold weather which nearly caused her death. She attended the firemen's fair in the borough last evening and took part in the cake walk. Miss Jordan wandered about the borough until 5 o'clock this morning when she succeeded in getting into the Lewis home. Chief Marshal Wilson was sent for and he advised that Overseer of the Poor David Weaver be notified. This was done and Borough Physician Carman was sent for and gave proper treatment. Several times during the day Miss Jordan had bad spells and become unconscous.

Expert Accountant Dead.

Robert S. Miller, who for several years has been a resident of the borough, died early this morning from sumption. Mr. Miller was a well-known expert accountant doing business in New York for many years. He and his family resided at 31 Fairview avenue. His last illness extended over a period of one year. He was a regular attendant at the Holy Cross church. He leaves a wife, two daughters, one of whom is married, and one son. The funeral will be private.

FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEMBERS.

Pleasant Entertainment Given in Grace P. E Parish House.

Last evening in the parish house of Grace P. E. church a very pleasant entertainment was given for the enjoyment of the members of the Sunday school. Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate, was in charge and announced the various numbers on the programme. Miss Mabelle Smith rendered several selections on the piano and also sang several favorite selections. Miss Elsie Smith gave two excellent recitations, and Miss Hyatt rendered two violin solos in a pleasing manner. Harry Messersmith also sang a number of selections. A feature of the programme was the phonograph selections by W. W. Moore.

HOW A SEWER MIGHT REACH TIDE WATER.

Many Obstacles Would Have to be Overcome.

AT AN ENORMOUS COST.

VARIOUS LINES THAT HAVE ALREADY BEEN SUGGESTED.

The Line Once Surveyed—Topographical Difficulties to be Encountered—A Line Cross Country Would Necessitate a Pumping Station—New Brunswick Would Object to Use of Upper Raritan—The Cost.

The old question of the sewage disposal beds has bobbed into prominence again. This time the good folk of Dunellen have declared their intention of bringing suit against the city of Plainfield for damages from the alleged nuisance. They even want the Supreme Court to compell the city to refrain from using the beds. So the old question comes back again. If the present system of sewage disposal is to be given up as Dunellen evidently wants Plainfield to do, what is to take its place? The sewer to tide water is generally cousidered the only other resource.

It was way back in 1892 that the movement looking toward some form of sewage disposal was practically considered by the citizens of Plainfield. At that time a committee of prominent citizens was appointed by the Mayor to consult with the Council regarding the best method of disposal that would answer the conditions. One of the ways considered was, of course, the sewer to tide water.

A survey was made for the benefit of the committee by F. E. Dunham. The line ran down West Front street, through the borough of Dunellen, crossing under the tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad just beyond the town and following along South avenue to where Lincoln is now. The line then ran across country to a point on the Raritan just below Field's dam, which is located a mile and a half below Bound Brook. The line for this proposed sewer was five miles in length, and the grades were so arranged that the flow would be steady in the direction of the Raritan.

Another line for the sewer was afterward suggested which necessitated the erection of a pumping station. The flow was to be by gravity from Front street and Rock avenue to some point near South Plainfield. There the pumping station was to be placed. From that point the line was to take a course across country passing near Stelton to a point below Martin's Dock, which lies on the Raritan river two miles below New Brunswick. This sewer would be nine miles long. It would be necessary to pump from an elevation 50 feet above tide-water to one of 120 feet near the river.

Those who have studied the topography of the country in that region have found that there is a plateau lying between New Brunswick and Woodridge that is even higher than Plainfield, and which would be a complete barrier to any sewer unless connected with a pumping station to overcome the difference in levels.

The only way then, in which a gravity sewer could reach the Raritan is by the route to Field's dam already memtioned or by following the course of Green brook to its junction with Bound Brook and the subsequent course of the latter stream until its union with the Raritan. The principal objection against attempting to empty the sewage into the Raritan river at either of these points was that, even supposing New Brunswick and the other settlements along the banks of the river made no vigorous protest at the time, it would be a matter of a comparatively short number of years before these municipalities would arise in their wrath and render the system useless through process of law.

With these powerful arguments against the course already outlined, it was generally agreed that the sewer would necessarily have to go to some point below New Brunswick. Now beginning half a mile below Martin's Dock, the point mentioned as the end of one proposed line, the Raritan river spreads out on broad flats while the channel follows a very winding course through them. It has been claimed by some that the sewage turned into the river at this point would make a very unpleasant place of the flats and consequently involve the city in legal troubles that would bo as bad or worse than those of the present.

The sewer would therefore have to approach very near to Perth Amboy, where the influence of the ocean tides is felt, to overcome the obstacles

LENTEN SEASON AT HAND

MANY CHARMING AFFAIRS TAKE PLACE THIS WEEK.

Birthday Tea Given by Altar Society of Grace P. E. Church at Residence of O. T. Waring—Other Social Functions.

A tea was given last night at the home of Mrs. O. T. Waring, on Park avenue, by the Altar Society of Grace P. E. church. It was a birthday tea, and as each one entered the door he or she was supposed to drop into a basket a sum of money equal to the number of years old they were. The plan progressed famously. There was a large attendance, but the amount of money given was far in excess of the united number of years of the whole party, for about $125 was received in this way. The tea was a social event as well as a means to raise money. Mrs. Waring received the people as they came in, assisted by Mrs. Rodman, Mrs. L. G. Timpson and Miss Rodman. Tea and chocolate were served, Mrs. Kleinecke and Mrs. Pellitier pouring. The young ladies who assisted were Miss Waring, Miss VanBoskerk, Miss Dumont, Mrs. Erickson and Miss Lee.

The Altar Society takes charge of the altar and sees to the decorations, etc. The members also look after the robes of the choir boys, and the proceeds of this tea went to swell the fund devoted to this work.

The first one of a series of two charming afternoon teas which Mrs. F. O. Herring, of Park avenue, is giving this week, took place yesterday afternoon. Over 300 invitations were issued, and half of those invited attended yesterday's tea, while the remaining half will go today.

Mrs. Herring received and was assisted by Mrs. John G. Foster, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. Samuel St. J. McCutchen, Mrs. J. M. Whiton and Miss Mary Tweedy.

In the dining room pouring tea were Mrs. Daniel Ginna and Mrs. Edward T VanBuren, while the young ladies who assisted were the Misses Holly, VanBoskerk, Miller, Conklin and Rodman.

The house was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and smilax and heated throughout with bright wood fires. In the parlors and drawing rooms were pink and white roses and pinks, while the dining room tables were set off with pink roses and smilax.

The fourth and last in the series of "at homes" by Mrs. Samuel Huntington and her daughter, Miss Huntington, was given yesterday afternoon at their residence on Franklin place. A large number of guests was present. Mrs. Huntington and Miss Huntington were assisted in receiving and in the tea room by Mesdames Van Boskerck, Isaac Miller, Joseph Myers and Mason W. Tyler, and the Misses Holly, Dumont, Morgan, Tracy and Maud VanBoskerck.

Has Served Three Years.

A slight error was made in last Thursday's Press regarding the resignation of Chief Marshal Wilson from the Borough Police Department. Instead of his serving two years he has served three years. The first year was served under the administration of Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr.

The Hackmen Danced.

The hackmen's dance given in Washington Hall Thursday evening was very well attended and everyone had a good time. During the evening there was a cake walk which was won by John Goff and Miss Mamie Denise. Eugene O'Reilly furnished the music for dancing.

A Handsome Gift to Calvary.

The Calvary Baptist church was the recipient of a very handsome communion set this week, the gift of a strange lady, Miss Jackson. The set is to be used in their new church.

BROWN WAS PROBABLY VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Later Indications That it Was Not a Case of Suicide.

HAD CONSIDERABLE MONEY

ALL HIS VALUABLES MISSING WHEN BODY WAS FOUND.

He is Said to Have Been of Exemplary Character, and Not Addicted to Strong Drink—Remains to be Interred at Brooklyn Tomorrow—Costly Overcoat Was Gone When Body Was Recovered.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 11.—The remains of Walter Brown, who disappeared from his home in this place November 30th, and which were found floating in the East river off New York last Wednesday, will be interred in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, tomorrow, his brother Edward having made arrangements for the obsequies. It is now believed that the death of the man was not a case of suicide, but one of foul play. Later developments in the finding of the body seem to point strongly to the latter theory of the ending of the young man's life.

In yesterday's Press it was stated that Brown was dissipated, which was thought to have caused his downfall and probable resolve to end his career in a summary manner. This proves not to be so. The young stenographer is said to have been of exemplary habits, and his life a contradiction of the reports that were circulated concerning him after the news became known that his body had been found drifting in the East river.

Edward Brown, his brother, was seen by a Press representative and he related the mysterious circumstances of his brother's disappearance. He said that Walter was employed in the Grand Trunk Association offices in the Central building in New York, where he was highly esteemed by his business associates. On November 30th he had part of his month's salary with him as well as a considerable sum of money which he had drawn from a bank in which he was a depositor. In the attempt to trace out his whereabouts after his appearance these facts became known.

It is supposed that someone learned of the money that he carried and that he was either enticed to some isolated spot, or else waylaid somewhere. Probably he was either struck with some hard instrument or given a dose of knockout drops. Whichever it was, there was a fatal result—undoubtedly not intended to end that way. But having killed him, the perpetrators of the crime threw his body into the river without being seen, and it has drifted back and forth with the tide till it was found Wednesday.

The body was easy to indentify, as the inside coat pockets contained a commutation ticket on the Central Railroad, as well as a number of other papers pointing to the true identity.

What makes the theory of foul play seem reasonable is due to the fact that while it is known that he had quite a sum of money on his person when he was last seen by his friends all valuables were missing when the body was found. A costly overcoat, which he wore, was also missing. The vest pockets were ripped as if someone had done this to get at their contents in a hurry. In fact, all indications were that it was a case of foul play.

Music Was a Feature.

The Christian Endeavor Society service at the First Baptist church last evening was well attended and was very interesting. The music was a feature and many took part in the service.

Voters of North Plainfield are asked to fill out the above blank and forward their vote to Consolidation Headquarters, 107 East Front street. An X on either of the three last propositions is requested from voters who desire to be recorded in favor of consolidation. It is probable that the scheme receiving a majority will be adopted by the committee having the matter in charge and the same submitted to the voters for approval at the borough election to be held March 14.

OVERCOME BY COLD AT DOOR OF CITY JAIL.

Old Railroader, Half Frozen, Was Dragged Inside.

AN OFFICER HEARD HIM.

WANDERER WAS THAWED OUT AND GIVEN NIGHT'S LODGING.

William Donnelly, of Newark, an ex-Brakeman, Was in Hard Luck—Had Been Looking for Work—Was Tramping Back to His Old Home—Sought Refuge at Station House Last Night.

William Donnelly, an old railroad man out of work, was saved from a lingering death by freezing last evening through his timely arrival at the police station, a haven of warmth and shelter. This morning he was able to totter away in his hunt for work.

Donnelly was formerly a brakeman on the D. L. and W. Railroad. His home was in Newark, but trouble and illness broke it up and Donnelly was forced to wander about the country to find means of sustenance. He was too weak to return to his long place and there didn't seem to be anything else for him to do. Some people might have called him a tramp.

During the last cold snap Donnelly felt the cold keenly. He has lived in freight cars, barns and wherever there was a chance to lay his head. Some of the farmers were kind to him and he managed to get enough to eat to keep body and soul together.

Yesterday, Donnelly pushed on toward this city and reached here during the evening. His limbs were benumbed and he could scarcely drag one foot after the other. Inquiring of a passerby, he found the way to the station house. Up the snowy path he staggered, falling twice before he reached the door. In trying to descend the little flight of steps that leads down to the entrance, he fell again. An officer inside heard the noise and, opening the door, dragged Donnelly inside.

Donnelly was very weak and nearly frozen. After being thawed out, he was given a night's lodging in a cell. This morning, he basked before the fire for a time and then continued on his tramp toward his old home at Newark.

NEW TELEPHONES.

A Number Placed in Plainfield Residences This Month.

A number of new telephones have recently been placed in local residences by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. Among them are the following: W. A. Pinto, West Eighth street; John Valiant, Myrtle avenue; George D. Hallock, Willow avenue; J. C. Rock, Myrtle avenue; A. E. Huntington, Franklin place; Mrs. Jos. M. Myers; East Front street; J. B. Drayton, Franklin place; T. J. Pruden, East Second street; Augustus V. Searing, Westervelt avenue; Dr. F. S. Wells, Grant avenue; P. V. R. VanWyck, West Eighth street.

To Hold a Fair.

The Endeavorers of the Plainfield Local Union are at present interesting themselves in a fair to be held on the 15th of this month under the auspices of the Helping Hand Society in connection with the Little Missionarys' Day Nursery, at No. 353 East Tenth street, New York. Anyone desiring to aid in the worthy cause is requested to send useful articles of any kind to Miss Sara Curry, at the above address on or before Feb. 14th, or to the president of the Plainfield Local Union, Miss Hawkins, 427 LaGrande avenue, and such articles will be delivered in time for the fair.

Teachers' Examinations.

At the Somerset county teachers' examinations held last week but sixteen applicants presented themselves. Of these four secured their third-grade certificates, one of them being a renewal; five secured their second-grade certificates, of which two were renewals. Four failed to pass, one raised the standing of certificate previously secured, and one was permitted to take a partial examination for second-grade while holding an unexpired third-grade certificate.

Changes for the Better.

Manager E. W. Mills, of the United States Express Company, is making some decided changes in the interior of the company's office. Desks and railings have been moved about and when the work is completed an entire change will have been made in the appearance of the place, and more privacy will be insured.

—A tea will be given at Hope chapel Wednesday evening from 8 o'clock until 10. It will be in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Andrews.

JERSEY PEOPLE CLAIM AUSTRALIAN MILLIONS

They Are After the Wealth of an Antipodean Croesus.

FORTY MILLIONS ARE IN IT.

CLAIMANTS ARE CHILDREN OF A NEW PROVIDENCE SHOEMAKER.

Trace of the Fortune Was Secured Through a Newspaper Paragraph Telling of the Death of James Tyson—Proofs of Relationship Now Being Sought—Legal Proceedings to Be Started.

New Jersey people are after the wealth of James Tyson, who died last December in Melbourne, and was reputed to be the wealthiest man in Australia and one of the largest land owners in the world. His fortune was estimated at from twenty-five to forty millions of dollars, and consisted largely of real estate in Melbourne.

The claimants are the children of John Tyson, who was a large shoe manufacturer in New Providence, in this county and died thirty years ago. He came to this country from Lancashire, England, in 1818, and prospered. His children are Mrs. Johanna Hatfield, of Newark; William Tyson, of Kaneville; George Tyson and Mrs. Annie Miller, of Morristown; John Tyson and Mrs. Mary Addison, of Chatham; Mrs. Hannah Ellis, of Millburn, and Mrs. Rowena Miller, of Boonton, Thomas Tyson, another son, who was a wealthy lumber merchant of Morristown, disappeared in 1860, with $7,000, and it is thought he was murdered for his money.

Mrs. Hatfield, who lives with her son, Charles Hatfield, an astrologer, read several newspaper articles published recently about James Tyson, his wealth and his eccentricities. One of these related that he never married because of an early love affair. Another said he was born in Cumberland, England. Mrs. Hatfield then remembers that her father had told her that his home was on the border between Lancashire and Cumberland, and that a few years after he came to this country his brothers Watson and James had gone to Australia to hunt for gold.

Watson died in "the bush." James made money gold mining, and afterward went into sheep and cattle raising. Her father, however, had lost sight of him for many years. Mrs. Hatfield says she is satisfied that James Tyson, the Australian millionaire, was her father's younger brother. She has sent to her father's home, in Lancashire, for proofs of the relationship, and as soon as they arrive she declares she and her brothers and sisters will begin legal proceedings to obtain possession of the Tyson millions.

TO TRY AGAIN.

Another Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Directors Called for Tuesday Evening.

There is just a possibility that the long talked of basket ball game between the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team and the Y's boys may take place after all on February 23d. A meeting of the Board of Directors of the association has been called for Tuesday evening when a special effort will be made to get out a quorum for the meeting and have the subject of the basket ball game settled either one way or the other.

There is a feeling among some of the younger members that the Directors will not care to put themselves on record as opposing the advancement of the interests of the team and that, if the question will only be voted upon, it will be decided in favor of allowing the game to take place. While it will be rather short notice in which to arrange the match and properly advertise it, it is believed that it can be done if the permission is granted at the meeting Tuesday night.

Remains Sent From California.

The remains of the late Elmer S. Manning arrived at the South Plainfield station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Pasadena, Cal. It will be remembered that Mr. Manning went to California last September for his health, but he gradually grew worse until he died. He was the son of Samuel B. and the late Alice Manning, and was well known in this vicinity. The funeral services will be held from the South Plainfield Baptist church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

To Preach on the Commandments.

Tomorrow evening Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate of Grace P. E. church, will preach the third sermon in the series on the "Ten Commandments."

HE CHASED STEPMOTHER

EDWARD KLINE MADE THINGS LIVELY AT HOME THIS MORNING.

The Father Withdrew to the Barn When the Fun Began—Says Blame is Equally Divided—Wife Didn't Like the Decision.

For the past five years the Kline domicile, at 307 Plainfield avenue, has passed through all the excitement usually attendant on a full-fledged war. Mrs. Rose Kline lives there. So does her husband, sometimes. So does her stepson, Edward, with much vigor. This morning, City Judge Runyon followed in the experience of his predecessors and had to look into these troubles.

Mr. Kline is something of a philosopher. When the wife and son enter upon one of their frequent arguments, Mr. Kline departs for the barn and waits for the excitement to pass away. In court, this morning, he was not inclined to take either side, said one was as bad as the other and that both were to blame.

The particular incident, that caused a review of the proceedings of the household by the City Judge, this morning, occurred early this morning. Roundsman Frederickson was hurriedly summoned to the house by the wife with the intelligence that her step-son was running her about the house at the point of a revolver. Frederickson went there and arrested young Kline.

At the trial it became evident that there was no love lost between stepmother and son. Each tried in his or her particular way to make life just as unpleasant for the other as possible and, according to the story told in court, it looked like a stand-off.

The Judge extracted a promise from the nominal head of the house to call an officer should any further trouble ensue. He then advised them all to go home and live in peace and happiness. Mrs. Kline wailed that she could live with "that boy" no longer and that she would have to take her children and go out into the cold world. She appealed to Chief Grant. The Judge tried to reason with her but finally tired of it and told her that she had better go into the the cold world then.

She departed, wailing sadly and went home where where the old life was resumed. Sentence was suspended on Kline.

LAST DAY TO SEE THEM.

Prizes For the Daily Press Subscription Contest At Woodhull & Martin's.

Today will be the last day that the prizes, to be awarded in The Daily Press subscription contest, will be on exhibition in the show window of Woodhull & Martin's big store in the Babcock building. Since they have been placed there they have attracted much attention and the young people, who have entered the contest, have been encouraged to greater efforts.

The results of this week, as shown by the number of new subscribers that have been turned over to Manager of Circulation C. F. Stout, have been very satisfying. The number is even greater than the new subscriptions turned in last week. While it doesn't quite break the record of two weeks ago, it comes mighty near it.

Some of the contestants have branched out from Plainfield and are looking for additions to the roll of subscribers to The Daily Press among the inhabitants of the suburbs of the city. The decidedly superior service that The Press is giving in both Dunellen and Scotch Plains has made both of those places good fields for their labors.

Several of the competitors in the contest have visited both the Plainfield Business College and the Gregg School of Stenography to see just what is in prospect if they happen to be winners. They have all been loud in their praise of both institutions and started forth in the search after new subscribers with renewed energy and determination.

Mr. Murray to Teach the Lesson.

W. D. Murray will teach the lesson at the meeting of the Plainfield Teachers' Union February 20th, instead of February 13th, as announced on the programme. The lesson February 13th will be taught by Miss Beeching. All interested in Primary Sabbath-school work are cordially invited to attend these meetings held in the Y. M. C. A. building every Monday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

A Sleighing Party.

Miss Nettie Bauersachs, of the borough, arranged an enjoyable sleighing party last night. There were about fifteen young people in the party and all thoroughly enjoyed the ride, which took in some nearby places.

CHILLY WELCOME TO RETURNING SOLDIERS.

Reached Home at 4 o'Clock in the Morning.

BUT THEY WERE HAPPY.

"A HOT TIME" THEY SANG AS THEY MARCHED FROM THE TRAIN.

Six Companies of Third New Jersey Volunteers Were Mustered Out Thursday—Plainfield Boys Came Home Last Night and this Morning—Members of Company H Came Up on Special Train.

Not with the roll of the stirring drum nor the trumpet that speaks of fame, but singing the verses of that expressive song, "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," the Plainfield boys who made up a part of Company H, Third New Jersey Volunteers, struck town this chilly morning at 4:14 o'clock, and awoke the sleepers with their shouts of joy at being home again.

Last Thursday Co's. B, C, E, G, H, and I, of the Third New Jersey were mustered out at Athens, Ga., where the regiment was sent three months ago. Co. H, composed mostly of Somerville boys, with a sprinkling of Plainfielders, came north in a special train over the Atlantic Coast Line to Washington where the boys took a special over the Baltimore & Ohio to Bound Brook where they arrived soon after midnight. There the Plainfield boys took a train due there at 2 o'clock this morning but which was two hours late, not bringing them here until 4 o'clock.

The privates of Co. G., from Keyport, came as far north as Philadelphia with Co. H. Privates Henry McCormick, James McCormick, John Sullivan, Charles Sprague, J. VanArsdale, Benjamin Scribner and George Giddes were those who composed the Plainfield representation. They wore their uniforms and carried a few of their accoutrements, but had no guns.

Orrin Holmes and Mark Doud, of Company E, Elizabeth, came up yesterday by themselves. Mark brought home with him a fighting cock in a basket, which is the admiration of all his friends. Prentiss and LaMaire, two who joined Company B, Long Branch, also came home yesterday.

Before the boys left they were paid off in full, and left camp with anywhere from $75 to $115 about them. This morning they are all asleep, as their comrades permitted no sleeping on the train en route to their homes. They all said they had a great time, but that they are glad that they are home again.

WATCH WAS ON CAR TRACKS.

Miss Mary Brown Lost Her Timepiece and Found It Two Hours Later.

Last evening when Miss Mary Brown, manager of Hillier & Co.'s store, was going to her home on East Fourth street, she lost her gold watch. That was about 8:30 o'clock and she did not discover the fact until nearly 10:30 o'clock, just before retiring. She felt uneasy about the matter and decided to return to town over the same way that she took in going home She pressed into service a bicycle lantern and looked very carefully over the road. When she reached the corner of Front and Somerset streets and was about to give up the search, she happened to see her watch lying between the trolley tracks. The watch was not damaged in the slightest.

VICTIM OF COLD.

Taken to Her Home in Elizabeth by Chief Marshal Wilson Last Night.

Chief Marshal Wilson, of the borough, escorted Miss Jordan to her home in Elizabeth last evening. This is the young woman who nearly froze to death Thursday night in the borough. Dr. Carman made a diagnosis and thought it best that she should be taken home. Her heart is very weak and she is otherwise much affected. It is understood that recently Miss Jordan was detained in the Elizabeth Hospital on account of heart trouble, and that she has not recovered from the disease.

Future and Present.

Some people unwisely give themselves up to an absorbing consideration of the future without giving any heed to the present. When your eye glimpses the fact that all optical examinations at Collier's are a present to you, it will be apparent to you that your future depends on your availing yourself of this opportunity to learn what attention, if any, your eyes require.

—The Plainfield Hygiea Ice Company has nearly 25,000 tons of manufactured ice stored away. The plant is still making ice every day.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CABINET MEETING.

Army Beef, Pay for Cuban Soldiers and Extra Session Discussed.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—At the cabinet meeting yesterday the president read brief extracts from the report of the war investigating commission and the matter was discussed informally.

A can of roast beef which had been taken from the commissary army stores, was brought in and opened. The members present examined it as well as could be done with the means at hand, and all declared that so far as they could determine it was in perfect condition, wholesome and sweet.

The question of the transportation to Cuba of the three million dollars with which the insurgent army is to be paid off, and the kinds of money to be sent, was briefly considered. It was agreed that the Cubans could have any kind of money they wished, whether gold, silver or silver certificates, or a part in each. Shipments of five hundred thousand dollars each probably will be made at intervals of a few days, or as rapidly as needed.

The question of an extra session of Congress was also discussed and the opinion of the cabinet was that in the case of the failure of the army reorganization bill an extra session will be necessary.

The president called attention to the urgent necessity for an American cable across the Pacific and read the message to ongress which he had prepared on the subject.

Members of the cabinet declare the war commission report to be in no sense a whitewashing report. On the contrary, it is stated that the commission has not failed to point out where there was error or fault.

President's Message on Pacific Cable.

Washington, D. C. Feb. 11.—The president sent a message to Congress yesterday calling attention to the urgent necessity for the construction of a cable across the Pacific ocean. It did not make any specific recommendation as to the mode by which the cable shall be secured the main points being that it is imperatively necessary a cable should be laid.

In it he said in part: As a consequence of the ratification of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain and its expected ratification by the Spanish government, the United States will come into possession of the Philippine islands, on the further shores of the Pacific The Hawaiian islands and Guam becoming United States territory and forming convenient stopping places on the way across the sea, the necessity for speedy cable communication between the United States and all these Pacific islands has become imperative.

Such communication should be established in such a way as to be wholly under the control of the United States, whether in time of peace or of war. At present the Philippines can be reached only by cables which pass through many foreign countries, and the Hawaiian islands and Guam can only be communicated with by steamships, involving delays in each instance of at least a week. The present condition should not be allowed to continue for a moment longer than is absolutely necessary.

Chances of Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The opponents of the Hull army bill say that they will not agree to a permanent increase of the army, even if an extra session is to be the penalty of their refusal. Their contention is that they are willing to provide as large a temporary force as may be required in the Philippines or other acquired islands, and that, this being done, the president will have no occasion for convening Congress in extra session.

The president contends, however, that a contract was entered into between the regulars who enlisted in the war, as well as the volunteers, that at the end of the war they would be discharged if they desired, and he says Congress cannot extend their time, and that he will feel bound to carry out the contract, even if Congress passes a resolution to continue the army for another year at its present status.

While the law which covers the volunteers doesn't affect the regulars who enlisted for this war, the new enlistments were secured with the understanding that they would have the same privilege, and the president's intention is to live up to this understanding.

Librarian of Congress.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Representative Samuel J. Barrows of Massachusetts called on the president yesterday morning to announce his acceptance of the appointment tendered him as librarian of Congress.

The nomination will probably be sent to the Senate very soon, as the president has been only waiting for some of the final formalities before making public his choice.

Public Buildings Bills.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The status of public building bills, which failed of final passage in the House, was considered by the House committee on public buildings yesterday, and conferences will be held with the rules committee, with a view of getting up the bills again.

They are being gone over with care, for the purpose of bringing forward the most meritorious when further consideration is secured.

The Rule of Tammany.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Governor Roosevelt has received many letters recently from citizens of New York complaining about the Tammany increase of salaries and the enormous increase in the assessed valuations of real estate, and asking him to take some steps to grant New York relief from the increasing burden of taxation.

The governor was not ready, when seen yesterday, to say whether he would take any action to stop Tammany raids, but he indicated very plainly that he considered New York city still a part of the state of New York, and therefore not absolutely independent of the state government. His ideas of home rule, and the extent to which the idea should be carried, he said, were outlined in his statement regarding the police bills last Wednesday, and he would act in accordance with those ideas on other matters.

VICTORY IS OURS AGAIN

Caloocan Is Captured by the Men Of the American Forces

6,000 FILIPINOS DEFEATED.

Swept Away by Charge of Otis's Brigade—Dewey Opened the Attack—Monadnock and Concord Helped to Inflict Heavy Loss—Filipinos Scattered Like Sheep.

Manila, Feb. 11.—The American flag was raised at 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon over the town of Caloocan, where Aguinaldo was reported to have gathered the flower of the Filipino army.

The Monitor Monadnock and the gunboat Concord began the attack upon the town at 2.30 o'clock, throwing a shower of shells which did a great deal of damage.

Then the Sixth Artillery and the Utah Battery opened fire on the Filipino intrenchments, and at four o'clock the entire brigade, under command of Brigadier General Harrison G. Otis, with the exception of the Tenth Pennsylvania infantry, which was held in reserve, began to advance in the following order from left to right:

The Twentieth Kansas Infantry, the First Montana Infantry and the Third Artillery, the Twentieth Kansas and First Montana being supported by the First Idaho infantry and the Third Artillery by the Fourth Cavalry.

The insurgents kept up a rattling fire upon our lines, but the American troops advanced through the woods on the left and across an open field on the right without stopping, firing only when they reached the enemy's entrenchments.

In the meantime a company of the First Montana Infantry, under command of Major J. F. Bell, who volunteered his services, executed a neat right flank movement, arriving at the enemy's left flank back in the town. Cheering like mad men, the Americans rushed over the enemy's trenches, competely routing the Filipinos, who scattered like sheep and fled toward the north.

The residence of an Englishman named Higgins was the only house in town that had a flagstaff. This was borrowed for the occasion and the Stars and Stripes was run up amid tremendous cheers.

As the Twentieth Kansas and First Montana regiments entered the town from the south they set on fire a number of huts in which some natives had concealed themselves for the purpose of firing upon the rear of our troops. The natives fled in a hurry.

Our losses were slight, but those of the enemy were heavy, their casualties having been chiefly inflicted by shrapnel.

Lieutenant Colonel Bruce Wallace of the First Montana Infantry is among the wounded Americans.

The insurgent forces were massing at Malabon and Caloocan up to the time that the battle began. It was reported then that they had six thousand men there, including the famous native regiment which in the last revolution deserted from Manila after killing their Spanish officers.

Aguinaldo himself is at Marilao, seven miles north of Manila, endeavoring to reorganize his shattered army.

The Americans were fully prepared for an attack. There was some skirmish firing there early in the morning, but no damage was done. All is quiet to the south of the city.

It is believed now that Admiral Dewey threatened to bombard San Roque on Wednesday unless the insurgents there surrendered the village by nine o'clock on Thursday morning. At 8 o'clock Thursday the white flag was hoisted, and the Fifty-first Iowa Infantry, upon entering the village shortly afterward, found it evacuated and on fire.

Caloocan is a small town north of Manila and near the shore of the bay. It is outside of the semi-circle of the block houses which the insurgents held until the fight on Sunday, and some of the severest fighting on Sunday was done in the district between Caloocan and Gagalangin, another small town some distance nearer Manila and within the line of block houses.

The insurgents made a determined stand around Gagalangin, and retired only under the hottest kind of pressure by General H. G. Otis's brigade. Great slaughter was caused among the Filipinos by the terrific rifle fire poured upon them by the American troops. When the insurgents came within range of the guns of Dewey's fleet in Manila bay, the Concord and the former Spanish gunboat Callao poured a raking fire into the Filipino forces, inflicting further heavy losses.

When the fighting ceased on Sunday the insurgents had been driven back to Caloocan, which was the stronghold of the Filipinos, and the place where it was known that Aguinaldo's forces would make their last desperate stand. The town was unusually well fortified. General H. G. Otis's brigade halted on Sunday with their outposts within sight of the Filipino lines.

Floating Hospital for Otis.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Special provision for the care of the sick and wounded at Manila is being made by the medical department of the army under the direction of Surgeon General Sternberg. In addition to the regular force of trained female nurses and the hospital corps men in the Philippines it is proposed to send to General Otis one hundred and fifty additional hospital corps men ten to fifteen acting assistant surgeons, a number of hospital stewards and a large quantity of medical supplies and delicacies for the sick and wounded.

This force will leave New York about February 15, on the hospital ship Relief.

THE FRIGID WAVE.

Great Extent of Territory Covered by the Cold Weather.

New York, Feb. 11.—Six degrees below zero is the record for New York yesterday, attained at 6 a. m. This is also the low limit, so far as the records of the weather bureau show, since these records began in 1870. It has never been excelled, but this same temperature has been reached three times in twenty-seven years—once before on January 10, 1875, and once on December 31, 1880. Yesterday, therefore, exactly equals the previous low point. The sufferings of the poor were terrible, and several deaths resulted.

It has been fair in all sections of the country except along the western gulf section and in the Missouri valley, where there is rain and snow. An area of remarkable high pressure covers the country east of the Rockies, the highest, 31.10 inches, being in the British Northwest Territory. In this region, from the central Mississippi valley to the Atlantic, temperatures range from ten to forty degrees below zero. Low temperatures exist in all states east of the Rocky mountains, except the Gulf coast and Florida, where the mercury ranges about freezing. The line of zero weather runs through Norfolk, Va., to Memphis, Tenn., and west to Denver. In the extreme south the weather has moderated, but it is only forty-four at Tampa. In New York state Buffalo leads with 8. At Albany it was zero.

Cold Weather in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 11.—The weather bureau reported yesterday that the temperature fell yesterday morning to the lowest point recorded since the office has been established. The thermometer at 7.30 o'clock registered six degrees below zero, and at ten o'clock standard thermometers in Chestnut street registered five degrees below zero.

The bitter cold has given the city the tightest freeze up that it has had in many years. The Schuylkill has a solid thick surface of ice and the Delaware river, above the city line, is safe for pedestrians to walk across. All the city ice boats are at work keeping the channel of the Delaware open from the bay up. Railroad main line trains are all from one to two hours behind schedule time.

There were five fires after midnight in various parts of the city, most of them being caused by overheated flues, due to heavy furnace fires. The largest fire was in Frankford, and terrible suffering was reported among the firemen and policemen who were there. The hands of one fireman were frozen.

Two other firemen and five policemen were frozen so badly that they had to be taken to hospitals. A man in West Philadelphia was frozen to death and a woman was nearly killed by the explosion of a kitchen water back, caused by the intense cold.

Same Story at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 11.—The weather bureau thermometer registered a fraction under twenty-three degrees below. This is the coldest weather registered at this station since February 4, 1874.

Jeffries and Fitz to Mill.

New York, Feb. 11.—Although a contest between Fitzsimmons and Sharkey is what is most desired by followers of pugilism, and such a contest is the only one that could decide the championship, sporting men will have to be content for the present with the prospect of a fight between Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries, the California pugilist, who once managed to get a decision over Sharkey.

Tom O'Rourke's reasonable request that Fitzsimmons wait until October to fight Sharkey not being acceded to by Martin Julian, the guide, philosopher and friend of the Kangaroo scrapper, and vaudeville artist, a meeting took place yesterday between Julian and Billy Delaney, representing Jeffries.

The result of the meeting was the signing of articles for a fight to take place some time between April 24 and May 24, before the club offering the largest purse. The somewhat uncertain conditions are that the contest is to be for twenty-five rounds, or to a finish if it can be so arranged.

Should the latter condition prevail it means that the contest cannot take place in this state. It will be a source of much regret if the contest does not take place in the Lenox A. C. in this city, that being the one club in which the mill could be pulled off with comfort.

Japan's Constitutional Anniversary.

Tokio, Japan, Feb. 11.—The most notable celebration since those which marked the victories of the Chino-Japanese war, occurs to-day at Kioto Castle, where ten years ago the new empire was instituted and a constitutional government announced. All the foreign embassies participate in this celebration and the emperor emphasizes the event by granting the people even greater privileges. To-day the Emperor is a man forty-six years old, in sound health, with good powers of mind, sensible, benevolent and devoted according to his lights, to his people's welfare.

Mistaken Charity in Havana.

Havana, Feb. 11.—Applicants for rations here have in many cases been examined by army representatives who are ignorant of the language of the people, and plenty of misrepresentations and abuses have resulted, for instance, that people have been receiving food who have been at work and who are able-bodied.

A new system has therefore been started by Mayor Lacoste, who is appointing citizens to examine the applications and claims, and who will write the orders for relief which the army will fill.

The citizens, it is thought, are much better able to determine the merits of such cases.

German Army Increase.

Berlin, Feb. 11.—The budget committee of the Reichstag yesterday, by a vote of eleven to ten, agreed to increase the strength of the German artillery by sixty-nine howitzer batteries, and also to increase the strength of the foot artillery.

Lifted Back to Health.

RIPANS TABULES help people back to health. They are not so very wonderful when you come to think of it. They simply supply the things that nature needs—the ingredients lacking in the food. Digestive troubles come because food is improperly selected, poorly cooked, or hastily eaten. Most digestive troubles mean acidity or sourness in the stomach; constipation of the bowels; and sluggishness of the liver. These are the things that RIPANS TABULES correct. They are serious things if you let them run on. They are miserably uncomfortable things always. Most all the ills suffered are traceable to some form of indigestion. It is safe to say that if people would keep their digestive organs active and healthy, nobody would ever be very sick.

RIPANS TABULES are made of the things most often prescribed by physicians for dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, bilious headache, constipation and all other disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They make the appetite better, digestion easier and more thorough, bring clearness to the head and new vigor to the body.

The Standard of Highest Merit in a Piano is reached in the Fischer. The Fischer Piano received the Highest Possible Award at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, for Purity of Tone with great depth and resonance, staying-in-tune power, smoothness and elasticity of Action and Perfect Workmanship. This great testimonial of the is nothing more than confirmation of the high endorsement already given it by Artists, Musicians and Musical people everywhere. This universal recognition has only been obtained by an absolute and unfailing adherence to the very highest ideals in every detail of the art of piano-making throughout the fifty-eight years in which the firm has been established. Further and more substantial proof of the popularity of the Fischer Piano is shown in the fact that during this time

COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

Its Triennial Gathering Opened in Washington To-day for a Week's Session.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The triennial convention of the National Council of Women meets to-day at Washington for a week's session. The National Council is composed of various women's organizations in all parts of the country.

The work of the Council is well mapped out in its standing committees, and it has just added two new committees on "Domestic Relations Under the Law," and "On the Care of Dependent and Defective Children." On the former every woman is a star in the legal profession. These women will codify all existing state laws relating to marriage, divorce and the domestic relations generally, and bringing to the surface their inconsistencies, try through the National Council to have some general and adequate legislation on the subject. This congress will be most important because it just precedes that of the International Council to be held in London in June. The National Council of Women in Great Britain, the United States, Germany, Canada, Sweden, Italy, Greece and Holland will be represented, and national councils are being formed now in France, Finland, Denmark and Switzerland.

MRS. M. L. DICKINSON, PRESIDENT.

At the London convention Mrs. Sewell, who is its vice president, will speak on organization as a factor of development in modern life; Rev. Anna Shaw on "Women as Lecturers;" Mrs. Purdy Peck of Iowa on "Social Education of Women;" Mrs. Margaret Kane on "Industrial and Silk Culture in the United States," and Miss Octavia Bates of Detroit on "Women in the Legal Profession."

A NEW PAPER COMPANY.

With a Capital of $4,000,000 It Will Erect Mills and Manufacture.

New York, Feb. 11.—The Great Northern Paper Company, with a capital of four million dollars, all of which has been subscribed by leading capitalists in New York and Boston, will begin immediately the construction of mills on the Penobscot river, in Maine, with a capacity of two hundred and fifty tons of news paper per day.

They have purchased about two hundred and sixty thousand acres of timber lands situated along the Penobscot river and the lakes tributary thereto, and a water power ample at all times for the operation of these mills.

The management will be in the hands of experienced men, all of whom are large contributors to the capital of the company, and the product of the mills will be sold by the New York and Pennsylvania Company of this city.

Among the large contributors to the capital stock of the Great Northern Paper Company are: Colonel Oliver H. Payne, Colonel Augustus G. Paine, Meylert M. Armstrong, Augustus G. Paine, Jr., Walter S. Gurnee, John G. Moore and Grant B. Schley of the banking firm of Moore & Schley, all of New York, and Garret Schenck, Edward H. Haskell and the Messrs. Ames of Boston.

The corporation will operate under a special charter granted by the legislature of Maine.

The new plant is to be equipped with the latest and best machinery.

Eagan's Disgrace Formally Announced.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The general order announcing the result of the trial by court martial of Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan has been made public at the war department. After reviewing the argument of General Eagan and his plea of not guilty to the charges and specifications of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, the general order says, referring to the conclusions of the court:

Finding. Charge 1—Of the specification, guilty; of the charge, guilty. Charge 2—Of the specification, guilty; of the charge, guilty. Sentence: And the court does therefore sentence him, Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, United States army, to be dismissed from the service.

The order then states the president's orders after reviewing the case and the commutation of the sentence to six years' suspension from rank and duty.

From Politics to Finance.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Hon. John Palmer, former secretary of state, will leave for New York city to take charge of the Provident Savings Loan Investment Company of that city, of which he is the president. The company begins operations on Monday.

Mr. Palmer is associated with Dr. W. Seward Webb, general superintendent Edward Vanetten and Superintendent Charles L. Francisco of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company.

Gen. Garcia's Funeral.

Havana, Feb. 11.—About three hundred wreaths and floral emblems, from individuals and societies, have been piled at the foot of the bier of General Calixto Garcia, whose body arrived in this city from the United States on the United States gunboat Nashville.

The body lies in the municipal council chamber of the palace, and crowds continue to silently file past the coffin. The remains laid in state day and night until the interment, which took place at one o'clock to-day.

COINGS OF CONGRESS

Senator Depew's Credentials Are Filed Amid Merriment

SUNDRY CIVIL BILL DEBATE

Senator Platt Reads Depew's Credentials—Senator Allen's Radical Resolutions—Brosius Says the $20,000,000 is a Bagatelle Indeed.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The first official business transacted in the Senate yesterday, was the reading by Mr. Platt, Republican of New York, and filing of the credentials of Chauncey M. Depew as United States senator from New York in place of Mr. Murphy, Democrat, from March 4 next. The sentence describing Mr. Depew as "an inhabitant of the state of the age of thirty years and upwards," provoked some merriment in the chamber.

Mr. Warren, Republican of Wyoming, from the committee on military affairs, reported a bill to amend the act of July 8, 1898, for reimbursement of stetes for expenses incurred in the enlistment transportation and supply of troops for the war with Spain, and he asked for its immediate consideration.

Mr. Allison, Republican of Iowa, suggested that the bill was a very important one and that it should be printed before being acted on. It went over until to-day.

A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution so as to make United States senators elective by the people instead of by the legislature, was introduced by Mr. Allen Populist of Nebraska, and went over, Mr. Allen saying that he would address the Senate later upon it.

Mr. Allen also offered a declratory resolution reaffirming the doctrines of the declaration of independence that all men are created equal and that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed; and declaring that those doctrines are not confined to the people of the United States, but are universal and apply to all people who have a distinct and organized society and territory of their own.

He asked for immediate action upon it, but it went over until to-day.

The House bill to establish a national military park and to commemorate the campaign, siege and defence of Vicksburg, was, on motion of Mr. Money, Democrat of Mississippi, taken up and passed without amendment.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Jones, Democrat of Arkansas, and was agreed to, calling on the secretary of the navy for a concise statement of the annual expense of maintaining the navy's personnel under the House bill reported from the committee on naval affairs, as compared with the cost under the existing law, excluding increases for the late war, with a like comparative statement as to the marines and as to the force of 22,500 seamen and apprentices.

Mr. McEnery, Democrat of Louisiana, asked unanimous consent to have a time specified for a vote on his resolution as to the status of the Philippine islands, but objection was made by Mr. Mallory, Democrat of Florida.

In the House

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, moved yesterday that the House, in committee of the whole, continue the consideration of the sundry civil bill, and after a futile effort had been made to secure an agreement for closing the general debate, the House voted to close it at the end of the legislative day.

Mr. McRae of Arkansas, representing the minority, asked first for seven hours' debate and then for three hours on the item of twenty million dollars for the Philippines when it was reached in the reading of the bill, but could not gain the consent of Mr. Cannon.

Mr. Brosius of Pennsylvania was the first speaker. He said that the item of twenty million dollars viewed with the natural eye, apart from the circumstances surrounding it, seemed like a tremendous sum. But in the light of the glory of the nation, which it illustrated, it was a mere bagatelle and not worthy of consideration.

Taking for a text remarks made on Thursday by Mr. Miers of Indiana, Mr. Brosius addressed the House at some length in general terms upon international relations. The sermon on the mount, he said, might not have been addressed to nations, yet the time had come when nations must hold and show an ethical warrant for their treatment of one another. Commerce, he said, was the forerunner of civilization, and seamanship and intellectual prominence went hand in hand.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The treaty of peace was signed by the president at 2.35 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

China's Empress for Defence.

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 11.—The steamship Empress of Japan brings news that the empress of China has developed her scheme of defence until she proposes to surround Pekin with two hundred and fifty thousand foreign-equipped troops, who are to oppose any invasion from Manchuria or the Gulf of Pechili.

The empress has named Shan Haikuan as headquarters for this vast force, which is to be mobilized as rapidly as possible in corps of 20,000 men each.

Viceroy Sung of Hupeh, a leading Chinese officer of Manchu extraction, has been removed for his representation to he empress in favor of reforms.

He Fell Dead Just After Her Funeral.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 11.—The funeral of Mrs. William Spence of McClellandsville took place yesterday afternoon. When the funeral party returned home supper was served. As the husband of the dead woman was about to rise from the table he fell dead. The pair had lived together for forty years.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Reaction in Speculative Values a Notable Feature of the Past Week.

New York, Feb. 11.—The solid basis for good business has not been shaken by speculative reaction. Stocks have been slightly lower, and the market is all the safer because much unsoundness and unreason have been shaken out. Fluctuating within a range of about $1 per share, railroad stocks closed a shade higher, and on Thursday sales on European account changed to considerable purchases. Speculation in wheat, which for a time depressed prices, has also taken a turn, and with heavy exports the market tends upward again.

The cotton movement is not essentially speculative, but based on reported injuries, and holds its advance. Meanwhile dispatches given to-day from all parts of the country show extraordinary activity in the chief branches of trade, and a business much larger than a year ago in nearly all. The heavy excess of exports over imports continues, New York exports having been in five weeks sixteen per cent. larger than last year, while imports were by nine per cent. larger. The philosophers may as well recognize that business is not as a rule transacted without profit. When it continues heavy somebody is making money.

In wheat Americans are getting profits even though prices are lower than they were some months ago. After some yielding the price rose to 79.57 cents, and the May option rose one-fourth of a cent during the week, with Atlantic exports of 3,926,632 bushels, flour included, against 2,174,921 last year, and total exports, including the Pacific, 4,663,405 bushels, against 2,960,515 last year.

The iron industry is so exploited by consolidations and attempts of that nature that it is wonderful prices have not reflected distrust. Instead there have been general advances, in pig because the demand has been large.

Industrial stocks were less steady, and closed $1.68 per share lower for the week. Railroad earnings for the month of January were fully reported this week, and were $40,379,604, being 6.6 per cent. larger than last year and 16.4 per cent. larger than in 1892. The aggregate was larger than in any month last year, although the tonnage reports from Chicago were smaller than in 1892.

The money market shows a large increase in commercial loans, especially in dry goods and in some manufacturing lines, and there are no signs of probable stringency. Demands against Europe on deferred exchange hypothecated do not appear to have diminished, notwithstanding the reported heavy return of stocks from Europe. Failures for the first week of February were in amount $2,990,972, manufacturing $1,879,061, and trading $1,047,962.

Failures for the week have been 217 in the United States, against 295 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 43 last year.

IT MAY BE ANDRE'S BALLOON.

Balloon Car and Three Bodies Reported Seen in Siberia.

Krasnovarsk, Siberia, Feb. 11.—A gold mine owner here named Monastyrschin, has received a letter saying that a tribe of Tunguses, inhabiting the Timur peninsula, North Siberia recently informed the Russian police chief of the district that on January 7 last, between Kemo and Pit, in the province of Yeniseisk, they found a cabin constructed of cloth and cordage, apparently belonging to a balloon.

Close by were the bodies of three men, the head of one badly crushed. Around the bodies were a number of instruments, the uses of which were not understood by the Tunguses.

The police chief has started for the spot to investigate, as it is believed that the bodies are those of the aeronaut Herr Andree and his companions.

The balloon Eagle, with Professor Andree and two companions, Strindeberg and Frenkel, in the car, left Dane's island of the Spitzbergen group on July 11, 1897, in an attempt to cross the north polar point. No definite news of the aeronauts has been received beyond the message attached to a carrier pigeon, found by the whaling ship Falken, which arrived at Copenhagen on September 2. The message read as follows:

"July 11, 12.30 p. m.—Latitude 22.02 north, longitude 12.05 east. Good voyage eastward. All well."

The Quay Deadlock.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 11.—The twenty-first joint ballot of the Pennsylvania legislature yesterday in the United States senatorial contest resulted as follows:

Quay 78, Jenks 59, Dalzell 15 Irvin 4, Stewart 5, Tubbs 1, Huff 5, Stone 5, Rice 1, Grow 1, Markle 1, Widener 2, Riter 2, total 179. Necessary for choice 90. No election.

Before the ballot was taken there was gossip about a proposed move on the part of the anti-Quay leaders to bury still deeper the McCarrell jury bill by moving a reconsideration of the vote by which the bill was postponed, and then defeating the reconsideration, thus making it impossible for the Quay men to play any tricks.

A truce was finally declared on the bill, and there will be no formal election before next Tuesday.

Senator Penn, the recognized leader of the insurgents, regards the postponement of the McCarrell bill as a great victory, inasmuch as it represented the full strength of the Quay forces and identified the Democratic followers of Quay.

Haywood Hopelessly Ill.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 11.—A telegram from his wife states that the physicians have abandoned all hope of the recovery of former State Treasurer B. J. Haywood. Haywood is under indictment jointly with Senator Quay in the People's Bank conspiracy case.

Nicaragua Canal Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—A precedent has been found for an appropriation for the Nicaragua canal bill on the sundry civil bill. The precedent is that in the sundry civil bills of 1894 and 1895 appropriations were made for the Nicaragua bill, and therefore a point of order cannot be made against this amendment as a rider.

COMING EVENTS.

February 12—Franklin and Somerset Councils, O. U. A. M., will attend the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m. Rev. J. O. McKelvy will speak. All men are invited.

Draw the Line Properly.

Assemblyman Houston, of Elizabeth, has introduced a bill in the Legislature which is designed to saddle the expense of conducting the District Court of that city upon the county, as well as the cost of running District Courts throughout the State upon the counties in which they are located.

We have no doubt but that the District Court of Elizabeth relieves Union county of considerable expense that might be attached to it if certain legal matters that pass through it were handled by the justice of peace system. But from the text of the copy of the measure, which has been supplied to The Daily Press, it seems that its provisions are altogether too sweeping. Under the present arrangement the Court is supported by the city of Elizabeth. If Mr. Houston's bill becomes a law Elizabeth will be absolved of that expense except as it will pay its proportionate share of the county tax accruing to it, as it does for the maintenance of other strictly county institutions now.

This hardly seems fair. The District Court of Elizabeth exists principally for the benefit of Elizabethians and such residents who can appeal to its machinery without inconvenience, which obviously Plainfielders could not or would not expect to do. There is no reason why Plainfield taxpayers should help to pay for the entire maintenance of this court. If, however, the existence of the court is now relieving the county of certain expenses that Plainfield would otherwise have to pay its share of, then it would be but fair and just for some arrangement to be made whereby Elizabeth will not be put to bearing the whole burden.

But the line should be drawn so that the county as a whole should not be compelled to pay more than what it is relieved of in the ordinary course of legal machinery.

The Possibilities.

The bare possibility that Plainfield might be prevented from using the sewage beds disposal system for its sewage, as undoubtedly Dunellen citizens intend to make a reality if energy and liberal expense in legal channels amount to anything, leads immediately to the thought: What next shall be done to cope with the situation?

In the news columns of today's Press the subject is discussed in a thorough manner from several standpoints, and the conclusion is that tidewater disposal, with an immense truck sewer, is the only practical resort. The article is written in the face of possibilities, not probabilities. But in the devious ways of this world nowadays it is only the foolhardy that hold themselves aloof from the possibilities.

Whatever is done, whether the present disposal system is retained, a sewer built through to tide-water or a new plant constructed, the citizens of Plainfield will do well to remember that it should be no temporary arrangement but a permanent fixture, and that the probable future of such and the obstacles it is likely to meet should be fully considered before any step is taken.

A Perth Amboy magistrate has sentenced a citizen of that town to sixty days in the chain gang. The only charge against the culprit was that he was lazy. It is said that whenever he was offered work he sneered at the offers and absolutely refused to do any labor. If that rule was followed out rigorously in Plainfield it would necessitate the immediate establishment of foundry to manufacture chains.

Congress has declined to pass the appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of a Government building. At present it costs $900 a year to rent a suitable building for postoffice needs in the old Dutch city, and Congress cannot see its way clear to spend $100,000 to furnish a home for the office. Poor New Brunswick! Even Uncle Sam is not generous to her.

Somerville and Raritan are agitating the question the question of consolidating and becoming a third-class city, but the Somerville Democrat this week cried nay Pauline to the propositition. The Democrat rests content with being a first class town, rather than a third-class city.

Congressman-elect Wm. D. Daly, of Hudson county, is not trimming his sails as the popular winds blow in these parts. Mr. Daly is out against imperialism, and he says it in mighty plain words.

In this weather don't talk to us of the man that earns his bread by the sweat of his brow. That may be down in Florida now, but not in Plainfield.

The present low temperature in the weather has occasioned a frigidity in certain political circles in the borough.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

A plan is now proposed to form a new county from portions of Somerset, Union and Middlesex counties, with Plainfield as the county seat. The plan is to take North Plainfield township from Somerset county; New Market, Dunellen and South Plainfield from Middlesex; Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood and surrounding territory from Union. This would give the new county a population of about 30 000, one-half of which would be furnished by Plainfield and North Plainfield. This would be very fine for Plainfield, but we reckon the three counties aforesaid would have something to say about this.—Somerset Democrat.

The trolley line from Westfield to Rahway seems to be assured. Necessary consents of property owners and the right of way have been secured by the company up to the city line near the entrance to the water works on Westfield avenue. It is desired to lay the tracks from that point, along Westfield avenue, to connect with the U. and M. Traction Company's terminus at Grand street and St. Georges avenue. We understand that a large majority of the property owners on Westfield avenue have given their consent thereto, and all that is needed now is a franchise from the city to cover the short section of the road in the city limits. The benefits to our city from a direct connection with that section of the country ought to be considerable, and it will prove advantageous in many ways.—Rahway Advocate.

Just a single unguarded expression of Justice Gummere has elicited the fact that there are at least three laws upon the one subject of railroad killings which are designed to and do defeat the natural claims for damages. The parent cannot recover for the killing of the child; the husband cannot recover for the killing of the wife; and the employe cannot recover for the damage caused by another employe. In the first two laws, the life of the child and of the wife is weighed in the scale of money earning value; and all the tender ties between them are ignored and disregarded. In the third law, the family of a railroad employe are made to bear the full responsibility and damage resulting from the carelessness of one in the hiring, or pay, or labor, or fitness of whom they had no knowledge or power. It is the presence of such outrageous laws as these imbedded in our statutes that suggests connivance by legislators and governors with the railroad lobby and brings them all under condemnation.—True American.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

There are some dramatic productions which never lose their popularity. Time but fixes their hold on the public and each year finds an added list of admirers. Such a play is "Faust," which will be presented at Music Hall tonight with all the elaboration of detail to adequately portray the many scenic pictures. Mr. Joseph Callahan will be seen in the role of Mephistopheles. He is an actor of wide experience and has given the part especial study. The other members of the company are thoroughly competent and have been selected with special reference to their ability to fill the parts required. Altogether the entertainment promises to be one of the finest that has appeared here this season.

Lincoln's Birthday, which occurs Monday, marks the appearance of the Championship Cake Walkers and Minstrels at Music Hall, and from all accounts the organization, which is an all-colored one, will give a most unique entertainment. The singing and olio specialties are said to be of the "up-to-date" order, while the crowning feature—the cake walk—will surpass anything ever seen in the way of "style and poetry of motion." And don't miss the street parade Monday. The entire company, headed by the superb brass band of the aggregation, will make a tour of the principal streets at noon, and it will be an entertainment in itself.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

As a weather prophet Percy Ohl has distinguished himself by propheseying in October last that the 9th of February would be the coldest day of the year. Mr. Ohl has done this for several years.

"Early to bed, early to rise, makes a person healthy, wealthy and wise," was well exemplified in the life of Mrs. Thomas Stead, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Allen, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, Wednesday night, at the age of one hundred years, nine months and six days. Perhaps, in the consideration of the present classification of the wealthy, that qualification should be obliterated from the old-time adage in its application to the century long career of Mrs. Stead. Though she had ample of the world's goods to bring her happiness and good care to the end of her days, she was not wealthy as the world looks at money today. But as for being healthy and wise she was rich in these, and therein she became, during her days, one of the interesting characters of northern New Jersey. Up to almost the very moment of her death Mrs. Stead enjoyed good health. The night that she died she sat at the supper table, together with the rest of her daughter's family, and ate a hearty meal. She sipped her tea—the only stimulant that ever passed her lips—with a satisfaction that was evidenced in the smacking of her lips; she joined in the casual conversation usual to the family circle; bowed her head and invoked a fervent amen to the ending of the blessing of the meal made by her son-in-law; in fact, she made a remarkable picture of health and happiness for one almost rounding out the first year on her second century of life.

Another Franchise Wanted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 11—The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company has applied to the Township Committee of Clark township for a franchise to operate a line to Rahway. A public hearing on the matter was held at the Scudder school house yesterday afternoon.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, February 11.—Plainfield may have her Sergeant Neagle to keep a record of the weather, but Randolph Clawson, of Church street, this place, is keeping a record for himself of the daily temperature which promises to be of interest next winter when the "oldest resident" attempts to boast of the cold weather he used to experience when he was a boy. Mr. Clawson's thermometer reached its lowest mark yesterday morning when it registered fourteen degrees below zero, and that will act as a silencer when anyone attempts to say this has been a mild winter.

A "Crokinole Club" was organized recently at the home of Mrs. James Dunham, and the club held its first meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Annie Abbott. The club is composed of fourteen young ladies who will meet every two weeks at different members' houses and play crokinole and other games. Yesterday afternoon there was a good attendance, and at the close of the game refreshments were served.

The young daughter of Lawrence Kerwin was badly scalded yesterday noon by some hot water which the little one in some way managed to pull off the stove down on her. Dr. Brakeley was summoned and dressed the burned portions of her body, and today she is quite comfortable. The water scalded her head and face principally.

Rev. E. S. Jamison has issued an invitation to William G. Holton Council, No. 55, Jr. O. U. A. M., to attend divine service in his church Sunday, February 19th.

Firman Gise and Mrs. Samuel Richardson have been elected stewards at the Methodist church.

The Ladies Orchestra will furnish the music for an entertainment to be given in Westfield tonight.

Miss Lucy Westphal, of Plainfield, called on friends in the borough yesterday.

The Junior Epworth League met in the Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

Dr. P. M. Brakeley was in Plainfield yesterday on a business trip.

Miss Ethel Jamison will return today from a visit in Boonton.

Miss Compton, of Rahway, is visiting friends in town.

S. F. Tunison has an attack of the grip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 11—The masquerade party given in the Fanwood clubhouse Thursday night under the patronage of Mrs. D. A. Schierenbeck was a very delightful affair. The young people in their fancy costumes made a very pretty picture. The music was furnished by Naylor. At 8 o'clock the masqueraders formed in line for the grand march, which was led by Miss Jean Schierenbeck as Eva, and Master Willie Manning as little Lord Fontleroy. Mr. Jeppo Sorenson and sister won the cake in the cake walk, after which supper was served.

The trouble between Robert Moore and W. E and Thomas Emery will be aired in Judge Clark's court this afternoon. Moore has made a charge of assault, claiming that he was brutally beaten Sunday evening last at the hotel. Mr. Emery threatens to bring a counter charge of disorderly conduct against Moore, who, he claims, came into his place and raised a disturbance, thereby bringing the trouble upon himself.

Another cocking main between birds owned by residents of Murray Hill, named Schultz and Corrender, took place in town Thursday evening. Seven battles were fought, Corrender winning five out of the seven.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., met and initiated one new member last evening. The council is working hard for new timber and are gathering in nearly all the elegible young men in the village.

Harry Flannery and Ernest Marsh have both passed the medical examination necessary before they could join the Naval Reserves.

Another cocking main was scheduled to come off last evening between Stony Hill and Madison birds, but it failed to materialize.

Ernest Marsh, while delivering orders for his father Thursday morning, froze both of his ears quite badly.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff will take for his text tomorrow morning "A Discouraged Sinner Encouraged."

The public school will be closed Monday, Lincoln's Birthday.

Union County Concern.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 11.—The American Commercial Rubber Company filed articles in the office of the Union County Clerk Thursday. The capital stock is $250 000. The incorporators are Charles S. Hart, Jacob Meloth and Henry Rath, all of Elizabeth. The main office of the company will be at Elizabeth. The concern will manufacture and deal in rubber goods, and special attention will be given to the States of Maine, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

To Open New Series of Loans.

The Home Building and Loan Association will open a new series at each regular meeting, beginning with February 20th. Such action was taken at a recent meeting of the board of managers.

We give no rewards, an offer of this kind is the meanest of deceptions. Our plan is to give every one a chance to try the merit of Ely's Cream Balm—the original Balm for the cure of Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, by mailing for 10 cents a trial size to test its curative powers. We mail the 50 cent size also and the druggist keeps it. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

—The councilmanic fire committee must think it is about time that the new engine house in the West End is equipped with apparatus, judging by the number of recent fires in the Fourth ward.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

A SWELLED HEAD.

If asked who is the greatest bore,
By truth we are compelled,
If we make answer, this to say—
The man whose head is swelled.

His own ideas and weighty thoughts
So fill his little mind,
In others no good trait he sees,
To his own faults he's blind.

So great is his own self esteem,
So mighty is his worth,
He thinks all things would cease to move,
If he'd step off the earth.

He sees much that he'd criticise,
And much that makes him frown,
Not only this, he has the gall,
To "call his betters down."

These swell-head people we all know,
Can to themselves give thanks,
If some fine morning they awake
And find they're only cranks.

S. G. C.

THE HUSBAND'S JEALOUSY.

She was only eighteen when Gilbert Amydon married her—a bright-eyed little thing, with hair like gold, and a complexion like the pink-and-white of a conch shell.

"Gil, you're a fool!" said his plain-spoken uncle, who had money to leave, and comported himself in a proportionately uncivil manner. "You're like all the rest of the world—infatuated by a pretty face."

"I confess, dear Gilbert, I am surprised at your choice," said his elderly maiden sister, "after having told you that Sylvia Simmerton was inclined to look favorably upon your attentions—why, Sylvia has three hundred a year of her own."

"I'm really afraid, Gilbert," said his mother, "that Florence is rather young and inexperienced."

"She'll grow older, mother," said the bridegroom cheerily; "and there's plenty of experience to be had in this world, if one only lives long enough."

And Gilbert Amydon and his pretty little wife were as happy as the day was long.

Florence cried a little when her husband was obliged to go away on important business connected with the firm in which he was a partner. They had been married only a few months.

"I wish I were going with you, Gilbert," said she; and Gilbert Amydon laughed and patted her rose-leaf cheek.

"Why, what should I do with a little sephyr of a creature like you?" said he. "How would you endure traveling all night and running about all day? No, no; you must stay at home and keep house till I come back."

So Gilbert Amydon went away.

He had not been gone many weeks before a long and acrid letter from his maiden sister, Drusilla, infused a bitter element into the current of his reflections.

"Florence is very well," wrote Miss Drusilla, who, although by no means either fat or fair, was forty at least, "and apparently very happy. She had friends to tea last night. Of course, I was not invited, although most inopportunely I called in, about the Dorcas Sewing Club, just as they were sitting down to tea. The Misses Myrtle were there, with their cousin, Major Darrock is very handsome"—these words were underscored with two vicious dashes of the pen—"and, judging from their conversation, Florence and he were old friends before she met you. I dare say it is all right—indeed, Florence told me that when she invited the three Myrtle girls she didn't know that Major Darrock had just arrived on a visit to them. But, nevertheless, I hardly believe it is well to re-ignite the ashes of an old flirtation on the altar of an absent husband's hearthstone. However, as I said before, Florence is very young, and can hardly be expected to comprehend these things."

Gilbert Amydon felt a sharp sting of latent jealousy go through his heart as he read his sister's words, but presently he broke into a smile, and tore up Miss Drusilla's letter unceremoniously into cigar-lighters.

"They would shut her up in a nunnery if they had their way, said he to himself. "Poor, dear little girl! she must have some amusement."

But Uncle Crawley's next letter was more vaguely annoying still.

"I suppose you have heard from your wife about the fancy masquerade ball," said he. "The young folks are all wild about it. Your wife is to go as Rowena to Major Darrock's Ivanhoe. The costumes are to cost no end of money, I am told. When I was a young man people didn't squander their incomes in that sort of way. But I suppose if you are willing, it's not my business to object."

Gilbert Amydon knit his brows and bit his lip, as he read the words that his Uncle Crawley had penned with such malicious pleasure. This was quite a different affair from the tea party to which Drusilla Amydon had taken exception. And for the first time in his life Gilbert felt in his heart a strong, surging tide of anger toward the beautiful young wife whom he had promised at the altar to love and cherish.

"If she is really going to this ball," he said to himself, "I don't know what the consequences will be. She knows I hate bal-masques, and she knows, too, that she has no business to go with that major fellow when I am away. Drusilla was right—she is too young for a wife. I should have thought twice before I gave up into her hands such unbounded power to sting and torture me. At all events, I wont stay here to be made a fool of. I'll go back home, and judge for myself whether she is losing all her common sense and discretion.

He glanced at his watch.

"If I start at once," he thought, "I can be at Dedlington on the evening of the ball. And I'll do it!"

What a long, dreary ride that was—midnight joltings through endless stretches of woods and meadow-lands and tunnels of echoing rock—days when sleep and waking seemed oddly jumbled together! And the one pervading idea that filled his brain was Florence, robed in pale blue silk with her golden hair dressed as in an old picture he had once seen of the beautiful Saxon Princess Rowena. And all the time his heart was as heavy as lead within him.

Florence, whom he had loved and trusted—Florence, who had grown into his heart as the clinging ivy makes its way into the crevices of the granite rock—Florence, whose pure innocence and singleness of nature he had worshipped—what would life be worth to him if she should prove untrue? Not that he feared any such misery—no, he knew Florence too well for that—but a plum with the bloom brushed off was no plum for him, he had told himself, with a hot, fevered anger throbbing through his brain; of what value were the smiles whose sweetness was lavished liberally on all alike?

And as he rode along, with folded arms and traveling cap drawn sullenly over his eyes, Gilbert Amydon felt like one who was already bereaved.

The house was dark as he ascended the steps and opened the door with his latchkey.

"Gone!" he said to himself, with a bitter smile. "Gone! Well, I knew it. What else could I have expected? She is no longer my sweet, home-loving Florence, but—Rowena, the Saxon Princess!"

With these thoughts in his mind, he strode up the passage, and opened the drawing-room door. To his surprise, it was neither dark nor deserted. A cheerful fire burned in the grate—the shaded lamp threw its circlet of light on the red-covered centre-table—and there, all alone, sat Florence, her cheek resting on her hand, her soft eyes fixed intently on something in her lap—his photograph!

It was the prettiest little tableau in the world. Amydon stood for a second, scarcely willing to disturb it.

"Florence!"

"O, Gilbert, Gilbert!"

And with a low, sobbing cry of joy she sprang to his breast.

"So you haven't gone to the fancy ball, after all," said he, as he sat down beside her, passing his hand fondly over her golden hair.

"To the fancy ball? I never thought of going, Gilbert. I knew you did not like balls; and, besides, where would be the pleasure of going, with you away?"

"They wrote to me that you were going as Rowena, the Saxon Princess," said Amydon, half ashamed of the words he uttered.

"O, I know!" said Florence, laughing. "Fanny Myrtle did want me to go. She was to be Rebecca, the Jewess, you know, and Major Darrock, her cousin, was to be Ivanhoe; and she thought it would be a nice party. She even ordered a costume for me, but I told her all along I shouldn't go; so Clara Myrtle is wearing it to-night."

"While you are sitting here all alone, and studying my photograph?" he interrogated fondly.

"I—I'm afraid I was crying a little," confessed Florence, "for I was so lonely, and I wanted to see you so much."

"My own darling little wife!"

This was the last of Gilbert Amydon's brief madness of jealousy. Drusilla's spite and Uncle Crawley's quiet malice had all fallen short of their mark.

And Florence reigns undisputed queen at last over her husband's heart.

Holland and Her Colonies.

It is not the fiercest nations that have been the greatest successes at colonizing and getting rich out of gentle toil. Next to England, little phlegmatic Holland has the most valuable colonies in the world. She still holds Java, containing 25,000,000 people, and although the natives are Malays they are very loyal. She also has other rich possessions in the east, the island of Sumatra being four times as large as Cuba, and the island of Celebes being larger than all New England, to say nothing of her six islands in the West Indies and her possessions in South America. The good-natured Netherlands, like the British, have held on to their profitable territory by keeping the spirit of trade alive rather than the spirit of autocracy, and avoiding the levy of murderous taxes, with nothing in return to compensate.

About Mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes, it is to be presumed, exist for some useful service, but what it is known only to etomologists. To the majority of people there is no information regarding them so welcome as the fact that they are gradually being exterminated by the advance of civilization. This being so, it should be additionally interesting to those who live in districts where mosquitoes abound to know how their departure can be expedited. Permanganate of potash, says a medical paper, can be used against them with deadly effect. Minute parts of the crystal are sufficient for the purpose. The same authority informs us that only two and a half hours are required for a mosquito to develop from its first stage, a speck resembling cholera bacteria, to its active and venomous maturity.

A DAKOTA GIRL RIDES A STEER.

She Can Round Up the Cattle as Well as Fill the Position of Postmistress.

One of the most noted of the intrepid Dakota girls who reside in the great cattle country west of the Missouri River is Miss Bessie Hill, the postmistress at Leon, Stanley County.

One of her favorite diversions is to lasso a wild Texas steer, saddle and bridle him, mount upon his back and turn him loose upon the prairie.

She frequently rides her favorite horses without saddle or bridle, guiding them by words or a touch of the quirt on the side of the neck. This habit came near bringing her to grief one day last summer. She had been training her favorite colt, Lightfoot, to ride without the customary accoutrements, and wishing to corral a bunch of horses she sprang upon his back, without stopping to bridle him, and dashed after them. The horses ran through an open gate into a field inclosed by a high barb-wire fence. By this time Lightfoot had become so excited from the brisk run as to be absolutely unmanagable, and he made straight for the fence at his topmost speed.

For a moment it seemed that horse and rider must become entangled in the barb-wire and be mutilated, but just as the animal reached the fence it made a gigantic bound and cleared the obstruction. She succeeded in calming him as her brother and parents hastened to the scene. They begged her not to ride the colt again, but her blood was up and she now declared that she would drive the horses with Lightfoot just as he was or die in the attempt. Striking him a sharp blow with the quirt, she again flew after them, and this time she succeeded in landing them safely inside the corral.—New York World.

Eggs in Surgery.

Skin grafting with the inside coating of an egg is the delicate operation that gave Thomas J. Tannian a good sound ear the other day in Cincinnati. Tannian's ear drum had been punctured as the result of a long attack of grippe that caused deafness and extreme pain. The ear specialist who attended him resorted to a novel treatment.

He called for an egg, broke it and dropped the yolk and the white into a pan. There is a thin skin on the inside of the shell of an egg, and this the specialist tenderly picked out and spread carefully on a piece of sterilized glass. With a pair of scissors he cut out a round bit of the skin, being careful not to lose any of its under coating of albumen, and then, distending Tannian's ear to admit a probe into the drum, gently forcing the bit of egg over the punctured part. The skin stuck, covered up the aperture caused by the wound, and nature did the rest. Tannian's ear will be all right again soon, and the egg will have found a place in surgery.—New York Journal.

A Missing Ring Story.

A valuable snake ring which Mrs. F. Palmer, wife of a jeweler of Leatherhead, Surrey, lost about seven years ago, was recovered under most remarkable circumstances. Mrs. Palmer was feeding some swans with bread-crumbs in Fetcham Pond when the ring slipped off one of her fingers and disappeared into the water. Several searches were made at the time to recover the ring, but without success. One day a little boy from Bookham was walking along the side of the pond, amusing himself by testing the depth of the water with a walking stick, when he discovered that there was a gold ring on the end of the stick, picked up from the bottom of the pond. In order to ascertain its value, the boy took the ring to Palmer's shop, where it was at once identified as the ring which Mrs. Palmer had lost about seven years ago. It was little the worse for its long immersion in the pond.—Tid-Bits.

Pigs, Not Unicorns or Lions Wanted.

A Welsh county court judge recently had before him a case in which a printer sued a pork butcher for the value of a large parcel of paper bags with the latter's advertisement printed thereon. The printer, having no suitable illustration to embellish the work, thought he improved the occasion by putting an elaborate royal arms above the man's name and address, but ultimately the latter refused to pay.

The judge, looking over a specimen, observed that, for his part, he thought the lion and unicorn were much nicer than an old fat pig.

"Oh, well," answered the butcher, "perhaps Your Honor likes to eat animals like that, but my customers don't. I don't kill lions and unicorns. I only kill fat pigs."

Verdict for defendant.—Answers.

Two Bad Scares.

"Yes," said the retired army officer, "I can recall two occasions when I was most terribly frightened."

"Oh," exclaimed the romantic young lady, "do tell me about them. I suppose it happened when you were fighting the Indians?"

"No," replied; "one time was when I was married and the other time was when we had our baby christened."—Washington Star.

Thankful for Small Favors.

"Well," said the sarcastic man as he walked out of the theatre between acts, "I'm ever so much obliged to that girl who sits in front of me. I don't know but I'll tell her so."

"You mean the one with the frightfully big hat?"

"Yes."

"I don't see what you're obliged to her for."

"For not raising her umbrella."

AMERICAN BUNTING.

The Requisitions by the Government for It for Navy Flags.

Imperative requisitions by the Government authorities for the production of bunting for navy flags are what insure the superiority so well known to characterize the American article. The regulations prescribe that the fabric be made entirely of wool of the best quality, and show no imperfections, the weight to be five and one-fourth pounds avoridupois per piece of forty yards of 10-inch width, the yarn to be evenly spun, the warp and filling to contain no less than thirty-four threads to the inch, and the warp two-ply with one-ply filling, properly twisted; further, a tensile strength is required of sixty-five pounds for the warp and forty-five pounds for the filling, in test pieces two inches wide. The colors must be as "fast" as it is possible to make them, and not liable to be seriously affected by being soaked continuously for twenty-four hours in fresh water and then thoroughly washed in water with which is combined a good grade of laundry soap. Every stripe and device on the flags made of this superb material are measured with the most perfect geometrical accuracy, and the stars are put on so carefully and evenly that when the flag is held up to the light the stars, which are made of muslin and put on both sides, appear to be a part of the fabric. The stars are cut with chisels out of bleached muslin laid thirty thicknessess together on a large open block.—Boston Transcript.

THE FRENCH PEASANT.

After Harvest All the Fields Become Common Property.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers they, at least, will own a house and garden, and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving, yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property, and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gros betail and the other betail are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

BIGGEST WINE TANK IN THE WORLD.

Half a Million Gallons of Wine Pumped Into It by Steam in California.

Half a million gallons of wine, all in one still, deep, red lake, are the feature of this year's wine industry in California. The lake is the biggest vat in all the history of wine making. The famous great tun at Heidelberg held only 50,000 gallons. London boasted tanks twice as large as Heidelberg, and in San Francisco is one which holds 150,000 gallons. Before this huge underground cavern at Asti, in Sonoma, where 500,000 gallons of grape juice are to take on sweetness and flavor, all former feats in storing vast quantities of wine are insignificant.

For one solid week two steam pumps forced into this reservoir four-inch streams of grape juice before it was filled and corked. For this huge storage tank is in reality a sort of Brobdignagian bottle, buried well underground to preserve it from changes of temperature and the heat of the sun's rays. Its construction was a matter of sudden necessity. It unexpectedly became known that there was more grape juice in Sonoma vineyards than there was room in which to put it. The idea of a big concrete cistern was broached and quickly adopted and in forty-five days from the time the first shovelful of earth was thrown out the steam pumps began their task of filling it.—New York Sun.

A Change.

"What's the matter wid Briggers?" asked the gentleman with the red shirt. "I thought he was always so radical in his beliefs and wanted the money of the country divided up evenly. LOVE OR MONEY?

BY JESSE LEETE.

I.

Smoothly and almost silently the big white liner Cameroon was gliding into her berth in the outer harbor at Genoa. Slowly and surely she slipped through the soft darkness of the summer evening, patiently threading her way among the crowd of smaller craft which lay at anchor all around.

By common consent her passengers had hurried over dinner that evening to breathe the cool, sweet air on deck, and catch the earliest glimpse of "Genoa la Superba."

The Cameroon was anchored too far out for any sound from the shore to reach her; and when once her screws had given their last weary throb, there fell a silence so profound that it smote almost painfully on ears now for many days and nights accustomed to the ceaseless multitudinous noises of an ocean-going steamship.

Among the passengers assembled on her deck was a tall, broad-shouldered young Englishman, whose genial face and general air of good fellowship seemed somewhat at variance with the solitude it pleased him just then to affect. As he stood there, leaning against the high bulwarks, his head bared to the balmy night breeze, his expressive face told plainly that the beauty of the surrounding scenery was not wasted upon him. Yet it was equally evident that something was still lacking to complete his enjoyment of that beauty. His bright blue eyes wandered continually from the distant fairyland to scan the passing groups of pasengers strolling up and down the deck, and more than once he nearly started forward, as some graceful, girlish figure glided out of the darkness into the brilliant radiance of the electric lights. But each time brought a new disappointment, and he returned once more to his attitude of patient expectation.

Presently, apparently weary of the fruitless waiting, he flung away his second cigar half smoked, and, with quickened steps, descended the companion and went toward the ladies' saloon. Near the door he halted. At the far end of the saloon a young girl sat reading. The soft, clinging folds of her plain gown stood out in striking relief against the background of crimson velvet, and the rays of the lamps overhead fell softly on the shapely head with its crown of chestnut coils.

For a minute the young man stood silent in the doorway, unwilling to break up the pretty picture. Then, as though some visible current had passed from mind to mind, the young lady raised her head suddenly, and a faint blush overspread her cheek as she found his gaze fastened upon her. The intruder came forward at once, and addressed her with a chivalrous grace and respect which proved him to be the gentleman he was.

"Pardon me for disturbing you, but really you ought not to bury yourself down here in this hot saloon, tonight of all others. While you are here poring over a book you might read at any time, every one else is on deck enjoying a sight which may never fall to your lot to see again."

The girl laid her book down and rose. She was tall and slender in figure, and when she spoke her soft, clear voice and cultivated accent fell pleasantly on the listener's ear.

"The fact is," she said, "that my aunt has gone to bed early with a severe headache, and I did not care about coming up on deck alone."

The young man bowed low with half-laughing, easy grace.

"That is an obstacle easily removed, if you will so far honor me. May I have the pleasure of showing you Genoa by moonlight?"

He offered his arm. The young lady rested the tips of her fingers lightly on his sleeve, and together they proceeded to the upper deck. As the girl's eyes first encountered the beauty of the surrounding scene a low cry burst involuntarily from her lips. Then she stood for a long time motionless and silent, gazing across the dark, gleaming waters at the fairyland panorama till, as if satiated with beauty, she turned at length to her companion with a little sigh of delight.

"I am more than grateful to you, Mr. Hartley!"

Each had learned the other's name from the ship's list of passengers, but this was the first time either had betrayed that knowledge. The young man's heart gave a throb of pleasure at the sound.

"It is I who am under obligation to you, Miss Thornton," he answered warmly. "A pleasure shared is always a pleasure doubled. Don't you find it so yourself?"

Miss Thornton hesitated, and looked doubtfully at her companion.

"I scarcely know," she said presently. "Yes—I suppose so—no doubt it is true. But my life has always been a rather lonely one. And of late—circumstances—my peculiar position"—

She checked herself abruptly with a look of unmistakable annoyance.

"You were saying"—— ventured Mr. Hartley gently; but she did not complete the interrupted sentence. The young man stole a quick glance at the delicate, moonlit face beside him. He could read nothing there; a veil of impenetrable reserve had settled over it.

II.

Cecil Hartley and Grace Thornton had known each other for one week only. Yet it was already difficult for Cecil to recall to memory the world as it had appeared to him before the hour when his eyes first encountered the face which more than realized his every ideal of womanly beauty.

Grace Thornton was what is usually termed a "striking" girl. You might easily see her a dozen times before you realized the charm of the broad, low brow, from which the rippling chestnut hair was drawn lightly back without suspicion of curl or "fringe", the thoughtful eyes, so full of expression that you scarcely noticed their color; the finely moulded cheek and chin, and the sensitive, delicate mouth. The whole face was pure and true as the shades of evening. A certain maidenly dignity characterized all her actions and lent a grace to all her movements.

Of course to lose one's heart at sight is unwise; to lose it to a stranger of whose antecedents you know nothing is the height of folly. But Cecil Hartley, "level-headed" young Englishman though he was, and a barrister to boot, had a Celtic strain in his blood which sometimes played him strange tricks. By the third day out from Southampton he had settled it firmly in his own mind that he would win Grace Thornton for his wife, or he would die a bachelor. And when Cecil Hartley set out to do a thing he usually accomplished it.

Eight days only between Southampton and Genoa! But in eight days courage and perseverance may accomplish much, and Cecil's "luck" was notorious.

That luck and the good offices of a well-tipped steward now made him Miss Thornton's next neighbor at table. On her other hand sat a refined, intelligent-looking lady of fifty, whom she addressed as "Aunt Annie"—entered on the ship's list of passengers as Mrs. Armytage.

On the strength of this table acquaintance Cecil gradually and cautiously assumed the right as minister in various little ways to the comfort of the two ladies, who had no attendant with them. He carried their chairs assiduously from side to side of the deck as exigencies of sun and wind demanded; he annexed books and reviews and illustrated papers in all directions for their benefit; he bribed the deck-steward into serving stray cups of excellent tea, made from his own private supply, at all sorts of unhallowed hours—and when it grew hotter he even succeeded, none knew how, in getting the ice-room unlocked between meals—that last triumph over the conscience of a good chief steward.

Yet to-night as he stood in the moonlight beside the lady of his dreams, he asked himself despondingly what, after all, he had accomplished? True, all his civilities had been accepted with an easy and graceful courtesy which left him no room for complaint. In rough weather he had even been permitted sometimes to give the support of his arm during a perilous transit. But this was the extreme limit reached.

Both ladies were perfectly friendly and pleasant in their bearing to all around them; but by no amount of self-deception could he flatter himself that he had made the least approach to real and lasting intimacy. A quiet front of steady, silent reserve resisted his most patient efforts.

The line of demarcation was a simple one. On all topics of general interest—art, literature, travel, even politics and religion—both ladies would converse freely. The most distant approach to personal matters sealed their lips instantly. Where they resided, whither they were bound, what brought them to Italy at a season when the English in a body had deserted it, were subjects which no crafty calculated communicativeness on the part of their fellow-passenger ever tempted them for a moment to approach.

Nor could Mr. Hartley form any more definite idea as to their social position. Apparently they were not wealthy. No maid accompanied them. Their dress, even to an unsophisticated male eye, bespoke a rigid regard for economy. All their personal belongings were of the simplest and least costly description. Ladies, undoubtedly; but the term nowadays admits of wide interpretation, and no casual mention of friend or acquaintance ever gave the smallest clew to their place on the social ladder.

Of course he puzzled himself now by night and by day over the strange reticence of these two apparently simple and frank-hearted women. Why should should they shroud their movements in such impenetrable mystery? Why so sedulously conceal every trace of their identity? That the strange silence was purposely and carefully maintained there could be no doubt. It would have been so easy, so natural for some chance word to have set his mind at rest.

Not for a moment did Cecil's allegiance waver, or the purpose of his heart change. Only his time was so short. The days had slipped by like a dream. The last night had come, and what had he accomplished? Would he next day be driven to say "Goodby" in ignorance of all which could give a hope of future meeting?

Once again Cecil strove to break through the spell which that strange silence laid upon him. He could not do it; the veil of maiden dignity which enshrouded the girl beside him was too impenetrable. Even on this last evening her steady reserve stood between them, high and impassable as the walls of Jerico, and not to him was it given, even then, to sound the silver trumpet call which should lay them low.

Yet there is a wall so strong that a lover cannot find some chink, and before they parted for the night one single fragment of knowledge had rewarded Mr. Hartley's patience. Some unguarded word of hers gave him the opening, and he boldly ventured an interrogation.

"Then—have you lost both your parents, Miss Thornton?"

"I never knew my mother, and just two years ago my father died. He"—

Again she checked herself abruptly. Had the simple fact she mentioned been a state secret she could scarcely have looked more annoyed by the momentary lapse.

"The night air grows a little chilly," she said hastily, "and it is time I went below. We must be up early to-morrow morning. Good-night."

"You will not surely refuse to shake hands, Miss Thornton? Just once—this last evening?"

There was a charm in Cecil's sunny, manly face which few men and fewer women could resist. Yet, pleading though both voice and smile were now, Miss Thornton hesitated before accepting the proffered hand, as though she were debating with herself whether she dared, even in so small a matter, exceed the bounds laid down. Cecil felt his pulse quicken during the momentary pause. Then the blood rushed warmly to his cheek, for suddenly, impulsively, frankly, the girl laid her soft warm hand in his, and lifted her eyes to meet his gaze. One brief moment they stood thus, then she drew her hand gently from his clasp and was gone.

III.

By 8 o'clock the next morning on board the Cameroon all was hurry, bustle and confusion.

The quay accommodation of Genoa is limited in extent, compared with her trade; so the Cameron, having but few passengers entered for that port, was not permitted that day to come alongside, but remained at her anchorage in mid-harbor. Just at the moment when Mrs. Armytage realized that there was no hope of a nearer approach to the shore, Mr. Hartley happened to be at her elbow.

"Is it really true," she asked in evident dismay, "that we shall have to land in one of those dirty little boats, and with all our luggage, too?"

"I am afraid there is no alternative. But the boats are perfectly safe, and perhaps not quite so dirty as they look. Still, it would certainly be awkward for ladies to be handed over alone to the tender mercies of these insatiable boatmen. If you would allow me the pleasure of seeing you safely ashore"—

Mrs. Armytage hesitated, and glanced uneasily at her niece. That young lady, who was standing behind Cecil, gave an almost imperceptible gesture of assent, and, with an air of great relief the elder lady accepted the proffered assistance.

"Thank you," she said warmly, "you would really be doing us a great service."

"Then will you go up on the upper deck, out of the way of all this turmoil, and wait till I fetch you, please? How many packages am I to find? Four only? Marvelous! We shall soon be away, I see."

The two ladies were well pleased to retreat as enjoined, for around them confusion was ever growing more confounded. They watched this scene for some minutes from the upper deck in silence. Presently—apropos of nothing—the elderly lady laughed softly to herself. Her niece looked at her inquiringly.

"I was only thinking my dear Grace, how admirably we have observed the law of the Medes and Persians laid down for our stay aboard. 'Not a single acquaintance to be begun on any pretence whatever.' We left Southampton a week to-day, and already we have as devoted a cavalier as two errant dames could desire; and one whom I foresee some difficulty in shaking off. That is a young man of considerable determination and energy."

Miss Thornton smiled somewhat consciously.

"Circumstances alter cases, you know, Aunt Annie! Just look down at that pandemonium, and confess that you are thankful to have a cavalier at hand."

"Certainly I am thankful. The law was of your making, not mine. I never professed to be an esprit fort, and the incomprehensible yells of those barbarous boatmen might daunt a braver woman than I shall ever be. Surely they do not imagine they are speaking Italian?"

"Oh, no; it is the dialetto genovese. Mr. Hartley has been here before, and understands it fairly well. He and a college friend kept a small yacht here, all through one long vacation, before he left for Oxford."

Mrs. Armytage looked out a little curiously at her niece.

"You seem to have found out a good deal about Mr. Hartley in a very short time, Grace. Do you think you are acting quite wisely? Remember we know nothing of him but what he has told us himself."

"And he knows absolutely nothing of us, from any source whatever, so we are more than quits, Aunt Annie."

"Are you sure of that? Things get round very quickly and oddly sometimes. He may know you better than you imagine."

"I am sure he does not. And I cannot be sorry we have made a little exception in his favor. He has been so very useful—and so pleasant, too."

At that moment they caught sight of their self-appointed escort coming toward them, hot, flushed, and with marks of the fray on his previously faultless attire, but cheery and good-tempered as ever.

"You must have thought me lost," he said apologetically. "I have been watching the packing of three large boats with the trunks of two Baltimore schoolgirls. They ought to have chartered a good-sized steam launch! But at last I got your luggage, and now all is ready. Will you come?"

There was something in Cecil Hartley's manner toward women which exactly hit the happy medium between coldness and officious "fussiness." Perhaps the charm lay in his evident pleasure in rendering whatever service lay in his power. No woman ever felt under any burdensome obligation to him for such service; on the contrary, she felt she had conferred a favor and was happy accordingly.

Both Mrs. Armytage and her niece experienced this subtle charm as they were carefully handed down the slippery, swaying accommodation-ladder, and helped to their places in the broad, flat-bottomed harbor-boat which already held their modest supply of luggage.

Mr. Hartley had just seated himself near them, and their boatman—a lean, bright-eyed old Genovese sailor—was in the act of preparing to push off from the ship's side when an unexpected and startling development of the situation occurred. A crowd of tall and swarthy Arabs, returning home in the steerage after having taken part in some "Wild East" exhibition, made a sudden rush for the gangway, broke through the cordon of ship's officers and flung themselves pell-mell down the accommodation-ladder, fighting frantically among themselves for the chance of a free passage ashore. Yelling and gesticulating like madmen, scrambling on each other's shoulders like a herd of unruly cattle, one after another leaped from the ladder into the boat in which the terrified ladies were sitting, while their less fortunate fellows clung with long, dirt-begrimed, slender yet sinewy hands to the boat's gunwale.

The danger was obvious and imminent, and for a minute Cecil could do nothing to avert it. He had been forced right into the stern by the first unexpected rush, and before he could fight his way to the front of the fray a dozen Arabs had made good their footing in the boat, and a dozen more were recklessly struggling for a chance to do the same.

There was not a moment to be lost. Already the gunwale was all but level with the water's edge, and the boat—tub though she was—lurched perilously under the weight of the standing, swaying crowd.

Cecil seized a boathook—primitively large and heavy—and with one well-directed blow he laid low a big, brutal-looking fellow, who already had one foot within the boat.

With a wild howl of rage and pain the rascal fell backward; his companions, demoralized by the sudden attack, released their hold on the gunwale, and the old boatman, with all speed, seized the favorable moment to push clear of the ship's side.

So far the victory was Cecil's. But he had to pay its price. The blow had been a vigorous one. His footing, the wet and slippery seat, was narrow and treacherous. There was a brief, wild struggle to recover his balance, then a splash, and amid shrieks of laughter from the repulsed Arabs, Cecil vanished head-first below the waters of Genoa Harbor.

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Central Journal Bowling League.

	Won.	Lost.	Highest Score.
Roselle	19	8	903
Park	19	11	905
Westfield	18	15	915
Newark Bay C. C.	14	13	955
Elizabeth	13	14	894
N. J. A. C.	7	17	944
Cranford Casino	6	18	811

Only two weeks more remain during which the Parks will have a chance to redeem themselves in the Central Journal Bowling Legue. Next Friday the Parks will roll their last game at home when the team from the Cranford Casino will come here for a series of three. The Parks last series will be rolled on the alleys of the Newark Bay Boat Club in Bayonne, Thursday evening, February 23d.

It was a bitter pill for the Parks to swallow, those three defeats on the Westfield alleys last Wednesday evening. The prospects of the Park Club to stand first in the Central Journal Bowling League had been so bright. Of course the Parks have still a chance to get the coveted first place after all but the rosy prospects of a few days ago have sadly dimmed. If Westfield repeats the dose in her three games that she rolls on the Roselle alleys, then the Parks and Roselle will be tie once more, but Westfield in that case would be uncomfortably close to the leaders. The Parks have six more games to roll in the League and they will have to win them all if they want to be anywhere at the finish, the loss of many of them might cost them second place.

VARICUS SPORTS.

This evening the gymnastic contest for novices will be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, beginning at 8 o'clock. The visitor's gallery will be open. Considerable interest has been manifested in the contest and quite a number of the athletic members of the association are expected to compete.

GOLF.

The Park Golf Club are anticipating quite an increase in its membership next spring. Already a number of applications have been received.

—Hon. Jonathan P. Dolliver, cousin to G. Q. Dolliver, of Fairview avenue, and a member of Congress from Iowa, will speak before the Presbyterian Union in the Third Presbyterian church, Newark, February 13th. The subject of his address will be, "The Nation of America."

FAIR ENDS TONIGHT.

Contests are Lively and Promise Much Excitement at Close.

The attendance at the fair of Warren Engine Company last evening was very large and the usual good time prevailed. The programme consisted of character sketches by "Jack" Carney, vocal solos by Harry Roberts, Mr. O'Brien and Miss Lillian Zeisz Miss Zeisz also played several selections on the piano, after which Miss Mamie Denise and Harry Milligan gave an exhibition of fancy cake walking.

During the evening one of two tons of coal was chanced off and former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., was the winner. A barrel of flour went to Mr. Rogers, an employee of Potter Press Works. He returned the flour. The bowling prizes were won by W. Bennett, Mr. O'Brien, Rudolph Speigel and Mr. Schleif.

Tonight the fair closes. At 9 o'clock the Wolf American bicycle will be chanced off, and the other contests decided. Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., and the Saengerbunds are tie for first place in the gavel contest, while Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, G. A. R., Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, and Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A., follow in the order named.

Successful Parlor Entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux, of Fairview avenue, opened their home last evening to the members and friends of the Brightside Circle, King's Daughters, for a parlor entertainment given for the benefit of the city nurse

The programme comprised an opening piano solo by Miss Lillian A. Force, recitations by Miss Mary A. Luckey, character sketches by Frank O. Bristol, a vocal solo by Miss Purdue, of Orange, accompanied by Miss Lillian A. Force. A piano solo by Master Arthur VanArsdale, violin solos by Miss Hyatt, a vocal solo by Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux, accompanied by Miss Hyatt.

Completed Course of Study.

The Washingtonville school, in charge of Mrs. S. S. Higgins, has had a new experience. Beulan Wolfe and Mary Troiano, having completed the course of study prescribed for grammar schools in Somerset county, have passed a very creditable examination under County Superintendent J. A. Mets and have received from him a diploma. The examination was a rigid one and the girls have won well-deserved credit.

Miller Still Unconscious.

Fred G. Miller, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday apparently badly frozen, has not regained consciousness. This morning, the superintendent at the hospital received a telegram from Newark, undersigned, informing her to "hold Fred G. Miller as relatives would call to see him today." Up to noon no one had appeared.

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered William Schenck, of the Springfield road, last night. The surprise was arranged by Mrs. John Abbott and Mrs. William Campbell.

—A St. Valentine's Day sociable will be held in the Congregational church Tuesday evening.

—The postoffice will close Monday, Lincoln's birthday, at noon, and remain closed the remainder of the day.

—Tuesday evening of next week the members of Martha Washington Council, D. of A., will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hope, East Third street.

—On account of the present cold snap many of the young women employed at Miss Smalley's dressmaking parlors have been unable to get to work, as they live a good distance from the place of employment.

TO REACH TIDEWATER

mentioned. Such a sewer would either come over the plateau and thus involve a pumping station or follow the course of the Raritan valley. While no survey has ever been made with that object in view, it is possible that a gravity sewer might be made to follow closely the bank of the river from Field's dam or even the mouth of Bound Brook, could the necessary right.

With a rough calculation as to the size of the sewer necessary to build, it was estimated that it would cost in the neighborhood of $75,000 to $100,000 to build a sewer on the line of the survey first described. This would not include the rights of way but merely the material and construction.

The cost of the sewer with pumping station to Martin's Dock, exclusive of the rights of way, was estimated at $130,000. The cost of the construction of a sewer, without including any very deep cuts or tunnel work, was roughly estimated at $15,000 a mile. This would make the cost of the sewer, emptying into the Raritan river close to its mouth and following the line of the water courses to that point, something like $180,000. If a pumping station was necessary, then the cost would grow every day without cessation. Then must be taken into consideration the cost of securing the right of way, a portion of which along the Raritan is particularly valuable. Any estimate of such cost, it is easy to see, would be impossible without a proper investigation of the subject.

While the sewer to tidewater is generally looked upon as the only other alternative should the present system of sewage disposal be changed, there are a score of plans that could be presented. It has been suggested that the time is not far distant when North Plainfield and Dunellen will both be considering the same question that Plainfield took steps to answer back in 1892. The three municipalities might, to follow the same suggestion, unite their efforts. A tract of land close to to the mountain could be purchased that would be a mile at least from Dunellen, North Plainfield or Evona. There are but a few houses there which could easily be bought. A set of disposal beds could then be constructed and a pumping station built on Rock avenue, near Green brook, to pump the sewage to them. The running expenses of the pumping station would, however, be large and continuous.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvet skin, rich complexion.
